CC0.In Public Domain..Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

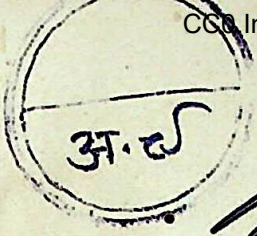
A history of the Canonical Literature of the Jainas.

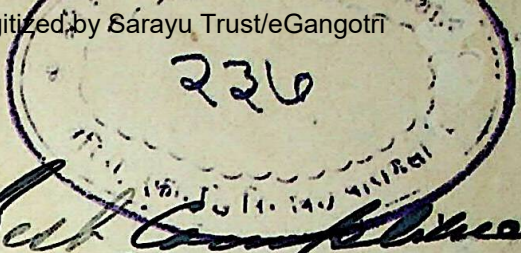
Ganesh Varni.Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

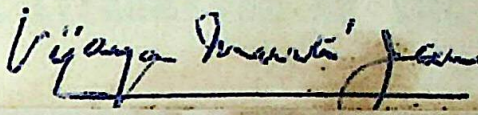
CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0. In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri







कृपया इस ग्रन्थको निम्नांकित तिथि पर या उसके पूर्व
लौटा दें। विलम्बसे लौटानेपर ५ पैसे
प्रतिदिन दण्ड देना होगा।

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

२३७

A HISTORY
OF
THE CANONICAL LITERATURE OF THE JAINAS

BY HIRALAL RASIKDAS KAPADIA

Price Rs. 5—4—0

1941

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Price Five Rupees and four annas, exclusive of postage.

All rights are reserved by the Publisher.

Printed by Natverlal Iccharam Desai B. A., at the Gujarati Printing Press, Sassoon Buildings, Elphinstone Circle, Fort, Bombay No. 1 and Published by Hiralal Rasikdas Kapadia Sankdi Sheri, Gopipura, Surat.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

PREFACE

It was about a decade and a half ago that an idea struck me that I should write a comprehensive history of the canonical literature of the Jainas. This idea got crystallized when, on being invited by the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, I commenced preparing a Descriptive Catalogue of Jaina Manuscripts deposited in this Institute by the Government of Bombay. While I was engaged in this work, I found that barring A Sacred Literature of the Jainas, an English translation of the valuable German contribution by the late Prof. A Weber, and A History of Indian Literature (vol. II) by Prof. Maurice Winternitz, Ph. D., there was no work which presented the history of the Jaina literature as a connected whole. And as regards these two works, too, I found that the first one was hardly accessible, and that full justice was not done to the history of the Jaina canonical literature by either of these scholars, who had treated the extant exegetical literature in a cursory manner and had practically neglected the extinct Āgamas. Prof. Winternitz was in a better position to do the needful; but, since he had selected a much wider field than the history of the Jaina literature, he could not devote to it as many pages as might be desired. So I undertook this work, and by the time two parts of vol. XVII of D. C. J. M. got published, I finished the spade-work. Subsequently I found that the task undertaken by me presented far greater difficulties than I had foreseen. So I had half a mind to wait till I had completely surmounted them. But, on realising that such a desirable stage may not be reached in near future and even the work as it stood, would be useful to students, if not to scholars, I have taken this bold step of placing it before the public.

Incidentally I may invite the attention of veteran scholars to certain questions which require investigation. For instance they occur on pp. 37, 40, 71, 78, 116, 117 etc.

In this work I have given quotations in extenso in order that the general reader may be saved the trouble of procuring the original works, and may still judge for himself. I have given at the end two Indexes. Of these the first deals mainly with the names of authors and other personages and sects and tribes and the like. It has been compiled and arranged according to the English alphabet by my eldest son Vipinacandra B. A. (Hons.).[1] The second is more extensive. It includes the names

1 He has recently passed this examination with Saṁskṛta (entire) and has secured the first class.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of works, their sections etc., arranged according to the Nāgarī alphabet by my daughter Manoramā, and it is checked by my younger son Vibodhacandra. For the purposes of Indexes only the modern transliteration-system has been adopted. Accordingly Gaina is given under "Jaina" and so on.

Considering the various topics dealt with in this book I have thought it desirable to give "Analysis". The portions pertaining to the main body of the work are printed in bigger types as compared with those used for the portions incorporated in foot-notes. Further, I have used abbreviations at times, e. g., D. C. J. M. for 'Descriptive Catalogue of Jaina Manuscripts', Visesā° for 'Visesāvassayabhāsa', Āv. Lit. for 'Übersicht über die Āvasyaka-Literatur', com. for 'commentary', p. for 'page' etc.

I record my sense of gratitude to all those authors whose works I could consult and derive benefit from, and especially to the late Prof. Winternitz who used to take keen interest in my literary activities. Further, I thank Mr. N. I. Desai B. A., the Printer for the care and enthusiasm with which he has printed this work.

In the end I ackowledge my indebtedness to the Uuiversity of Bombay for the substantial help it has granted towards the cost of the publication of this book.*

M. T. B. College.
Surat.
19th August '41

Hiralal R. Kapadia.

---

* I am deeply indebted to the following Jaina gentlemen each of whom has given me a sum of money by way of encouragement:

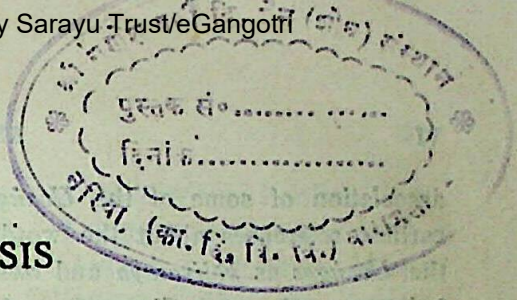
(i) Raosaheb Kantilal Ishwarlal.

(ii) Mr. Maneklal Chunilal, J. P.

(iii) Messrs Vadilal Poonamchand & Sons.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri



ANALYSIS

I Origin and utility of the authoritative works, impossibility of furnishing a complete list of names and details of all the schools of thought, continuities and extinctions of some of the Jaina scriptures, establishment of the Jaina tīrtha, 3 questions by Indrabhūti to Lord Mahāvīra and his replies – tripadī, 15 niṣadyās, similarity of some of the dvādaśāṅgīs even in words, explanations about the differences of opinion regarding the order of the composition of the 12 Aṅgas and that of the 5 sections of the 12th Aṅga, contents of Aṇuoga, four anuyogas and their relative importance, various meanings of the word 'scripture', 2 definitions of sammasuya and micchāsuya, enumeration of the Jaina scriptures, 300 Śrutakevalins and their compositions, works of Bhadrabāhusvāmin, the 10 Nijjuttis and the works associated with them, works of Daśapūrvadharas and Pratyekabuddhas, classifications of some of the Āgamas as Mūlasūtras, Chedasūtras, Upāṅgas and Prakīrṇakas and 147 adhyayanas recited by Lord Mahāvīra.

(Attribution of superhuman nature, kālacakra and its sub-divisions, 7 extinctions of the Jaina scriptures and the corroborative evidences pertaining to them, names of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras of the present age, delivery of the sermon by Lord Mahāvīra, names of his 11 Gaṇadharas, definitions of niṣadyā, sat and nitya, mention of tripadī and māṭṛkāpadas, formation of 9 gaṇas, names of the five sections of Diṭṭhivāya, orders pertaining to the composition and arrangement of the 12 Aṅgas, synonyms of Aṇuoga, an example of synedoche, etymology and description of the contents of Aṇuoga, three interpretations for Mūlapaḍhamāṇuōga, description of Cittantaraganḍiyā, references about the 4 anuyogas, a reason for mentioning only kāliyasuya, Diṭṭhivāya, the fountain-head of scriptures, meanings of Apocrypha, a list of non-Jaina works, 3 varieties of the authoritative sūtra, the date of Bhadrabāhusvāmin, comparison of the designations of Gaṇadhara and Śrutakevalin, names of the 10 Nijjuttis, those of 6 Cheyasuttas, and those of the 10 Daśapūrvadharas and the number of the Prakīrṇakas in a tīrtha).

II Five kinds of jñāna (knowledge), definition of śrutajñāna, 12 limbs of śrutapuruṣa, various definitions of aṅgapaviṭṭha and aṅgabāhira, a tabular representation of the main classes and sub-classes of śrutajñāna, definitions of kāliyasuya and ukkāliyasuya and a list of works grouped under these heads, 3 meanings of kāliyasuya, 6 popular groups of the Āgamas, the usage of the word 'Aṅga' in Jaina and non-Jaina schools, references about the names of the 12 Aṅgas, 6 Vedāṅgas and their 4 Upāṅgas, a list of the 12 Uvaṅgas, differences of opinion regarding the association of some of the Uvaṅgas with Aṅgas and their sequence, the earliest references about the words Uvaṅga and Upāṅga, classifications of the Uvaṅgas as kāliyasuya and ukkāliyasuya, 16 points about the Uvaṅgas, 2 interpretations of Cheyasutta, the oldest reference about Cheyasutta, modern and ancient views about the number of the Cheyasuttas, the date of the loss of Pañcakappa, its substitution by Jiyakappa, the dates of Pañcakappa and its two Bhāsas, Prof. Winternitz' view about the dates of Dasā, Kappa and Vavahāra, interdependence of Nisīha on Vavahāra, and the 1st 2 Cūlās of Āyāra, different interpretations of the word Mūlasutta, origin of the two Cūlās of Dasaveyāliya, authorship of Āvassaya and Uttarajjhayaṇa, the number and order of Mūlasuttas, Piṇḍanijjutti, an off-shoot of Dasaveyāliya and Ohaniijutti, that of Āvassaya, origin of the two Cūlās of Dasaveyāliya, the authorship of Āvassaya and Uttarajjhayaṇa, references about Paiṃṇaga and Prakīrṇaka, and the synonyms of the former, the no. of Paiṃṇagas, different lists of Paiṃṇagas and their authorship, 2 Cūliyāsuttas, various groupings of Āgamas, the corresponding standpoints being anuyoga, the no. of their titles, a common ending and prefixes like culla etc., the Digambara classifications of the Āgamas and their substitute canon viz. the 4 Vedas, and 45 and 84 Āgamas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(5 kinds of nāṇa, 14 and 20 varieties of suyanāṇa, gaṇipiḍaga, a synonym of Aṅga, the meaning of Śrutasthavira and that of paurusī, the dates of the origins of the Sthānakavāsin and Terāpanthin schools, the Saṁskṛta names for the 11 Aṅgas and 12 Uvaṅgas, the date of Siddhasena Gaṇi, works of Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa, names of the 3 different sets of Paiṃṇagas, the date of Jinavallabha Gaṇi, a reference to 36 Nigamas, 10 names of Diṭṭhivāya, 10 ajjhayaṇas of Dihadasā and the names of 10 Dasās).

III Transmission of learning in olden days, 18 lipis taught to Brāhmī by Lord Ṛṣabha, her father, reasons for not writing the Vedas etc. in ancient times, the main object of Jaina saints for not reducing their sacred literature to writing, penalties for violation, an irony of fate, 12-year famines in the times of Skandila Sūri and Nāgārjuna Sūri, councils summoned at Mathurā and Valabhī by these Sūris, the redaction of the Jaina canon under the presidentship of Devarddhi Gaṇi Kṣmāśramaṇa, differences of opinion regarding its date, 9 important features of this redaction, codification and composition of the Jaina canon as different entities, allegations of some of the Digambaras in connection with the Śvetāmbara canonical literature, and their refutations and the non-development of its exegesis at the hands of the Digambaras.

(References to 12-year famines in the times of Bhadrabāhusvāmin, Ārya Suhastin and Vajrasvāmin, the Hāthigumphā inscription of the Emperor Khāravela, council at Pāṭaliputra, the 3 Bauddha councils, mention of the Nāgārjunīyas, vaṇṇaa and peyyālam, artifices employed while writing Mss., the code of Jainism, and the 3 periods pertaining to the history of Zoroastrianism).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

IV An infinite no. of the Tirthaṅkaras, loss of more than infinite dvādaśāṅgīs and Paiṇṇagas, oblivion of Diṭṭhivāya during the famine, approach to Bhadrabāhusvāmin, the gradual dissipation of the 14 Puvvas, mention of some of the Pūrvadharas, the complete extinction of Diṭṭhivāya in Vīra Saṁvat 1000, the Digambara view about the loss of 14 Puvvas and that of 11 Aṅgas, the Digambara list of persons conversant with 14 Puvvas, 10 Puvvas, 5 Puvvas, 11 Aṅgas and 1 Aṅga, reasons assigned for the loss of Puvvas by Professors Weber, Jacobi, Schubring, L. Alsodolf and others, Vīra Saṁvat 683, the Digambara date of the complete loss of the holy canon, extinction of Mahāpariṇṇa (i. e. Āyāra, I, 7) and its date, constituents of Āyāra, (II), loss of a major portion of the 6th Aṅga and probably that of Aṅgas 7 to 11, too, striking differences between the extant Paṇhāvāgaraṇa and one described in Nandī, a doubt about the genuineness of the available Candapaṇṇatti, restoration of Mahānisīha, extinction of several Nijjuttis, Bhāsas and Cuṇṇis on Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha and its incorporation in a Mūlasutta, loss of two vācanās of Mahānisīha and that of Pañcakappa as well, extinction of 17 kāliya works, 14 ukkāliya ones, Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya, Thimiṇabhāvanā, Dogiddhidasā and 147 adhyayanas recited by Lord Mahāvīra, 9 reasons for the unique position of Diṭṭhivāya, 7 varieties of Parikamma and their 83 sub-varieties, nayas and the 7 Parikammas, 22 Suttas and 4 view-points such as chinnacchedanaya, acchinnacchedanaya etc., names, contents, padas and extent of the 14 Puvvas, quotations and works extracted from the Puvvas, the language and study of the Puvvas, 225 Vatthus, 84 Pāhuḍas attributed to Kundakunda, 14 Pāhūḍas of the Śvetāmbaras along with their references etc., extracts from the Aṇuoga, 34 Cūliyās, the order in which the 5 sections of Diṭṭhivāya were studied and became extinct, description of about 37 extinct works and that of 10 Dasās, untraceability of about 70 gāthās quoted from Āgamas in the extant ones, extinction of some of the Nijjuttis, the reasons for the loss of some of the ajjhayaṇas etc. and the survival of only 4 Āgamas till the end of this ara and in the end, their extinction.

(The sacred suttas of a period prior to the date of omniscience of Lord Mahāvīra, no reference to āyāgapaṭa in the extant literature, Diṭṭhivāya and Bhadrabāhusvāmin, periods of 7 vācanās, date of Āryarakṣita Sūri and his knowledge of Puvvas, 54 uttama-puruṣas, the 9 ajjhayaṇas of Āyāra, and their subject-matter, definition of pada, restoration of Mahānisīha, a curriculum noted in Vavahāra, the meanings of nijjuhaṇā etc., references to Mahāpraṇa, definition of antarmuhūrta, inability to count 46 māuyapayas of Diṭṭhivāya, Mātikās of the Bauddhas, references about labdhis and names of the ajjhayaṇas of Antagaḍadasā and Puppha cūlā). . . . . .

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

V 9+16 ajjhayaṇas of Āyāra, contents of Āyāra (I) and those of its 4 Cūlās forming Āyāra (II), the authorship of Cūlās III and IV, a controversy about the interpretation of Āyāra (II, 1, 10, 6), metres of verses in Āyāra, Dhammapada and Suttanipāta and their consequent dates, 28 significant ajjhayaṇas of Sūyagaḍa, the antiquity of its language, titles of its ajjhayaṇas II and IV, metres of the verses of Sūyagaḍa, 10 ajjhayaṇas of Ṭhāṇa and its contents, the subject-matter of Samavāya, 41 saās of Viāhapaṇṇatti, the translation of its s. 557 and its refutations, names of the Āgamas alluded to in this Aṅga V, contents of this Aṅga, 29 sections and contents of Nāyādhammakahā, elegical stanzas, graphic descriptions of a bed-chamber etc., 10 ajjhayaṇas of Uvāsagadasā and their subject-matter, presentation of the social life, descriptions of Piśāca, an elephant and a serpent, 8 vaggas of Aṅga VIII and 3 of IX, 10 ajjhayaṇas of Aṅga X, 2 suyakkhandhas of Aṅga XI and the social life described therein, description of Campā, Puṇṇabhadda etc., given in Ovavāiya, contents of Uvaṅgas I and II, 9 pratipattis of Jīvājīvābhigama, 36 payas of Paṇṇavaṇā, 20 pahuḍas of Sūriyapaṇṇatti, 7 vakkhakkāras of Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, contents of Uvaṅgas VIII–XII, 20 uddesas of Nisīha, 6 ajjhayaṇas of Mahānisīha and their contents, 10 uddesagas of Vavahāra, 10 sections of Dasāsuyakkhandha and their subject-matter, 3 vācyas of Pajjosaṇākappa and their contents, 9 vācanās, vyākhyānas or kṣaṇas and public reading of this work, 6 uddesagas of Kappa and their contents, the subject-matter of Jīyakappa, names of the 36 ajjhayaṇas of Uttarajjhayaṇa, misunderstanding about Ugghāya etc., contents of Uttarajjhayaṇa, discussion about the title Dasaveyāliya, contents of the 10 ajjhayaṇas of this Mūlasutta and their comparison with those of Āyāra etc., Āvassaga-suttas treated by Haribhadra Sūri, contents of Ohanijjutti and Piṇḍanijjutti, eulogy of 27 saints in Nandī, non-Jaina works noted in Aṇuogaddāra and their identification, Prof. A. B. Dhruva's misunderstanding, contents of Pakkhiyasutta and 17 Paiṇṇagas, significance of the title Isibhāsiya, and topics treated in Saṁsattanijjutti.

(English renderings of suyakkhandha, ajjhayaṇa, uddesaga, hole and golc, 16 diseases, an example of a gama and 8 interpretations of "सुयं मे आउसं भगवया एवमक्खायं", Prof. Jacobi's view criticized by Prof. K. H. Dhruva, anārya tribes, kinds of jewels and vessels, transference of the embryo, a list of commentaries on Pajjosaṇakappa, Kṛṣṇa and his relatives, 10 conditions of a living being, and names of the 45 ajjhayaṇas of Isibhāsiya).

VI Two groups of the canonical literature, origin of exegesis, extinction of the exposition co-eval with Lord Mahāvīra, occasional admixture of the verses of Bhāsa with those of the Nijjutti and the impossibility of separating them, definitions of Nijjutti and Bhāsa, a tabular representation of the 4 redactions of Āvassayanijjutti, 2 sections of Sāmāiyanijjutti and 9 sub-sections of the 1st thereof, 5 sub-sections of Paḍikkamaṇanijjutti, contents of Peḍhiyā etc., the subject-matter of Dasaveyāliyanijjutti and those of other available Nijjuttis, the question of the identity of Pañcakappa with Pañcakappanijjutti, 6 sub-sections of the 7th section of Mūlāyāra, the order of the 10 Nijjuttis, explanation of the word Nijjutti, the main constituents of Nijjutti and its three-fold nature, distinguishing features of Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi, Bhāsas of 11 Āgamas, a bird's-eye-view of Visesā° and other Bhāsas, Cuṇṇis of 20 Āgamas, contents of Nisīhavischacuṇṇi, date of Nandicuṇṇi, contents etc. of Cuṇṇis on Aṇuogaddāra, Āvassaya, Uttarajjhayaṇa, Kappa, Vavahāra, Dasāsuyakkhandha and Jiyakappa, Bhāsas and Cuṇṇis on some of the non-canonical works, the Saṁskṛta commentaries on Āgamas and their dates, a tentative list of the extinct commentaries, synonyms of ṭīkā, super-commentaries, date of Koṭyācārya and the question of his identity with Śīlāṅka, date of the ṭīkās, ṭabo and its synonyms, Gujarātī commentaries of Āgamas, loss of 3 anuyogas pertaining to scriptures, and Saṅgahaṇīs.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(A reference to Pravacanasiddhi, definition of sutta, the extent of Pañcakappa, a curious order of the composition of Nijjuttis, examples of bhāsāsleṣa, information about Pādalipta Sūri, extinction of Dvāsaptatiprabandha, some details about 3 Kālaka Sūris, criticism about the identity of Tattvāditya and Tattvācārya, information about Abhayadeva Sūri, Prof. H. D. Velankar's view about Koṭyācārya's period examined, some of the writers of svopajña commentaries, the period when the Jainas settled in Gujarat, and names of the Āgamas translated into English).

VII A clarion call of Prof. Winternitz, the Jaina contributions in the linguistic field and their evalution, intonation, versified commentaries, synonyms, nikkheva, nirutta, grammatical information, poetics, sutta, its significance, characteristics and equivalents, allegations about the use of the word sutta, gatapratyāgatasūtras, probably a peculiarity of the Jaina canon, origin of the praśnottara-paddhatti, ethics, maxims, metaphysics, logic, syādvāda, saptabhaṅgī, parallels in non-Jaina literature, the ascetic literature of ancient India, the Jaina literature, a wonderful store-house for stories, tales, fables, anecdotes, parables etc., folk-lore, music, staging of dramas, erotic, mathematics, alchemy, the science of medicine, modern branches of knowledge and their nucleus as embodied in the canonical literature, paleographic and educational data furnished by the canonical literature, ethnology, foot-wear and outfit, nautical, water, stick, and lullaby.

(Evaluations of Jaina literature by occidental scholars from 1876-1903, the word sūtra used in various senses in olden days, Prof. Charpentier's view about the use of the word sūtra by the Jainas and the Bauddhas, articles on Jaina ethics, varieties of pramāṇa, jñāta and vivāda, references about Samaṇa and Bambhaṇa, the legend about Sagara's sons and the descent of the Ganges, kinds of serpents, and 29 types of pāpaśruta.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

CONTENTS

		Pages
Preface	... ...	iii–iv
Analysis	... ...	v–ix
Chapter I	Genesis of the Jaina Scriptures ...	1—19
,, II	Classifications of the Agamas ...	20—58
,, III	Redaction of the Jaina Canon ...	59—69
,, IV	The extinct Āgamas of the Jainas ...	70–110
,, V	The extant Āgamas of the Jainas ...	111–170
,, VI	The Canonical Exegetical Literature	171–205
,, VII	Comparison and Evaluation ...	206–231
Index I	... ...	232–240
,, II	... ...	241–264
Additions & Corrections	... ...	265–272

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

By The Same Author

1	Nyāyakusumāñjali with translations in Eng. & Guj.	(1922)
2	Śṛṅgāravairāgyataraṅgiṇī with Guj. tran. & explanation	(1923)
3	*Stuticaturviṁśatikā (saṭīka) ,, ,, ,, ,, ,,	(1926)
4	*Caturviṁśatikā (,,) ,, ,, ,, ,, ,,	(1926)
5-6	*Bhaktāmarastotrapādapūrtirūpakāvyasaṅgraha Pt. I (saṭīka) and Pt. II with Guj. trans. & expl.	(1926, 1927)
7	*Caturviṁśatijinānandastuti (saṭīka) with Guj. trans. & expl.	(1927)
8	Tattvārthasūtra with Guj. trans.	(1928)
9-10	Tattvārthādhigamasūtra Pts. I & II with Bhāṣya and ṭīkās and Sans. & Eng. introductions	(1926, 1930)
11	*Śobhanastuti with 4 ṭīkās and Sans. intro.	(1930)
12	Vairāgyarasamañjarī with trans. & notes in Guj.	(1930)
13	Navatattvasaṅgraha & Upadeśabāvanī	(1931)
14	Ārhatadarśanadīpikā, an exposition of Jainatattvapradīpa	(1932)
15	*Bhaktāmara, Kalyāṇamandira & Namiuṇa (saṭīka) with intro. in Sans. & Guj.	(1932)
16	Caturviṁśatiprabandha with Sans. intro. & 9 appendices	(1932)
17	Priyaṅkaraṇṛpakathā & Uvasaggaharathotta with Sans. intro.	(1932)
18	Padmānandamahākāvya with intro. in Sans. & Eng. (G. O. S.)	(1932)
19	Jainadharmavarastotra (saṭīka), Godhūlikārtha & Śabda-camatkāra with Sans. intro.	(1933)
20	Anekārtharatnamañjūṣā with Sans. intro.	(1933)
21	Dhanapālapañcāśikā with 2 ṭīkās & 2 Vīrastutis along with Guj. trans. & notes	(1933)
22	Guj. trans. of Caturviṁśatiprabandha with appendices etc.	(1934)
23-28	*Ārhatajīvanajyoti (Pts. I[1]-VI)	(1934, 1935, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1941)
29-31	Descriptive Catalogue of Jaina Manuscripts Vol. XVII, Pts. I-III published by Bhandarkar O. Research Institute	(1935, 1936, 1940)
32	Gaṇitatilaka (saṭīka) with Sans. intro. (Gaekwad's O. Series)	(1937)
33	*Pataṅgapurāṇa	(1938)
34	*Pataṅgapothī	(1939)
35	Tattvarasikacandrikā (Pt. I)	(1939)
36	Anekāntajayapatākā with 2 ṭīkās & Eng. intro. (G. O. S.)	(1940)

* This sign is used to indicate that the work is illustrated.
1 The 2nd edition is published in 1940.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

37 Pāïya at a Glance (1940)
38 The Student's English-Pāïya Dictionary with 3 Appendices (1941)

IN PRESS

1-2 Des. Cat. of Jaina MSS. Vol. XVII, Pt. IV & Vol. XVIII, Pt. I
3 Anekāntajayapatākā Vol. II (Gaekwad's Oriental Series)
4 The doctrine of Karman in Jain Philosophy
5 The Eng. trans. of Gaṇaharavāya

Select Articles[1]

Annals of B. O. R. I: A detailed Exposition of the Nāgarī, Gujarātī and Modī Scripts (1939).

The Journal of the University of Bombay: The Jaina System of Education (1940).

The Sarvajanikan: વાણીવિનોદ (1939), What is research (1940), અર્દ્ધમાગધી ભાષાના અભ્યાસ માટેનાં સાધનો (1940), Grammatical Topics in Pāïya (1941).

દાંડીઓ: †પેંડા તમારે પેંડા (1938), આ ફેરીનાં તાબૂત (1938).

વીરશાસન: શ્રીમહાવીર પ્રભુની જયંતી (1928), આઠ પ્રાતિહાર્યો (1937).

જૈન યુગ: પ્રશ્નતરંગિણી (I–VII) (1936–1937).

લોકવાણી: એ પ્રતાપ કોનો? (1937), †લોઢી યાને તાવી (1938).

પ્રતાપ: પ્રાચીન અને અર્વાચીન સુરત (I–VII) (1937–1938), તિલક (1937), ઓસવાલ જ્ઞાતિ ને જૈન ધર્મ (1938), હરિપરાની ધીપ (1938).

ગુજરાતી: ધાર્મિક વાચનમાલા (1932), પ્રશ્નલહરી (I–XI) (1934), પાપડી અને ટોપી (1936), કમળ (1937), †વહુ વિષે વિચાર (1938), †વર વિષે વિચાર (1938), હુક્કો (1938), પતંજલિપરિસરની પરિભાષાનો પરામર્શ (1939), બૃહત્સૂરતીના બેનમૂન નમૂના (1939), કેળવણીનાં કેટલાંક કેન્દ્રો (1940), †અર્વાચીન ભાષાઓમાં ભૂતકાળનાં રૂપોનો દુકાળ (1940), આખળિયો અને વેલણ (1941), †'પરોણી' શબ્દની વ્યુત્પત્તિ (1941), †'તરી' અન્તવાળા કેટલાક શબ્દોની વ્યુત્પત્તિ (1941).

શ્રી ફાર્બસ ગુજરાતી સભા મહોત્સવગ્રંથ: આપણી લગ્નપ્રણાલિકાનું તુલનાત્મક અવલોકન (1940).

શ્રી ફાર્બસ ગુજરાતી સભા ત્રૈમાસિક: ગુજરાત અને લિપિકલંક, લેખનસાહિત્ય તથા અક્ષરશિક્ષણ (IV–VII) (1938–1941).

માનસી: નામનો પ્રયોગ (1939), 'વેલણ' રસ (1941), સીકોત્તરી તે કોણ?

---

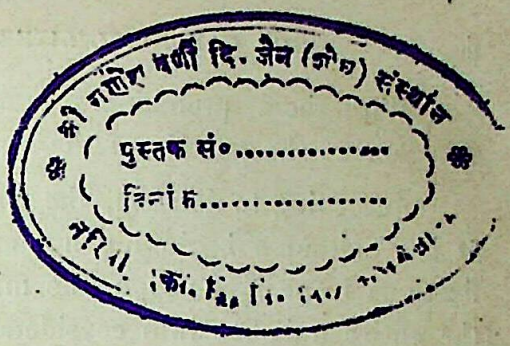
1 See Mrs. Kapadia's પ્રાચીન અને અર્વાચીન સમયની સ્ત્રીઓનો પહેરવેશ (pp. 8 & 69) where a list of 35 additional articles is given.

† This sign suggests that the pertinent article is connected with a philological discussion.

2 About to be published.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri



CHAPTER I

GENESIS OF THE JAINA SCRIPTURES

It seems that every person, male or female, likes the idea of substantiating his or her views, secular or religious, by quoting some authority or other. This becomes almost a necessity especially for those persons who profess to follow some religion at least, and who are anxious to prove the validity and superiority of their religious beliefs. They naturally refer to the original works of their school as the best and final authority, and attribute their authorship either to God or to a human being free from any blemishes whatsoever.[1]

Humanity and religion practically go hand in hand. If so, it is no wonder, if we were to find that an enormously big number of religions has come into existence, and several of them have become a dead letter by this time so much so that in spite of the advance science can claim to have made, we are not in a position to give even a definite list of all these religions, leaving the question of their details apart.

Out of the various religions that had their origin and development in India during the last several millenniums and that have not still disappeared, Jainism is here singled out for being treated at length, especially owing to its vast and varied literature.

---

1 Such a human being in his own times or thereafter is looked upon as superhuman, and in course of time, miraculous and mysterious stories gather round his life.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

With these preliminary remarks, I shall now take up the question of the genesis of the Jaina scriptures.

According to Jainism, the universe is uncreated and unending. It has neither a beginning nor an end, though it undergoes modifications in every samaya, the minutest division of time. Taking the entire universe into consideration, Jainism flourishes for ever, and so do the Jaina scriptures. But if we were to examine this topic from the stand-point of India, we shall find that such is not the case. Even during the present cycle of time known as Huṇḍā avasarpiṇī,[1] Jainism got completely wiped off seven times, and even its scriptures shared no better fate.[2] But this refers to a very very remote age; for, for the last hundreds of millenniums, Jainism has been existing in this land, and to express it definitely, it has not disappeared, once it here got promulgated by Lord Śāntināth, the 16th Tīrthaṅkara, out of 24 who flourished during the present avasarpiṇī period.[3] This does not mean that all the Jaina scriptures that were then composed or compiled still survive in words, though, of course, in spirit they do exist even now in some form or other. This is what the Jaina tradition says.

---

1 Avasarpiṇī has for its counter-part utsarpiṇī, along with which it makes up a kāla-cakra or the twelve-spoked wheel of time. This kāla-cakra is the basis of law of time so far as 5 Bharata kṣetras (zones) and 5 Airāvata kṣetras are concerned. It is two-fold because of its division into avasarpiṇī and utsarpiṇī. There are six spokes in avasarpiṇī beginning with unadulterated happiness and ending in utmost misery. Reverse is rather the case with utsarpiṇī which, too, has six spokes.

2 Cf. the following lines occurring in Viāhapaṇṇatti (XX, 8):—
"एएसु णं तेवीसाए जिणंतरेसु पुरिमपच्छिमएसु अट्ठसु २ जिणंतरेसु एत्थ णं कालियसुयस्स अवोच्छेदे प० मज्झिमएसु सत्तसु जिणंतरेसु एत्थ णं कालियसुयस्स वोच्छेदे प० सव्वत्थ वि णं वोच्छिन्ने दिट्ठिवाए।" (सू. ६७७)

Visesaṇavaī (v 103) of Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa, Pavayaṇasāruddhāra (v. 430-431) of Nemicandra Sūri and Sattarisayaṭṭhāṇa (v. 213) of Somatilaka Sūri may be consulted.

3 "'जंबुद्दीवे' णं भंते! दीवे 'भारहे' वासे इमीसे ओसप्पिणीए कति तित्थगरा पन्नत्ता? गोयमा! चउवीसं तित्थगरा पन्नत्ता तं जहा—उसभमजियसंभव अभिणंदणं च सुमतिसुप्पभसुपाससिसुपुप्फदंतसीयलसेज्जंस-वासुपुज्जं च विमलअणंतधम्मसंतिकुंथुअरमल्लिसुणिसुव्वयनमिनेमिपासवद्धमाणा २४।" (सू. ६७६)
—Viāhapaṇṇatti (XX, 8)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Jainism enunciates a rule that on the attainment of omniscience, a Tīrthaṅkara delivers a sermon,[1] and generally some persons do come forward to follow the noblest and highest path chalked out by him – technically speaking to take the Jaina dīkṣā and thus to form a class of the Jaina clergy.[2] Out of them, those who are going to be the greatest apostles, technically known as Ganadharas compose dvādaśāṅgīs, each of which forms a nucleus of the Jaina scriptures.

Lord Mahāvīra had eleven Gaṇadharas Indrabhūti and others[3] and each of them composed a dvādaśāṅgī. To enter into details, Indrabhūti after he had taken dīkṣā, bowed to Lord Mahāvīra and asked: "किं तत्तं" (what is the essence underlying the animate and inanimate objects)? The Lord replied: "उप्पन्नेइ वा" (everything has a creation). Thereupon, once more, Indrabhūti asked the same question; for, he could not believe that there was nothing else but creation, when, with his own eyes he could see destruction and permanence as well. The Lord replied: "विगमेइ वा" (everything perishes). This again led him to put the same question once more. This time the Lord replied: "धुवेइ वा" (everything is permanent). This final answer solved his doubts, and he could catch the real spirit of Jainism.[4] For, all this while the answers had set him

---

1 Kalikālasarvajña Hemacandra Sūri observes in his Triṣaṣṭiśalākāpuruṣacaritra (parvan X, sarga 5):—
"न सर्वविरतेरर्हः कोऽप्यत्रेति विदन्नपि। कल्प इत्यकरोत् तत्र निषण्णो देशनां विभुः ॥ १० ॥"

2 By clergy, I here mean both monks and nuns. These together with the Jaina laity comprising Śrāvakas and Śrāvikās form the fourfold church known as caturvidha saṅgha to whom even the Tīrthaṅkara pays due respect.

3 Bhadrabāhusvāmin says in his Āvassayanijjutti:—
"पढमित्थ इंदभूई बिइओ उण होइ अग्गिभूइ त्ति।
तइए य वाउभूई तओ वियत्ते सुहम्मे य ॥ ५९३ ॥
मंडिय मोरियपुत्ते अकंपिए चेव अयलभाया य।
मेयज्जे य पभासे गणहरा होंति वीरस्स ॥ ५९४ ॥"

4 In this connection I may quote the following lines from Haribhadra Sūri's commentary (p. 277a) on Āvassaya and its Nijjutti (v.735):—
"तत्र गौतमस्वामिना निषद्यात्रयेण चतुर्दश पूर्वाणि गृहीतानि। प्रणिपत्य पृच्छा निषद्योच्यते। भगवांश्चाचष्टे-'उप्पण्णेइ वा विगमेइ वा धुवेइ वा'। एता एव तिस्रो निषद्याः, आसामेव साक्षाद् गणभृताम् 'उत्पादव्ययध्रौव्ययुक्तं सत्' इति प्रतीतिरूपजायते, अन्यथा सत्ताऽयोगात्। ततश्च ते पूर्वभवभावितमतयो द्वादशाङ्गमुपरचयन्ति।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

thinking, and as if by way of sudden realization, the ideas had rushed past in his mind in the following vein:—

"What can be the distinguishing feature of a substance (dravya)? Well, it must be sat, and what is sat? It is nothing but a simultaneous possession of birth, decay and permanence.[1] And what is permanence? It means indestructibility of the essence or quality of the substance, though accidental qualities of this substance can and do undergo a modification."[2]

This realization of facts spurred him on to compose a dvādaśāṅgī, an act evolving out of the fructification or operation of Gaṇadhara-nāma-karman.

Before we proceed further and examine the question of other Gaṇadharas composing a dvādaśāṅgī, we may note that each of the three questions asked by Indrabhūti, is styled as nisejjā in Prākṛta[3] and niṣadyā in Saṁskṛta.[4] Furthermore, all the three questions are collectively known as niṣadyātraya in Saṁskṛta.[5] Similarly every answer that the Lord gave, goes by the name of pada or mātṛkāpada[6] in Saṁskṛta

---

1 Cf. "उत्पादव्ययध्रौव्ययुक्तं सत्", the 29th sūtra of Tattvārthādhigamaśāstra (adhyāya V) composed by Umāsvāti Vācaka:—

2 "तद्भावाव्ययं नित्यम् ।"—Tattvārtha (V, 30)

3 The Cuṇṇi (p. 370) on Āvassaya and its Nijjutti (v. 735) may be here quoted as under:—

"तं कहं गहितं गोयमसामिणा? तिविहं (? तीहिं) निसेज्जाहिं चोद्दस पुव्वाणि उत्पादितानि। निसेज्जा णाम पणवतिऊण जा पुच्छा।"

4 See p. 3, fn. 4.

5 See p. 3, fn. 4. Also see the following (last) line of the 2nd verse of Apāpāpurīsaṅkṣiptakalpa of Jinaprabha Sūri:—

"जग्रन्थुर्द्वादशाङ्गीं भवजलधितरीं ते निषद्यात्रयेण"

Kalpakiraṇāvali (p. 120b) of Dharmasāgara Upādhyāya may be also referred to.

6 Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 7a) on Dasaveyāliya and its Nijjutti (v. 8) says: "एकं मातृकापदं, तद् यथा-'उप्पन्नेइ वा' इत्यादि, इह प्रवचने दृष्टिवादे समस्तनयवादबीजभूतानि मातृकापदानि भवन्ति, तद् यथा-उप्पन्नेइ वा, विगमेइ वा, धुवेइ वा."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

and all collectively, by the name of tripadī[1] or padatrayī[2] or the like.[3]

It appears that we have no means to know the number of niṣadyās pertaining to the remaining 10 Gaṇadharas; but it is certain that at least one of them had a recourse to fifteen niṣadyās.[4] This shows that this particular Gaṇadhara, at least, was rather backward in intelligence as compared with Indrabhūti; or else why should he have been obliged to put such a big number of questions as 15? Furthermore, we do not know the actual answers given by Lord Mahāvīra by way of replies to these 15 niṣadyās; but it seems highly probable that tripadī might have played therein the main part, if not the sole part.

As already said on p. 3, on the whole, 11 dvādaśāṅgīs were composed by 11 Gaṇadharas, one by each of them. It, however, so happened that the dvādaśāṅgīs of the 8th and the 9th Gaṇadharas not only tallied in meaning, but even in the compilation of words, and so did the dvādaśāṅgīs of the 10th and the 11th Gaṇadharas.[5]

---

1 See the following verse of Dhanapāla's Tilakamañjarī:—
"नमो जगन्नमस्याय मुनीन्द्रायेन्द्रभूतये। यः प्राप्य त्रिपदीं वाचा विश्वं बिष्णुरिवानशे॥१९॥"
Muniratna's Amamacaritra, Devānanda Sūri's Gautamāṣṭaka (v. 2), Lakṣmīvallabha's Kalpadrumakalikā (p. 141[a] and p. 141[b]) and Vinayavijaya Upādhyāya's Subodhikā (p. 118[a]) may be also consulted.

2 See the following verse of Triṣaṣṭi (1, 3):—
"उत्पादो विगमो ध्रौव्यमिति पुण्यां पदत्रयीम्। उद्दिदेश जगन्नाथः सर्ववाङ्मयमातृकाम्॥६५८॥"
Devendra Sūri, too, has used this word in his com. (v. 1) on his own work Kammavivāga (v. 60).

3 I do not remember to have noted a Prākṛta equivalent of tripadī like tivaī, in the Jaina literature.

4 The following lines from the Cuṇṇi (p. 337) on Āvassaya may be here consulted:—
"जदा य गणहरा सव्वे पव्वजिता ताहे किर एगनिसेज्जाए एगारस अंगाणि चोद्दसहिं चोद्दस पुव्वाणि, एवं ता भगवतो अत्थो कहितो, ताहे भगवंतो एगपासे सुत्तं करंति, तं अक्खरेहिं पदेहिं वंजणेहिं समं"

5 Cf. Triṣaṣṭi (X, 5):—
"एवं रचयतां तेषां समानां गणधारिणाम्। परस्परमजायन्त विभिन्नाः सूत्रवाचनाः॥१७३॥ अकम्पिताऽचलभ्रात्रोः श्रीमेतार्य-प्रभासयोः। परस्परमजायन्त सदृक्षा एव वाचनाः॥१७४॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This is rather a curious coincidence;[1] for, there is no wonder, if the underlying spirit of one dvādaśāṅgī does not differ from that of another, when each has the same basis viz. tripadī to fall back upon.

A dvādaśāṅgī means no doubt a collection of 12 Aṅgas. But it should be borne in mind that there is a difference of opinion regarding the order of these 12 Aṅgas which constitute a dvādaśāṅgī. Some believe that the 12 Aṅgas were composed in the following order:—

(1) Āyāra, (2) Sūyagaḍa, (3) Thāṇa, (4) Samavāya, (5) Viāhapaṇṇatti, (6) Nāyādhammakahā, (7) Uvāsagadasā, (8) Antagaḍadasā, (9) Aṇuttarovavāïyadasā, (10) Paṇhāvāgaraṇa, (11) Vivāgasuya and (12) Diṭṭhivāya.[2]

Others maintain that 14 Puvvas which make up Puvvagaya, one of the [3]five sections of Diṭṭhivāya, were first composed, and they were followed by the composition of the rest of the dvādaśāṅgī.[4] There is no explicit statement, so far as I know,

---

1 This coincidence led to the formation of 9 gaṇas (schools) instead of 11; for, otherwise there would have been 11 schools, one school for each Gaṇadhara out of 11. That only 9 schools came into existence is borne out by the following line occurring in the Cuṇṇī (p. 837) on the Āvassaya:—
"अकंपिय-अयलभातीणं एगो गणो, मेयज्ज-पभासाणं एगो गणो, एवं णव गणा होंति।"

2 These are the titles of 12 Aṅgas. Aṅgas 6 to 11 have their titles in plural; so some mention them in the nominative as Nāyādhammakahāo, Uvāsagadasāo, Antagaḍadasāo, Aṇuttaravāïyadasāo and Paṇhāvāgaraṇāim. See Samavāya (s. 136) and Nandī (s. 45).

3 The pertinent portion in Nandī (s. 57) which mentions these five sections is:—
"दिट्ठिवाए णं सव्वभावपरूवणा आघविज्जइ, से समासओ पंचविहे पन्नत्ते, तं जहा–परिकम्मे १ सुत्ताइ २ पुव्वगए ३ अणुओगे ४ चूलिआ ५॥"

4 Cf. the following lines of the Cuṇṇi (pp. 56–57) on Āvassaya:—
"से किं तं पुव्वगयं? कम्हा पुव्वगतं ति? उच्यते–जम्हा तित्थकरो तित्थपवत्तणकाले गणहरा सव्वसुत्तावारत्तणतो पुव्वं पुव्वगतसुत्तत्थं भासइ तम्हा 'पुव्वं' ति भणिता, गणहरा सुत्तरयणं करेन्ता आयाराइरयणं करेंति ठवेंति य, अण्णारियमतेणं पुण पुव्वगतसुत्तत्थो पुव्वं अरहता भासिया गणहरेहि वि पुव्वगयं चेव पुव्वं रइयं पच्छा आयाराइ, एवमुत्तो चोदक आह–णणु पुव्वावरविरुद्धं, कम्हा? आयारणिज्जुत्तीए भणितं–'सव्वेसिं आचारो०' गाहा, आचार्य आह–सत्यमुक्तं किन्तु ठावणा, इमं पुण अक्खररयणं पडुच्च भणितं, पुव्वं पुव्वा कता इत्यर्थः"

Malayagiri Sūri has reproduced this very view in his com. (p. 240b) on Nandī. Abhayadeva Sūri, too, has done the same as can be seen from his

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

which says that on 14 Puvvas being composed, the remaining portion of Diṭṭhivāya was composed, and then the 11 Aṅgas commencing with Āyāra and ending with Vivāgasuya. But this seems to be the natural course to have been followed; for, it is too much to believe that the composition of the 14 Puvvas was immediately followed by that of the 11 Aṅgas, thus leaving the remaining 4 sections of Diṭṭhivāya to be attended to, last.

From the above survey we come to the conclusion that 12 Aṅgas were no doubt composed, but the difference of opinion exists with regard to their order of composition, some believing Āyāra to be the first and Diṭṭhivāya to be the last, whereas others believing Diṭṭhivāya to be the first and Āyāra, Sūyagaḍa and other Aṅgas as following it.

This finishes the question about the composition of 12 Aṅgas, but there remains one more knotty problem to be tackled before we can finish the discussion about the genesis of the dvādaśāṅgī. It refers to the order of the composition of the various sections of Diṭṭhivāya. As already noted on p. 6, there are five sections of this Diṭṭhivāya viz. (1) Parikamma, (2) Sutta (at times used in plural), (3) Puvvagaya, (4) Aṇuoga and (5) Cūliyā. Now we find that these 5 sections are mentioned in two different orders in the religious works of the Jainas. For instance, Nandī, on one hand, mentions the five sections in the order noted above, whereas some works such as Hemacandra Sūri's Abhidhānacintāmaṇi (II, 160[1]), Devendra Sūri's com. (p. 17)[2] on his own work

com. (pp. 130[b]–131[a]) on Samavāya. Siddhasena Gaṇi has also endorsed this very view in his com. (p. 208[b]) on Pavayaṇasāruddhāra. In Siddhasena Gaṇi's bhāṣyānusāriṇī ṭikā (p. 94) on Tattvārtha (1, 20) and in Triṣaṣṭi (X, 5, 172) only one view is mentioned i. e. to say 14 Puvvas were first composed. Anyhow we can see that there have been two views propounded in this connection at least as early as the date of the Cunni referred to on p. 4.

1 "परिकर्म-सूत्र-पूर्वानुयोग-पूर्वगत-चूलिकाः पञ्च ।
स्युर्दृष्टिवादभेदाः पूर्वाणि चतुर्दशापि पूर्वगते ॥ १६० ॥"

2 "परिकम्म १ सुत्त २ पुव्वाणुओग ३ पुव्वगय ४ चूलिया ५ एवं ।
पण दिट्ठिवायभेया चउदस पुव्वाइं पुव्वगयं ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kammavivāya (v. 6); Vinayavijaya Upādhāya's Lokaprakāśa (III, 792[1]) and Akalaṅka's Tattvārtharājavārtika (p. 51)[2] assign to Puvvagaya, the 4th place rather than the 3rd, and to Aṇuoga, the 3rd place instead of the 4th, the order of the rest being the same as before. This means that we have two orders as under:—

I (1) Parikamma, (2) Sutta, (3) Puvvagaya, (4) Aṇuoga and (5) Cūliyā.

II (1) Parikamma, (2) Sutta, (3) Aṇuoga, (4) Puvvagaya and (5) Cūliyā.

And hence the knotty problem before us. Is this difference really an outcome of some deliberate understanding or is it purely accidental, and as such it has no such significance as we may be inclined to attribute? In other words, did this difference arise because in course of enumerating the sections of Diṭṭhivāya, no special attention was paid to their order—the order being then looked upon as immaterial and enumeration the main goal to be achieved? I do not know, if there is any source which throws light upon this problem. So I may try to solve this problem, by assuming for the present that these orders represent two different views regarding the composition (racanā) and the subsequent arrangement (sthāpanā) of the five sections of Diṭṭhivāya with a view to facilitate their study. I have not come across any reference explicit or implicit wherefrom we can deduce that it was rather some other section of Diṭṭhivāya which was first composed and not Puvvagaya comprising 14 Puvvas. It is true that there is a possiblity to construe that the composition of the 14 Puvvas is not to be taken in quite a literal sense; but it, after all, refers to the composition of Diṭṭhivāya in its entirety, though 14 Puvvas are specifically

1 Herein there is the same verse as noted on p. 7, fn. 1.

2 "स पंचविधः[1] परिकर्म[2] सूत्रं[3] प्रथमानुयोगः[4] पूर्वगतं[5] चूलिके चेति।"

Taking this reference together with those noted on p. 7, fn. 1-2, we see that instead of Aṇuoga (Sk. Anuyoga), we have its synonyms Puvvāṇuoga (Sk. Pūrvānuyoga) and Pathamāṇuyoga (Pr. Paḍhamāṇuoga).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

mentioned[1] in virtue of their importance and the consequent unique position they hold, not only so far as the 12th Aṅga is concerned but all the 12 Aṅgas are concerned. But even this construction does not at all improve our situation.

It appears that looking to the nature of the five sections, they must have been composed in the very order in which they are mentioned in Nandī, and that the other order only reflects the attitude that can be taken regarding the study and teaching of Aṇuoga, the 4th section of Diṭṭhivāya. To put it explicitly, on seeing that [1]upakrama, [2]nikṣepa, [3]anugama and naya form the four entrances to anuyoga or exposition, one may be inclined to believe that the Aṇuoga in question, too, is associated with these four entrances. If this is correct, it may be added that it is an open secret that one has to go through the first two entrances before studying a scripture (strictly speaking its portion), and the last two entrances are resorted to, after one has been initiated into the portion concerned. Some may therefore look upon the first two entrances as the main ones; for, it is after mastering them that the study of the portion concerned is commenced, whereas others may attach more importance to the last two as they help in cultivating and culminating the real study. It is this difference of opinion which may lead to the change in the assignment of the orders for Puvvagaya and Aṇuoga. For, those who hold the first view may assign to Aṇuoga, a place prior to that meant for Puvvagaya, whereas those who hold the second view may place Puvvagaya ahead of Aṇuoga. This means that some may believe that the right place for Aṇuoga, is just where it is first made use of, whereas some may believe that the initial stage is not so important as the culminating one, and that the latter follows the initiation of the work in question, and hence it cannot be assigned a place prior to that work but only one following it.

---

1 This so to say furnishes us with an example of the figure of speech known as 'synecdoche'.

2

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This is what can be roughly said by taking into account the subject-matter of Aṇuogaddāra and the etymology[1] of the word 'anuyoga'. But it may be argued that this is not the correct view; for, the nature of Aṇuoga as expounded in the sacred works of the Jainas hardly warrants or justifies this state of affairs.[2] On the contrary, the two main divisions of Aṇuoga viz. Mūla-padhamāṇuoga and Gaṇḍiyāṇuoga[3] and their contents lead us to

---

1 In the Cuṇṇi (p. 58) on Nandī (s. 57) we have:—

"अणुयोगो त्ति अनुयोग इत्येतत्, अनुरूपो योग अनुयोग इत्येवं सर्व एव सूत्रार्थो वाच्यः, इह जन्मभेद-पर्यायशिक्षादियोगः विवक्षितोऽनुयोगो वाच्यः, स च द्विविधो मूलपढमाणुयोगो गंडिकाविशिष्टश्च।"

Malayagiri Sūri observes while commenting upon this sūtra:—

"अथ कोऽयमनुयोगः? अनुरूपोऽनुकूलो वा योगोऽनुयोगः सूत्रस्य स्वेनाभिधेयेन सार्धमनुरूपः सम्बन्धः"

Hemacandra Sūri has said the same thing almost ad verbatim in his com. (p. 105) on Abhidhānacintāmaṇi (III, 160).

2 See the ending portion of the Cuṇṇi quoted here in fn. 1. The lines that follow it may be also noted:

"तत्थ मूलपढमाणुयोगे त्ति, इह मूलभावस्तु तीर्थकरः, तस्स प्रथमं पूर्वभवादि अथवा मूलस्स पढमा भवाणुयोगो एत्थ तित्थगरस्स अतीतभवभावा वट्टमाणवयजम्मादिया भावा कहेज्जंति, अहवा जे मूलस्स भावा ते मूलपढमाणुयोगो, एत्थ तित्थकरस्स जे भावा प्रसत्तास्ते परियायपुरिसत्ताइ भाणियव्वा; गंडियाणुयोगो त्ति इक्खुमादिपर्वकडिकावत् एकाधिकारत्तणतो गंडियाणुयोगो भण्णति, ते च कुलकरादियातो विमलवाहणादि-कुलकराणं पुव्वभवजम्मणामप्पमाण० गाहा, एवमादि जं किंचि कुलकरस्य वत्तव्वं तं सव्वं कुलकरगंडियाए भणितं, एवं तित्थगरादिगंडियासु वि"

From this it can be seen that the Cūrnikāra interprets Mūlapaḍhamāṇuoga in three ways while commenting upon the following portion of Nandī (s. 57):—

"मूलपढमाणुओगेणं अरहंताणं भगवंताणं पुव्वभवा देवगमणाइं आउं चवणाइं जम्मणाणि अभिसेआ रायवरसिरीओ पव्वज्जाओ तवा य उग्गा केवलनाणुप्पयाओ तित्थपवत्तणाणि अ सीसा गणा गणहरा अज्जपवत्तिणीओ संघस्स चउव्विहस्स जं च परिमाणं जिणमणपज्जवओहिनाणी सम्मत्तसुअनाणिणो अ वाई अणुत्तरगई अ उत्तरवेउव्विणो अ मुणिणो जत्तिआ सिद्धा सिद्धीपहो जह देसिओ जच्चिरं च कालं पाओवगया जे जहिं जत्तिआइं भत्ताइ छेइत्ता अंतगडे मुणिवरुत्तमे तमरओघविप्पमुक्के मुक्खसुहमणुत्तरं च पत्ते एवमन्ने अ एवमाइभावा मूलपढमाणुओगे कहिआ, सेत्तं मूलपढमाणुओगे।"

3 This consists of several kinds of gaṇḍiyās. One of them is Cittantaragaṇḍiyā and is described in the Cuṇṇi (pp. 58-61) on Nandī (s. 57) as under:—

"'चित्तंतरगंडिय'त्ति, चित्ता इति अनेकार्थाः अंतरे इति उसभअजियंतरे वा दिट्ठा, गंडिका इति खंडं अतो चित्तंतरे गंडिका दिट्ठा, तो तेसिं परूवणा पुव्वायरिएहिं इमा निद्दिट्ठा—

आदिच्चजसादीण उसभस्स पओप्पए णरवतीणं। सगरसुयाण सुबुद्धी इणमो संखं परिकहेइ ॥ १ ॥
चोद्दस लक्खा सिद्धा णिवईणेक्को य होति सव्वट्ठे। एवेक्केके ठाणे पुरिसजुगा होंतऽसंखेज्जा ॥ २ ॥
पुणरवि चोद्दस लक्खा सिद्धा णिवदीण दोण्णि सव्वट्ठे। जुगठाणे वि असंखा पुरिसजुगा होंति णायव्वा ॥ ३ ॥
जाव य लक्खा चोद्दस सिद्धा पण्णास होंति सव्वट्ठे। पण्णासट्ठाणे वि य पुरिसजुगा होंतिऽसंखेज्जा ॥ ४ ॥

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

assume that this Aṇuoga deals more or less with the biographies of the Tīrthaṅkaras, the Kulakaras[1] (patriarchs[2]), the Gaṇadharas and several other persons who attained liberation or were born in the Anuttara vimānas during the period that began with the life of Lord Ṛṣabhā and ended with the birth of Jitaśatru, father of Lord Ajita. In short, Aṇuoga is dharmakathānuyoga which consists of kathās having mostly for their central figures, persons who attained liberation or who were about to attain liberation in the next birth or so. Relying on this view, one may try to explain as under, the difference in the orders of the 3rd and 4th sections of Diṭṭhivāya:—

A student of Jainism knows it full well that there are four anuyogas[3] viz. (1) dharmakathānuyoga, (2) gaṇitānuyoga, (3) dravyānuyoga and (4) caraṇakaraṇānuyoga permeating[4] the entire sphere

---

एगुत्तरा दुलक्खा सव्वट्ठाणे य जाव पण्णासा। एक्केक्कुत्तरठाणे पुरिसजुगा होंतिऽसंखेज्जा ॥ ५॥
विपरीयं सव्वट्ठे चोद्दस लक्खा य निव्वुओ एगो। सच्चेव य परिवाडी पण्णासा जाव सिद्धीए ॥ ६॥
तेण परं लक्खादि दो दो ठाणा य समग वच्चंति। सिवगतिसव्वट्ठेहिं इणमो तासिं विधी होइ ॥ ७॥
दो लक्खा सिद्धीए दो लक्खा णरवदीण सव्वट्ठे। एवं तिलक्खचउ पंच जाव लक्खा असंखेज्जा ॥ ८॥
सिवगतिसव्वट्ठेहिं चित्तंतरगंडिता ततो चउरो। एगा एगुत्तरिया एगादि विति‌उत्तरा तइया ॥ ९॥
ततिएगादि तिओत्तर निगमादि ओत्तरा चउत्थे य। पढमाए सिद्धिको दोण्णि य सव्वट्ठसिद्धिमि ॥ १०॥
तत्तो तिण्णि णरिंदा सिद्धा चत्तारि होंति सव्वट्ठे। इय जाव असंखेज्जा सिवगतिसव्वट्ठ सिद्धेहिं ॥ ११॥
ताए विउत्तराए सिद्धेक्को तिण्णि होंति सव्वट्ठे। एवं पंच य सत्त य जाव असंखेज्ज दो तिन्नि ॥ १२॥
एग चउ सत्त दसगं जाव असंखेज्ज होंति दोतिण्णि। सिवगतिसव्वट्ठेहिं तिउत्तरा एत्थ णेयव्वा ॥ १३॥
ताहे तियगादिविउत्तराए अऊणतीसं तु तियग ठावेउं। पढमे उ णत्थि खेवो सेसेसु इमे भवे खेवा ॥ १४॥"

In all, there are 32 verses; but I have here given only 14.

1 For the lives of 7 Kulakaras the reader should refer to Samavāya (s. 157), Paumacariya (III, 50–58) and Triṣaṣṭi (I, 2, 137–206).

2 This is, of course, a rough rendering.

3 Cf. the following lines occurring in Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 1[b]) on Āyāra:—
"अतः प्रारभ्यतेऽर्हद्वचनानुयोगः, स च चतुर्धा, तद् यथा–धर्मकथानुयोगो गणितानुयोगो द्रव्यानुयोगश्चरणकरणानुयोगश्चेति, तत्र धर्मकथानुयोग उत्तराध्ययनादिकः, गणितानुयोगः सूर्यप्रज्ञप्त्यादिकः, द्रव्यानुयोगः पूर्वाणि सम्मत्यादिकश्च, चरणकरणानुयोगश्च आचारादिकः, स च प्रधानतमः, शेषाणां तदर्थत्वात्"
For further references and some details about 4 anuyogas, see Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri's com. (pp. 931–932) on Visesāvassayabhāsa (v. 2295), Śāntisūri's com. on Uttarajjhayaṇa, Śāntisūri's Prameyaratnamañjūṣā, a com. (pp. 2[a]–2[b]) on Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, etc.

4 Āvassayanijjutti (v. 227), Āvassayabhāsa (v. 774) and Visesāvassayabhāsa (v. 2288) bear testimony. All these three verses are identical, and the first of them is reproduced in the latter two works ad verbatim as under:—

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of the Jaina scriptures. Furthermore, he must be aware of the fact that it is possible to say that kathānuyoga is more beneficial and more appealing than dravyānuyoga so far as laymen are concerned. So it is not unnatural if one assigns to Aṇuoga, a place prior to Puvvagaya, on the ground that Aṇuoga is mostly, if not entirely, associated with dharmakathānuyoga (probably of a higher type), and Puvvagaya, with dravyānuyoga[1], which is, in a way, subordinate to kathānuyoga. Similarly one who may be attaching the greatest importance to dravyānuyoga in preference to any of the rest of the anuyogas, may very well turn the tables against Aṇuoga and assign to it a place next to Puvvagaya, and not ahead of it.

These are the only solutions I can think of, at present. Consequently I shall not now any more dwell upon this problem.

This finishes a rough survey of the genesis of the dvādaśāṅgī; but that does not mean the termination of the topic of this chapter. For, there are a good many Jaina scriptures besides the dvādaśāṅgī, though they are practically evolved[2] out of this dvādaśāṅgī,

---

"दिविंदवंदिएहिं महाणुभावेहिं रक्खियज्जेहिं । जुगमासज्ज विभत्तो अणुओगो तो कओ चउहा ॥ २२७ ॥"

The following verses of the Āvassayanijjutti may be also consulted:—

"जावंति अज्जवइरा अपुहुत्तं कालियाणुओगस्स । तेणारेण पुहुत्तं कालियसुय दिट्ठिवाए य ॥ २२५ ॥ अपुहुत्ते अणुओगो चत्तारि दुवार भासइ एगो । पुहुताणुओगकरणे ते अत्थ तओ वि वोच्छिन्ना ॥ २२६ ॥"

These very verses occur in Āvassayabhāsa as v. 763 and 773 and in Visesāvassayabhāsa as v. 2284 and 2286. It may be noted that it is only kāliya suya which is mentioned here. This has been done with a view to show that it is mukya (principal), and that ukkāliya suya is gauṇa (subordinate). So says Hemacandra Sūri in his com. (p. 928) on Visesāvassayabhāsa (v. 2289).

1 Cf. the following verse of the Āvassayamūlabhāsa:—

"कालियसुयं च इसिभासियाइं तइआ य सूरपन्नत्ती।
सव्वो य दिट्ठिवाओ चउत्थओ होइ अणुओगो ॥ १२४ ॥"

This very verse occurs in Visesāvassayabhāsa as v. 2294.

2 So far as this dvādaśāṅgī is concerned, its 12 Aṅgas are evolved out of Diṭṭhivāya also known as Bhūyāvāya. So says the following verse of Visesāvassayabhāsa:—

"जइ वि भूयावाए सव्वस्स वओमस्स ओयारो । निज्जूहण तहावि हु दुम्मेहे पप्प इत्थी य ॥ ५५१ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

and that they are not the immediate compositions just coeval with the establishment of the tīrtha by the Tīrthaṅkara in question. This means that I should, first of all, define the phrase "Jaina scriptures" and then indicate the scriptures which are not included in the dvādaśāṅgī.

To begin with, I may note the various meanings of the word 'scripture' as given in The Concise Oxford Dictionary of Current English (p. 1072 of the new edition revised by H. W. Fowler). They are: "The Bible with or without the Apocrypha[1] (usually without article; also Holy scripture or the Ss.; a doctrine not found in S. or the Ss.); a or the quotation from the Bible; (attrib.) taken from or relating to the Bible (a s. text, lesson; cf. scriptural); sacred book of non-Christian community; (archaic) inscription."

From this it follows that leaving aside the archaic meaning of the word 'scripture' viz. 'inscription', it signifies a sacred book of any community, Christian or non-Christian. So one may naturally take the phrase 'Jaina scriptures' to mean sacred books of the Jainas. This view is correct, but I may add that the phrase can be interpreted in another way, too. In order that this may be easily realized, I shall give here two definitions, of sammasuya (Sk. samyak-śruta), and two of micchāsuya (Sk. mithyā-śruta), as well. According to the 1st definition the dvādaśāṅgī and other scriptures based upon it-the works which are composed by the Jaina saints of a very high calibre are classed as sammasuya whereas the works composed by the non-Jainas who are wanting in right knowledge

---

1 The meanings of Apocrypha are given in this Dictionary on p. 50. They are: "Books of old Testament included in Septuagint and Vulgate, but not originally written in Hebrew, nor counted genuine by Jews, and excluded from Canon at Reformation. In order that we can follow this, we may note the meanings of Septuagint and Vulgate. They are respectively as under:—

"Greek version of O. T. including the apocrypha said to have been made about 270 B. C. by seventy translators."

"Latin version of the Bible prepared by Jerome te in the 4th c," are classed as micchāsuya.[1] According to the 2nd definition, all the works included in these two classes are sammasuya so far as a samyagdṛṣṭi (one having a right sort of faith) is concerned, whereas they are micchāsuya so far as a mithyādṛṣṭi (one having wrong faith) is concerned.[2] Consequently, according to this second definition, any and every sacred work, Jaina or non-Jaina is a Jaina scripture to a samyagdṛṣṭi.[3] But I here do not use the phrase 'Jaina scriptures' in this wide sense but in the previous sense—the restricted sense. That is to say, I interpret 'Jaina scriptures' as authoritative works[4] composed by eminent Jaina saints such as the Gaṇadharas, Śrutakevalins, Daśapūrvadharas, Pratyekabuddhas and the like. To be explicit, I should now enumerate these works.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Bhadrabāhusvāmin[5] is the last i. e. the 5th Śrutakevalin, in case we use this word Śrutakevalin in the strictest sense;[6] if not,

---

1 "जं इमं अण्णाणिएहिं मिच्छादिट्ठिएहिं सच्छंदबुद्धिमइविगप्पिअं तं जहा—भारहं रामायणं भीमासुरक्खं कोडिल्लयं सगडभद्दिआओ खोड(?घोडग)मुहं कप्पासिअं नागसुहुमं कणगसत्तरी वइसेसियं बुद्धवयणं तेरासिअं कावालिअं लोगाययं सट्ठितंतं माढरं पुराणं वागरणं भागवं पायंजली पुस्सदेवयं लेहं गणिअं—सउणरुअं नाडयाइं, अहवा बावत्तरि कलाओ चत्तारि अ वेआ संगोवंगा, एआइं मिच्छदिट्ठिस्स मिच्छत्त-परिग्गहिआइं मिच्छासुअं, एयाइं चेव सम्मदिट्ठिस्स सम्मत्तपरिग्गहिआइं सम्मसुअं, अहवा मिच्छदिट्ठिस्स वि एयाइं चेव सम्मसुअं, कम्हा? सम्मत्तहेउत्तणओ, जम्हा ते मिच्छदिट्ठिआ तेहिं चेव समएहिं चोइआ समाणा केइ सपक्खदिट्ठीओ चयंति, से तं मिच्छासुअं।"—Nandī (s. 42).

2 "जं इमं अरहंतेहिं ... पणीअं दुवालसंगं गणिपिडगं ... चोद्दसपुव्विस्स सम्मसुअं अभिण्णदसपुव्विस्स सम्मसुअं, तेण परं भिण्णेसु भयणा, से तं सम्मसुअं"—Nandī (s. 41). See also fn. 1.

3 This is true in the case of some of the mithyādṛṣṭis too, in case works like the Vedas lead them to the right path and thus enable them to leave the non-Jaina fold and to become followers of Jainism. See the concluding lines of fn. 1.

4 In this connection, I may quote the following verse:—
"अर्हत्प्रोक्तं गणधरदृब्धं प्रत्येकबुद्धदृब्धं च। स्थविरग्रथितं च तथा प्रमाणभूतं त्रिधा सूत्रम्॥"
This is quoted by Drona Sūri, in his com. (p. 3a) on Ohanijjutti in support of his statement as under:—
"अर्थतस्तीर्थकरप्रणीतं सूत्रतो गणधरनिबद्धं चतुर्दशपूर्वधरोपनिबद्धं दशपूर्वधरोपनिबद्धं प्रत्येकबुद्धोपनिबद्धं च।"
This idea can be seen in the following verse of Vaṭṭakerasvāmin's Mūlāyāra (V), too:—
"सुत्तं गणधरकथिदं तहेव पत्तेयबुद्धिकथिदं च। सुदकेवलिणा कथिदं अभिण्णदसपुव्वकथिदं च॥८०॥"

5 He died in Vira Saṁvat 170. So says Hemacandra Sūri in his Pariśiṣṭaparvan (IX, 112).

6 The strictest sense means to use the word 'Śrutakevalin' for one who is conversant with all the 14 Puvvas, both in words and meanings.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

he is last but one, and Sthūlabhadra[1] is the last. All the 11 Gaṇadharas of Lord Mahāvīra were Śrutakevalins, and there were other saints of His, 289 in number, who, too, were Śrutakevalins. They were followed by Jambūsvāmin[2] and 4 Śrutakevalins viz. (1) Prabhavasvāmin, (2) Śayyambhava Sūri, (3) Yaśobhadra Sūri and (4) Sambhūtivijaya. Out of all these Śrutakevalins, we have already dealt with Gaṇadharas and 12 Aṅgas composed by each of them. It is said that Āvassaya is composed by Indrabhūti, the very 1st Gaṇadhara; but since the opinions differ in this connection and since the question of its genesis requires a lot of space, I reserve it for subsequent treatment. As regards 289 Śrutakevalins, we do not know, if any one of them had composed any work. The same is the case with Jambūsvāmin and Prabhavasvāmin. Śayyambhava Sūri, a junior contemporary of Prabhavasvāmin and a predecessor of Bhadrabāhusvāmin, has at least one work viz. Dasaveyāliya attributed to him. This and the two Cūliyās[3] associated with it, I shall deal with, in due course. As regards Yaśobhadra Sūri and Sambhūtivijaya, we are again in the dark. Then comes the case of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. He is an author of ten Nijjuttis.[4] Over and above that, he is looked upon as the author of Pajjosaṇākappa, the 8th chapter of Dasāsuyakkhandha and other 1 He completely knew the meaning of the 1st 10 Puvvas only, though he had studied all the 14 Puvvas in words.

---

2 He is the last of the persons to have attained omniscience in this avasarpiṇi. No doubt, he, too, is a Śrutakevalin. But as Gaṇadharas are usually styled as Gaṇadharas and not Śrutakevalins, as the former designation is superior to the latter, similarly it is more consistent to say that Jambūsvāmin is kevalin than to address him by an inferior designation of Śrutakevalin. In short, the word Śrutakevalin is generally used for such persons who do not attain omniscience during their life but at the same time master the complete śrutajñāna. This will explain why I have separately mentioned Jambūsvāmin.

3 There are two Cūliyās in the case of Āyāra, too, as we shall see hereafter.

4 This is what Bhadrabāhusvāmin has himself said in the following verse of his Āvassayanijjutti:—

"आवस्सयस्स दसकालियस्स तह उत्तरज्झमायारे। सूयगडे निज्जुत्तिं वोच्छामि तहा दसाणं च ॥ ८२ ॥ कप्पस्स य निज्जुत्तिं ववहारस्सेव परमनिउणस्स। सूरियपण्णत्तीए वोच्छं इसिभासियाणं च ॥ ८३ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Chedasūtras[1] viz. Vavahāra and Kappa,[2] and that he is said to be an author of Piṇḍanijjutti and Ohanijjutti as well.

The ten Nijjuttis here referred to, are versified commentaries in Prākṛta on the following 10 works:—

(1) Āvassaya, (2) Dasaveyāliya, (3) Uttarajjhayaṇa, (4) Āyāra, (5) Sūyagaḍa, (6) Dasāsuyakkhandha, (7) Kappa, (8) Vavahāra, (9) Sūriyapaṇṇatti and (10) Isibhāsiya.

Out of these ten works, we had an occasion to mention (1), (2), (4) and (5) up till now. As regards (3), it appears that it is not a work of one single author, though Prof Banarasidas in his Ardhamāgadhī Reader (p. 45) attributes its authorship to Bhadrabāhusvāmin. Works (6), (7) and (8) come under the class of works known as Chedasūtras, and they are said to be the compositions of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. Works (9) and (10) are rather anonymous, and out of them, the last is said to be a work consisting of 45 ajjhayaṇas narrated by 45 Pratyekabuddhas, one by each of them.[3]

Before proceeding further, I may mention that all these 10 works which are commented upon by Bhadrabāhusvāmin, a Śrutakevalin, deserve to be included in the list of Jaina scriptures (and I accordingly do so), though a work like Sūriyapaṇṇatti is anonymous. For, its author, whoever he was, must have been an outstanding personality, and this work of his must have been

---

1 In all, there are, roughly speaking, six Chedasūtras viz., (1) Nisīha, (2) Mahānisīha, (3) Vavahāra, (4) Dasāsuyakkhandha, (5) Kappa and (6) Pañcakappa or its substitute Jiyakappa.

2 Cf. the following verse of Pañcakappabhāsa composed by Saṅghadāsa Kṣamāśramaṇa:—

"वंदामि भद्दबाहुं पाईणं चरिमसयलसुयणाणिं। सुत्तस्सकारगमिसिं दसाण कप्पे य ववहारे॥"

For this verse see pp. 259 and 67 of Descriptive Catalogue of Jaina Manuscripts (vol. XVII of Des. Cat. of the Govt. collections of Mss. deposited at Bhandarkar O. Research Institute), and Peterson, Report IV, p. 100.

3 Cf. the following lines occurring in Yaśodeva Sūri's com. (p. 67[a]) on Pakkhiyasutta:—

"इसिभासियाइं ति इह ऋषयः प्रत्येकबुद्धसाधवस्ते चात्र नेमिनाथतीर्थवर्तिनो नारदादयो विंशतिः, पार्श्वनाथतीर्थवर्तिनः पञ्चदश, वर्द्धमानस्वामितीर्थवर्तिनो दश ग्राह्याः, तैर्भाषितानि पञ्चचत्वारिंशत्सङ्ख्यान्यध्ययनानि श्रवणाद्यधिकार(भ)वन्ति ऋषिभाषितानि।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of a very high order as not only to attract the attention of a Śrutakevalin but to lead him to comment upon it.

To this list of the Jaina scriptures so far enumerated, may be added works composed by Sthūlabhadra. But we do not know whether he at all composed any work. This finishes the enumeration of the works of one and all the Śrutakevalins.[1] Now we may turn to the works of Daśapūrvadharas.[1] Vajrasvāmin is said to be the last in the lot.[2] We do not know if he or any other Daśapūrvadharas except Śyāma Sūri who preceded him, ever composed any work. Paṇṇavaṇā is said to be the work of this very Śyāma Sūri.

It may be added in this connection that some of the Saṅgrahaṇīs on Upāṅgas are compositions of some of the Daśapūrvadharas; for, this is what we learn from Droṇa Sūri's com. (p. 3[a])[3] on Ohanijjutti.

This means that it now remains to examine the question of the works of the Pratyekabuddhas. Some of the ajjhayaṇas of Uttarajjhayaṇa are said to be the works of some of the Prateyakabuddhas. Moreover, some of the works known as Prakīrṇakas are attributed to them about which we shall refer to, hereafter.

This rough discussion about the works that can be termed as Jaina scriptures, gives us an idea as to the number of works of which the genesis remains to be attempted. They are:—

(1) Āvassaya, (2) Dasaveyāliya, (3) Uttarajjhayaṇa, (4) Dasāsuyakkhandha, (5) Kappa, (6) Vavahāra, (7) Sūriyapaṇṇatti, (8) Piṇḍanijjutti, (9) Ohanijjutti, (10) Cūliyās and (11) Paṇṇavaṇā.

---

1 This is due to the fact that in this avasarpiṇī, there has not flourished any such saint who knew 13, 12 or 11 Puvvas. The following lines from Droṇa Sūri's com. (p. 3[a]) on Ohanijjutti may be quoted in this connection :—

"अस्यामवसर्पिण्यां चतुर्दशपूर्व्यनन्तरं दशपूर्वधरा एव सञ्जाता न त्रयोदशपूर्वधरा द्वादशपूर्वधरा एकादशपूर्वधरा वा"

2 In Subodhikā (p. 169[b]) it is said:—

"महागिरिः १ सुहस्ती च २ सूरिः श्रीगुणसुन्दरः। श्यामार्यः ४ स्कन्दिलाचार्यो ५ रेवतीमित्रसूरिराट् ६॥ श्रीधर्मो ७ भद्रगुप्तश्च ८ श्रीगुप्तो ९ वज्रसूरिराट्। युगप्रधानप्रवरा दशैते दशपूर्विणः॥"

3 The pertinent line is as under:—

"दशपूर्वधरा अपि शासनस्योपकारका उपाङ्गादीनां सङ्ग्रहणपरचनेन हेतुना"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

It may be noted that out of these 12 works, the first three along with the 8th and the 9th form a group known as Mūlasūtra. The 4th, 5th and the 6th are classed under the name of Chedasūtra, while the 7th and the 11th, under the name of the Upānga. This will show that over and above the Jaina scriptures noted up till now, there are some more Jaina sacred works; for, the number of the chedasūtras as already stated is 5 or 6, and that of the Upāngas 12. No doubt, almost all of these works are anonymous, and it is very very difficult to ascertain their dates of composition. Even then an attempt must be made to examine their genesis, too; for, they are also after all, Jaina scriptures, though perhaps not in the strictest sense. But as this chapter has already outswollen in size, I have to reserve this topic for subsequent treatment. I may therefore conclude this chapter by mentioning only two facts as under:—

(1) There are works known as Prakīrṇakas. They were composed by the 14,000 disciples[1] of Lord Mahāvira—the disciples who were endowed with four types of mati-jñāna. These disci-

1 There is a difference of opinion as to whether these are the direct pupils of Lord Mahāvīra or the indirect ones, and as such they are not necessarily contemporaneous with Lord Mahāvīra. In this connection I may reproduce the following lines from Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 208b) on Nandī :—

"एके सूरयः प्रज्ञापयन्ति–इदं किल चतुरशीतिसहस्रादिकं ऋषभादीनां तीर्थकृतां श्रमणपरिमाणं प्रधानसूत्रविरचनसमर्थान् श्रमणानधिकृत्य वेदितव्यं, इतरथा पुनः सामान्यश्रमणाः प्रभूततरा अपि तस्मिन् २ ऋषभादिकाले आसीरन्, अपरे पुनरेवं प्रज्ञापयन्ति–ऋषभादितीर्थकृतां जीवतामिदं चतुरशीतिसहस्रादिकं श्रमणपरिमाणं प्रवाहतः पुनरेकैकस्मिन् तीर्थे भूयांसः श्रमणा वेदितव्याः, तत्र ये प्रधानसूत्रविरचनशक्तिसमन्विताः सुप्रसिद्धतद्ग्रन्था अतत्कालिका अपि तीर्थे वर्तमानास्तत्राधिकृता द्रष्टव्याः, एतदेव मतान्तरमुपदर्शयन्नाह–'अथवे'त्यादि, अथवेति प्रकारान्तरोपदर्शने, यस्य ऋषभादेस्तीर्थकृतो यावन्तः शिष्यास्तीर्थे औत्पत्तिक्या वैनयिक्या कर्म्मजया पारिणामिक्या चतुर्विधया बुद्धया उपेताः–समन्विता आसीरन् तस्य–ऋषभादेस्तावन्ति प्रकीर्णकसहस्राण्यभवन्, प्रत्येकबुद्धा अपि तावन्त एव। अत्रैके व्याचक्षते–इह एकैकस्य तीर्थकृतस्तीर्थेऽपरिमाणानि प्रकीर्णकानि भवन्ति, प्रकीर्णककारिणामपरिमाणत्वात्, केवलमिह प्रत्येकबुद्धरचितान्येव प्रकीर्णकानि द्रष्टव्यानि प्रकीर्णकपरिमाणेन प्रत्येकबुद्धपरिमाणप्रतिपादनात्। स्यादेतत्–प्रत्येकबुद्धानां शिष्यभावो विरुध्यते, तदेतदसमीचीनं, यतः प्रव्राजकाचार्यमेवाधिकृत्य शिष्यभावो निषिध्यते, न तु तीर्थकरोपदिष्टशासनप्रतिपन्नत्वेनापि, ततो न कश्चिद् दोषः, तथा च तेषां ग्रन्थः–इह तित्थे अपरिमाणा पइन्नगा, पइन्नगसामिअपरिमाणत्तणओ, किंतु इह सुत्ते पत्तेयबुद्धपणीयं पइन्नगं भाणियव्वं, कम्हा ?, जम्हा पइण्णगपरिमाणेण चेव पत्तेयबुद्धपरिमाणं कीरइ, (इति) भणियं 'पत्तेयबुद्धा वि तत्तिया चेव' त्ति, चोयग आह–'णणु पत्तेयबुद्धा सिस्सभावो य विरुज्झए' आयरिओ आह–'तित्थयरपणीयसासणपडिवन्नत्तणओ तस्सीसा हवंती'ति, अन्ये पुनरेवमाहुः–'सामान्येन प्रकीर्णकैस्तुल्यत्वात् प्रत्येकबुद्धानामवाभिधानं, न तु नियोगतः प्रत्येकबुद्धरचितान्येव प्रकीर्णकानीति'।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ples, as some say, are not necessarily the Pratyekabuddhas;[1] but whatever it may be, we have no means to know exactly which works were composed by them. The works styled as Prakīrṇakas and enumerated under the two groups known as kāliya-suya[2] and ukkāliya-suya[3] are perhaps some of the works composed by these Pratyekabuddhas. Whether it is so or not, their genesis will be taken up hereafter.

(2) As stated in Pajjosaṇākappa (s. 147)[4] and in Triṣaṣti (X, 13, v. 223–224[5]), Lord Mahāvīra when he was about to attain nirvāṇa, recited 55 adhyayanas dealing with the fructification of puṇya (merit), 55 pertaining to the fructification of pāpa (demerit),[6] 36 though unasked, and one more named as Pahāṇa[7] (Sk. Pradhāna). We do not know whether he did or did not inform the audience as to whose compositions they were. Hence the problem before us, of deciding their authorship. Roughly speaking, we may attribute the authorship of all these 147 adhyayanas to Lord Mahāvīra; but even then the question as to whether any one of these adhyayanas is incorporated in the existing canon, remains practically unsolved.

---

1 See the ending portion of fn. 1 of p. 18.

2-3 See pp. 23–24.

4 The pertinent lines are as under:—

"छट्ठेणं भत्तेणं अपाणएणं साइणा नक्खत्तेणं जोगमुवागएणं पच्चूसकालसमयंसि संपलियंकनिसण्णे पणपन्नं अज्झयणाइं कल्लाणफलविवागाइं पणपन्नं अज्झयणाइं पावफलविवागाइं छत्तीसं च अपुट्ठवागरणाइं वागरित्ता पहाणं नाम अज्झयणं विभावेमाणे २ कालगए"

5 They are—

"कल्याणफलपाकानि पञ्चपञ्चाशतं तथा। तावन्त्यघविपाकानि जगावध्ययनानि तु ॥ २२३ ॥ षट्त्रिंशतमप्रश्नव्याकरणान्यभिधाय च। प्रधानं नामाध्ययनं जगद्गुरुरभावयत् ॥ २२४ ॥"

6 One may be tempted to belive that some of the ajjhayaṇas of Vivāgasuya, the latter portion of Ovavāiya and the like may have something to do with some of these 110 adhyanas.

7 This is explained in Subodhikā (p. 125[b]) as below:—

"प्रधानं नाम एकं मरुदेव्यध्ययनं"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

CHAPTER II

CLASSIFICATIONS OF THE AGAMAS

Jainism deals with five kinds of knowledge (nāṇā).[1] One of them is known as suya–nāṇa (Sk. śruta[2]–jñāna). It can be roughly translated as scriptural knowledge. It is derived from the reading or preaching of scriptures or through an object known by sensitive knowledge (ābhiṇibohia–nāṇa[3]). It can be variously classified.[4] According to one of the classifications, it is two–fold: (i) aṅga–pavitṭha (Sk. aṅga–praviṣṭa) and (ii) anaṅga–pavitṭha (Sk. anaṅga–praviṣṭa).[5] The former means 'contained in the Aṅgas', and the latter, 'not contained in the Aṅgas'. Anaṅga–pavitṭha is designated as aṅga–bāhira (Sk. aṅga–bāhya), too[6]; for, it comprises works standing outside the Aṅgas–not belonging to the Aṅgas.

---

1 Cf. the following sūtra of Nandī:
"नाणं पंचविहं पन्नत्तं, तं जहा–आभिणिबोहिअनाणं सुअनाणं ओहिनाणं मणपज्जवनाणं केवलनाणं ।" (सू. १)

The following sūtra of the Tattvārtha (I) may be also referred to:
"मतिश्रुतावधिमनःपर्यायकेवलानि ज्ञानम् ।" (सू. ९)

2 "श्रुतमाप्तवचनमागम उपदेश ऐतिह्यमाम्नायः प्रवचनं जिनवचनमित्यनर्थान्तरम्." This line occurring in the Bhāṣya (p. 88) on Tattvārtha (I, 20) gives the synonyms of śruta.

3 This is also known as mai–nāṇa.

4 (i) This is borne out by the following sūtra occurring in Nandī:
"सुयनाणपरोक्खं चोद्दसविहं पन्नत्तं, तं जहा–अक्खरसुयं १ अणक्खरसुयं २ सण्णिसुअं ३ असण्णिसुअं ४ सम्मसुअं ५ मिच्छसुअं ६ साइअं ७ अणाइअं ८ सपज्जवसिअं ९ अपज्जवसिअं १० गमिअं ११ अगमिअं १२ अंगपविट्ठं १३ अणंगपविट्ठं १४ ।" (सू. ३८).

(ii) Devendra Sūri in his Kammavivāga (v. 6) has mentioned these very 14 varieties, but in the following verse, he has referred to 20 varieties:

"पज्जय १ अक्खर २ पय ३ सङ्घाया ४ पडिवत्ति ५ तह य अणुओगो ६ ।
पाहुडपाहुड ७ पाहुड ८ वत्थू ९ पुव्वा १० य ससमासा ॥७॥"

5 See the ending portion of the 1st part of the above fn.

6 Cf. "तं समासओ दुविहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा–अंगपविट्ठं अंगबाहिरं च ।"–Nandī (s. 44)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The aṅga-paviṭṭha suya-nāṇa has 12 sub-divisions, each of which is known as an Aṅga[1]. Thus it is identical with the dvādaśāṅgī which consists of 12 Aṅgas viz. Āyāra etc., and which is so often referred to as duvālasaṅga gaṇipiḍaga (Sk. dvādaśāṅga gaṇipiṭaka) in the canonical works of the Jainas.[2] These 12 Aṅgas are looked upon as the 12 limbs (aṅgas) of a śruta-puruṣa or the śruta personified. They are: 2 pādas (feet), 2 jaṅghās[3] (lower legs), 2 ūrus[4] (thighs), 2 gātrārdhas (back and belly), 2 bāhus (hands), 1 grīvā (neck) and 1 śiras (head).[5] Āyāra and the other 11 Aṅgas are respectively compared with these limbs so that Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa stand for the feet of the śruta-puruṣa, whereas Diṭṭhivāya, for the head. On the other hand, so far as anaṅga-paviṭṭha suya-nāṇa is concerned, it does not form a part and parcel of this śruta-puruṣa;[6] for, it comprises such scriptures as are not included in the dvādaśāṅgī. This furnishes us with only one of the definitions of the two kinds of suya-nāṇa above referred to; for, there are two more. According to one of them, what is composed by the Gaṇadharas is aṅga-paviṭṭha whereas what is composed by Śrutasthaviras[7] is anaṅga-paviṭṭha. According to the other definition, 1 Aṅga is also known as Gaṇipiḍaga. This is what I surmise from the following line occurring in Samavāya (s. 57):

---

"तिण्हं गणिपिडगाणं आयारचूलियावज्जाणं सत्तावन्नं अज्झयणा पन्नत्ता, तं जहा-आयारे सूयगडे ठाणे"

2 For instance we come across "दुवालसंगे गणिपिडगे" twice in Samavāya (s. 148) and "दुवालसंगे गणिपिडगे" in sūtras 1 and 136 of this very work. See also p. 14, fn. 2.

3-4 In The Standard Sanskrit English Dictionary by L. R. Vaidya, the meanings of these words are respectively given as "leg from the ankle to the knee" and "the thigh." That a distinction is made between jaṅghā and ūru in Jaina works is borne out by Samarāiccacariya (vide the description of Aggisamma given in the 1st bhava).

5 Cf. the following verse occurring in the Cuṇṇi (p. 47) on Nandī:-
"पादयुगं जंघोरू गातदुवगं च दो य बाहू ता। गीवा सिरं च पुरिसो वारसअंगो सुतपविट्ठो॥"

6 See the opening lines of fn. 1 of p. 22.

7 A Śruta-sthavira means one conversant with Ṭhāṇa and Samavāya. Cf. "ठाणंग-समवायधरेणं समणे णिग्गंथे सुयथेरे"-Ṭhāṇa (III. 2; s. 159).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

that śruta which exists in every tīrtha—in short which is niyata, is aṅga-paviṭṭha, and the rest of the śruta is anaṅga-paviṭṭha.[1] It may be noted that Ānandasāgara Sūri has recently propounded a view in Siddhacakra (IV, 8, p. 175[2]) that even a Gaṇadhara can be an author of the anaṅga-paviṭṭha works, and thus Āvassaya, though coming under the class of anaṅga-paviṭṭha, is a work composed by a Gaṇadhara. If this view is accepted, it follows that though the author of aṅga-paviṭṭha is none else but a Gaṇadhara, the author of anaṅgapaviṭṭha is a Gaṇadhara and a non-Gaṇadhara as well. Furthermore, in Siddhacakra (IV, 8, p. 175) he has said that anaṅga-paviṭṭha may be also associated with a question from a Gaṇadhara. But this is an erroneous statement as can be seen from Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 48[b])[3] on Āvassaya where it is distinctly stated that anaṅga-paviṭṭha has nothing to do with a question or questions of a Gaṇadhara, though it may be however the outcome of a question or questions from some one else or that without any body asking a question to a Tīrthaṅkara, he himself may have expounded a subject, and later on, it may have been embodied in words by some devotee of his. As regards the genesis of aṅga-paviṭṭha, there are no such options; for, it after all originates from the niṣadyās and tripadī.[4]

---

1 "इच्चेतस्स सुतपुरिसस्स जं सुतं अंगभागठितं तं अंगपविट्ठं भणइ, जं पुण एतस्सेव सुतपुरिसस्स वइरेगे ठितं अंगबाहिरं ति भण्णति, अहवा गणहरकयमंगगतं जं कतं थेरेहिं बाहिरं तं च । णियतं अंगपविट्ठं अणियुयसुतं बाहिरं भणितं ॥"

—Cunni (p. 47) on Nandī.

The 550th verse of Viśeṣāvassayabhāsa may be also referred to. It runs as under:

"गणहरथेरकयं वा आएसा मुक्कवागरणो वा । धुवचलविसेसओ वा अंगाणंगेसु नाणत्तं ॥ ५५० ॥"

2 For the pertinent portion see my Gujarātī work Arhata āgamonum avalokana yane Tattvarasikacandrikā (Pt. I, p. 63).

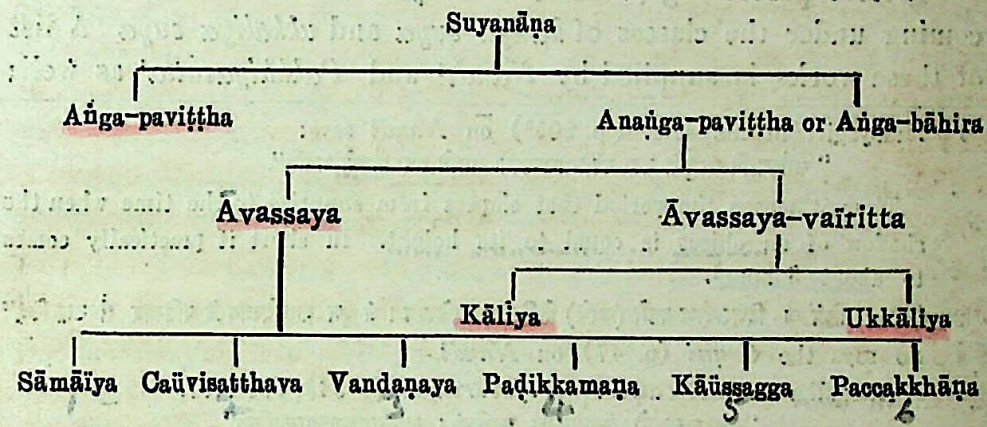
3 "वारत्रयं गणधरपृष्टेन सता भगवता तीर्थंकरेण यत् प्रोच्यते 'उप्पनेइ वा, विगमेइ वा धुवेइ वा' इति पदत्रयं तदनुसृत्य यन्निष्पन्नं तदङ्गप्रविष्टं, यत् पुनर्गणधरप्रश्नव्यतिरेकेण शेषकृतप्रश्नपूर्वकं वा भगवतो मुत्कलं व्याकरणं तदधिकृत्य यन्निष्पन्नं जम्बूप्रज्ञप्त्यादि, यच्च वा गणधरवचांस्येवोपजीव्य दृब्धमावश्यकनिर्युक्त्यादि पूर्वस्थविरैस्तदनङ्गप्रविष्टं यदि वा यत् सर्वतीर्थंकरतीर्थेष्वनियतं तदनङ्गप्रविष्टं, सर्वपक्षेषु द्वादशाङ्गान्यङ्गप्रविष्टं, शेषमनङ्गप्रविष्टं"

4 Maladhārin Hemacandra, too, has practically said the same thing as can be seen from the following lines of his com. (p. 298) on Viśeṣāvassayabhāsa;—

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This finishes a discussion about aṅga-paviṭṭha and anaṅga-paviṭṭha. So we shall now deal with the divisions of the latter. They are: (i) āvāssaya and (ii) āvassaya-vairitta. Out of these, āvassaya has six sub-divisions viz, (i) sāmāïya, (ii) caüvisatthava, (iii) vandaṇaya, (iv) padikkamaṇa, (v) kāüssagga and (vi) paccakkhāṇa, whereas āvassayavaïritta has two viz. (i) kāliya and (ii) ukkāliya.[1] Before we mention the various works coming under the categories of kāliya and ukkāliya, we may present the results of this dichotomy in a tabular form as under:—



From this discussion, it will be seen that there are four principal divisions of the sacred canon of the Jainas viz. (1) aṅga-paviṭṭha, (2) āvassaya, (3) kāliya and (4) ukkāliya. Leaving aside the six sub-divisions of āvassaya, we may define kāliya and ukkāliya as under:—

"वारत्रयं गणधरपृष्टस्य तीर्थकरस्य सम्बन्धी य आदेशः—प्रतिवचनमुत्पाद-व्यय-ध्रौव्यवाचकं पदत्रय-मित्यर्थः, तस्माद् यद् निष्पन्नं तदङ्गप्रविष्टं द्वादशाङ्गमेव, मुक्तं-मुत्कलं—अप्रश्नपूर्वकं च यद् व्याकरणम्—अर्थप्रतिपादनं तस्माद् निष्पन्नमङ्गबाह्यमभिधीयते, तच्च आवश्यकादिकम्।"

Here, instead of tripadī we have its synonym padatraya. Malayagiri Sūri, in his com. (p. 3[a]) on Jīvābhigama has used the phrase mātṛkāpada-traya as can be seen from the following line:

"भगवान् हि वर्द्धमानस्वामी...एतन्मातृकापदत्रयमुक्तवान्—उप्पन्नेइ वा विगमेइ वा धुवेइ वा"

1 "से किं तं अंगबाहिरं? अंगबाहिरं दुविहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा—आवस्सयं च आवस्सयवइरित्तं च। से किं तं आवस्सयं? आवस्सयं छव्विहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा—सामाइअं चउवीसत्थवो वंदणयं पडिक्कमणं काउस्सग्गो पच्चक्खाणं, सेत्तं आवस्सयं। से किं तं आवस्सयवइरित्तं? आवस्सयवइरित्तं दुविहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा—कालिअं च उक्कालिअं च।"—Nandī (s. 44)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

That śruta which is studied-recited during the first and last paurusīs[1] of both day and night, is styled kāliya-suya, while that śruta which is studied-recited at all times except kālavelā, is designated as ukkāliya-suya.[2]

As already noted in the concluding lines (p. 12) of fn. 4 (p. 11), kāliya-suya is principal whereas ukkāliya-suya is subordinate. But, in Nandī etc., the works of the former class are mentioned after the enumeration of those of the latter class.

Before proceeding further, we may take a note of the works coming under the classes of kāliya-suya and ukkāliya-suya. A list of these works is supplied by Nandī[3] and Pakkhiyasutta[4] as well;

---

1 Malayagiri in his com. (p. 205[a]) on Nandī says:
"सर्वस्यापि वस्तुनो यदा स्वप्रमाणच्छाया जायते तदा पौरुषी भवति"
Thus it means the period that elapses from sun-rise to the time when the shadow of an object is equal to its height. In short it practically comes to about 3 hours.

2. "तत्थ कालियं ज दिणरादीण पढमे (चरमे) पोरिसीसु पढिज्जइ। जं पुण कालवेलावज्जे पढिज्जइ तं उक्कालियं"
So says the Cunni (p. 47) on Nandī.
Akalanka in his Tattvārtharājavārtika. (p. 54) observes:
"स्वाध्यायकाले नियतकालं कालिकं। अनियतकालमुत्कालिकं"

3 "उक्कालिअं अणेगविहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा-दसवेआलिअं कप्पिआकप्पिअं चुल्लकप्पसुअं महाकप्पसुअं उववाइअं रायपसेणिअं जीवाभिगमो पण्णवणा महापण्णवणा पमायप्पमायं नंदी अणुओगदाराइं देविंदत्थओ तंदुलवेआलिअं चंदाविज्झयं सूरपण्णत्ती पोरिसिमंडलं मंडलपवेसो विज्जाचरणविणिच्छओ गणिविज्जा झाणविभत्ती मरणविभत्ती आयविसोही वीयरागसुअं संलेहणासुयं विहारकप्पो चरणविही आउरपच्चक्खाणं महापच्चक्खाणं एवमाइ, से तं उक्कालिअं।
से किं तं कालिअं? कालिअं अणेगविहं पण्णत्तं, तं जहा-उत्तरज्झयणाइं दसाओ कप्पो ववहारो निसीहं महानिसीहं इसिभासिआइं जंबुद्दीवपन्नत्ती दीवसागरपन्नत्ती चंदपन्नत्ती खुड्डिआविमाणपविभत्ती महल्लिआविमाणपविभत्ती अंगचूलिआ वग्गचूलिआ विवाहचूलिआ अरुणोववाए वरुणोववाए गरुडोववाए धरणोववाए वेसमणोववाए वेलंधरोववाए देविंदोववाए उट्ठाणसुए समुट्ठाणसुए नागपरिआवणिआओ निरयावलिआओ कप्पिआओ कप्पवडिंसिआओ पुप्फिआओ पुप्फचूलिआओ वण्हीदसाओ, एवमाइआइं चउरासीइं पइन्नगसहस्साइं भगवओ अरहओ उसहसामिस्स आइतित्थयरस्स तहा संखिज्जाइं पइन्नगसहस्साइं मज्झिमगाणं जिणवराणं चोद्दस पइन्नगसहस्साणि भगवओ वद्धमाणसामिस्स, अहवा जस्स जत्तिआ सीसा उप्पत्तिआए वेणइआए कम्मिआए पारिणामिआए चउव्विहाए बुद्धीए उववेआ तस्स तत्तिआइं पइण्णगसहस्साइं, पत्तेअबुद्धा वि तत्तिआ चेव, सेत्तं कालिअं. सेत्तं आवस्सयवइरित्तं, से तं अणंगपविट्ठं। (सू० ४४)"

4 "नमो तेसिं खमासमणाणं जेहिं इमं वाइयं अज्झावियं उक्कालियं भगवन्तं तं जहा-दसवेयालियं कप्पियाकप्पियं चुल्लं कप्पसुयं महाकप्पसुयं ओवाइयं रायप्पसेणइयं जीवाभिगमो पन्नवणा महापन्नवणा नन्दी अणुओगदाराइं देविन्दत्थओ तन्दुलवेयालियं चन्दाविज्झयं पोरिसिमण्डलं मण्डलप्पवेसो गणिविज्जा

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

but they differ in some respects. In order that this may be realized, I give below the names of works forming a group known as kāliya-suya as given in Nandī (s. 44):—

(1) Uttarajjhayaṇa[1], (2) Dasā[2], (3) Kappa, (4) Vavahāra, (5) Nisīha, (6) Mahānisīha, (7) Isibhāsia[3], (8) Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, (9) Dīvasāgarapaṇṇatti, (10) Candapaṇṇatti, (11) Khuḍḍiyā-Vimāṇapavibhatti, (12) Mahallīā-Vimāṇapavibhatti, (13) Aṅgacūliyā, (14) Vaggacūliyā, (15) Vivāhacūliyā, (16) Aruṇovavāya, (17) Varuṇovavāya, (18) Garulovavāya, (19) Dharaṇovavāya, (20) Vesamaṇovavāya, (21) Velandharovavāya, (22) Devindovavāya, (23) Uṭṭhāṇasuya, (24) Samuṭṭhāṇasuya, (25) Nāgapariyāvaṇiā[4], (26) Nirayāvaliyā[5], (27) Kappiyā[6], (28) Kappavaḍiṁsiyā[7], (29) Pupphiyā[8], (30) Pupphacūliyā[9] and (31) Vaṇhīdasā.[10]

On comparing these names with those given in Pakkhiyasutta (p. 66[a] and p. 66[b]), we find:

(1) The following 7 additional works are mentioned there:— (a) Sūrapaṇṇatti, (b) Vaṇhiya[11], (c) Āsīvisabhāvaṇā[12], (d) Diṭṭhivisabhāvaṇā[13], (e) Cāraṇabhāvaṇā[14], (f) Mahāsumiṇabhāvaṇā[15] and (g) Teyaganisagga[16].

(2) There is no mention of Dharaṇovavāya.

(3) In all, there are 37 works noted under the group known as kāliya-suya.

Though in the printed edition we have Vaṇhia and Vaṇhidasā, it is doubtful, if there is really any work like Vaṇhia; for, Yaśodeva Sūri while commenting upon Pakkhiyasutta takes no notice of it.

विज्जाचरणविणिच्छओ झाणविभत्ती मरणविभत्ती आयविसोही संलेहणाइयं वीयरागइयं विहारकप्पो चरणविहि आउरपच्चक्खाणं महापच्चक्खाणं।" (p. 61)

"णमो तेसिं खमासमणाणं जेहि इमं वाइयं अङ्गबाहिरं कालियं भगवन्तं तं जहा—उत्तरज्झयणाइं दसाओ कप्पो ववहारो इसिभासियाइं निसीहं महानिसीहं जंबुद्दीवपन्नत्ती सूरपन्नत्ती चन्दपन्नत्ती दीवसागरपन्नत्ती खुड्डियाविमाणपविभत्ती महल्लियाविमाणपविभत्ती अंगचूलियाए वंगचूलियाए विवाहचूलियाए अरुणोववाए वरुणोववाए गरुलोववाए वेसमणोववाए वेलन्धरोववाए देविन्दोववाए उट्ठाणसुए समुट्ठाणसुए नागपरियावणियाणं निरयावलियाणं कप्पियाणं कप्पवडिंसयाणं (p. 66[a]) पुप्फियाणं पुप्फचूलियाणं वण्हिआणं वण्हिदसाणं आसीविसभावणाणं दिट्ठीविसभावणाणं चारणभावणाणं महासुमिणभावणाणं तेयगनिसग्गाणं" (p. 66[b])

1-16 All these names are mentioned in plural.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As regards the works coming under the group known as ukkāliya-suya, Nandī (s. 44) mentions the following:—

(1) Dasaveyāliya, (2) Kappiyākappiya, (3) Culla-Kappasuya, (4) Mahā-Kappasuya, (5) Uvavāiya, (6) Rāyapaseṇiya, (7) Jīvabhigama, (8) Paṇṇavaṇā, (9) Mahāpaṇṇavaṇā, (10) Pamāyappamāya, (11) Nandī, (12) Aṇuogadāra[1], (13) Devindatthaü, (14) Tandulaveyāliya, (15) Candāvijjhaya, (16) Sūrapaṇṇatti, (17) Porisimaṇḍala, (18) Maṇḍalapavesa, (19) Vijjācaraṇaviṇicchaya, (20) Gaṇivijjā, (21) Jhāṇavibhatti, (22) Maraṇavibhatti, (23) Āyavisohi, (24) Vīyarāgasuya, (25) Saṁlehaṇāsuya, (26) Vihārakappa, (27) Caraṇavihi, (28) Āurapaccakkhāṇa and (29) Mahāpaccakkhāṇa.

This list differs from the one given in Pakkhiyasutta (p. 61[b]) in the following respects:—

(1) There is no mention of Sūrapaṇṇatti there.

(2) In all, there are 28 works, all of which, of course, tally with those mentioned in Nandī.

From this it follows that according to Nandī, Sūrapaṇṇatti belongs to the class known as ukkāliya-suya, whereas according to Pakkhiyasutta, it belongs to the class known as kāliya-suya.

I may note en passant that some mention 32 works as belonging to kāliya-suya. Out of them 29 works are the same as noted in Nandī, and the additional ones are as under:—

(1) Nirayavisohi, (2) Maraṇavisohi, and (3) Āyavibhatti.

Further, there are several works which come under the class of kāliya-suya. They are not only anonymous but we have no idea about them except that they are Paiṇṇagas.

It may be here noted that none of the 12 Aṅgas is included in any of the two groups viz. kāliya-suya and ukkāliya-suya. So there arise two questions as under:—

(1) Why are the 1st 11 Aṅgas referred to as kālika-śruta by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 792[b]) on Viāhapaṇṇatti (XX, 8; s. 677) and by Hemacandra[2] Sūri in his com. (p. 931) on Viseṣāvassayabhāsa (v. 2294)?

1 This name occurs in plural.

2 For the pertinent portion see Tattvarasikacandrikā (pt. I, p. 68).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(2) How is it that the Cunṇi (p. 47)[1] of Nandī (s. 44) and Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 203[a])[2] on this very Nandī, refer to Āyāra etc., as works belonging to the kāliya-suya group?

The answer appears to be that the word kāliya-suya is here used in the 2nd sense out of 3: (i) in contrast with the word ukkāliya, (ii) etymologically and (iii) as a synonym of caraṇa-karaṇānuyoga[3]. The 2nd sense conveys that while studying the 11 Aṅgas-the entire śruta, kāla (time) is taken into account, and consequently each of the works so studied is called kāliya.

This finishes the discussion about one type of classifications of the Jaina scriptures; but there remains another to be attended to, though this is not probably as old as the former one. It is however more popular than the former. According to it the scriptures are divided into 6 groups viz. (1) Aṅga, (2) Uvaṅga, (3) Cheyasutta, (4) Mūlasutta, (5) Paiṇṇaga and (6) Cūliyāsutta.

Before we deal with these groups, we may note that it is only the mūrtipūjaka Śvetāmbaras who use all these six designations; for, the Sthānakavāsins[4] seem to use only first four, while the Digambaras, only the 1st and the 5th.

Aṅga—Aṅga is a word common to both the Prākṛta and Saṁskṛta languages. It is a term to be met with in the Vaidika literature wherein it signifies the six auxiliary sciences (helpful in the study of the Vedas) viz. (1) Śikṣā (phonetics), (2) Chandas (prosody), (3) Veyyākaraṇa (grammar), (4) Nirukta (philology), (5) Kalpa (ritualism) and (6) Jyotis (astronomy). In the Bauddha literature, too, we come across this word. For instance, in the Majjhimanikāya 22 (I, p. 133) and in several passages in the Aṅguttaranikāya, there is mention of a division of the Canon into 9 Aṅgas viz. (1) Sutta (prose sermons), (2) Geyya (sermons in a mixture of prose and verse), (3) Veyyākaraṇa

1 "तं च प्रायसो आयारादि कालियसुतं।"

2 "तच्च प्राय आचारादि कालिकश्रुतम्।"

3 This is what the Cunṇi (p. 2) on Dasaveyāliya says. The pertinent line is: "चरणकरणाणुयोगो णाम कालियसुयं"

4 These represent a non-idolatrous (amūrtipūjaka) section of the Śvetāmbaras which originated in Vikrama Saṁvat 1530. It is said that a subsection known as Terāpanthis arose from this section in Saṁvat 1816.

5 Cf. the lines reproduced from the com. on Anuogaddāra on p. 29.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(explanations, commentaries), (4) Gāthā (stanzas), (5) Udāna (pithy sayings), (6) Itivuttaka (short speeches beginning with the words 'Thus spake the Buddha'), (7) Jātaka (stories of the former births of Buddha), (8) Abbhutadhamma (reports of miracles) and (9) Vedalla (teachings in the form of questions and answers). This is what is suggested by the late Prof. Winternitz in his work entitled A History of Indian Literature (vol. II, p. 10). He there adds:

"This division does not allude to a canon complete in itself, or to definite books, but is only meant to classify the various types of Buddhist texts according to their form and contents."

As already noted, in the Jaina literature, too, we find this word.[1] Herein, it stands for a limb of the śruta-puruṣa, there being such 12 limbs, in all.

Under these circumstances, it is difficult to say as to which school first used this term 'Aṅga' and as to which school subsequently borrowed it. Prof. M. V. Patwardhan, however remarks:

"The Śvetāmbara Jains have also borrowed the term Aṃga from their Brahmanical opponents, to denote the first twelve principal works of their canon, while the Digambara Jains have also borrowed the term Veda from the same source, to denote the principal divisions of their sacred literature."[2]

It hardly remains to be added that the canonical texts that go by the name of 12 Aṅgas form the very first and fundamental group out of six, and that all the 12 Aṅgas are mentioned in Samavāya (s. 1[3] and 136[4]), Nandī (s. 45[5]), Anuogaddāra (s. 42[6]), Pakkhiyasutta[7] (p. 70[a]), the Bhāṣya (p. 10[8]) on Tattvārtha (I, 21) etc.

1 For instance see p. 21 and the following line from Vivāgasuya (I): "दसमस्स अङ्गस्स पण्हावागरणाणं अयमट्ठे पन्नत्ते, एक्कारसमस्स णं भन्ते ! अङ्गस्स विवागसुयस्स"

2 See The Daśavaikālikasūtra: A study (pp. 19–20).

3 "आयारे १ सूयगडे २ ठाणे ३ समवाए ४ विवाहपन्नत्ती ५ नायाधम्मकहाओ ६ उवासगदसाओ ७ अंतगडदसाओ ८ अणुत्तरोववाइदसाओ ९ पण्हावागरणं १० विवागसुए ११ दिट्ठिवाए १२"

4 There is the same passage as noted above, except that for the 9th and the 10th works we have: "अणुत्तरोववाइयदसाओ ९ पण्हावागरणाइं."

5 "आयारो १ सूयगडो २ ठाणं ३ समवाओ ४ विवाहपन्नत्ती ५ नायाधम्मकहाओ ६ उवासगदसाओ ७ अंतगडदसाओ ८ अणुत्तरोववाइअदसाओ ९ पण्हावागरणाइं १० विवागसुअं ११ दिट्ठिवाओ"

6 We have the same passage here ad verbatim as in Nandī (s. 45).

7 Here the passage differs from that in Nandī only regarding the 10th Aṅga; for, here we have पण्हावागरणं instead of पण्हावागरणाइं.

8 "आचारः, सूत्रकृतं, स्थानं, समवायः, व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्तिः, ज्ञातधर्मकथाः, उपासकाध्ययनदशाः, अन्तकृद्दशाः, अनुत्तरोपपातिकदशाः, प्रश्नव्याकरणं, विपाकसूत्रं, दृष्टिपात इति ।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As regards the date of the word Aṅga, it may be said that it is as old as the composition of the Aṅgas; for, this word occurs in Vivāgasuya (I) etc., and the word Duwālasaṅga in Samavāya etc.

2. Uvaṅga—This word has Upāṅga for its Saṁskṛta equivalent. But it seems that neither Uvaṅga nor Upāṅga is used by the Bauddhas to indicate any work or works of their school. On the other hand the Vaidikas have used the word Upāṅga for the following four works (rather branches) associated with the six Vedāṅgas:—

(1) Purāṇa, (2) Nyāya, (3) Mīmāṁsā and (4) Dharmaśāstra.

That there are Aṅgas and Upāṅgas for the Vedas is corroborated by Nandī (s. 42) and Aṇuogaddāra (s. 41). Besides Hemacandra Sūri, too, in his com. (p.36[b]) on Aṇuogaddāra says:

"चत्वारश्च वेदाः सामवेद-ऋग्वेद-यजुर्वेदा-ऽथर्वणवेदलक्षणाः साङ्गोपाङ्गाः; तत्राङ्गानि शिक्षा-कल्प-व्याकरण-च्छन्दो-निरुक्त-ज्योतिष्कायनलक्षणानि षट्; उपाङ्गानि तद्व्याख्यानरूपाणि तैः सह वर्तन्ते इति साङ्गोपाङ्गाः।"

Just as the Vaidikas have four Upāṅgas, so have the Jainas 12. Prof. W. Schubring in his Worte Mahāvīras (p. 8) says that there were originally only five Upāṅgas.[1] Up till now I have not come across any source earlier than Suhabohasāmāyārī (Aṇutthāṇavihi), a work of the 12th century of the Vikrama era which specifies the number of the Uvaṅgas as 12 and which gives their names. It is composed by Srīcandra Sūri, pupil of Dhaneśvara Sūri. Therein, on pp. 31[b]–32[a] we have:—

"इयाणिं उवंगा-आयारे उवाइयं उवंगं १ सूयगडे रायपसेणइयं २ ठाणे जीवाभिगमो ३ समवाए पन्नवणा ४ भगवईए सूरपन्नत्ती ५ नायाणं जंबुद्दीवपन्नत्ती ६ उवासगदसाणं चंदपन्नत्ती ७ तिहिं तिहिं आयंबिलेहिं एक्केक्कं उवंगं वच्चइ, नवरं तओ पन्नत्तीओ कालियाओ संघट्टं च कीरइ, सेसाणं पंचण्हमंगाणं मयंतरेण निरावलियासुयखंधो उवंगं, तत्थ पंच वग्गा निरयावलियाउ कप्पवडिंसियाउ पुप्फियाउ पुप्फचूलियाउ वण्हीदसाउ"[2].

---

1 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 435, fn. 3).

2 The late Vijayadāna Sūri (born in Saṁvat 1924) in his work Vividhaprashnottara (p. 159) has quoted a portion from some sāmācārī which he says is composed by a prāāna Ācārya. This portion gives us the same information about the association of the Uvaṅgas with the Aṅgas as we have seen in this work. It runs as under:

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

From this we get the names of the 12 Uvaṅgas. They are also suggested in the following verse (p. 34[b]) of this very work:—

"उ० रा. जी. पन्नवणा सू० जं० चं० नि० क० कं० पु० पु० वह्निदसनामा। आयाराइउवंगा नायव्वा आणुपुव्वीए ॥"[1]

Viyārasāra (also called Viyārālesa) of Pradyumna Sūri, too, furnishes us with the Prākṛta names of the 12 Uvaṅgas. The pertinent verses are as under:—

"ओवइ रायपसेणीय जीवाभिगमो तहेव पन्नवणा।
चंदुस्स य सूरस्स य जंबुद्दीवस्स पन्नत्ती ॥ ३४७ ॥
निरयावलिया कप्पिय पुप्फिय तह पुप्फचूलिओवंगं।
वण्हिदसा दीवसागरपन्नत्ती मयविसेसेण ॥ ३४८ ॥"

From this we learn that at least in the time of this Pradyumna Sūri who flourished in the 14th century of the Vikrama era, a difference of opinion had arisen as to which work was to be considered as the 12th Uvaṅga. Further, in this connection it may be added that Pradyumna Sūri differs from Śrīcandra Sūri and Jinaprabha Sūri as well; for, he mentions Candapannatti as the 5th Uvaṅga, whereas the other two Sūris mention Sūrapaṇṇatti as the 5th Uvaṅga, and similar is the case with the 6th and the 7th Uvaṅgas. Yaśodeva Sūri, strikes altogether a different note; for,

---

"आयारे ओववाइयं १ सूयगडे रायपसेणियं २ ठाणे जीवाभिगमो ३ समवाए पन्नवणा ४ एए उक्कालिया भगवईए सूरपन्नत्ती ५ नायाधम्मकहाणं जंबुद्दीवपन्नत्ती ६ उवासगदसाणं चंदपन्नत्ती ७ एए कालिया सव्वे वि अ उद्देससमुद्देसअणुनत्थं आयंबिलतिगेण वच्चंति। अन्नेसिं पुण पन्नवणवज्ज तंज्जोगमज्झे आयंबिलतिगपूरणेण तिन्नि वि वच्चन्ति। अंतगडदसाइयाणं पंचन्हमंगाणं निरयावलिसुयक्खंधं उवंगं, तंमि पंच वग्गा १ कप्पिआओ, २ कप्पवडिंसयाओ ३ पुप्फिआओ, ४ पुप्फचूलियाओ एएसु दस दस अज्झयणा वन्हिदसासु बारस एवं दिण ५ सुअक्खंधे दिण २ सव्वे वि दिण ७।"

1 Practically this very verse with a slight difference is found in Vidhiprapā of Jinaprabha Sūri. None of these verses, however, gives us the complete titles of all the 12 Uvaṅgas. At best we know therefrom only two titles viz. Paṇṇavaṇā and Vaṇhidasā in full, and the rest are indicated by their initial letters. Jinaprabha Sūri's Siddhāntāgamastava (v. 21–31) supplies us with the Saṁskṛta names of these 12 Uvaṅgas as under:

(1) Upapātika, (2) Rājapraśnīya, (3) Jīvabhigamādhyayana, (4) Prajñāpanā, (5) Jambūdvīpaprajñapti, (6) Candraprajñapti, (7) Sūryaprajñapti, (8) Nirayāvalikā, (9) Kalpāvataṁsikā, (10) Puṣpikā, (11) Puṣpacūlikā and (12) Vṛṣṇidaśā.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

in his com. (p. 63[b]) on Pakkhiyasutta, he says that Prajñāpanā and Bṛhatprajñapanā are two Upāṅgas for Samāvāya.[1] This is rather strange; for, I have not come across any authority who mentions more than one Uvaṅga for any one of the Aṅgas. Usually we find references wherein only one Uvaṅga is mentioned for every Aṅga.[2] It appears that Hīravijaya Sūri has made an attempt to reconcile this difference[3] by saying that Prajñāpanā and Mahāprajñapanā are not two different works.[4] This fails to satisfy me. But at the same time, I am not in a position to explain this situation. Will any veteran scholar of Jainism be therefore pleased to do so?

We shall now examine the exegetical literature of the 12 Uvaṅgas if that can throw any light regarding their number and their relation with the corresponding Aṅgas. The earliest com. on Ovavaiya[5], available at present, is composed by Abhayadeva Sūri, the navāṅgavṛttikāra[6]. Therein he simply says that this is the Uvaṅga of Āyāra,[7] but does not mention its number. The same

1 "तथा 'पण्णवण त्ति' जीवादीनां प्रज्ञापनं प्रज्ञापना। बृहत्तरा महाप्रज्ञापना। एते च समवायाङ्गस्योपाङ्गे इति।"

2 It seems that the following verse of Abhidhānacintāmaṇi (kāṇḍa II), suggests that only the 1st 11 Aṅgas had each an Uvaṅga:
"इत्येकादश सोपाङ्गान्यङ्गानि द्वादश पुनः। दृष्टिवादो द्वादशाङ्गी स्याद् गणिपिटकाह्वया॥ १५९॥"
From its com. (p. 104) we can infer that Aupapātika is the 1st Uvaṅga.

3 In Prameyaratnamañjūṣā (p. 2[a]), its author Śāntisūri has made the following observation after he has pointed out as to which Uvaṅga belongs to what Aṅga (this is just in accordance with Suhabohasāmāyāri):
"अत्र च उपाङ्गक्रमे सामाचार्यादौ कश्चिद् भेदोऽप्यस्ति"

4 This is what I infer from fn. 1 (p. 1[b]) to Prameyaratnamañjūṣā where the following line occurs:
"पाक्षिकवृत्तौ महाप्रज्ञापनाऽपि परमेकार्थताद्ययोः (हीरः०)".
It may be noted that in fn. 2, on this very page it is said: "प्रकीर्णकरूपेति स्थानाङ्गे (हीर०)." This 2nd fn. is in connection with Candraprajñapti.

5 Some name this work as Uvavāiya.

6 This title is justifiable since he has commented upon Aṅgas 3 to 11 as the earlier commentaries on these Aṅgas were lost by his time. In Saṁvat 1120 he commented upon the 3rd, 4th and 6th Aṅgas, and in 1128 on the 5th.

7 "इदं चोपाङ्गं वर्तते, आचाराङ्गस्य.....समीपभावेनेदमुपाङ्गम्" (p. 1[a]).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

is the case with Malayagiri Sūri[1] who has commented upon Uvaṅgas 2 to 7 viz. Rāyapaseṇiya[2], Jīvābhigama[3], Paṇṇavaṇā[4], Sūrapaṇṇatti[5], Candapaṇṇatti[6] and Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti. In his com. on the 3rd Uvaṅga, he refers to an earlier com.,[7] but he has not mentioned the commentator. So this does not help us. His com. on the 7th Uvaṅga was lost at least by the time Prameyaratnamañjūṣā was composed[8] in Saṁvat 1661. So this also does not improve the situation.

Śrīcandra Sūri has commented upon Uvaṅgas 8 to 12, in Saṁvat 1228. But he is silent so far as the number of the Uvaṅgas is concerned. So it now remains to be seen as to what Haribhadra Sūri[9], well-known as the dharmasūnu of Yākinī Mahattarā has said in his com. on Paṇṇavaṇā, the 4th Uvaṅga. It exists in a Ms. form.[10] On going through the first few folios of one of its Mss., I came across the following line:—

"तत्राङ्गोपाङ्गप्रकीर्णकाद्यनेकभेदमिदं...अपवर्गावहमिति कृत्वा तदेकदेशभूतप्रज्ञापनाख्योपाङ्गप्रदेशानुयोगः प्रारभ्यते।"

This only informs us that Paṇṇavaṇā is an Uvaṅga; but it throws no further light on this problem.

---

1 He was a contemporary of Kumārapāla; for, in some of his works he has said कुमारपालराज्ये and in his grammar he has said: "अरुणत् कुमारपालोऽरातीन्."

2 "कस्याङ्गस्येवमुपाङ्गम्? उच्यते सूत्रकृताङ्गस्य" (p. 1[a]).

3 "तृतीयाङ्गस्य स्थाननाम्नो.....जीवाजीवाभिगमनामकमुपाङ्गं पूर्वटीकाकृताऽतिगम्भीरमल्पाक्षरैर्व्याख्यातम." (p. 1[b]).

4 "'प्रज्ञापनेति कः शब्दार्थः?.....इयं च समवायाख्यस्य चतुर्थाङ्गस्योपाङ्गम्" (p. 2[a] and p. 2[b]).

5 It seems, nowhere in the com., it is said that it is an Uvaṅga, much less that it is an Uvaṅga of such and such an Aṅga.

6 The com. on this work is in a Ms. form and is not available to me at present.

7 See the ending portion of fn. 3.

8 "उपाङ्गानां च मध्ये प्रथममुपाङ्गं श्रीअभयदेवसूरिभिर्विवृतं, राजप्रश्नीयादीनि पट् श्रीमलयगिरिपादैर्विवृतानि, पञ्चोपाङ्गमयी निरयावलिका च श्रीचन्द्र[प्रभ]सूरिभिर्विवृता, तत्र प्रस्तुतोपाङ्गस्य वृत्तिः श्रीमलयगिरिकृताऽपि सम्प्रति कालदोषेण व्यवच्छिन्ना"

9 According to Gāthāsahasrī composed in Saṁvat 1630, he died in Saṁvat 585. Another tradition which can be traced till the 13th century gives 529 A. D. as the date. But several modern scholars believe that he lived from A. D. 700 to 770 or so.

10 For a Ms. see D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 203–204).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Turning to Siddhasena[1] Gaṇi's com. on Tattvārtha (I, 21) and its Bhāṣya (p. 94), we come across the following line:—

"उपाङ्गानि [2]राजप्रसेनकीयौपपातिकादीनि"

This very[3] line occurs in Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 76[b]) on Tattvārtha (I, 21) and its Bhāṣya.

From this it follows that these two commentators look upon the 2nd and 1st Uvaṅgas as Upāṅgas and include some more works in the same group; but unfortunately we do not know as to what they are. One more point worth noting in this connection is that the order of the 1st two Uvaṅgas as mentioned by both of these commentators of Tattvārtha, differs from that noted before. Can we therefore infer that here the order is immaterial and enumeration, the main object? Or is it that in the time of these commentators, Rājaprasenakīya was looked upon as the 1st Uvaṅga and Aupapātika as the 2nd, and subsequently[3] the order was reversed? I am not in a position to give a final answer to these questions at present. So leaving them aside I may note that at least by the time the Bhāṣya on Tattvārtha was composed, a certain class of works was no doubt designated as Upāṅga,[4] and the same was the case at least by the time when Nirayāvalīsuyakkhandha was composed.[5] 1 He flourished sometime between the 6th and the 9th centuries. Probably he is an author of the com. on Āyāra–the com. lost by the time Śīlāṅka commented upon it, and he is the very one designated as Gandhahastin.

---

2 This name Rājaprasenakīya is rather unique, and the same is the case with the name Rājaprasenajit occurring in Devendranarakendraprakaraṇa composed by Municandra Sūri, the guru of Vādin Deva Sūri; for, usually, in Saṁskṛta we come across the name Rājapraśnīya. It may however be added that the Saṁskṛta equivalent of Rāyapaseṇaiya, a name occurring in some of the Mss. of Nandī may be Rājaprasenakīya.

3 Hemacandra considers Aupapātika as the 1st. This is what can be inferred from his com. (p. 104) on Abhidhānacintāmaṇi (II, 159). There he says:

"इत्येकादश प्रवचनपुरुषस्य अङ्गानीवाङ्गानि सहोपाङ्गैः औपपातिकादिभिर्वर्तन्ते सोपाङ्गानि"

4 "तस्य महाविषयत्वात् तांस्तानर्थानधिकृत्य प्रकरणसमाप्त्यपेक्षमङ्गोपाङ्गनानात्वम्.....अन्यथा ह्यनिबद्धमङ्गोपाङ्गशः समुद्रप्रतरणवत् दुरध्यवसानं स्यात्"—Bhāṣya (p. 94) on Tattvārtha

5 "उवंगाणं भंते! समणेणं, जाव संपत्तेणं के अट्ठे पन्नत्ते? ॥ २ ॥ एवं खलु जंबू! समणेणं एवं उवंगाणं पंच वग्गा पन्नत्ता, तं जहा–निरयावलियाओ १ कप्पवडिंसियाओ २ पुप्फियाओ ३ पुप्फचूलियाओ ४ वण्हिदसाओ ५।" (pp. 3–4)

Did all these 5 vaggas form one text originally, and were they separately counted subsequently?

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Before I deal with the 3rd group viz. Cheyasutta, I think, I should recapitulate the results arrived at, during this investigation about the names and the number of the Uvaṅgas. They are:—

(1) There is no mention of the group Uvaṅga in any of the Aṅgas.

(2) This word is not found in any canonical work earlier than Nirayāvulīsuyakkhandha.

(3) Its Saṁskṛta equivalent Upāṅga is met with in the Bhāṣya on Tattvārtha, and in no other Saṁskṛta Jaina work prior to it, so far as I know.

(4) Only 5 Uvaṅgas are mentioned in Nirayāvalīsuyakkhandha and 2 in the Bhāṣyānusāriṇī ṭīkās of Tattvārtha, though more are alluded to, in these ṭīkās.

(5) The earliest work to mention all the 12 Uvaṅgas is Suhabohasāmāyārī.

(6) Viyārasāra is perhaps the earliest work to note that some look upon Dīvasāgarapaṇṇatti as the 12th Uvaṅga instead of Vahṇidasā.

(7) It appears that none except Yaśodeva Sūri mentions more than one Uvaṅga for any one of the Aṅgas, and he, too, does so in the case of the 4th Aṅga only.

(8) The usual list of the 12 Uvaṅgas is: (i) Ovavāïya, (ii) Rāyapaseṇaïya, (iii) Jīvābhigama, (iv) Paṇṇavaṇā, (v) Sūrapaṇṇatti, (vi) Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, (vii) Candapaṇṇatti, (viii) Nirayāvaliyā, (ix) Kappavaḍiṁsiyā, (x) Pupphiyā, (xi) Pupphacūliyā and (xii) Vaṇhidasā.

(9) Out of these, the 4th was regarded as Uvaṅga as early as the date of its com. composed by Haribhadra Sūri.

(10) Suhabohasāmāyarī is perhaps the very first work to mention the 12 Aṅgas to which the 12 Uvaṅgas belong.

(11) Abhayadeva Sūri has noted that the 1st Uvaṅga belongs to the 1st Aṅga. Malayagiri Sūri has similarly mentioned

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

that the 2nd, 3rd and 4th Uvaṅgas are respectively associated with Aṅgas 2 to 4.[1]

(12) We come across the names of certain works in Nandī (s. 44) which tally with those of all the 12 (or 13) Uvaṅgas. If these works are identical, these Uvaṅgas are at least as old as the Nandī. From fn. 3, p. 17 it may be inferred that some of them, if not all, are not later than Saṁvat 114, the year in which Vajrasvāmin died.

(13) In Nandī, the names of the Uvaṅgas 1 to 5 are found included in the kāliya-suya group whereas the names of the rest, in the ukkāliya-suya group.

(14) Only the name of the author of the 4th Uvaṅga is recorded whereas the rest of the Uvaṅgas are anonymous.

(15) The 12 Uvaṅgas are not arranged according to their dates of composition; for, otherwise the 5th Uvaṅga would have been assigned a place prior to the 4th on the ground that it was commented upon by Bhadrabāhusvāmin about 200 years before Ārya Śyāma Sūri composed the 4th Uvaṅga; for, this Sūri is said to have been living in Vīra Saṁvat 376 or 386. Consequently the underlying principle adopted in fixing the order of the Uvaṅgas seems to be based upon the consideration of their associations (real or assumed) with the 12 Aṅgas viz. Āyāra etc.

(16) The Uvaṅgas are subsidiary to the Aṅgas; but on that account they are not their glosses or explanations but they rather develop some point or points referred to in the Aṅgas.

Cheyasutta–This word or its variant Chedasutta is a term which is to be found only in the Jaina canon; for, it seems that neither the Vaidikas nor the Bauddhas have adopted it, to denote any class of their sacred or secular works. Chedasūtra is its Saṁskṛta equivalent. It does not seem to have been defined anywhere. So its meaning has become more or less a matter of conjecture. Prof.

1 Malayagiri Sūri has referred to a Cuṇṇi on Jīvābhigama, in his com. (p. 73[a]) on Rāyapaseṇaīya (s. 29). So it remains to be ascertained if any association of this Uvaṅga with any Aṅga is specified therein.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Schubring (Kalpasūtra, p. 8 and Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, 1924, 484) assumes that the expressions Cheda-sūtra and Mūla-sūtra are derived from Cheda and Mūla, two kinds of penances[1] mentioned in Jainism.[2] It may be added that the Mūlasūtra, at least in their present form seem to have nothing to do with penances. Cheda means 'cut', and consequently Chedasūtra may be construed as a treatise which prescribes cuts in seniority (dīkṣā-paryāya) in the case of the Jaina clergy on their violating any rules of their order.[3]

This is one of the conjectures. The other and more plausible conjecture I may make, is based upon the following verse of Pañcakappabhāsa quoted in Abhidhānarājendra (vol. III, p. 1361):—

"परिणाम अपरिणामा अइपरिणामा य तिविहा पुरिसा तु। णातूणं छेदसुत्तं परिणामणे होंति दायव्वं ॥"

From this it follows that a class of works which can be taught to the pariṇata pupils only, and not to the other two types of pupils viz. apariṇata[4] and atipariṇata[5], is designated as Chedasutta.

These are the two conjectures I may note at present. So I shall now refer to the oldest source where the word Cheyasutta[6] or its variant Chedasutta is to be met with. The former word occurs in the Āvassayaṇijjutti, the pertinent verse being as under:—

"जं च महाकप्पसुअं जाणि अ सेसाणि छेयसुत्ताणि। चरणकरणाणुओग त्ति कालिअत्थे उवगयाणि ॥ ७७७ ॥"[7]

---

1 In all there are 10 types of penances. See Jīyakappa (v. 4).

2 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 461, fn. 4).

3 Prof. W. Schubring has expressed this very view in his introduction (p. III) to "Dasaveyāliya Sutta". For, there he has said: "another group of texts which are intended to lay down rules of monkish life and to fix the course of procedure in case of transgression, is called Cheyasutta after the छेय (छेद), a punishment which consists in "shortening" the seniority of the culprit, thus degrading him in rank."

4 Undeveloped; not properly developed in intelligence etc.

5 Overdeveloped; hyperlogical.

6 The word Cheyasuya occurs in Jīyakappacuṇṇi (v. 9) of Siddhasena Sūri. The verse in question is as under:
"जेण य छेयसुयत्था आवत्तीदाणविरयणा जत्तेणं। पुरिसविसेसेण फुडा निज्जूढा जीयदाणकप्पम्मि विही ॥९॥"

7 This verse is incorporated as v. 2295 in Visesāvassayabhāsa.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The latter word occurs in Pañcakappabhāsa.[1]

Though the word 'Cheyasutta' thus occurs as early as the date of Āvassayanijjutti, there is no mention about the number of Cheyasuttas till we come to a very very late date. The earliest source which I remember at present, and which mentions the number and names of Cheyasuttas is Bhāvaprabha Sūri's com. (p. 94) on his own work Jainadharmavarastotra (v. 30). There this Sūri who attained this status in Saṁvat 1772 says: "अथ निशीथ १ महानिशीथ २ व्यवहार ३ दशाश्रुतस्कन्ध[2] ४ बृहत्कल्प ५ जीतकल्प ६ इति षट् छेदग्रन्थाः।"

On this very page he has quoted the following verse which shows that in his days at least, the number of the Cheyasuttas was fixed as six:—

"इक्कारस अंगाइ ११ बारस उवंगाइ २३ दस पयन्नाई ३३।
छ छेय ३९ मूल चउरो ४३ नंदी ४४ अणुयोग पणयाला ४५॥"

In modern days, too, the very six works noted above are looked upon as Cheyasuttas. Furthermore, Jīyakappa is considered as a Cheyasutta owing to the extinction of Pañcakappa which used to be looked upon as the 6th Cheyasutta. In this connection, it may be mentioned that some of the modern Jaina Munis believe that Pañcakappa formed a part and parcel of the Bhāsa on Kappa, and somehow it came to be looked upon as a separate treatise—a case similar to Ohanijjutti and Piṇḍanijjutti. I am not at present in a position to point out either the actual date since Pañcakappa began to be considered as a separate treatise or the actual date when it got lost. It is however suggested in Jaina granthāvalī (p. 16)[3] that Pañcakappa was available till Saṁvat

---

1 In Visehacuṇṇi (XVIII, fol. 469), we come across this word in the following lines quoted by Muni Kalyāṇavijaya, in his article "आपणां प्राभृतो" published in Jaina Yuga (I, 3, p. 87):—

"णिसीहमादियस्स छेदसुत्तस्स जो अत्थो आगतो सुत्तं वा मोक्कलाणि वा पच्छित्तविहाणाणि मंताणि वा जोणिपाहुडं वा गाहंतो अण्णत्थागाहेति"

2 This is also called Dasā and Āyāradasā as well.

3 "पंचकल्पनुं मूल संवत् १६१२ सुधी मोजूद हतुं, पण हालमां ते गुम थयुं छे. एना संबंधे बहु शोध करतां पण एनी प्रत हाथ आवी नथी. डेक्कन कॉलेजना संग्रहमां पण ते मळी नथी. फक्त एटलो पत्तो मळ्यो छे के खंभातमां गोरजी डेवचंदजीना पासे जे पुस्तको छे तेमां ते प्रत पाना १० नी तेनी टीपमां लखेली जणाय छे तो ते त्यां होवानो संभव छे, माटे सूत्ररुचिशोधक जनोओ त्यां तपास करवी जोईये छीओ."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

1612. Whatever it may be, it is possible to fix terminus ad quem and terminus a quo so far as the date of the composition of Pañcakappa is concerned. A student of Jaina literature knows it full well that there are two Bhāsas on the Pañcakappa viz. Laghubhāsa and Vuḍḍhabhāsa. The authorship of the Pañcakappa is attributed to Bhadrabāhusvāmin in its Cuṇṇi.[1] If this is correct, it may be inferred that Pañcakappa is not posterior to the life-time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. As regards Vuḍḍhabhāsa, its authorship is attributed to Saṅghadāsa Kṣamāśramaṇa,[2] whose exact life-period is not known, but who is supposed to have flourished not later than a millennium after the nirvāṇa of Lord Mahāvīra. This Vuḍḍhabhāsa seems to be preceded by Laghubhāsa. If so, the date of Pañcakappa is at least anterior to that of Laghubhāsa and a fortiori to that of Vuḍḍhabhāsa. Whatever may be the date of Pañcakappa, I do not think it is as old as Dasā, Kappa and Vavahāra on each of which a Nijjutti is composed by Bhadrabāhusvāmin. If it were at least equally old, how is it that there is no mention of it even in Nandī? I am aware of the fact that some believe that this Pañcakappa along with Nisīha and Mahānisīha was composed by a Gaṇadhara but can they give any proof for it?

With these remarks about Pañcakappa, I may now say a few words about Dasā, Kappa and Vavahāra[3]. They are mentioned together in several scriptures, e. g. in the following line of Vavahāra (X, para 20):—

"पञ्चवासपरियाए कप्पइ दसा-कप्प-ववहारे उद्दिसित्तए"

---

1 "अधुनाऽस्मिन्नामनिष्पन्ने निक्षेपे पंचकल्पसंज्ञके येनेदं दशाकल्पसूत्रे प्रवचनहितार्थाय पूर्वादाहृतं तस्य नमस्कारं करोमि प्रत्येकशः गाद्वासूत्रकर्तुः।"—D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 257)

It is said that in Vicārāmṛtasaṅgraha Kulamaṇḍana Sūri has suggested that Saṅghadāsa is the author of Pañcakappa.

2 "महत्पंचकल्पभाष्यं संघदासक्षमाश्रमणविरचितं समाप्तमिति"

—D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 261)

3 These are mentioned in various works e. g. in Āvassayanijjutti (v. 82–85), Nandī (s. 44) etc. They are also noted in the following line occurring in Siddhasena Sūri's Cuṇṇi (p. 1) on Jīyakappa:—

"को वि सीसो विणीओ आवस्सय-दसकालिय-उत्तरज्झयणा-ऽऽयार-निसीह-सूयगड-दसा-कप्प-ववहार-माइयं अंगपविट्ठं बाहिरं च"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

It may be noted that in the Bhāṣya (p. 90) on Tattvārtha (I, 20), this very order is preserved,[1] but Dasā is there separately mentioned from Kappa and Vavahāra, whereas the last two, jointly. These groupings of the three works in two different ways at least suggest that they are somehow connected.

In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 464), the question about the dates of the Cheyasuttas is discussed. The pertinent lines are as under:—

"The old, genuine Kalpa-Sūtra is the fifth Cheda-Sūtra, which is also called Bṛhat-Kalpa-Sūtra or Bṛhat-Sādhu-Kalpa-Sūtra. It is the principal work on the rules and regulations for the monks and nuns. A necessary supplement to it is the Vavahāra, the third Cheda-Sūtra. The Kalpa-Sūtra teaches liability for punishment, and the Vavahāra the meting out of the punishment. The Nisīha, the first Cheda-Sūtra, containing regulations for punishment for various transgressions against the rules of daily life, is a later work. It has embodied the major portion of the Vavahāra in its last sections, and has numerous similar Sūtras in common with Cūlas I and II of the Āyāraṇga. Probably both these works originated in one and the same earlier source... The Piṇḍa-Nijjutti and Oha-Nijjutti, which also deal with discipline, are also occasionally classed among the Cheda-Sūtras. A still later work than these two Nijjuttis is the Mahā-Nisīha-Sutta, which appears as the second, and sometimes as the sixth Cheda-Sutta, but which in reality can scarcely be attributed to the Canon with correctness. The principal contents of the text which we have before us and which perhaps took the place of an earlier canonical Mahā-Nisīha that went astray, are rules regarding confession and penance, which are emphasized as the most important steps towards liberation."

From this we see that according to the late Prof. Winternitz the following is the order of the composition of the Cheyasuttas mentioned in this para:—

(1) Kappa[2], (2) Vavahāra, (3) Nisīha, (4) Piṇḍanijjutti, (5) Ohanijjutti and (6) Mahānisīha (available at present).

---

1 "दशाः कल्प-व्यवहारौ निशीथम्." Why Kalpa and Vyavahāra are here jointly mentioned is explained by Yaśovijaya in his com. (p. 51[a]–51[b]) on this work as under: "आभवत्प्रायश्चित्त-दानप्रायश्चित्तयोः कल्पनाद् भेदनाद् व्यवहरणाद् दानाच्च कल्प-व्यवहारौ, उभयविधप्रायश्चित्तशापकताया उभयत्र पर्याप्तत्वाद् द्वित्वविश्रान्तपदाभिधानम्"

2 In the Nijjutti (v. 266) on Kappa, it is stated that Kappa has no ānānupūrvī when thought of in connection with Vavahāra, and that it occupies the

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

I may add that since Nisīha is mentioned in the Āyāraniji-jutti[1] by Bhadrabāhusvāmin, it is not later than this work of his. But it is difficult to say whether it is his composition or that of a Gaṇadhara, and in the former case whether it precedes any of his 3 works viz. Dasā, Kappa and Vavahāra, which, in the opinion of some Ācāryas, form one śrutaskandha.

It may be mentioned that in the kāliya-suya group we come across the following names in a serial order:—

Dasā, Kappa, Vavahāra, Nisīha and Mahānisīha.

This suggests that probably originally there were these 5 Cheyasuttas only, and that in course of time Pañcakappa was reckoned as the 6th Cheyasutta,[2] and when it was lost, it was replaced by Jīyakappa of Jinabhadra Gaṇi.[3] As stated in the ending portion[4] of the Bhāsa on Jīyakappa, this Jīyakappa represents the essence of Kappa, Vavahāra and Nisīha.

Whatever may have been the number of the Cheyasuttas in the beginning, it appears that at least one work of this type must

---

1st place from the stand-point of pūrvānupūrvī and the 12th place from that of paścānupūrvī, when Dasā is taken into account. The pertinent verse is as under:

"दुण्हं अणाणुपुव्वी न हवइ पुव्वाणुपुव्विओ पढमं। पच्छाणुपुव्वि विइयं जइ उ दसा तेण बारसमं ॥२६६॥"

While commenting upon this verse Malayagiri Sūri says on p. 81:

"केचिदाचार्याः प्राहुः— कल्प-व्यवहार-दशा एकश्रुतस्कन्धः, तन्मतेन यदि दशा अपि गण्यन्ते तदा पूर्वानुपूर्व्या प्रथमं पश्चानुपूर्व्या द्वादशमम्."

1 "आयारस्स भगवओ चउत्थचूलाए एसा निज्जुत्ती। पंचमचूलनिसीहं तु सा य उवरिं भणीहामो ॥"
—D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 7)

2 If Pañcakappa is a part of the Bhāsa on Kappa as suggested on p. 37, its enumeration as the 6th Cheyasutta must have taken place after its having attained a status of being looked upon as an independent treatise.

3 He is the author of (i) Visesāvassayabhāsa, (ii) its com. in Saṁskṛta, (iii) Saṅghayaṇī popularly known as Bṛhatsaṅgrahaṇī, (iv) Khettasamāsa, (v) Visesaṇavaī, (vi) Jhāṇasaya and perhaps (vii) a Bhāsa on Nisīha. He is said to have died in Vīra Saṁvat 1115.

4 The pertinent verses are as under:

"अप्पगंथमहत्थो इति एसो वण्णिओ समासेणं। पंचमतो ववहारो नामेणं जीयकप्पो त्ति ॥ कप्प-ववहाराणं उदहिसरिच्छाण तह णिसीहस्स। सुतरतणबिन्दुणवणीतभूतसारेस णातव्वो ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

have been composed during the life-time of a Gaṇadhara;[1] for, a work dealing with exceptions to the general rules for asceticism can have its origin almost side by side with the work embodying the general code. Even then if we were to assume for the time being that such a work owes its existence to a degenerated state of affairs that may have prevailed in the Jaina clergy after the nirvāṇa of Lord Mahāvīra, it is in no way later than the date for the Āvassayanijjutti.

As recorded in the Mahānisīha available at present, it is so to say a patch-work; for, several Sūris had a hand in giving it a final shape, since the Ms. of this work was awfully worm-eaten.[2]

It seems rather strange that even in Viyārasāra where a list of 45 Suttas (together with Pañcakappa, Jīyakappa, Piṇḍanijjutti, Ohanijjutti, Nijjuttis, Bhāsas and Cuṇṇis) is given, there is no mention whatsoever of Mahānisīha. Furthermore, here there is not a single work spoken of as a Cheyasutta, though the following works well-known as Cheyasuttas are noted as under:—

"कप्प २५ निसीह २६ दसासुय २७ ववहारो"

Can we hereby infer that the order and the number of the Cheyasuttas were not fixed for a pretty long time?

We may end this topic by noting one more point. Is Mahākappasuya which is mentioned in the Āvassayanijjutti (v. 777), a Cheyasutta? If so, why is it not mentioned along with other Cheyasuttas such as Kappa[3] etc? Besides, does not this very verse lead us to believe that at least two to three Cheyasuttas existed prior to the composition of Āvassayanijjutti?

4. Mūlasutta—I have not come across any Prākṛta or Saṁskṛta work of sufficient antiquity[4] where the word Mūlasutta or Mūlasuya

1 Can we infer from fn. 1 of p. 37 that Nisīha is the oldest?

2 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, pp. 32–33).

3 This cannot be identified with Mahākappasuya; for, the latter is ukkāliya, whereas the former kāliya. Vide p. 24, fn. 3.

4 The late Prof. Weber in his Indische Studien (XVII, 41) has said that the term Mūlasūtra does not occur anywhere in the canon; but it is however found in Āvassayanijjutti (XI, 61). But this is his slip; for, there the expression mūlasuttagāhā is used in contrast with the gāthās of the Nijjutti.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

or its Saṁskṛta equivalent Mūlasūtra occurs. Moreover, it seems that this nomenclature like that of the Cheyasutta is purely an element of the Śvetāmbara school of thought. Further, no Jaina saint of olden days seems to have defined the word Mūlasutta or Mūlasūtra. Such being the case, modern scholars have expressed their opinions in this connection. For instance, in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 466, fn. 1) we have:—

"Why these texts are called "root-Sūtras" is not quite clear. Generally the word mūla is used in the sense of "fundamental text" in contradiction to the commentary. Now as there are old and important commentaries in existence precisely in the case of these texts, they were probably termed "Mula-texts." The explanation given by Charpentier (Uttarādhyayana-Sūtra, Introduction, p. 32): "Mahāvīra's own words," does not seem to me to be justified in any way.[1] Schubring (Worte Mahāvīras, p. 1, cf., also O L Z 1924, 484 and above, II, p. 461, note 4) is of opinion that "the Mūla-Sūtras are" as their name indicates, "intended for those who are still at the beginning (mūla) of their spiritual career."[2] Guérinot (La Religion Djaina, p. 79) translates Mūla-Sūtra by "tratés originaux"."

1 This view is however upheld by Prof. Patwardhan. For, he says in "The Daśavaikālikasūtra: A Study" (p. 16) as under:

"We find however the word Mūla often used in the sense of "original text," and it is but reasonable to hold that the word Mūla appearing in the expression Mūlasūtra has got the same sense. Thus the term Mūlasūtra would mean "the original text" i. e. "the text containing the original words of Mahāvīra (as received directly from his mouth)." And as a matter of fact we find, that the style of Mūlasūtras Nos. 1 and 3 (उत्तराध्ययन and दशवैकालिक) is sufficiently ancient to justify the claim made in their favour by their general title that they represent and preserve the original words of Mahāvīra. We must of course make liberal allowance for alterations and modifications in such cases, so that the expression "original text" or "original words", is to be understood in a slightly loose sense."

2 This is what Prof. Schubring practically repeats in his introduction (p. III) to his edition of "Dasaveyāliya Sutta". There he says:

"This designation seems to mean that these four works are intended to serve the Jain monks and nuns in the beginning (मूल) of their career...

At an early stage the monk has to become acquainted with the principal tenets and rules of the Order. To the latter belong the Āvassaga (आवश्यक) formulas and the rules regarding the acquisition of alms (पिण्ड) from which two of the Mūlasūttas derive their name."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

In Jaina-tattva-prakāśa (p. 218) the significance of this term Mūlasūtra is explained as under:—

If the root of a tree is strong, that tree can last long and can have a number of branches etc. Similarly the class of treatises which when studied can strengthen the root of the tree of samyaktva and make it develop into the form of the ten-fold religion for the clergy, can be designated as Mūlasūtra.

These are the various explanations. My personal view is the same as one expressed by Prof. Schubring[1] and mentioned on p. 42.

Usually the following works are designated as Mūlasuttas:—[2]

(1) Uttarajjhayaṇa, (2) Dasaveyāliya, (3) Āvassaya[3], (4) Piṇḍanijjutti and (5) Ohanijjutti.

Occasionally some mention even Pakkhiyasutta as a Mūlasutta.[4] It may be mentioned en passant that none however considers the number of Mūlasuttas as five or six. Their number is either counted as 3 or 4. The Sthānakavāsins ignore Piṇḍanijjutti and Ohanijjutti altogether; for, they do not look upon these works as those composed by Bhadrabāhusvāmin. So they fix 3 as the number of Mūlasuttas. Prof. Weber and Prof. Bühler, too, mention this very number, but not for the same reason as advanced by the 1 It may be noted that Prof. Schubring has offered another explanation for Mūlasutta (vide p. 36). But there I differ from him.

---

2 The earliest source I can mention in this connection at present is Bhāvaprabha Sūri's com. (p. 94) on Jainadharmavarastotra (v. 30). There it is said: "अथ उत्तराध्ययन १ आवश्यक २ पिण्डनिर्युक्ति तथा ओघनिर्युक्ति ३ दशवैकालिक ४ इति चत्वारि मूलसूत्राणि।"

It seems that the word tathā is to be construed as "or"; if not, the number of the Mūlasuttas will be five and not four.

3 In the introduction (p. III) to "Dasaveyāliya Sutta" Prof. Schubring has made an erroneous statement (this is probably his slip). For, instead of Āvassaya, he has mentioned Āvassaganijjutti. The pertinent lines are as under:

"Together with the Uttarajjhāyā (commonly called Uttarajjhayaṇa Sutta), the Avassaganijjutti and the Piṇḍanijjutti it forms a small group of texts named Mūlasutta."

4 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, pp. 480 and 471).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sthānakavāsins. It may be that they may have been led to the same conclusion on the following understanding:-

Piṇḍanijjutti seems to be alluded to in the following verse of the Nijjutti on Dasaveyāliya (p. 161[b]):—

"भावस्सुवगारित्ता एत्थं दव्वेसणाइ अहिगारो । तीइ पुण अत्थजुत्ती वत्तव्वा पिंडनिज्जुत्ति ॥ २३९॥"[1]

So it may be inferred that Piṇḍanijjutti is an off-shoot of the Dasaveyāliyanijjutti and hence, in a way, that of Dasaveyāliya as it after all supplements the information given in Piṇḍesaṇā, its fifth ajjhayaṇa. Similarly Ohanijjutti, too, is an off-shoot of Āvassayanijjutti (v. 665) and somehow that of Āvassaya. Consequently, if these off-shoots are not separately counted but are somehow looked upon as included in the works of which they are the off-shoots, the number of the 5 Mūlasuttas comes to 3.

Dr. Charpentier, Prof. Winternitz and Dr. Guérinot add to this number Piṇḍanijjutti, and thus they consider the number of Mūlasuttas as four. There are persons who, instead of looking upon Piṇḍanijjutti as the 4th Mūlasutta, consider Ohanijjutti as the 4th. This will explain why I say that there is none who considers the number of Mūlasuttas as 5. Nevertheless, apparently Prof. Schubring seems to be an exception to this rule; but I think he, too, is not keen on believing or maintaining that the traditional number of the Mūlasuttas is anything else but three or four.

Just as there is a difference of opinion regarding the number of the Mūlasuttas, so is the case with the orders in which they are enumerated by different scholars. They are:—

(1) Uttarajjhayaṇa, Āvassaya and Dasaveyāliya.

(2) These three works in this very order with Piṇḍanijjutti as the 4th.

---

1 While commenting upon this verse Haribhadra Sūri says on p. 162[a] and p. 162[b]:—

"सा च पृथक्स्थापनतो मया व्याख्यातैवेति नेह व्याख्यायते."

The editor of this work has written a foot-note on this as under:-

"पिण्डनिर्युक्तेः पृथक्स्थापितत्वात् तत्र भद्रबाहुस्वामिनाऽर्थयुक्तिर्व्याख्यातेति नात्राध्ययनार्थाधिकारे तद्व्याख्यानम्। अन्यथा वाऽस्ति हरिभद्रसूरिकृता पिण्डनिर्युक्तिवृत्तिरिति तामाश्रित्यापि स्यादिदं वचः।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(3) Uttarajjhayaṇa, Dasaveyāliya, Āvassaya, Piṇḍanijjutti and Ohanijjutti.

(4) These five works with Dasaveyāliya as the last.

Out of these various orders, the first is mentioned by Prof. Weber and Prof. Bühler; the second by Dr. Charpentier, Prof. Winternitz and Dr. Guérinot; the third by Prof. Schubring;[1] and the 4th by Bhāvaprabha Sūri.

It is very difficult to say as to which order is to be preferred in view of its being more scientific than the rest. If we were to examine this question from the stand-point of authorship, we may allot to Piṇḍanijjutti and Ohanijjutti, the last place in the lot. Previous to them may be assigned a place to either of the remaining three Mūlasuttas, and their inter-arragement may vary according to the stand-point we may take regarding their authorship. As for Dasaveyāliya, there is no difference of opinion pertaining to its authorship so far as the text embodying the 1st 10 ajjhayaṇas is concerned. This is of course the work of Sejjambhava (Sk. Śayyambhava) Sūri who was probably born in Vīra Saṁvat 36 and who died in Vīra Saṁvat 98. The probable date of this composition is Vīra Saṁvat 72. The question of the authorship of the two Cūliyās viz. Raïvakkā and Vivittacariā may be here taken up. Haribhadra Sūri is silent about the authorship of the 1st Cūliyā while as regards the 2nd, he says that according to the vṛddhavāda, some Āryā (a Jaina nun) brought it from Lord Sīmandharasvāmin.[2] Hemacandra Sūri, the well-known polygrapher observes in his Pariśiṣṭaparvan (IX, v. 83–100)[3] that Jyeṣṭhā, one

1 See my Preface to D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III).

2 "एवं च वृद्धवादः–कयाचिदार्यया‌ऽसहिष्णुः कुरराडुकप्रायः संयतश्चातुर्मासिकादावुपवासं कारितः, स तदाराधनया मृत एव, ऋषिघातिकाऽहमित्युद्विग्ना सा तीर्थकरं पृच्छामीति गुणावर्जितदेवतया नीता श्रीसीमन्धरस्वामिसमीपं, पृष्टो भगवान्, अदुष्टचित्ताऽघातिकेत्यभिधाय भगवतेमां चूडां आहितेति।"

In the very 1st verse of Vivittacariā, of which the above lines form an explanation, it is said that this Cūliyā is told by an omniscient being. The pertinent line is: "चूलिअं तु पवक्खामि सुअं केवलिभासियं"

3 "ततोऽयुस्ताः पुनस्तत्र स्वरूपस्थं निरूप्य च। ववन्दिरे स्थूलभद्रं ज्येष्ठा चाख्यन्निजां कथाम्॥ ८३॥
श्रीयकः सममस्माभिर्दीक्षामादत्त किन्त्वसौ। क्षुधावान् सर्वदा कर्तुं नैकभक्तमपि क्षमः॥ ८४॥
मयोक्तः पर्युषणायां प्रत्याख्याहि पौरुषीम्। स प्रत्याख्यातवानुक्तो मया पूर्णेऽवधौ पुनः॥ ८५॥

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of the sisters of Sthūlabhadra and a Jaina nun brought from Lord Sīmandharasvāmin, as a present to the Jaina church, four adhyayanas viz., Bhāvanā, Vimukti, Ratikalpa and Vicitracaryā. Out of them, the first two were allotted by the Jaina church, a place in Āyāra as its two Cūlās and the last two, as the two Cūlās of Dasaveyāliya. This will show that the two Cūlās of Dasaveyāliya are composed and assigned a place in the Jaina scriptures during the life-time of Sthūlabhadra and his Guru Bhadrabāhusvāmin, too; for, the narration about the 4 Cūlās takes place soon after Jyeṣṭhā's conversation with Bhadrabāhusvāmin.[1] According to some printed editions, there are verses expounding these Cūlās, and they form a part of Dasaveyāliyanijjutti,[2] and thus the Cūlas under consideration belong to the same period as that of Bhadrabāhusvāmin.

त्वं प्रत्याख्याहि पूर्वार्धं पर्वेदमतिदुर्लभम् । इयान् कालः सुखं चैत्यपरिपाट्याऽपि यास्यति ॥ ८६ ॥
प्रत्यपादि तथैवासौ समयेऽभिहितः पुनः । तिष्ठेदानीमस्त्वपार्धमित्यकार्षीत् तथैव सः ॥ ८७ ॥
प्रत्यासन्नाऽधुना रात्रिः सुखं सुप्तस्य यास्यति । तत् प्रत्याख्याद्धभक्तार्थमित्युक्तः सोऽकरोत् तथा ॥ ८८ ॥
ततो निशीथे सम्प्राप्ते स्मरन् देवगुरूनसौ । क्षुत्पीडया प्रसरन्त्या विपद्य त्रिदिवं ययौ ॥ ८९ ॥
ऋषिघातो मयाऽकारीत्युत्ताम्यन्ती ततस्त्वहम् । पुरः श्रमणसङ्घस्य प्रायश्चित्ताय ढौकिता ॥ ९० ॥
सङ्घोऽप्याख्यद् व्यधायीदं भवत्या शुभभावया । प्रायश्चित्तं ततो नेह कर्तव्यं किञ्चिदस्ति ते ॥ ९१ ॥
ततोऽहमित्यवोचं च साक्षादाख्याति चेज्जिनः । ततो हृदयसंवित्तिर्जायते मम नान्यथा ॥ ९२ ॥
अत्रार्थे सकलः सङ्घः कायोत्सर्गमदादथ । पत्य शासनदेव्योक्तं ब्रूत कार्यं करोमि किम् ॥ ९३ ॥
सङ्घोऽप्येवमभाषिष्ट जिनपार्श्वमिमां नय । साऽऽख्यन्निर्विघ्नगत्यर्थं कायोत्सर्गेण तिष्ठत ॥ ९४ ॥
सङ्घे तत्प्रतिपेदाने मां साऽनैषीज्जिनान्तिके । ततः सीमन्धरः स्वामी भगवान् वन्दितो मया ॥ ९५ ॥
'भरता'दागतार्येयं निर्देशेत्यवदज्जिनः । ततोऽहं छन्नसन्देहा देव्याऽऽनीता निजाश्रयम् ॥ ९६ ॥
श्रीसङ्घायोपदां प्रैषीन्मन्मुखेन प्रसादभाक् । श्रीमान् सीमन्धरस्वामी चत्वार्यध्ययनानि च ॥ ९७ ॥
भावना च विमुक्तिश्च रतिकल्पमथापरम् । तथा विचित्रचर्या च तानि चैतानि नामतः ॥ ९८ ।
अप्येकया वाचनया मया तानि धृतानि च । उद्गीतानि च सङ्घाय तत् तथाऽऽख्यानपूर्वकम् ॥ ९९ ॥
आचाराङ्गस्य चूले द्वे आद्यमध्ययनद्वयम् । दशवैकालिकस्यान्यदथ सङ्घेन योजितम् ॥१००॥"

1 "विहारक्रमयोगेन 'पाटलीपुत्र' पत्तनम् । श्रीभद्रबाहुरागत्य बाह्योद्यानमशिश्रियत् ॥ ७७ ॥
यक्षादयोऽपि विज्ञाय द्वतिन्योऽन्तरे तु ताः । भगिन्यः स्थूलभद्रस्य वन्दनाय समाययुः ॥ ७८ ॥
वन्दित्वा गुरुमूचुस्ताः स्थूलभद्रः क्व नु प्रभो ! । लघुदेवकुलेऽस्तीह तासामिति शशंस सः ॥ ७९ ॥
ततस्तमभिचेलुस्ताः समायान्तीर्विलोक्य सः । आश्चर्यदर्शनकृते सिंहरूपं विनिर्ममे ॥ ८० ॥
दृष्ट्वा सिंहं तु भीतास्ताः सरिमेत्य व्यजिज्ञपन् । ज्येष्ठार्य जग्रसे सिंहस्तत्र सोऽद्यापि तिष्ठति ॥ ८१ ॥
ज्ञात्वोपयोगादाचार्योऽप्यादिदेशेति गच्छत । वन्दध्वं तत्र वः सोऽस्ति ज्येष्ठार्यो न तु केशरी ॥ ८२ ॥"—Ibid.

2 For instance, in Prof. K. V. Abhyankar's edition, the last verse of this Nijjutti runs as under:—

"आओ दो चूलाओ आणीआ जक्खिणीए अज्जाए ।
सीमंधरपासाओ भवियाण विबोहणट्ठाए ॥ ४४७ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

It may be that these verses come from the pen of one who composed bhāsa on Dasaveyāliya. If so, we cannot argue on the basis of these verses alone, that they belong to the period of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. Anyhow, we may, for the time being, assume that the two Cūlās are composed during the life-period of Bhadrabāhusvāmin; but even then the question of the order of these two Cūlās with Piṇḍanijjutti and Ohanijjutti remains practically unsolved.

So far as Āvassaya is concerned, its authorship is either attributed to Indrabhūti or to a contemporaneous Śrutasthavira. Of course, here, by Āvassaya, I mean that portion of Āvassaya on which we have Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Nijjutti and not the entire portion rightly or wrongly included in Āvassaya at present. If we were to accept the view of the majority that Āvassaya was composed by Indrabhūti on the very day he composed dvādaśāṅgī, it certainly deserves a place prior to the rest of the Mūlasuttas.

Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Nijjutti (v. 4)[1] throws light on the authorship of Uttarajjhayaṇa which consists of 36 ajjhayaṇas. There it is said that some of the ajjhayaṇas are taken from Aṅga, some are propounded by Jina, some by Pratyekabuddhas, and some are discourses (saṁvādas). Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri in his com. (p. 5)[2] to this work observes that the 2nd ajjhayaṇa is taken from Dṛṣṭivāda, the 10th is propounded by Lord Mahāvīra, the 8th is the work of Kapila, and the 23rd is a saṁvāda between Keśin and Indrabhūti. Some even go to the length of saying that all the 36 ajjhayaṇas have been revealed-propounded by Lord Mahāvīra when he was about to attain nirvāṇa. This view is challenged and rightly by the late Vijayānanda Sūri alias Ātmārāmjī Maharāja, with whom I,

---

1 "अंगप्पभवा जिणभासिया य पत्तेयबुद्धसंवाया। बंधे मुक्खे य कया छत्तीसं उत्तरज्झयणा ॥ ४ ॥"

2 "अङ्गाद्-दृष्टिवादादेः प्रभवः-उत्पत्तिरेषामिति अङ्गप्रभवानि, यथा परिषहाध्ययनं, वक्ष्यति हि-
"कम्मप्पवायपुव्वे सत्तरसे पाहुडंमि जं सुत्तं। सनयं सोदाहरणं तं चेव इहंपि णायव्वं ॥ १ ॥" जिनभाषितानि यथा द्रुमपुष्पिकाऽध्ययनं, तद्धि समुत्पन्नकेवलेन भगवता महावीरेण प्रणीतं, यद् वक्ष्यति—
"तंणिस्साए भगवं सीसाणं देइ अणुसट्ठिं" ति, 'चः' समुच्चये, प्रत्येकबुद्धाश्च संवादश्च प्रत्येकबुद्धसंवादं तस्मादुत्पन्नानीति शेषः, तत्र प्रत्येकबुद्धाः कपिलादयः तेभ्य उत्पन्नानि यथा कापिलाध्ययनं, वक्ष्यति हि—
'धम्मट्ठया गीयं' तत्र हि कपिलेनेति प्रक्रमः, संवादः-सङ्गतप्रश्नोत्तरवचनरूपस्तत उत्पन्नानि, यथा-केशिगौतमीयं, वक्ष्यति च-"गोतमकेसीयो य संवायसमुट्ठियं तु जम्हे यं" इत्यादि।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri too, concur. I am at present inclined to believe that Uttarajjhayaṇa of multiple authorship is anterior to Dasaveyāliya. On this basis I may tentatively suggest the following order for the Mūlasuttas according to their composition:—

(1) Āvassaya, (2) Uttarajjhayaṇa, (3) Dasaveyāliya, (4) its two Cūlās, (5) Piṇḍanijjutti and (6) Ohanijjutti.

Païṇṇaga–This is a term used in Nandī (s. 44 etc.),[1] and its Saṁskṛta equivalent Prakīrṇaka occurs in Triṣaṣṭi (I, 3, 581[2]) etc. Instead of Païṇṇaga we have at times Païṇṇagajjhayaṇa[3] (Sk. Prakīrṇakādhyayana) and Païṇṇa[4] (Sk. Prakīrṇa) as well. Thus a particular group of the sacred works of the Jainas is named in Prākṛta in three ways: (i) Païṇṇaga, (ii) Païṇṇajjhayaṇa and (iii) Païṇṇa. Out of these the 1st and the last can be translated as "a miscellany",[5] whereas the second as 'a miscellaneous lesson', but this is not what this special group stands for. It practically conveys the sense of āvassaya-vairitta–a fact one can infer from the Cuṇṇi (p. 50)[6] on Nandī (s. 44). One may even go a step forward and equate it with aṅga-bāhira.

Number–As regards the number of the Païṇṇagas, it is not fixed like the number of the Aṅgas which is, of course, 12 for one and all the tīrthas. This number differs from tīrtha to tīrtha.

---

1 See p. 18, fn. 1 and p. 24, fn. 3.

2 "विस्तृतं बहुधा पूर्वैरङ्गोपाङ्गैः प्रकीर्णकैः। स्याच्छब्दलाञ्छितं ज्ञेयं श्रुतज्ञानमनेकधा ॥ ५८१ ॥"

3 "पइण्णगज्झयणा वि सव्वे कालिय-उक्कालिया चउरासीइ सहस्सा"
—Cuṇṇi (p. 50) on Nandī (s. 44)

4 "तंदुलवेयालियया ३३ चंदाविज्झय ३४ तहेव गणिविज्जा ३५।
निरयविभत्ती ३६ आउरपच्चक्खाणा ३७ इय पइन्ना ॥ ३५० ॥"
From this it appears that only the 5 works mentioned here are Païṇṇagas.

5 In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 429) the word Païṇṇas is translated as "scattered pieces", whereas on p.473, the word "Prakīrṇakas" as "miscellanea". Further, on p. 458 it is said: "The ten Païṇṇas or "scattered pieces" correspond to the Vedic Pariśiṣṭas, and are, like the latter mostly metrical and deal with all kinds of subjects pertaining to the Jaina religion."

6 See fn. 3.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

For instance, there were 84000 Paiṇṇagas in the tīrtha of Lord Ṛṣabha, saṅkhyāta in the Tīrthas of subsequent 22 Tīrthaṅkaras, and 14000 in the tīrtha of Lord Mahāvīra; or in every tīrtha the number of the Paiṇṇagas was as many thousands as the number of pupils endowed with four types of mati, a Tīrthaṅkara had.[1] At the time when Nandi[2] was composed, the names of 60[3] (31+29) Paiṇṇagas were noted while at the time Pakkhiyasutta[4] was composed, the names of 65[5] (37+28) Paiṇṇagas were noted. But at least since the time of Bhāvaprabha Sūri, the number of Paiṇṇagas is fixed as ten.[6] In his com. (p. 94) on Jainadharmavarastotra (v. 30) the 10 Paiṇṇagas are mentioned as under:—

"अथ चउसरण पयन्नु २ आउरपच्चक्खाण ३ भक्तपरिज्ञा ४ तंदुलवियालियं ५ चंदाविजय ६ गणविज्जा ७ मरणसमाहि ८ देवेन्द्रस्तव ९ संस्तारक १० इति दश प्रकीर्णकाणि।"

Here, through over-sight, one Paiṇṇaga is left out. Probably it is Mahāpaccakkhāna.

Though the number of the Paiṇṇagas has been fixed as ten at least for the last 200 years, there is no uniformity as to which works are to be so looked upon[7]. However, in Weber's Verzeichniss der

1 See p. 24, fn. 3.

2 This cannot be dated later than the date of the redaction of the canon which is either Vira Saṁvat 980 or 993.

3 See pp. 25 and 26.

4 Its date is to be settled, but it is certainly prior to Saṁvat 1180, the year in which Yaśodeva Sūri commented upon it.

5 See pp. 25 and 26. 6 See p. 37.

7 This is borne out by Jaina Granthāvali where three different sets of 10 Paiṇṇagas are mentioned as under:—

(i) चतुःशरण, आतुरप्रत्याख्यान, भक्तपरिज्ञा, संस्तारक, तंदुलवैचारिक, चंद्रवेध्यक, देवेंदस्तव, गणिविद्या, महाप्रत्याख्यान and वीरस्तव —pp. 44–46

(ii) अजीवकल्प, गच्छाचार, मरणसमाधि, सिद्धप्राभृत, तीर्थोद्धार, आराधनापताका, द्वीपसागरप्रज्ञप्ति, ज्योतिष्करंडक, अंगविद्या and तिथिप्रकीर्णक —pp. 62–64

(iii) पिंडविशुद्धि, सारावलि, पर्यंताराधना, जीवविभक्ति, कवचप्रकरण, योनिप्राभृत, अंगचूलिया, वंगचूलिया, वृद्धचतुःशरण and जंबूपयन्नो —pp. 64–68

On p. 72, all these three sets are given; but through over-sight Piṇḍaniryukti is mentioned there, instead of Piṇḍavisuddhi.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sanskrit und Prākrit-handschriften der Königlichen Bibliothek zu Berlin (vol. II, pt. II), in La Religion Djaïna by Guérinot, in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 429) and in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. 1) the following works are noted as 10 Paiṇṇagas:—

(1) Caüsaraṇa, (2) Āurapaccakkhāṇa, (3) Bhattapariṇṇā, (4) Saṁthāraga, (5) Taṁdulaveyāliya[1], (6) Candāvijjhaya, (7) Devindatthaya, (8) Gaṇivijjā, (9) Mahāpaccakkhāṇa and (10) *Virattha*va.[2]

In the edition published by Rai Dhanapatisinh Bahadur, in A. D. 1886 we have the following 10 Paiṇṇagas:—

(1) Catuḥśaraṇa, (2) Taṁdulavaicārika, (3) Devendrastava, (4) Gaṇividyā, (5) Saṁstāraka, (6) Āturapratyākhyāna, (7) Bhaktaparijñā, (8) Candrāvedhyaka, (9) Mahāpratyākhyāna and (10) Maraṇavibhakti (also known as Maraṇasamādhi).

In the Āgamodaya Samiti Series the following 10 Paiṇṇagas have been published in A. D. 1927 in the order noted below:—

(1) Catuḥśaraṇa, (2) Āturapratyākhyāna, (3) Mahāpratyākhyāna, (4) Bhaktaparijñā, (5) Taṁdulavaicārika, (6) Saṁstāraka, (7) Gacchācāra, (8) Gaṇividyā, (9) Devendrastava and (10) Maraṇasamādhi.

In Prof. Schubring's Die Lehre der Jainas nach den alten Quellen dargestellt, the very 10 Paiṇṇagas noted in D. C. J. M., etc. along with two more viz. Tīrthodgālika (Pr. Titthogāliya) and Ārādhanāpatākā (Pr. Ārāhaṇāpaḍāyā) are dealt with.

In D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 317–388), I have described the following works as supernumerary Paiṇṇagas:—

(1) Aṅgacūliyā, (2) Aṅgavijjā, (3) Ajīvakappa, (4) Āurapaccakkhāṇa, (5) Ārāhaṇāpaḍāyā, (6) Kavayaddāra, (7) Gac-

---

1 In Hemacandra's com. (p. 5[a]) on Aṇuogaddāra, this work is named as Taṁḍulavicāraṇā. The pertinent line is as under:—

"आवश्यकादिषु तण्डुलविचारणादिप्रकीर्णकेष्वपि चैष एव विधिः"

2 The Samskṛta titles of these ten works are as under:—

(i) Catuḥśaraṇa, (ii) Āturapratyākhyāna, (iii) Bhaktaparijñā, (iv) Saṁstāraka, (v) Taṁḍulavaicārika, (vi) Candrāvedhyaka, (vii) Devendrastava, (viii) Gaṇividyā, (ix) Mahāpratyākhyāna and (x) Virastava.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

chāyāra, (8) Jambūsāmiajjhayaṇa, (9) Isisakaraṇḍaga, (10) Titthogāli, (11) Dīvasāgarapaṇṇattisaṅgahaṇī, (12) Pajjantārāhaṇā, (13) Piṇḍavisuddhi, (14) Maraṇavihi, (15) Joṇipāhuḍa[1], (16) Vaṅgacūliyā, (17) Sārāvalī and (18) Siddhapāhuḍa.

In this connection it may be mentioned that as suggested by Prof. Schubring, Kavayaddāra is a part and parcel of Ārāhaṇāpaḍāyā (dāra 30, from v. 25).[2] Thus there remain 17 works for which the designation Païṇṇaga should be justified. Out of these works (3), (4), (7), (8), (14) and (17) are referred to as Païṇṇagas in their corresponding Mss.[3], whereas the rest in Jaina Granthāvalī (pp. 62–68).

As a passing reference it may be noted that 13 Païṇṇagas are mentioned in the following verses of Siddhāntāgamastava—a fact noted in its vivṛti by a pupil of Viśālarāja[4]:

"वन्दे मरणसमाधिं प्रत्याख्याने 'महा'-'ऽतुरो'पपदे।
संस्तार-चन्द्रवेध्यक-भक्तपरिज्ञा-चतुःशरणम् ॥ ३२ ॥
वीरस्तव-देवेन्द्रस्तव-गच्छाचारमपि च गणिविद्याम्।
द्वीपाब्धिप्रज्ञप्तिं तण्डुलवैतालिकं च नुमः ॥ ३३ ॥"

Authorship—Most of Païṇṇagas are anonymous, but some of them viz. Cauḥsaraṇa, Āurapaccakkhāṇa[5] and Bhattaparinnā are attributed to Vīrabhadra. Some take this Vīrabhadra to be a

---

1 This work is also known as Joṇivihāṇa referred to in the following verse of Visesāvassayabhāsa as can be seen from its com. (p. 750) by Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri:
"इति रक्खायुवेदे जोणिविहाणे य विसरिसेहिंतो। दीसइ जम्हा जम्म सुहम्म! तं नायमेगंतो ॥१७७५॥"

2 See the German Review of D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pts. I and II) published in Orientalistische Literaturzeitung (1937, Nr. 3, p. 185). Here it is said that Dīvasāgarapaṇṇattisaṅgahaṇi is a part of Jīvābhigama.

3 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I).

4 See my article entitled "Methods adopted by Jaina writers for recording their names and those of their Gurus in the works composed by them" and published in The Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 84–86).

5 That the author of this work is Vīrabhadra is suggested in its com. See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 276–278).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

pupil of Lord Mahāvīra, who himself had given him dīkṣā, whereas others believe that Vīrabhadra, the author of these works (as available now) is the same as the author of Ārāhaṇāpaḍāyā which is composed in Saṁvat 1008,[1] and which refers to Bhattapariṇṇā.[2] Vaṅgacūliyā (Vaggacūliyā) is composed by Jassabhadda, Joṇipāhuḍa by Pāṇhapravaṇa (?), Pajjantārāhaṇā by Soma Sūri and Piṇḍavisohi by Jinavallabha Gaṇi.[3] As regards Gacchāyāra, its author whoever he may be, has not flourished prior to the compositon of Mahānisīha, Kappa and Vavahāra since as specifically mentioned in this Gacchāyāra, it is based upon these works.

Cūliyāsutta-This is a designation used for only two works Nandī and Aṇuogaddārā. Cūlikāsūtra is its Saṁskṛta equivalent. How this name has arisen is not clear. Does it mean that these works are as it were appendages to the fundamental works and hence they are so named?

I do not know of any source of sufficient antiquity that employs this terminology for these two works. The earliest work I can point out at present is Epitome of Jainism[4] (Appendix C, p. xxxvii) by Nahar and Ghosh.

This finishes a rough survey of the main types of classifications of the Āgamas. So I shall now try to classify them from other stand-points. To begin with, I may group them according to the specific anuyoga they are associated with. Of course, such a state of affairs did not exist prior to the time of Ārya Rakṣita Sūri. It is this Sūri who on seeing that his pupil Puṣpamitra

---

1 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 329).

2 Vide Muni Puṇyavijaya's private communication to me wherein he refers to his article "आराधनापताका और वीरभद्रगणि" published several years ago in Jaina Hitaiṣī.

3 For his life and works see Apabhraṁśakāvyatrayī (intro. pp. 5–37). He died in Saṁvat 1167. In Saṁvat 1125, he corrected Saṁvegaraṅgaśālā of Jinacandra Sūri.

4 Herein, over and above the names of 45 Āgamas, those of 36 works known as Jaina Nigamas or Upaniṣads are given.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

found it difficult to remember all the four anuyogas[1] associated with the Āgamas, divided them into four groups according to the anuyoga with which they were mainly concerned. On this basis we learn that the 1st 11 Aṅgas and Dasaveyāliya are associated with caraṇakaraṇānuyoga; Uttarajjhayaṇa and Isibhāsiya, with dharmakathānuyoga; Sūrapaṇṇatti, Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti and the like, with gaṇitānuyoga; and the Puvvagaya, with dravyānuyoga.[2] This information is incomplete; for, several scriptures are left out. It is however possible to fix the particular anuyoga in their case, too. Consequently instead of doing so, I shall define the four anuyogas. Caraṇakaraṇānuyoga takes into account the rules and regulations governing the life of a Jaina clergy; dharmakathānuyoga[3] deals with religious stories, parables and the like; gaṇitānuyoga of which kāla[4] is a synonym, is associated with mathematics; and dravyānuyoga[5] deals with philosophy–metaphysics, logic etc.

The Āgamas can be also classified according to the number of their titles; for, there are at least some Āgamas which have more than one title. For instance, out of the 12 Aṅgas, the 2nd has 3: Sūtagaḍa, Suttakaḍa and Sūyagaḍa;[6] the 5th 5: Bhagavaī-viyāhapaṇṇatti, Bhagavaī, Viāhapaṇṇatti, Vivāhapaṇṇatti and

---

1 The earliest source mentioning the 4 anuyogas seems to be the Nijjutti on Dasaveyāliya. The pertinent verses are as under:—

"सुयनाणे अणुओगेणाहिगयं सो चउव्विहो होइ। चरणकरणाणुओगे धम्मे काले य दविए य॥ ३॥ अपुहुत्तपुहुत्ताइं निद्दिसिउं एत्थ होइ अहिगारो। चरणकरणाणुयोगेण तस्स दारा इमे होन्ति॥ ४॥"

In the Cuṇṇi (p. 2) on this Nijjutti, we have:

"सो य चउव्विहो, तं जहा–चरणकरणाणुयोगो, धम्माणुयोगो, गणियाणुयोगो, दव्वाणुओगो."

2 Cf. "चरणकरणाणुयोगो णाम कालियसुयं, धम्माणुयोगो इसिभासियाइं उत्तरज्झयणादि, गणिणा(१)णुयोगो सूरपण्णत्ति जंबुद्दीवपण्णत्ति एवमादि, दवियाणुयोगो णाम दिट्ठिवातो"—Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi (p. 2)

3 For this we have in Prākṛta dhammakahāṇuoga and dhammāṇuoga.

4 See fn. 1.

5 In Prākṛta we have for this, davvāṇuoga and daviyāṇuoga, too.

6 This is what we learn from the following verse of Sūyagaḍanijjutti:—
"सूयगडं अङ्गाणं बिइयं तस्स य इमाणि। सुत्तगडं सुत्तकडं सूयगडं चेव गोण्णाइं॥ २॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Paṇṇatti[1]; the 10th 2: Paṇhāvāgaraṇa and Paṇhāvāgaraṇadasā and the 12th 10: Diṭṭhivāta, Heuvāta, Bhūyavāta[2], Taccāvāta, Sammāvāta, Dhammāvāta, Bhāsavijaya, Puvvagaya, Aṇujogagaya and Savvapāṇabhūtajīvasattasuhāvaha.[3] It may be mentioned en passant that the 6th, 7th and 9th Aṅgas have more than one title in Saṁskṛta, though each has only one in Prākṛta. To be explicit, the 6th Aṅga has 3: Jñātādharmakathā, Jñātadharmakathā[4] and Jñātṛdharmakathā[5]; the 7th 2: Upāsakadaśā and Upāsakādhyayanadaśā; and the 9th 2: Anuttaraupapātikadaśā and Anuttarōpapātikadaśā.

Turning to the aṅga-bāhira works, we find that some of them, too, have more Prākṛta titles than one. As for example, the 1st Uvaṅga has 2: Ovavāïya and Uvavāïya; the 3rd 2: Jīvābhigama and Jīvājīvābhigama; and the 8th 2: Nirayāvaliyā and Kappiyā. Out of the remaining Āgamas, Nisīha has 4: Nisīha, Nisīhajjhayaṇa, Āyārapagappa[6] and Paggappa[7]; Dasāsuyakkhandha, 4: Dasāsuyakkhandha, Āyāradasā, Dasā and Dasāsuya; Uttarajjhayaṇa, 2: Uttarajjhayaṇa and Uttarajjhāyā[8]; Dasaveyāliya, 2: Dasaveyāliya

---

1 This name occurs in Aṇtagaḍadasā (vagga VI, para 2) and in Vivāgasuya (suyakkhandha I, ajjhayaṇa 2). The pertinent lines are respectively as under:—
"तए णं से मकाई गाहावई इमीसे कहाए लद्धट्ठे जहा पण्णत्तीए गंगदत्ते"
"इन्दभूइ नामं अणगारे जाव लेस्से छट्ठंछट्ठेण जहा पण्णत्तीए"

2 Instead of this we have Bhūyāvāya, too (vide p. 12, fn. 2).

3 "दिट्ठिवायस्स णं दस नामधेज्जा पं० तं०–दिट्ठिवातेति वा हेउवातेति वा भूयवातेति वा तच्चावातेति वा सम्मावातेति वा धम्मावातेति वा भासाविजतेति वा पुव्वगतेति वा अणुजोगगतेति वा सव्वपाणभूतजीवसत्तसुहावहेति वा"—Ṭhāṇa (X; s. 742).

4 See p. 28, fn. 8.

5 See the following line of Tattvārtharājavārtika (p. 51):–
"तद्यथा–आचारः, सूत्रकृतं, स्थानं, समवायो, व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्तिः, ज्ञातृधर्मकथा, उपासकाध्ययनं अंतकृद्दश, अनुत्तरौपपातिकदश, प्रश्नव्याकरणं, विपाकसूत्रं, दृष्टिवाद इति।"

6 This word occurs in Nisīhabhāsa as can be seen from the following line occurring in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 10):—
"आयारपगप्पस्स उ इमाइं गोण्णाइं णामधिज्जाइं"
See also Āyāraniijutti (v. 291).

7 Cf. D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 437).

8 See p. 43, fn. 3.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

and Dasakāliya; Caüsaraṇa, 2: Caüsaraṇa and Kusalānubandhi-ajjhayaṇa; Maraṇavihi, 2: Maraṇavihi and Maraṇasamāhi; and Joṇipāhuḍa, 2: Joṇipāhuḍa and Joṇivihāṇa.

So far as the Saṁskṛta titles of the aṅga-bāhira works are concerned, the 2nd uvaṅga has 3 titles viz. Rājapraśnīya, Rājaprasenakīya and Rājaprasenajit (vide p. 33, fn. 2). Same is the case with Tandulavaicārika. For, besides this title it has two more: Taṇḍulavicāraṇā and Taṇḍulavaitālika (vide p. 50, fn. 1 and p. 51).

As noted on p. 2, some of the scriptures have their titles in plural. So they can be divided into two classes: (i) those having their titles in plural and (ii) those having them in singular. Aṅgas 6 to 11, Uvaṅgas 8 to 12, Uttarajjhayaṇa, Dasā and Isibhāsiya belong to the former class whereas the rest to the latter class.

It may be mentioned in passing that Pajjosaṇākappa has a popular title viz. Kalpasūtra, and Kappa, Bṛhatkalpasūtra.

Another stand-point which can be utilized for the classification of the Āgamas is to note as to which of them have a common ending. On this basis we can form groups of Āgamas which end in (i) dasā, (ii) vavāya, (iii) suya, (iv) ajjhayaṇa, (v) bhāvaṇā, (vi) paṇṇatti, (vii) vibhatti, (viii) cūliyā, (ix) nijjutti, (x) visohi, (xi) thaya, (xii) vijjā, (xiii) vihi, (xiv) veyāliya, (xv) paccakkhāṇa and (xvi) pariyāvaṇiya. The detailed list of all these 16 groups having corresponding endings may be given as under:—

I Aṅgas 6 to 11, Vaṇihadasā, Āyāradasā, Bandhadasā, Dogiddhidasā, Dīhadasā[1] and [2] Saṅkhevitadasā.[3]

---

1 This has 10 ajjhayaṇas some of which agree in name with those of Nirayāvalisuyakkhandha—Narakāvalikāśrutaskandha as suggested by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (pp. 512[a]–513[a]) on Ṭhāṇa (X; s. 755).

2 As stated in Ṭhaṇa (X; s. 755) it has the following 10 ajjhayaṇas:—
"खुड्डिया विमाणपविभत्ती १ महल्लिया विमाणपविभत्ती २ अंगचूलिया ३ वग्गचूलिया ४ विवाहचूलिया ५ अरुणोववाते ६ वरुणोववाए ७ गरुलोववाते ८ वेलंधरोववाते ९ वेसमणोववाते १०"

3 Cf. the following sūtra of Ṭhāṇa (X):—
"दस दसाओ पं० तं० कम्मविवागदसाओ उवासगदसाओ अंतगडदसाओ अणुत्तरोववायदसाओ आयारदसाओ पण्हावागरणदसाओ बंधदसाओ दोगिद्धिदसाओ दीहदसाओ संखेवितदसाओ।" (सू. ७५५)
The 1st suyakkhandha of Vivāgasuya is known as Kammavivāgadasā.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

II Aruṇovavāya, Garulovavāya, Devindovavāya, Dharaṇovavāya, Varuṇovavāya, Velandharovavāya and Vesamaṇovavāya.

III Uṭṭhāṇasuya, Culla-kappasuya, Mahā-kappasuya, Viyarāgasuya, Saṁlehaṇāsuya and Samuṭṭhāṇasuya.

IV Uttarajjhayaṇa, Kusalānubandhiajjhayaṇa, Jambūsāmi-ajjhayaṇa, Nandiajjhayaṇa and Nisihajjhayaṇa.

V Āsīvisabhāvaṇā, Caraṇabhāvaṇā, Ṭhimiṇabhāvaṇā, Ditthīvisabhāvaṇā and Mahāsumiṇabhāvaṇā.

VI Candapaṇṇatti, Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, Dīvasāgarapaṇṇatti and Sūrapaṇṇatti.

VII Khuḍḍiyā-vimāṇapavibhatti, Jhāṇavibhatti, Maraṇavibhatti and Mahalliyā-vimāṇapavibhatti.

VIII Aṅgacūliyā, Vaggacūliyā and Vivāhacūliyā.

IX Ohanijjutti, Piṇḍanijjutti and Saṁsattanijjutti.

X Āyavisohi, Nirayavisohi and Maraṇavisohi.

XI Devindatthaya and Vīratthaya.

XII Aṅgavijjā and Gaṇivijjā.

XIII Caranavihi and Maraṇavihi.

XIV Taṇḍulaveyāliya and Dusaveyāliya.

XV Āurapaccakkhāṇa and Mahāpaccakkhāṇa.

XVI Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya and Nāgapariyāvaṇiya.

To all these classifications of Āgamas, one more may be added. This is based upon the fact that some of the Āgamas have practically the same title except that the word meaning small or great is used as a prefix. They are: (i) Culla-kappasuya and Mahā-kappasuya, (ii) Khuḍḍiyā-vimāṇapavibhatti and Mahalliyā-vimāṇapavibhatti, (iii) Nisīha and Mahānisīha and (iv) Paṇṇavaṇā and Mahāpaṇṇavaṇā[1].

So much for the Āgamas of the Śvetāmbaras. The Digambaras, too, divide their Āgamas into two classes: (i) aṅga-praviṣṭa and (ii) aṅga-bāhya. The former has 12 sub-divisions, and their names

1 It may be noted that at times even Piṇḍanijjutti has the word mahalliyā prefixed to it, in order to distinguish it from the Piṇḍesaṇa-nijjutti which is smaller than this and which forms a part of Dasaveyāliya-nijjutti. See D. C. J. M. (vol XVII, pt. III, No. 1116).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

almost tally with those of the 12 Aṅgas. The latter has many sub-divisions, kālika and utkālika being chief of them. Uttarādhyayana is mentioned in this connection in Tattvārtharājavārtika (p. 54); but it is there neither specifically referred to as kālika nor utkālika. Turning to Tattvārthaśāradīpikā[1], we learn that Parikarma, one of the five sections of Dṛṣṭivāda includes works such as Candraprajñapti, Sūryaprajñapti and Jambūdvīpaprajñapti. The aṅga-bāhya group is said to consist of 14 works, each of which is styled as Prakīrṇaka. The first four of them are entitled as Sāmāyika, Caturviṁśatistava, Vandana and Pratikramaṇa. These seem to correspond with the four sections of Āvassaya, out of six. The other works worth noting are: Daśavaikālika, Uttarādhyayana, and Kalpa-Vyavahāra since they remind us of the corresponding works of the Śvetāmbaras. (It may be mentioned that the Digambaras believe that it is long since that all the canonical treatises of the Jainas have been lost, and the Śvetāmbara canonical works are not genuine. Besides, the Digambaras have a secondary canon or a substitute canon. This canon which is spoken of as the four Vedas, consists of works of a later date. These works are divided into 4 anuyogas. As for example, the Purāṇas or the legendary works like Padma-purāṇa, Harivaṁśa-purāṇa, Mahāpurāṇa, Uttara-purāṇa etc., are looked upon as forming a group known as prathamānuyoga. Similarly cosmological works such as Sūryaprajñapti, Candraprajñapti etc., come under the group karaṇānuyoga. The works on the dārśanika (philosophical) literature e. g. Kundakunda's Pavayaṇasāra, Umāsvāti's Tattvārtha, Samantabhadra's Āptamīmāṁsā etc., form the third group styled as dravyānuyoga. Ritualistic works like Vaṭṭakera's Mūlācāra and Trivarṇācāra, Samantabhadra's Ratnakaraṇḍaśrāvakācāra make up the fourth group known as caraṇānuyoga. This is what we learn from A His. of Ind.

1 On the basis of this work, a complete survey of the canonical treatises of the Digambaras is given in Bhandarkar's Report for 1883-4, p. 106 ff. As stated in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 473 n) this may be compared with Weber, HSS.-verz. II, 3, 823 f., Guérinot, p. xxx f., and J. L. Jaini's preface (p. 12 ff.) to S B J. (vol. V).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Lit. (vol. II, p. 474) where the following note occurs by way of substantiating this information:—

"Cf. G. Bühler, in Ind. Ant. 7, 1878, p. 28 f.; Farquhar, Outline, 218 f.; Guérinot, La religion Djaina, p. 81 ff., 85 f. A somewhat divergent division of the Anuyogas is given by S. C. Ghoshal in SBJ, i, p. xi."

We may now end this chapter by noting that the number of the Āgamas was fixed as 45 at least by the time Viyārasāra was composed, and this number is acceptable even now to several Mūrtipūjaka Śvetāmbaras who look upon 11 Aṅgas, 12 Uvaṅgas, 6 Cheyasuttas, 4 Mūlasuttas, 10 Paiṇṇagas and 2 Cūliyāsuttas as the 45 Āgamas[1]. Some of them however believe that the number of the Āgamas is 84 consisting of the following works:—

11 Aṅgas, 12 Uvaṅgas, 5 Cheyasuttas, 3 Mūlasuttas, 30 Paiṇṇagas, 2 Cūliyāsuttas, Pakkhiyasutta, Khāmaṇāsutta, Vandittusutta, Isibhāsiya, Pajjosaṇākappa, Jīyakappa, Jaïjīyakappa, Saḍḍhajīyakappa, 10 Nijjuttis, Piṇḍanijjutti, Saṁsattanijjutti and Visesāvassayabhāsa.

The late Rajendralal Mitra in his Notices of Sanskrit Manuscripts[2] (vol. III, p. 67) has given a list which is strikingly different from the traditional one.

1 These are also known as Suttas and Siddhānta as well.

2 This has been published from Calcutta, in A. D. 1874.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

59-69

CHAPTER III

REDACTION OF THE JAINA CANON

In ancient days in India, it was customary to transmit learning from generation to generation orally, and that this state of affairs continues down to the present times at least in the case of the olden type of pāṭhaśālās[1] which teach Jainism, Saṁskṛta or the like. This will show that it is not the want of knowledge of the art of writing to which this state of affairs can be ascribed. For, according to the Jaina tradition Lord Ṛṣabha who flourished in the 3rd ara (spoke) of the present avasarpiṇī period, taught this art of writing–18 lipis[2] to his daughter Brāhmī with his right hand.[3] The Vaidika Hindus, on the other hand, ascribe it to Brahman, the Creator of the Universe. Leaving aside these prehistoric items of a very remote age, and turning to a period only 4000 years preceding the present century, we can give ample proofs of the fact that India knew the art of writing in the remote past. Various scripts such as Brāhmī, Mohenjo Dero[4] etc., bear full testimony to this. It however seems true that the art of printing was unknown in ancient days in India.

---

1 For a brief description see my paper on The Jaina System of Education (pp. 218–219) published in "Journal of the University of Bombay" (vol. VIII, pt. 4).

2 For exposition of these 18 lipis see my paper on Outlines of Palæography (pp. 93–94) published in J. U. B. (vol. VI, pt. 6).

3 Cf. the following line occurring in the Bhāsa on Āvassaya:—
"लेहं लिवीविहाणं जिणेण बंभीइ दाहिणकरेणं"
Abhayadeva Sūri's com. (p. 36[b]) on Samavāya (XVIII) and his com. (p. 5[a]) on Viyāhapaṇṇatti, Triṣaṣṭi (I, 2, 963), Amaracandra Sūri's Padmānanda mahākāvya (X, 79) and Subodhikā (p. 149[b]) may be consulted in this connection.

4 Rev. H. Heras has written an article on "The Eastern Island script and the script of Mohenjo Dero". See A. B. O. R. I. (vol. XIX, pt. II, pp. 122–126).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

That the sacred works of the Jainas were not freely reduced to writing for several centuries and thus for this period the services of the art of writing remained practically unutilized for lightening the burden of the memory, requires a satisfactory explanation. In the case of the Vaidika literature, it may be argued that its sacred character was partly responsible for this; for, it was probably feared that the most sacred possession of the race might pass into profane hands, if the Vedas were committed to writing.[1-2] Furthermore, the necessary guidance for cultivating proper accent and intonation—a point of great importance could be had from the lips of an animate teacher and not from the pages of an inanimate book.[2-3] Over and above this, there was a danger of a scribe committing dittographic and haplographic errors and at times misreading the characters and thus transforming the original out of recognition.[3] I do not think, it is any one of these considerations that weighed heavily in the minds of the Jaina saints and that prevented them from reducing to writing the sacred works of their school. On the contrary, it appears that their desire of strictly observing their noble and ennobling mahāvrata viz. aparigraha prevented them from resorting to writing. Moreover, those saints who kept Mss. were denounced. This is borne out by the Cuṇṇi (p. 21[4]) on Dasaveyāliya, the Bhāsa[5] on Nisīha, the Bhāsa[6] on Kappa etc. Further, penances were prescribed to those who wrote even one letter.[7] But the times, as it were, willed it otherwise, and in course of time these rules had to be modified,[8] so much so that permission was given for keeping any of the five types[9] of Mss. pertaining to the Nijjuttis of kāliyasuya[10], on find-

1-3 See Dr. A. S. Altekar's Education in Ancient India (pp. 145-146).

4 "पोत्थएसु घेप्पंतएसु असंजमो भवइ"

5-6 "पोत्थग जिग दिट्ठंतो वरगुर लेवे य जाल चक्के य"

7 "जत्तियमेत्ता वारा मुंचंति बंधति व जत्तिया वारा।
जति अक्खराणि लिहति व तति लहुगा जं च आवज्जे॥"—Bhāsa on Kappa

8 In the Cuṇṇi (p. 21) on Dasaveyāliya, it is said: "कालं पुण पडुच्च चरण-करणट्ठा अवोच्छित्तिनिमित्तं च गेण्हमाणस्स पोत्थए संजमो भवइ।"

9 See my paper Outlines of Palæography (pp. 101-102).

10 In the Bhāsa on Nisīha (XII) it is observed: "घेप्पति पोत्थगपणगं कालिगणिज्जुत्तिकोसट्ठा"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ing that the intellect, the grasping power and the retentive capacity were getting deteriorated.[1] Later on, it was found absolutely necessary to prepare a number of Mss. of the Jaina canonical literature. How this happened may be briefly described as under:—

It was in the time of Skandila Sūri that a famine[2] lasted for 12 years. Some say that it worked a havoc on the Jaina scriptures while others say that it so happened that all the principal Anuyogadharas except Skandila Sūri died in Northern India.[3] So Skandila summoned a council of Jaina saints at Mathurā and made up the kāliyasuya by taking a note of whatever could be gathered from them.[4] A similar attempt to this Māthurī[5] or Skāndilī vācanā was almost simultaneously made by Nāgārjuna[6] at Valabhī

---

1 In the Vischacunni on Nisiha, it is remarked: "मेहा–ओगहण–धारणादिपरिहाणिं जाणिऊण कालियसुयणिज्जुत्तिणिमित्तं वा पोत्थगपणगं घेप्पति । कोसो त्ति समुदाओ ।"

2 In the Jaina literature we come across references about three twelve-year famines prior to this. They occurred in the time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin, Ārya Suhastin (c. Vira Samvat 291) and Vajrasvāmin respectively. The first of them was terrible; for, it made all the Munis except Bhadrabāhusvāmin forget Diṭṭhivāya (for details see Ch. IV). As regards the other two famines, it appears that it did not affect the knowledge of the Jaina scriptures in the case of the servivors. But these famines must have severely told upon the scarcity of food–an inference we can draw from the following lines occurring in the Cunni (pt. I, p. 404) on Āvassaya:—

"इतो य वइरस्वामी दक्खिणावहे विहरति, दुब्भिक्खं च जायं बारसवरिसगं, सव्वतो समंता छिन्नपंथा, निराधारं जातं । ताहे वइरस्वामी विज्जाए आहडं पिंडं तद्दिवसं आणेति"

3 Cf. the following lines occurring in the Cunni (p. 8) on Nandī:

"बारससंवच्छरीए महंते दुब्भिक्खकाले भत्तट्ठा अण्णतो ठिताणं गहण–गुणणा–ऽणुप्पेहाऽभावतो सुते विप्पणट्ठे पुणो सुभिक्खकाले जाते 'मधुरा'ए महंते साधुसमुदए खंदिलायरियप्पमुहसंघेण जो जं संभरइ त्ति एवं संघडितं कालितसुतं । जम्हा य एयं 'मधुरा'य कयं तम्हा 'माहुरा वायणा' भण्णति । × × × अण्णे भणंति—जहा सुतं ण णट्ठं तम्मि दुब्भिक्खकाले, जे अण्णे पहाणा अणुयोगधरा ते विणट्ठा, एगे खंदिलायरिए संथेरे, तेण 'मधुरा'ए अणुयोगो पुण साधूणं पवत्तियो त्ति सा 'मधुरा वायणा' भण्णति ।"

4 It appears that this happened sometime between Vira Samvat 827 and 840.

5 As this vācanā took place in the Śaurasena region, it is possible that the Śaurasenī Prākṛta may have influenced it.

6 His vācanā is known as Nāgārjunī or Vālabhī.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(modern Valā of Kathiawar).[1] Hemacandra Sūri, in his commentary (p. 207) on Yogaśāstra says that the Āgamas were got written by Skandila Sūri and Nāgārjuna Sūri.[2] Unfortunately it so happened that the version of one did not tally with that of the other in its entirety.[3] So an attempt to improve this situatoin was however later on made by the council[4] that met at Valabhī, under the able presidentship of Devarddhi

1 "अत्थि 'महुरा'उरीए सुयसमिद्धो खंदिलो नाम सूरी, तहा 'वलहि'नयरीए नागज्जुणो नाम सूरी। तेहिं य जाए बारसवरिसिए दुक्काले निव्वडभावओ विफुट्टिं (?) काऊण पेसिया दिसोदिसिं साहवो। गमिउं च कइवि दुत्थं ते पुणो मिलिया सुगाले। जाव सज्झायंति ताव खंडुखुरुडीहूयं पुव्वाहियं। ततो मा सुयवोच्छित्ती होउ त्ति पारद्धो सूरीहिं सिद्धंतुद्धारो। तत्थ वि जं नं वीसरीयं तं तहेव संठवियं। पन्हुट्ठाणं उण पुव्वावरावडंतसुत्तत्थाणुसारओ कया संघडणा।"—A Ms. of Bhadreśvara Sūri's Kahāvalī

2 "जिनवचनं च दुष्षमाकालवशादुच्छिन्नप्रायमिति मत्वा भगवद्भिर्नागार्जुन-स्कन्दिलाचार्यप्रभृतिभिः पुस्तकेषु न्यस्तम्।"

3 "इह हि स्कन्दिलाचार्यप्रवृत्तौ दुष्षमानुभावतो दुर्भिक्षप्रवृत्त्या साधूनां पठनगुणनादिकं सर्वमप्यनेशत्। ततो दुर्भिक्षातिक्रमे सुभिक्षप्रवृत्तौ द्वयोः सङ्घयोर्मेलापकोऽभवत्। तद् यथा—एको 'वलभ्या'मेको 'मथुरा'याम्। तत्र च सूत्रार्थसङ्घटने परस्परं वाचनाभेदो जातः।"

—Malayagiri's com. (p. 41) on Joisakaraṇḍaga

4 This is thus the 3rd council that tried to restore the Jaina scriptures, and in a way it is the 4th, in case we admit that a council had met at Pāṭaliputra in the life-time of Sthūlabhadra. Some believe that the following rendering of the Hāthīgumphā inscription of the Emperor Khāravela suggests this:—

"The four-fold Aṅga-saptika of 64 sections lost in the time of the Maurya king, he restores."—J. B. O. R. S. (IV, p. 236).

In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 431 n) it is said: "If Sten Konow (Acta Or. 1, 1922, p. 20 ff.) is right in his explanation of the Hāthīgumphā inscription of Khāravela, then this inscription would furnish a confirmation of the Jaina tradition regarding the Council of Pāṭaliputra and the Diṭṭhivāya, and King Khāravela (170 B. C. ?) would in that case have compiled a recension of the Aṅgas in 64 sections. Konow's explanation is ingenious, but very much open to doubt."

Turning to the Bauddha literature, we find parallels to these Jaina councils. For instance as noted in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, pp. 4 and 5) 3 councils were convened in connection with the restoration and adjustment of the Baudha scriptures: The 1st council was organized by the immediate disciples of Lord Buddha and was held in the city of Rājagaha (modern Rajgir); the 2nd was held at Vesālī, 100 years after the nirvāṇa of Lord Buddha; and the 3rd was convened in the time of King Aśoka when the compilation of a real canon of the sacred texts of the Bauddhas was undertaken.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa, after the terrible famine which had lasted for 12 years, came to an end. At this council, all the important works of the Jainas then available were written down. This event is technically known as pustakārohaṇa of the Jaina Āgamas or 'Redaction of the Jaina Canon'.[1] It appears that the Skāndilīyas who had attended this council believed that this Redaction of the Jaina canon could be dated as Vīra Saṁvat 980 whereas the Nāgārjunīyas said that the correct date was Vīra Saṁvat 993 (vide p. 64, ll. 4–6).[2] Thus this difference had its origin in the fact that some saints thought that 980 years had then elapsed since the nirvāṇa of Lord Mahāvīra, whereas others thought that 993 years had elapsed. Whatever may be the exact date, this Redaction of the Canon has been a momentous event in the Jaina annals. Its importance lies in the following particulars:—

(i) Not only were the works written formerly at Mathurā and Valabhī again written and codified, but some more were written. Of course, we have neither a complete list wherein these works are enumerated nor any source which mentions the order[3] in which they were written.

(ii) A serious attempt was made to reconcile the differences in the two versions pertaining to the councils held at Mathurā and Valabhī.

(iii) In cases where this failed, it was thought desirable to note the variants, either in the original Āgamas or their commentaries. In the former case, the variants were

---

1 "श्रीदेवर्द्धिगणिक्षमाश्रमणेन श्रीवीरादशीत्यधिकनवशत (९८०) वर्षे जातेन द्वादशवर्षीयदुर्भिक्षवशाद् बहुतरसाधुव्यापत्तौ बहुश्रुतविच्छित्तौ च जातायां.....भविष्यद्भव्यलोकोपकाराय श्रुतभक्तये च श्रीसङ्घाग्रहाद् मृतावशिष्टतदाकालीनसर्वसाधून् 'वलभ्या'माकार्य तन्मुखादविच्छिन्नावशिष्टान् न्यूनाधिकान् त्रुटितानत्रुटितानागमालापकाननुक्रमेण स्वमत्या सङ्कलय्य पुस्तकारूढाः कृताः। ततो मूलतो गणधरभाषितानामपि आगमानां कर्ता श्रीदेवर्द्धिगणिक्षमाश्रमण एव जातः।"—Sāmācārīśataka of Samayasundara

2 Cf. "वीरनिर्वाणसंवत् और जैन कालगणना" (pp. 118–119).

3 None seems to have fixed the order of the canonical works available at present. So I have taken up this problem. On a cursory examination I find that some of the Uvaṅgas etc. were written first and then some of the Aṅgas. See Tattvarasikacandrika (pt. 1, p. 49).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

generally introduced by the words वायणंतरे पुण, of which a typical example is furnished by the following lines occurring in Pajjosaṇākappa (s. 147):—

"समणस्स भगवओ महावीरस्स जाव सव्वदुक्खप्पहीणस्स नव वाससयाइं विइक्कंताइं, दसमस्स य वाससयस्स अयं असीइमे संवच्छरे काले गच्छइ, वायणंतरे पुण अयं तेणउए संवच्छरइ इइ दीसइ".

In the latter case there was a reference to the Nāgārjunīya school.[1]

(iv) Practically the entire Jaina canonical literature was written according to the version of the Mathurā council, as a connected link. I use the word practically to denote that Joïsakaraṇḍaga is based upon the Vālabhī version.

(v) Several vaṇṇaïs[2] which were occurring in more than one Āgama were written out at full length only once, and then they were not reproduced ad verbatim, a second time, but only a reference was made to them

---

1 "नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–एवं खलु०।"—Ṭīkā (p. 245) on Āyāra
"नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–समणा भविस्सामो०"—Ibid., p. 253
"नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–जे खलु०।" — ,, p. 256
"नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–पुट्ठो वा०।" — ,, p. 303
"अत्रांतरे नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–सो ऊण तयं उवट्ठियं०।" —Ṭīkā (p. 64) on Sūyagaḍa
"नागार्जुनीयास्तु पठन्ति–पलिमंथमहं वियाणिया०।"—Ibid., p. 64

2 Vaṇṇaï (Sk. varṇaka) means a description. This word is placed after any one of the following words or the like of which the description is to be supplied from the foregoing portion or another work:—

A city, a sanctuary, a great forest, trees, a dais of earthen blocks, Jambū, Mahāvīra, a king, a queen, a dream, a gymnasium and the physical exercises, a bath-house, an audience-chamber, a palace and a procession.

It may be noted in this connection that at times legends related after a stereotyped pattern are often represented in the Jaina canon as a mere skeleton which the reader is left to fill in with set words and phrases like clichés. As observed in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 450, fn. 3) "we find something similar in the canon of the Sarvāstivādins." Furthermore, there on p. 280, fn. it is said: "Clichés of the same kind, also occur in the Bengali poems, s. Dinesh Chandra Sen, History of Bengali language and literature, p. 585 f."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

by writing the word vaṇṇaü[1], by indicating their source,[2] by alluding to a parallel person[3] or an object, by mentioning the words occurring in the beginning and the end[4] or by writing the word jāva[5], a stenographic symbol.[6] The ālāvagas, too, were similarly treated.

(vi) The former practice of referring to a third party all the controversial questions, was set aside,[7] and the codified works were thence forth looked upon as final authorities.

1 Cf. "तेणं कालेणं तेणं समएणं 'चम्पा' नाम नयरी होत्था। वण्णओ। 'पुणभद्दे' चेइए। वण्णओ।"
—Dr. P. L. Vaidya's edition of "Uvāsagadasāo" (I, 1)

2 "तए णं से भगवं गोयमे 'वाणियगामे' नयरे, जहा पण्णत्तीए तहा"—Ibid., (I, 79)

3 Cf. "तं सेयं खलु ममं कल्लं जाव जलन्ते विउलं असणं ४, जहा पूरणो"–Ibid., (I, 66)

4 Cf. "तेणं कालेणं तेणं समएणं अज्जसुहम्मे समोसरिए जाव जम्बू पज्जुवासमाणे एवं वयासी।"
—Ibid., (I, 2)

5 In the Pāli literature, the use of peyyālam serves almost a similar purpose as jāva; for, it is there used for curtailing the recurrence of identical passages. Vide Dr. P. L. Vaidya's intro. (p. x) to "Uvāsagadasāo".

In Āyāra and Ovavāiya, descriptions are not curtailed unless they are once given there. Uvāsagadasā furnishes us with a strange case; for, in its § 59 we have jāva, and what is thus curtailed, is given in full later on in §§ 206–208.

6 The idea of lessening the trouble in writing and perhaps of saving in materials like paper or palm, seems to have given rise to these artifices and some more to be just noted–the artifices which may have been resorted to, at the time of this redaction or subsequently when manuscripts were written. The additional artifices are as under:—

(a) Instead of writing the entire form of the gerund when it is preceded by the very verb of which it is a gerund, only the number 2 along with tā is written after the verb concerned. See (b), III.

(b) Sometimes only a number such as 3, 4, 5 or so occurs after a word. This suggests an association of similar ideas or topics, or at times it refers to a part of the usual formula. In order that this may be fully grasped I may quote the following examples:—

(i) "तए णं अहं संकिए ३"–Uvāsagadasā (I, 86) and "अवसेसं सव्वं हिरण्ण-सुवण्णविहिं पच्चक्खामि ३"–Ibid., (I, 17)

(ii) "तं सेयं खलु ममं कल्लं जाव जलन्ते विउलं असणं ४"–Ibid., (I, 66)

(iii) "तं मित्त जाव विउलेणं पुप्फ ५ सक्कारेइ"–Ibid., (I, 66), "धम्मकंखिया ५ धम्म-पिवासिया ५"–Ibid., (II; 95) and "पासइ, २ त्ता आसुरत्ते ५"–Ibid., (II; 99)

(iv) "इड्ढी ६ लद्धा ३"–Ibid., (II; 113) and "सुरं च ६ आसाएमाणी ४ विहरइ"–Ibid., (VIII; 244)

7 See J. S. E. (pp. 226, 227 and 246).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(vii) Important events and incidents which were subsequent in origin to those noted in the original works and which were even at times almost contemporaneous with the sitting of the council held for the Redaction of the Jaina canon, were embodied in words by this council.[1] It incorporated them in the works composed long ago, even at the cost of anachronism.[2] For, it appears that it was believed that if they were not to be so[3] noted, it would not be so well preserved for the later generations.[4] But it seems that though this purpose may have been served to some extent, it has added to our difficulties so far as the fixing of dates of certain persons, events and the like is concerned.

(viii) Devarddhi Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa, in a way, virtually became the author of the works codified under his supervision.[5]

---

1 Some may be inclined to suggest that this council has nothing to do with this embodiment as this came from the very pens of the original authors of the corresponding works—the authors who could foresee what was going to happen in future. But it seems that such a suggestion can hardly carry any weight at least in these days.

2 It appears that the question of anachronism is not of so vital importance to a Jaina as the soundness and veracity of what he accepts as a part and parcel of Jainism. Whatever is said or written by a Gītārtha, is looked upon by him with as much authority as an Āgama, provided that Gītārtha is really so. Such being the code of Jainism, the council may not have hesitated in making necessary additions.

3 Had they noted the additions separately, they would have been obliged to mention their locations in the corresponding works, not by pointing out the pages and lines but by reproducing the necessary portion to which they were to be appended. Even such an attempt would not have been so very serviceable as embodying the required portion in the very work itself. For, the reader would have been then often obliged to refer to this Appendix, which, if not by his hand, was likely to be neglected by him.

4 No Jaina author of the olden days was prepared to say that he was contributing something original; for, he believed that the omniscient did know whatever he said. Consequently he was satisfied if his work became helpful to the pupils concerned—no matter even if it was looked upon as a compendium. This view, too, may have induced the council to take the step it did.

5 See p. 63, fn. 1.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(ix) This codification acted as a preventive from further modernization of the sacred works.

Before concluding this chapter, I think it necessary to point out the pitfall to which some are likely to succumb, in case they confound this codification of the Jaina śāstras with that of their composition by identifying these two different events. It will be a sheer folly, therefore, to believe that the dates of the compositions of the various śāstras codified at Valabhī are none else but the date of their codification. This folly, if committed, will not only amount to accepting at best terminus ad quem as the date of the śāstras but taking it to be the same as terminus a quo. In short, the dates of the composition of the various śāstras codified are much earlier than the date of their codification though it is true that the dates of the new portions that may have been then incorporated in the śāstras are the same as that of the codification.

There is another pitfall one should be beware of. Some of the Digambaras maintain that all the canonical treatises got forgotten during the 12 years of famine in the reign of Candragupta Maurya, and the canon as shaped at Pāṭaliputra by the Śvetāmbaras is at best a patch-work and is not genuine. They believe that the end of the Vīra Saṁvat 683 or so marks the complete extinction of the Jaina canon. This sounds very strange; for, one can understand if some works or their parts get forgotten in course of time, in adverse circumstances; but a sweeping remark that not even an iota of the Jaina canon survived the year Vīra Saṁvat 683 or so passes comprehension, unless it may be due to a miracle or a catastrophe of terrible intensity. So far as I know, there is no record or reference to any such thing in the annals of the Indian History.[1]

1 There is no mention of any overflowing of the banks by some gigantic river or that of the shores by the Arabian sea or the Indian ocean leading to the submersion of the country all around and the consequent death of each and every one who knew the Jaina canon in part or entirety. No deluge is referred to as submerging this sub-continent. There is no reference to any volcanic eruption of which the lava reduced the surroundings to nothing. No conflagration laying its cruel hands on the country inhabited by the Jainas,

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

No migration of the Jainas is referred to as leaving this land for some other country as was the case with the Zoroastrians who left their native land as suggested by scholars, on being persecuted by the followers of a different faith. Even then, they do possess at least some fragments of their Holy scriptures.[1] Moreover, there is no mention of any political or social revolution–a cataclysm that seriously disturbed the atmosphere. Even granting that any one or more of the catastrophes here alluded to or the like may have befallen the unlucky, how is it that it could produce such a terribly adverse effect only so far as the knowledge of the Jaina canon was concerned, whereas it failed to produce any perceptible effect on the Holy scriptures of the non–Jainas who were the co-inhabitants of the Jainas ?

Without any further dilation, I may add that this idiosyncrasy to which some of the Digambaras seem to have fallen a prey–the view that the lamp of the Jaina canon ceased to burn and illuminate from Vīra Saṁvat 683 or so is a thing I shudder at. It has deprived us of the valuable legacy we could have got, by way of the preservation of at least some part or parts of the Jaina canon and its enrichment by way of its exposition at the hands of eminent Digambara scholars like Akalaṅka and others.

As regards the allegations viz. (1) that the Śvetāmbara canonical literature is a patch–work and (2) that it is not genuine, I do not think it worth while to refute them; for, it appears that Vincent Smith's The Jaina Stūpa and other Antiquities of Mathurā is mentioned to have occurred. No earthquake on a huge or small scale is referred to as having brought about the ruins of the Jainas. Nowhere the crust of the earth seems to have given way and swallowed all it could lay hand on.

1 Cf. History of Zoroastrianism by Dastur Dr. M. N. Dhalla (Oxford University Press, New York). In its review published in the moffusil edn. of the "Times of India" dated 15th oct., 38 it is said:

"The History of Zoroastrianism falls into three well–defined linguistic periods: The Gathic, the later Avestan, and the Pahalvi. Its beginning is lost in the mist of forgotten ages, and the scriptures that have survived are only blurred and broken fragments."–P. B. V.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

and the learned opinions of Indologists can very well serve the necessary purpose.[1] Moreover, I do not intend to enter into a controversy in this connection; but at the same time I am prepared to hear convincing arguments that may be advanced to support the allegations, and if satisfied, I shall identify myself with persons making these allegations. But, at least for the present I hold a contrary view, though I admit that some passages here and there appear to wear a colour of a patch-work. Under these circumstances, I shall therefore sum up this discussion by quoting the following lines from the late Prof. Jacobi's introduction to The Sacred Books of the East (vol. xxii, p. xxxix):—

"Devarddhi's position relative to the sacred literature of the Gainas appears therefore to us in a different light from what it is generally believed to have been. He probably arranged the already existing MSS. in a canon, taking down from the mouth of learned theologians only such works of which MSS. were not available. Of this canon a great many copies were taken, in order to furnish every seminary with books which had become necessary by the newly introduced change in the method of religious instructions. Devarddhi's edition of Siddhânta is therefore only a redaction of the sacred books which existed before his time in nearly the same form. Any single passage in a sacred text may have been introduced by the editor, but the bulk of Siddhânta is certainly not of his making. The text of the sacred books, before the last redaction of the Siddhânta did not exist in such a vague form as it would have been liable to if it were preserved by the memory of the monks, but it was checked by MSS."

1 Cf. A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, pp. 484-485).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

CHAPTER IV

THE EXTINCT AGAMAS OF THE JAINAS

In each of the two cycles of kālacakra, avasarpiṇī and utsarpiṇī there flourish 24 Tīrthaṅkaras in this Bharata kṣetra and Airāvata as well. Moreover, an infinite number of kālacakras has elapsed by this time. Hence we can easily conclude that the number of the Tīrthaṅkaras that have flourished by this time is infinite. According to the traditional view of the Jainas, all the Gaṇadharas of each of these Tīrthaṅkaras composed dvādasāṅgīs. Furthermore, several direct or indirect disciples of every Tīrthaṅkara, who were endowed with four kinds of mati must have composed Paiṇṇagas as stated in Nandī (s. 44). Leaving aside the sacred literature that came into existence after the omniscience of Lord Mahāvīra, the preceding one seems to have been practically[1] irrevokably lost for ever. No record is available for it. This is perhaps natural; but it may appear certainly wonderful that there is no complete record to be found regarding the scriptures which were composed during a millennium beginning from 500 B. C. and ending with 500 A. D. Hereby I mean to suggest that we have no means to exactly point out all those scriptures which are now lost to us and of which

---

1 I use this word to indicate the following items:—

(i) Lord Mahāvīra while renouncing the world uttered a Sāmāiyasutta. Probably this very one is preserved in the Āvassaya.

(ii) He performed an iryāpathiki kriyā, after having crossed a river, prior to his attainment of omniscience. So on this occasion he may have uttered some sūtra similar to the Iriyāvahiyasutta occurring in the Āvassaya.

(iii) Some scholars believe that the 14 Puvvas belonged to a predecessor of Lord Mahāvīra, and at least some extracts from them are available at present.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the composition does not go beyond 2550 years.[1] It is a pity that we do not possess even a list regarding the scriptures codified at the Valabhī council, convoked by Devarddhi Gaṇi. So our attempt, however serious and sincere it may be, to make a note of all these extinct works cannot yield the desired result. Even then it should be made so that we can have at least a glimpse of the works lost to us by this time. This endeavour of ours would have been surely facilitated, and the results we are going to arrive at would have been quite precise in case a scientific Catalogus catalogorum of Jaina manuscripts had been prepared and published by this time. In the absence of such a source, it now remains to examine the Jaina works wherein incidentally a loss of some work or works may have been noted; but owing to the want of sufficient time and free access to printed and unprinted works, a thorough investigation of these materials is not possible for the present writer. Even then an attempt is being made in this direction with the hope that it will act as a stimulus to others finally leading them to a complete success in view of the thorough investigation of this problem they may be inclined to carry out in near future.

Broadly speaking we can divide the Āgamas into two groups: the Aṅgas and the Paiṇṇagas. The number of the former is fixed as 12; but such is not precisely the case with the latter, if the number 14000 is not taken to be correct. Anyhow the examination regarding the latter is more difficult than the former. We shall therefore proceed with the first group first. Therein we find that Diṭṭhivāya is lost, though not all of a sudden. To be quite explicit, I may mention some of the details that throw light in this direction.

It was in the time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin that Magadha had to face the calamity resulting from a twelve-year famine. This seriously affected the study of the Jaina saints who could hardly get sufficient alms even by begging from door to door. This resulted in their forgetting Diṭṭhivāya—a fact those saints became 1 That some portion is lost is certain; for, in the extant literature, there is no mention of an āyāgapaṭa. Further, there is no reference to Khāravela except in Himavanta Therāvalī.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

conversant with, when they assembled after subhikṣā had set in, and durbhikṣā had disappeared. Thereupon, they sent a pair of Munis, technically known as saṅghāṭaka to Bhadrabāhusvāmin who was practising mahāprāṇa in Nepal; for, he was the only one who was then in a position to remember and teach Diṭṭhivāya. He, however, declined to teach Diṭṭhivāya on the ground that he was then engaged in practising mahāprāṇa, a dhyāna, he could not attend to, during the twelve-year famine. The two Munis on their return informed the saṅgha accordingly. It thereupon sent another pair of Munis asking them to put a question to Bhadrabāhusvāmin as to the penalty prescribed for disobeying the order of the Jaina church, and to prescribe this very penalty to him for the same offence committed by him. The two Munis reached Nepal and asked the desired question to Bhadrabāhusvāmin. He answered: one who does not obey the order of the Jaina church deserves to be excommunicated. Thereupon, the two Munis said that the Jaina church assembled in Magadha, had prescribed this very penalty to him inasmuch as he had refused to teach Diṭṭhivāya. Bhadrabāhusvāmin quickly realized the situation and conditionally agreed to teach Diṭṭhivāya.[1] The underlying condition was that he would neither talk to the taught nor the taught should talk to him—exchange a single word with him when he was engaged in teaching or even otherwise, and that he would impart lessons by seven instalments during a day.[2] This being agreed upon, 500

1 "तम्मि य काले बारसवरिसो दुक्कालो उवट्ठितो। संजता इतो इतो य समुद्दतीरे अच्छित्ता पुणरवि 'पाडलिपुत्ते' मिलिता। तेसिं अण्णस्स उद्देसओ, अण्णस्स खंडं, एवं संघाडितेहिं एक्कारस अंगाणि संघातिताणि, दिट्ठिवादो नत्थि। 'नेपाल'वत्तणीए य भद्दबाहुसामी अच्छंति चोद्दसपुव्वी, तेसिं संघेण पत्थवितो संघाडओ 'दिट्ठिवादं वाएहि' त्ति। गतो, निवेदितं संघकज्जं तं, ते भणंति—दुक्कालनिमित्तं 'महापाणं' न पविट्ठो मि, इयाणिं पविट्ठो मि, तो न जाति वायणं दातुं। पडिनियत्तेहिं संघस्स अक्खातं। तेहिं अण्णो वि संघाडओ विसज्जितो—जो संघस्स आणं अतिक्कमति तस्स को दंडो ?। ते गता, कहितं, तो अक्खाइ—उग्घाडिज्जइ। ते भणंति—मा उग्घाडेह, पेसेह मेहावी, सत्त पाडिपुच्छगाणि देमि।"—Cunṇi (pt. II, p. 187) on Āvassaya

2 Pariśiṣṭaparvan (IX, 68–69) and Titthogāliya (v. 736) seem to differ from each other so far as the periods for the vācanās are concerned. The pertinent portions are respectively as under:—

"तत्रैका वाचना दास्ये भिक्षाचर्यात आगतः। तिसृषु कालवेलासु तिस्रोऽन्या वाचनास्तथा ॥ ६८ ॥ सायाह्नप्रतिक्रमणे जाते तिस्रोऽपराः पुनः। सेत्स्यत्येवं सङ्घकार्यं मत्कार्यस्याविबाधया ॥ ६९ ॥"

"पारियकाउस्सग्गो, भत्तट्ठितो व अहव सेज्जाए। नितो व अहंतो वा एवं मे वायणं दाहं ॥७३६॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Jaina Sādhus with two attendants for every one of them, came to Nepal and tried to prosecute their studies. But all except Sthūlabhadra left the place as they could not face this situation.[1] He (Sthūlabhadra), too, could not completely master all the 14 Puvvas as for some reason or other Bhadrabāhusvāmin withheld the meaning of the last four Puvvas from him. Thus the meaning of the last 4 Puvvas got lost in Vīra Saṁvat 170, the year in which Bhadrabāhusvāmin died. Later on, with the death of Sthūlabhadra, even the verbal embodiment of these four Puvvas came to an end, as he was debarred from teaching them to others.[2] Then, for some time at least, there flourished persons who were conversant with the first ten Puvvas, Vajrasvāmin being the last in the lot. After his svargagamana, there remained none who knew all the ten Puvvas in toto. Āryarakṣita Sūri[3] who survived him, knew at least 9 Puvvas plus 24 javiyas of the 10th[4]

1 "उज्जुत्ता मेहावी, सद्धाए वायणं अलभमाणा।
अह ते थोवा थोवा, सव्वे समणा विनिस्सरिया ॥ ७४१ ॥
एको नवरि न मुंचति, सगडालकुलस्स जसकरो धीरो।
नामेण थूलभद्दो, अविहीसाधम्ममद्दो त्ति ॥ ७४२ ॥"—Titthogāliya

2 "अह भणइ थूलभद्दो अण्णं रूवं न किंचि काहामो।
इच्छामि जाणिउं जे अहमं चत्तारि पुव्वाइं ॥ ८०० ॥
नाहिसि तं पुव्वाइं सुयमेत्ताइं विमुग्गहा हिंति (?)
दस पुण ते अणुजाणे जाण पणट्ठाइं चत्तारि ॥ ८०१ ॥
एतेण कारणेण उ पुरिसजुगे अट्ठमम्मि वीरस्स।
सयराहेण पणट्ठाइं जाण चत्तारि पुव्वाइं ॥ ८०२ ॥"—Ibid.

3 For his life see Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, pp. 397-415). He died in Vīra Saṁvat 584, the very year when a schism named "Abaddhadiṭṭhi" arose in Daśapura. But according to Vālabhī Therāvalī, he died in Vīra Saṁvat 597. It may be noted in passing that this furnishes us with an example of the difference of 13 years in calculations in the case of the Skāndilīya and Nāgārjunīya schools. See p. 63.

4 In Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, p. 404) it is said:—
"अचिरेण नव पुव्वाणि अधिताणि, दसममाढत्तो घेत्तुं, ताधे अज्जवइरा भणंति—जविया करेहि, एयं परिकम्ममेयस्स, ताणि य सुहुमाणि, गाढं गणिते तं सुहुमं, चउवीसं जविया, सो वि ताव तं अज्झाइ।"
Cf. the following lines occurring in Hemacandra's com. (p. 1003) on Viśeṣāvassayabhāṣa (v. 2509):—
"शेषस्तु आर्यवैरस्वामिनः समीपेऽधीतो यावद् नव पूर्वाणि, तथा चतुर्विंशतियविकानि।"
In Prabhāvakacaritra (II, v. 117), there is mention of nine and a half Puvvas, and this very thing is noted there in the case of Āryānandila, too.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

but he did not master the 10th completely. It appears that since his time the knowledge of the Puvvas went on getting curtailed so much so that by Vīra Saṁvat 1000, all the Puvvas got forgotten, and thus Diṭṭhivāya became extinct.[1]

It may be noted that in this cycle of time, there is no intermediate stage so far as the reduction of the knowledge from 14 Puvvas to 10 Puvvas is concerned. For, there has flourished none who knew 13, 12 or 11 Puvvas. So says Droṇa Sūri in his com. (p. 3[a])[2] on Ohanijjutti.

Some believe that Nāgahastin or his contemporary knew five Puvvas, and that Skandila, Himavanta, Nāgārjuna, Govinda Vācaka, Saṁyamaviṣṇu, Bhūtadinna, Lohitya Sūri, Dūṣya Gaṇi and Devarddhi Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa and several Cūṛṇikāras, knew at least the first Puvva, over and above the 11 Aṅgas.[3]

It may not be amiss if we were to take a note of what the Digambaras say regarding the gradual loss of the 14 Puvvas. There is no unanimity of opinion in this connection; for, different versions are given in different works. Śubhacandra's Aṅgapaṇṇatti, Brahma-Hemacandra's Suyakkhandha, Indranandi's Śrutāvatāra, Jinasena's Ādipurāṇa, Uttarapurāṇa, Harivaṁśapurāṇa and some of the Digambara Paṭṭāvalīs in Prākṛta may be cited as instances. This is not the place where I can try to examine each of them separately and come to any definite conclusion by attempting reconciliations where possible. I shall therefore remain contented by giving only one version in this connection—the version noted in Jainasatyaprakāśa (I, 7, pp. 213–214). Therein it is said: In Vīra Saṁvat 62, Jambūsvāmin attained liberation. He was the last kevalin. Viṣṇukumāra, Nandimitra, Aparājita, Govardhana and Bhadrabāhusvāmin I were conversant with 14 Puvvas. This brings us down to a period upto Vīra Saṁvat 162. Then

1 "जंबुदीवे णं दीवे 'भारहे' वासे इमीसे ओसप्पिणीए देवाणुप्पियाणं एगं वाससहस्सं पुव्वगए अणुसज्जिसति।"

2 See p. 17, fn. 1.

3 See Muni Darśanavijaya's article entitled as "दिगम्बर शास्त्र कैसे बने?" and published in Jainasatyaprakāśa (I, I, p. 15).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0 In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

came the era when we had persons who knew only 10 Puvvas. Their names are: Viśākha, Proṣṭhila, Kṣatriya, Jaya, Nāgasena, Siddhārtha, Dhṛtisena, Vijaya, Buddhilla, Deva (Gaṅgadeva) and Dharmasena. This covers a period upto Vīra Saṁvat 345. In Śrutāvatāra it is said that in the time of Nāgahastin, some one knew at least five Puvvas. Ācārya Dharasena is said to be conversant with two Puvvas. As a passing reference, I may add that amongst persons who knew only 11 Aṅgas and who were thus not conversant with any one of the Puvvas, are mentioned Nakṣatra, Jayapāla, Pāṇdu, Dhruvasena and Kaṁsa. The last died in or about Vīra Saṁvat 565. Then we come across the names of persons who knew Āyāra, the 1st Aṅga only. They are: Subhadra, Yaśobhadra, Bhadrabāhu II and Lohārya. This brings us down to Vīra Saṁvat 683. The end of this year marked the extinction of the Jaina Āgamas in their entirety. This view, strange as it is, is advocated by some of the Digambaras, and it has led some of the Śvetāmbaras to question the very authority of the Digambara extant works.

From this exposition it must have been seen that one and all the 14 Puvvas were not simultaneously lost or forgotten, but that their knowledge gradually dwindled so that by Vīra Saṁvat 1000, the Puvvagaya became extinct.

This finishes the discussion about the loss of the main section of Diṭṭhivāya. So it now remains to note the stages about the loss of its remaining four sections. But as it requires an investigation about their contents, I defer its treatment for the time being, and in the meanwhile I note the various reasons assigned by modern scholars for the loss of Diṭṭhivāya in general and the 14 Puvvas in particular.

Prof. Jacobi in his intro. (p. XLVI) to S. B. E. (vol. XXII) observes:

"Professor A. Weber assigns as the probable cause of the Drishṭivâda being lost, that the development of the Svetâmbara sect had arrived at a point where the diversity of its tenets from those embodied in that book became too visible to be passed over. Therefore the Drishṭivâda, which contained the Pûrvas, fell into neglect. I cannot concur in Professor Weber's opinion seeing that the Digambaras also have lost the Pûrvas, and the Aṅgas to boot. It is not probable that the development of Gainism during the two first centuries after the Nirvâṇa should have gone on at so rapid a pace that its two principal sects should have been brought to the necessity of discarding their old canon. For, as stated above, after the splitting of the church in these two sects the philosophical system of the Gainas remained stationary, since it is nearly the same with both sects. As regards ethics, both sects, it is true, differ more. But as the extant canon of the Svetâmbaras is not falling into neglect, though many practices enjoined in it have long since been abandoned, it is not more probable that they should have been more sensible on the same score at the time when the Pûrvas formed their canon. Besides, some of the Pûrvas are said to have continued to be extant long after the time which we have assigned for the formation of the new canon. At last they disappeared, not by an intentional neglect, I presume, but because the new canon set into clearer light the Gaina doctrines, and put them forward more systematically than had been done in the controversial literature of the Pûrvas."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The latest information we can gather on this point is to be found in L. Alsdolf's article A new version of the Agadadatta story published in "New Indian Antiquary" (vol. I, No. 5, August 1938). There on p. 287 it is said:

"I must confess that I do not believe in the legendary and biographical contents of the fourth part of the Dṛṣṭivāda but regard the Jaina tradition on this point as unfounded. I agree with Schubring (Lehre der Jainas, § 38) who has made it at least very probable that the real contents of the Dṛṣṭivāda, consisted of an exposition and refutation of heretical doctrines, and that this was the reason of its loss: it was thought undesirable to preserve these old discussions because their study could lead to a revival of heretical views and actions[1]. The four parts of the Dṛṣṭivāda[2], viz. parikamma, suttāiṁ, puvvagaya, and aṇuyogā, contained the "introductions", the "teachings" and the "pūrva-paksa" (this, and not "old texts" being the real meaning of "puvva" !) which were refuted by the "investigation" (aṇuyoga). This well-nigh excludes the possibility of legendary and biographical contents of the Aṇuoga; and I think the reason why such contents were ascribed to it later is not difficult to find. It is certain that, though the traditional subdivision of the Dṛṣṭivāda is probably genuine, the detailed tables of contents given in the Nandī and in the 4th Aṅga are entirely fantastic, because at the time when they were composed

1 If this view is accepted, how is it possible to account for the several heretical doctrines one comes across in Sūyagaḍa?

2 This has 5 parts in all, Cūliyā being the last.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the text was already lost and its contents were no longer known[1]. Now when the real contents of the Dṛṣṭivāda had been forgotten, this text became a convenient place where everything could be located which it was thought desirable to invest with canonical authority. And since a continuous and systematical account of the Jaina mythology and hagiology, the "History of the 63[2] Great Men", was not found in the existing canon, it was attributed to the last part of the Dṛṣṭivāda. The Vasudevahiṇḍī, too, solemnly professes to be derived from the prathamānuyoga portion of the Dṛṣṭivāda, but it need hardly be pointed out that the Jain version of the Bṛhatkathā is not likely to have formed part of one the oldest works of the Jain canon."

In my humble opinion, Diṭṭhivāya got lost as its major portion Puvvagaya was extremely difficult to be remembered and studied in view of its gamas[3] and bhaṅgas[4], the latter requiring a great deal of the mathematical ability to grasp them. In short, this 12th Aṅga was a hard nut to crack.

With this digression, if it can be so called, I shall once more take up the thread of the Śvetāmbara trend of thought and notice what it has to say regarding the loss of works other than Diṭṭhivāya already referred to. Turning to Āyāra we find that out of the nine ajjhayaṇas[5] which form its first suyakkha-

1 It is not a rule that on a work being lost, its contents get forgotten.

2 It appears that originally we had 54 uttama-puruṣas as is borne out by Samavāya (s. 54) and Śīlācārya's Cauppanna-mahāpurusacariya (composd in Saṁvat 933), and it is Hemacandra Sūri who was probably the 1st to have dealt with 63 śalākāpuruṣas by adding 9 Prativāsudevas to the list of 54 great men viz., 24 Tirthaṅkaras, 12 Cakravartins, 9 Baladevas and 9 Vāsudevas.

3 Cf. "से किं तं गमिअं ? २ दिट्ठिवाओ, अगमिअं कालिअं सुयं"–Nandī (s. 44). In this connection, in Nandīcuṇṇi (pp. 46–47) it is said: "आदिमज्झावसाणे वा किंचि विसेसजुत्तं सुत्तं दुगादिसतग्गसो पढिज्जमाणं गमितं भण्णति, तं च एवंविहं उस्सण्णं दिट्ठिवाए."

4 See my intro. (p. xiii) to Gaṇitatilaka published along with Simhatilaka Sūri's com. in G. O. Series as vol. LXXVIII.

5 Cf. the following verses occurring in the Āyāraniijutti:—

"सत्थपरिण्णा १ लोगविजओ २ य सीओसणिज्ज ३ सम्मत्तं ४।
तह लोगसारनामं ५ धुयं ६ तह महापरिण्णा ७ य ॥ ३१ ॥
अट्ठमए य विमोक्खो ८ उवहाणसुयं ९ च नवमगं भणियं।
इच्चेसो आयारो आयारग्गाणि सेसाणि ॥ ३२ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ndha, Mahāparinna, its seventh ajjhayaṇa[1] is lost at least by the time of Śīlāṅka Sūri; for, he has mentioned this loss as a reason as to why he is not commenting upon it.[2] It is rather strange that at least some of the verses, if not all, which form a part of the Āyāranijjutti and which are said to pertain to this Mahāpariṇṇa, are preserved and are seen printed in the editions of Āyāra containing its Nijjutti and Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. It is difficult to say for certain as to when this Mahāpariṇṇā, got lost. It seems to be extant at least in the time of Vajrasvāmin; for, he restored the extinct[3] ākāśagāminī vidyā from this ajjhayaṇa.[4] The second suyakkhandha of Āyāra now-a-days consists of the four Cūlās viz. (1) Piṇḍesaṇāi[5], (2) Sattasattikkagā, (3) Bhāvaṇā and (4) Vimutti, and it had one more Cūlā viz. Nisīha, in the time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin.[6] Out of them, the 2nd Cūlā has been evolved out of this Mahāpariṇṇā as stated in Āyāranijjutti (v. 290)[7]; but

---

1 See p. 77, fn. 5. It is however the 9th ajjhayaṇa according to Samavāya (s. 9). From Ind. Stud. (vol. XVI, p. 251 seq.) we learn that Nandī, Āvassayanijjutti and Vidhiprapā, too, say so—S. B. E. (XXII, intro. p. XLIX).

2 "अधुना सप्तमाध्ययनस्य महापरिज्ञाख्यस्यावसरः, तच्च व्यवच्छिन्नमिति कृत्वाऽतिलङ्घ्याष्टमस्य सम्बन्धो वाच्यः।"

3 Cf. "महापरिण्णाए विज्जा पव्वइया आसी सा पदाणुसारिणा तेणुद्धरिता"
—Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, p. 394)

4 See the following 769th verse of Āvassayanijjutti:—
"जेणुद्धरिआ विज्जा आगासगमा महापरिन्नाओ। वंदामि अज्जवइरं अपच्छिमो जो अ सुअहराणं॥७६९॥"

5 It seems that there is no specific name for the 1st Cūlā. So I have suggested this to facilitate the discussion.

6 This is corroborated by the following verse of Āyāranijjutti:—
"णवबंभचेरमइओ अट्ठारसपयसहस्सिओ वेओ। हवइ य सपंचचूलो बहुबहुतरओ पयग्गेणं॥ ११॥"

From this verse, it may be inferred that the name of each of the ajjhayaṇas at least of the first suyakkhandha is Bambhacera, and that the entire work is styled as Veā (Veda). Śīlāṅka Sūri, while commenting upon this verse has said: "पञ्चमी निशीथाध्ययनं, 'बहुबहुतरओ पदग्गेणं'ति तत्र चतुश्चूलिकात्मकद्वितीयश्रुतस्कन्धप्रक्षेपाद् बहुः, निशीथाख्यपञ्चमचूलिकाप्रक्षेपाद् बहुतरः"

A question may here arise as to who incorporated Nisīha in Āyāra and who again separated it and restored it to a position of a separate treatise.

7 See Chap. V.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

according to S. B. E. (vol. XXII, intro. p. l)[1], all the Cūlās. The ending portion of the Nijjutti on Mahāpariṇṇā explains the meanings of the two words which make up Mahāpariṇṇā from the standpoint of the four nikṣepas, whereas its 34th verse[2] says that it deals with parīṣahas and upasargas, the outcome of infatuation. It may be added that Mahāpariṇṇā is a sātiśaya adhyayana. So says Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 46) on v. 146 of Kappanijjutti.

By taking into account the description of Nāyādhammakahā as given in Nandī (s. 51), we may infer that the portion of this Aṅga which exists now is practically a drop in the ocean. For, hundreds of ākhyāyikās, upākhyāyikās and ākhyāyikopākhyāyikās are lost. All these seem to have been extinct at least by the time of Malayagiri Sūri, if not by the time of Jinadāsa Gaṇi. Aṅgas 7 to 11 are said to have saṅkhyeya pada[3]-sahasras (vide Nandī s. 52–56). So it may be that they, too, are not available in toto.

If we examine the extant Paṇhāvāgaraṇa, in the light of the contents of the 10th Aṅga noted in Nandī (s. 55), we are led to either of the two conclusions:—

(i) The old 10th Aṅga is altogether lost, and one similar in name is substituted for it by some one who flourished prior to Abhayadeva Sūri.

(ii) The extant Paṇhāvāgaraṇa is a fragment of the old one of which the contents have not been fully noted in Nandī.

---

1 Here 'sāisayattaṇeṇa' is wrongly translated as 'superfluous'.

2 "निस्संगा य छट्ठे ६ मोहसमुत्था परीसहुवसग्गा ७ । निज्जाणं अट्ठमए ८ नवमे य जिणेण एवं ति ९ ॥ ३४ ॥"

This verse along with the 33rd throws light on the subject-matter of Āyāra. So it may be here noted as under:—

"जिअसंजमो १ अ लोगो जह बज्झइ जह य तं पजहियव्वं २ । सुहदुक्खतितिक्खा वि य ३ सम्मत्तं ४ लोगसारो ५ य ॥ ३३ ॥"

3 I do not know if there is any Śvetāmbara source which defines pada. But in The Sacred Books of the Jainas (vol. II, p. 29), a madhyama-pada is said to consist of 16, 34, 83, 07, 888 letters, and on pp. 29–31, are given the specific numbers of these madhyamapadas for one and all the 12 Aṅgas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This finishes a rough survey about the loss pertaining to the dvādaśāṅgī of Sudharman.[1] As regards the 12 Uvaṅgas, it is doubtful how far the Candapaṇṇatti available at present is genuine; for, it almost tallies with Sūriyapaṇṇatti ad verbatim.[2] So if this is not genuine, it must be looked upon as lost.

So far as the 6 Cheyasuttas are concerned, some portion of Mahāniśīha must have been lost in the days Haribhadra Sūri tried to restore it, when several leaves of its Ms. got decayed.[3] As stated in its 3rd ajjhayaṇa, by this time several Nijjuttis, Cuṇṇis and Bhāsas composed to explain Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha had become extinct. This Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha was once a separate work by itself, and was later on incorporated in a mūlasutta by Vajrasvāmin, who had a padānusāriṇī labdhi.[4]

---

1 He outlived the rest of the Gaṇadharas, and as explained in J. S. E. (pp. 204–205), only his gaṇa continued. So the dvādaśāṅgis of the other Gaṇadharas practically came to an end by the time they took up anaśana, and handed over their pupils to him.

2 Cf. the following 26th verse of Siddhāntāgamastava:—

"प्रणमामि चन्द्रसूर्यप्रज्ञप्ती यमलजातके नव्ये । गुम्फवपुषैव नवरं नातिभिदाऽर्थात्मनाऽपि ययोः ॥ २६ ॥"

3 "एत्थ य जत्थ जत्थ पएणाणुलग्गं सुत्तालावगं न संपज्जइ। तत्थ तत्थ सुयहरेहिं कुलिहि य दोसो न दायव्वो त्ति। किंतु जो सो एयस्स अचिंतचिंतामणिकप्पभूयस्स महानिसीहसुयक्खंधस्स पुव्वायरिसो आसि तहिं चेव खंडाखंडीए उद्देहियाइएहिं हेऊहिं बहवे पत्तगा परिसडिया तहावि अचंतसुहुमत्थाइसयं ति। इमं महानिसीहसुयक्खंधं कसिणपवयणस्स परमसारभूयं परं तत्तं महत्थं ति कलिऊणं ॥ पवयणवच्छलते (त्ते)णं बहुभव्वसतो(त्ता)वयारियं च काउं तदा य आयहियाट्ठयाए आयरियहरिभद्देणं जं तत्थायरिसे दिट्ठं त (तं) सव्वं समतीए साहिऊणं लिहियं ति ॥ अन्नेहिं पि सिद्धसेणदिवायर-वुड्ढवाइ-जक्खसेण-देवगुत्त-जसवद्धण-खमासमणसीसरविगुत्त-णेमिचंद-जिणदासगणिखमगसव्वरिसि(? सव्वसिरि)पमुहेहिं कु(जु)गप्पहाणसुयहरेहिं बहुमन्नियमिणं ति"—D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, pp. 32–33)

4 "एयं तु जं पंचमंगलसुयक्खंधस्स वक्खाणं तं महया पबंधेणं अणंतगमपज्जवेहिं सुत्तस्स य पिहब्भूयाहि निज्जुत्ती-भास-चुण्णीहिं जहेव अणंतनाणदंसणधरेहिं तित्थयरेहिं वक्खाणियं तहेव समासओ वक्खाणिज्जंतं आसि। अहन्नया कालपरिहाणिदोसेणं ताओ निज्जुत्ती-भास-चुन्नीओ वुच्छिन्नाओ इइ (? ओ) य वच्चंतेणं कालसमएणं मंहिड्डीपत्ते पयाणुसारी वयरसामी नाम दुवालसंगसुयहरे समुप्पन्ने तेणेयं पंचमंगलमहासुयक्खंधस्स उद्धारो मूलसुत्तस्स मज्झे लिहिओ मूलसुत्तं पुण सुत्तत्ताए गणहरेहिंतो अत्थत्ताए अरहंतेहि भगवंतेहिं धम्मतित्थकरेहिं तिलोगमहिएहिं वीरजिणिंदेहिं पन्नवियं ति। एस वुड्ढसंपयाओ।"—Ibid., p. 32

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

In Jaina Granthāvalī (p. 16) it is said that there were 3 vācanās of Mahānisīha. Out of them only the bṛhadvācanā is available now.[1]

So far as Pañcakappa is concerned, it is not available now; but its Cuṇṇi and Bhāsa exist.

Turning to Païṇṇagas we find that only very few are available at present. For, firstly, out of 14,000 Païṇṇagas, only 60 have been specifically mentioned in Nandī, and so probably a majority of them were lost in those days. Secondly, out of these 60 works, 12 kāliya works are lost. Their numbers are 11, 12, and 16–25.[2] The following 5 additional kāliya works noted in Pakkhiyasutta are also lost:—

Āsīvisabhāvaṇā, Diṭṭhīvisabhāvaṇā, Cāraṇabhāvaṇā, Mahāsuminabhāvaṇā and Teyaganisagga.

Turning to Nandī, we find that 14 ukkāliya works are lost by this time. Their numbers are 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 17, 18, 19, 21 and 23–27.[3] From Pakkhiyasutta, no additional information can be had. Thus, in all 17 kāliya works and 14 ukkāliya works are lost so far as Nandī and Pakkhiyasutta are concerned. Taking Vavahāra (X) into account, we find that Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya and Ṭhiminabhāvaṇā[4]

---

१ "बृहत्टिप्पनिकामां ओनी लघुवाचना, मध्यम वाचना अने बृहद्वाचना એમ ત્રણ વાચના અનુક્રમે શ્લો. ૩૫૦૦–૪૫૦૦–૪૫૪૮ ની નોધી છે, પણ હાલમાં ઓની બૃહદ્વાચના જ ઉપલબ્ધ થાય છે."

2 For their names see p. 25. 3 See p. 26.

4 "२० तिवासपरियायस्स समणस्स निग्गन्थस्स कप्पइ आयरपकप्पे नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। २१ चउवासपरियाए कप्पइ सूयगडे नामं अङ्गे उद्दिसित्तए। २२ पञ्चवासपरियाए कप्पइ दस-कप्प-ववहारे उद्दिसित्तए। २३ अट्ठवासपरियाए कप्पइ ठाण-समवाए उद्दिसित्तए। २४ दसवासपरियाए कप्पइ वियाहे नामं अङ्गे उद्दिसित्तए। २५ एक्कारसवासपरियाए कप्पइ खुड्डियाविमाणपविभत्ती महल्लियाविमाणपविभत्ती अङ्गचूलिया वग्गचूलिया वियाहचूलिया नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। २६ बारसवासपरियाए कप्पइ अरुणोववाए गरुलोववाए धरणोववाए वेसमणोववाए वेलंधरोववाए नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। २७ तेरसवासपरियाए कप्पइ उट्ठाणपरियावणिए समुट्ठाणसुए देविन्दोववाए नागपरियावणिए नाम अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। २८ चोदसवासपरियाए कप्पइ दिट्ठिविसभावणा नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। २९ पन्नरसवासपरियाए कप्पइ चारणभावणा नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। ३० सोलसवासपरियाए कप्पइ आसीविसभावणा नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। ३१ सत्तरसवासपरियाए कप्पइ दिट्ठीविसभावणा नामं अज्झयणे उद्दिसित्तए। ३२ एगूणवीसवासपरियाए कप्पइ दिट्ठीवाए नामं अङ्गे उद्दिसित्तए। ३३ वीसवासपरियाए समणे निग्गन्थे सव्वसुयाणुवाई भवइ।"

Instead of giving the pertinent portion, I have here given the entire sūtra as it throws light as to what works were known and probably even existed at least when Vavahāra was composed; for, they form a curriculum.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

are extinct, and looking to Ṭhāṇa (X, s. 755) Dogiddhidasā and portions of some of the remaining 9 dasās[1] are extinct. Over and above these works, 147 adhyayanas recited by Lord Mahāvīra at the time of his nirvāṇa are lost, with the exception of those that may have been existing in the available Āgamas.

These are the extinct works I have been able to trace up till now. So I shall now try to give details about them as far as possible and shall accordingly commence with Diṭṭhivāya.

Diṭṭhivāya holds a unique place in the Jaina canon for several reasons, some of which are as under:—

(1) It is the first work composed by each of the Gaṇadharas.[2]

(2) According to the opinion of Bhadrabāhusvāmin[3] and others[4], females owing to some of their weaknesses[5] are not entitled for its study. Thereby it is suggested that it is not within the reach of one and all, but it is meant for the deserving few.[6]

(3) There is not a single subject or a topic which does not come within its compass. It deals with mantras, tantras, and yantras, too.

(4) It has got ten significant names, and thus it forms a glaring exception to the rest of the Jaina scriptures.

(5) It is the very first work lost by the Jainas.

---

1 See p. 55, fn. 3.

2 For a difference of opinion see pp. 6–7.

3 "तुच्छा गारवबहुला चलिन्दिया दुब्बला धिईए य।
इति अइसेसज्झयणा भूयावाओ य नो त्थीणं ॥ १४६ ॥"—Kappanijjutti

This very verse occurs in Visesāvassayabhāsa as v. 552.

4 By others I mean Jinabhadra Gaṇi, Koṭyācārya, Maladhārin Hemacandra, Malayagiri Sūri, Jinadāsa Gaṇi Mahattara and Haribhadra Sūri.

5 See fn. 3 and J. S. E. (p. 239).

6 In Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, p. 35) it is said:—

"बहवे दुम्मेधा असत्ता दिट्ठिवायं अहिज्जिउं अप्पाउयाण य आउयं णं पहुप्पति, इत्थियाओ पुण पाएण तुच्छाओ गारवबहुलाओ चलिन्दियाओ दुब्बलधिईओ, अतो एयासिं जे अतिसेसज्झयणा अरुणोववाय-णिसीहमाइणो दिट्ठिवातो य ते ण दिज्जंति।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(6) Its contents are so to say preserved by the Śvetāmbaras and the Digambaras as well, though they differ in some of the details.

(7) It is a splendid example of the gamika śruta.[1]

(8) It abounds in bhaṅgas.[2]

(9) Some of the works[3] either partially or wholly are extracted from this Diṭṭhivāya.

As already noted on p. 6, Diṭṭhivāya is divided into five sections viz., (1) Parikamma, (2) Sutta, (3) Puvvagaya, (4) Aṇuoga and (5) Cūliyā, out of which at least the 1st two had become extinct at least by the time Jinadāsa Gaṇi Mahattara wrote his Cuṇṇi on Nandī.[4]

Parikamma–Just as it is necessary to know fundamental operations such as addition, subtraction etc., before one can solve arithmetical problems, so one should study Parikamma before one can commence the study of Sutta, Puvvagaya etc.[5] Thus Parikamma is a stepping-stone for further study. It is of seven kinds: (1) Siddhaseṇiā-parikamma, (2) Manussaseṇiā-pari°, (3) Puṭṭhaseṇiā-pari°, (4) Ogāḍhaseṇiā-pari°[6], (5) Uvasampajjaṇaseṇiā-pari°, (6) Vippajahaṇaseṇiā-pari° and (7) Cuācuāseṇiā-pari°. Each of these kinds has sub-varieties which, in all, come to 83. Siddhaseṇiā-pāri° has 14 sub-varieties: Māugāpaya, Egaṭṭhiyapaya, Aṭṭhapaya[7], Pāḍhoāmāsapaya[8], Keūbhūā, Rāsibaddha, Egaguṇa, Duguṇa, Tiguṇa, Keubhuā, Paḍiggaha, Saṁsārapaḍiggaha, Nandāvatta and Siddhāvatta.[9] Manussaseṇiā°, too, has 14 sub-varieties. Out of them the names of 13 are practically the same as those noted for Siddhaseṇiā°, the 14th being Maṇussāvatta. Puṭṭhaseṇiā° has 11 sub-varieties. The names of them are Pāḍhoāmāsapaya upto Nandāvatta as noted before,

---

1-2 See p. 77. 3 For their list see pp. 88, 89 and 96.

4 See p. 84, fn. 1 and 2.

5 Cf. "परिकम्म त्ति जोगकरणं, जधा गणितस्स सोलस परिकम्मा तग्गहितसुतत्थो सेसगणितस्स जोगो भवति, एवं गहिदपरिकम्मसुत्तत्थो सेससुत्ताइदिट्ठिवादसुतस्स जोगो भवति"—Nandicuṇṇi (p. 55).

6-9 In Samavāya (s. 147) we have Ogāhaṇaseṇiā-pari°, Padoḷiṭhapaya, Āgāsapaya and Siddhabaddha respectively.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the 11th being Puṭṭhāvatta. Each of the rest has 11 sub-varieties. The names of the 1st 10 of them are the same as noted for Puṭṭhasenia°, while the respective names for the 11th are: Ogāḍhāvatta, Uvasampajjaṇāvatta, Vippajahaṇāvatta and Cuācuāvatta. See Nandī (s. 57). Practically we know next to nothing about all these 83 sub-varieties.[1] Even there is no explanation given as to why Keubhiā is mentioned twice, while enumerating the 14 sub-varieties of Siddhaseṇiā°.

Out of these 7 kinds of Parikamma, the first six which refer to svasamaya, come within the range of the 4 nayas viz. Saṅgaha, Vavahāra, Ṛjusutta and Saddāi. Negama is of two kinds: Saṅgahiya and Asaṅgahiya. The former is included in Saṅgaha, and the latter in Vavahāra. The Saddāi nayas which are 4, are to be counted as one. So says the Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 106). It further says: All the 7 kinds are accepted by the Ājīvagas, and they are propounded by Gosāla, and they are looked at in three ways. It seems Jinadāsa Gaṇi, the author of this Nandīcuṇṇi makes no difference between the followers of Gosāla, the Ājīvagas and the Terāsiyas.

Sutta–This term is explained as one suggesting the meaning of all drayas, paryāyas and nayas.[2] There are 22 Suttas as under in this section:—

(1) Ujjusuya, (2) Parināyāpariṇaya, (3) Bahubhaṅgiā, (4) Vijayacariya, (5) Aṇantara, (6) Parampara, (7) Māsāṇa, (8) Saṁjūha, (9) Sambhiṇṇa, (10) Āhavvāya, (11) Sovatthiāvatta, (12) Nandāvatta, (13) Bahula, (14) Puṭṭhāpuṭṭha, (15) Viāvatta, (16) Evambhūā, (17) Duyāvatta, (18) Vattamāṇappaya, (19) Samabhirūḍha, (20) Savvaöbhadda, (21) Passāsa and (22) Duppadiggaha. See Nandī (s. 57).[3]

1 "तं च परिकम्मं सिद्धसेणितपरिकम्मादिथूलभेदयो सत्तविधं उत्तरभेदयो तेसीतिविधं मातुअपदादी, तं च सव्वं मूलुत्तरभेदं सुत्तत्थमो वोच्छिण्णं जधागतसंपदातं वा वच्चं"—Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 55)

2 "सुत्ताइं ति उज्जुसुताइयाइं बावीसं सुत्ताइं, सव्वदव्वाण सव्वपज्जवाण सव्वणयाण सव्वभंगविकप्पणोवदंसगाणि, सव्वस्स णय(? पुव्व)गतस्स यऽत्थस्स य सूयग त्ति सूयणतो सुत्ता अणिता जधाभिहाणत्थातो, ते य इदाणिं सुत्तत्थतो वोच्छिण्णा, जहागतसंप्र(प)दायतो वोद्धव्वा"—Ibid., (p. 56).

3 In Samavāya (s. 147), the 4th, 7th, 10th and 21st Suttas are named as Vippaccaiya, Samāṇa, Ahāccaya, and Pāṇāma respectively.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

No information is available regarding the contents of any one of these. We may however note that herein we find names which remind us of the two nayas viz. Evambhūta and Samabhirūḍha.

The 22 Suttas are chinnacchedanayika for svasamayikas whereas they are acchinnacchedanayikas for the Ājīvagas. Further, they are trikanayikas for the Terāsiyas, while they are catuṣkanayikas for svasamayikas. According to the chinnacchedanaya, all the sūtras of the Āgamas are independent of one another i. e. to say the preceding one has nothing to do with the subsequent one or ones nor has the subsequent one anything to do with the preceding one or ones. Reverse is the case according to the acchinnacchedanaya which believes that the preceding and following sūtras are inter-connected i. e. to say they are not independent of one another.

The four view-points from which 22 Suttas can be seen and which are just mentioned, give us 88 varieties of this section in all.

Puvvagaya-This is fourteen-fold inasmuch as it consists of the following 14 Puvvas:-

(1) Uppāya, (2) Aggāṇīya, (3) Vīriä, (4) Atthinathippavāya, (5) Nāṇappavāya, (6) Saccappavāya, (7) Āyappavāya, (8) Kammappavāya, (9) Paccakkhāṇappavāya, (10) Vijjāṇuppavāya[1], (11) Avañjha, (12) Pāṇāii, (13) Kiriāvisāla and (14) Lokabindusāra.

These names are here given according to the Nandī (s. 57). In Pavayaṇasāruddhāra (dvāra 92), we come across almost these very names except that for Kammappavāya, we have Samayappavāya and for Lokabindusāra, Bindusāra. For contents according to the Śvetāmbara point of view, one may refer to the Cuṇṇi (pp. 57-58) on Nandī, Abhayadeva Sūri's com. (p. 131[a] and p. 131[b]) on Samavāya, Siddhasena Gaṇi's Ṭīkā (pp. 207-208) on Pavayaṇasāruddhāra etc.[2] From these sources we learn: The 1st Puvva deals with the origin of all the dravyas and paryāyas; the 2nd, with their measurements (parimāṇa); the 3rd, with the potentialities-powers of the animate and inanimate objects; the 1 For a variant see p. 90.

2. A list of the names of the 14 Puvvas along with their contents is found in the Digambara works, too, e. g. in Tattvārtharājavārtika (pp. 51-58).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

4th, with the existence and non-existence of objects from the stand-points of dravya, kṣetra, kāla and bhāva; the 5th, with five kinds of knowledge; the 6th, with saṃyama and truth and their opposites; the 7th, with an exposition of ātman from various stand-points; the 8th, with eight kinds of karman and their sub-divisions; the 9th, with pratyākhyāna; the 10th, with vidyās-miraculous lores; the 11th, with merit and demerit and their fructifications; the 12th, with 10 types of prāṇa and various kinds of āyuṣya; the 13th, with activities pertaining to saṃyama etc.; and the 14th, with a subject not mentioned.

In the Cunni (pp. 57–58) on Nandī, in Malayagiri Sūri's com. on it and in Pavayaṇasāruddhāra (dvāra 92), the number of the padas each Puvva consists of, is given; but some times, they differ. e. g. in the case of the 1st, 7th, 8th and 10th Puvvas.

Incidentally it may be noted that as stated in Subodhikā, the quantity of ink required for writing the 1st Puvva equals the volume of one elephant, that for the 2nd, that of 2, for the 3rd, that of 4 and so on in G. P. so that for the 14th it equals that of 2^{13} i. e. 8192 elephants.

Quotations from the Puvvas-Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri in his com. on Visesāvassayabhāsa has at times given the ālāvagas etc., from the Puvvas.[1] He believes that v. 117 of this Visesā° which runs as under belongs to Puvvagaya:—

"सोइंदिओवलद्धी होइ सुयं सेसयं तु मइनाणं।
मोत्तूणं दव्वसुयं अक्खरलंभो य सेसेसु ॥ ११७ ॥"

He ends the explanations of this verse with the words "इति पूर्वगतगाथासङ्क्षेपार्थः"[2]

That this v. 117 belongs to a Puvva, is corroborated by the words "तत्प्रतिपादिका चेयं पूर्वान्तर्गाथा" occurring in Devendra Sūri's vivṛti on Kammavivāga (v. 4). These words are followed by the 117th verse noted above.

Maladhārin Hemacandra while commenting on v. 128 ("बुद्धिद्दिट्ठे०)" identifies it as a gāthā from a Puvva. While commenting on v. 2335 of Visesā° he observes on p. 946:–

1 It seems in doing so, he has probably followed Koṭyācārya's com. on Visesā°.
2 In Koṭyācārya's com. (p. 53) we have: "इति पूर्वगतगाथाक्षरार्थः"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

"आत्मप्रवादनामकं पूर्वमधीयानस्य तिष्यगुप्तस्यायं सूत्रालापकः स(?स)मायातस्तद् यथा– "एगे भंते! जीवपएसे जीवे त्ति वत्तव्वं सिया?। नो इणट्ठे समट्ठे। एवं दो, तिन्नि, जाव दस, संखेज्जा, असंखेज्जा भंते! जीवपएसा जीव त्ति वत्तव्वं सिया?। नो इणट्ठे समट्ठे, एगपएसूणे वि णं जीवे नो जीवे त्ति वत्तव्वं सिया। से केणं अट्ठेणं?। जम्हा णं कसिणे पडिपुन्ने लोगागासपएसतुल्ले जीवे त्ति वत्तव्यं सिया, से तेणं अट्ठेणं" इति।"[1]

In the com. (p. 960) on v. 2390 of Viseśā° he says:–

"तत्र च्छिन्नच्छेदनकनयवक्तव्यतायामालापकाः समायाताः, तद् यथा–"पडुप्पन्नसमयनेरइया[2] सव्वे वोच्छिज्जिस्संति, एवं जाव वेमाणिय त्ति, एवं बीयाइसमएसु वि वत्तव्वं"।"

Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 9[a]) on Pañcāsaga, notes the following verse as occurring in Puvvagaya:–

"जारिसओ अइभेओ जह जायइ जह य तत्थ दोसगुणा। जयणा जह अइयारा भंगो तह भावणा नेया॥"

For, there he says: "न चेयं गाथा न प्रमाणं, पूर्वान्तर्गततयाऽस्याः प्रतिपादनात्।"

Vinayavijaya in Lokaprakāśa (III, v. 803 f.) says on p. 51[b]: "उक्तं च भाष्यकृता—

"सदसदविसेसणाओ भवहेउजहिच्छओवलंभाओ।
नाणफलाभावाओ मिच्छद्दिट्ठिस्स अन्नाणं॥"[3] –पूर्वान्तर्गतेयं गाथा।"

So this gāthā, too, belongs to some Puvva.

Before we proceed further we may note that in Viseśā° (v. 2513), its author alludes to Kamappavāya Puvva. The pertinent verse is as under:—

"कम्मप्पवायपुव्वे वद्धं पुट्ठं निकाइयं कम्मं।
जीवपएसेहिं समं सूईकलावोवमाणाओ॥ २५१३॥"

Extracts[4] from the Puvvas:–According to the Jaina tradition the Daśapūrvadharas extract portions from the Puvvas necessarily and the Caturdaśapūrvadharas, if a special occasion arises. This

1 Cf. Koṭyācārya's com. (p. 687).

2 In Koṭyācārya's com. (p. 699) we have a variant पढमसमयउप्पन्ना" for this. It appears that the entire ālāvaga is not given here.

3 This very verse occurs four times in Viseśā° as v. 115, 319, 521 and 2844.

4 The Prākṛta word for this is nijjuhaṇā whereas the Saṃskṛta one, niryūhaṇa. The former occurs in Viseśā° (v. 551), and there it means "composition" (racanā). The words निज्जूढं, निज्जूहगं and निज्जूहिया are found in verses 12, 14 and 15 of

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

is what we learn from the following line occurring in Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 12[a]) on Dasaveyāliya:—

"चउद्दसपुव्वी कम्हि वि कारणे समुप्पन्ने णिज्जूहति, दसपुव्वी पुण अपच्छिमो अवस्समेव णिज्जूहइ."—Cf. Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi (p. 7).

I may give below the names of works along with those of the Puvvas from which they are extracted:—

(I) Uvasaggaharathotta, some Puvva;[1] (II) Ohanijjutti, Paccakkhāṇappavāya[2], (III) Kammapayaḍi, Karmaprakṛti Prābhṛta;[3] (IV) Pratiṣṭhākalpa, Vijjappavāya;[4] (V) Sthāpanākalpa, Paccakkhāṇappavāya;[5] (VI) Siddhaprābhṛta, Aggāṇīya; (VII) Pajjosaṇākappa, Paccakkhāṇappavāya;[6] (VIII) Dhammapannatti, Ayappavāya[7]; (IX) Piṇḍesaṇā, Kammappavāya;[8] (X) Vakkasuddhi, Saccappavāya;[9] (XI) the rest of the ajjhayaṇas of Dasaveyāliya; Paccakkhāṇappavāya;[10] (XII) Parīsahajjhayaṇa; Kammap-

Dasaveyāliyanijjutti. Haribhadra Sūri in his com. on this work says: "निर्यूढं पूर्वगतादुद्धृत्य विरचितं" (p. 9[b]) and "निर्यूहकं पूर्वगतोद्धृतार्थविरचनाकर्त्तारं" (p. 10[b]). The editor of this work observes: "यूहं उद्धरण इत्यागमिको धातुरिति न्यायसङ्ग्रहः" (p. 12, fn.). In spite of these explanations, it remains to be ascertained whether nijjūhaṇā means a re-production ad verbatim or that of an essence embodied in words by the author concerned.

1 See Rājaśekhara Sūri's Caturvinśatiprabandha (my edn., p. 7).

2 See Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 341[b]) on Āvassayanijjutti (v. 665), Hemacandra Sūri's com. (p. 842) on Viseśā° (v. 2040) and Droṇa Sūri's com. (p. 1[b]) on Ohanijjutti. In this last com. it is said: "ओघसामाचारी-ओघनिर्युक्तिः, दशधा सामाचारी 'इच्छामिच्छेत्यादि, पदविभागसामाचारी-कल्प-व्यवहारः। तत्र ओघसामाचारी च नवमपूर्वान्तर्वर्ति यत् तृतीयं सामाचारीवस्त्वस्ति तत्रापि विंशतितमात् प्राभृतात् साध्वनुग्रहार्थं भद्रबाहुस्वामिना निर्यूढा, दशधा पुनरुत्तराध्ययनेभ्यो निर्यूढा इच्छामिच्छेत्यादिका"

3 See Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 220[a]) on Kammapayaḍi.

4 See Sakalacandra Gaṇi's Pratiṣṭhākalpa.

5 See Yaśovijaya Gaṇi's Sthāpanākulakasvādhyāya published in Pañcapratikramaṇa at Mhesana.

6 See Subodhikā (p. 7[a]).

7–10 "आयप्पयायपुव्वा निज्जूढा होइ धम्मपन्नत्ती।
कम्मप्पवायपुव्वा पिंडस्स उ एसणा तिविहा॥ १६॥
सच्चप्पवायपुव्वा निज्जूढा होइ वक्कसुद्धी उ।
अवसेसा निज्जूढा नवमस्स उ तइयवत्थूओ॥ १७॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

pavāya;[1] (XIII) Pañcakappa, a Puvva;[2] (XIV-XVI) Dasāsuyakkhandhā[3], Kappa[4] and Vavahāra[5], Paccakkhāṇappavāya; (XVII) Mahākappa, a Puvva;[6] (XVIII) Nisīha, Paccakkhāṇappavāya;[7] (XIX) Nayacakra, Nāṇappavāya;[8] (XX) Sayaga, a Puvva;[9] (XXI) Pañcasaṅgaha, a Puvva;[10] (XXII) Sattariyā, a Puvva;[11] (XXIII) Mahākarmaprakṛtiprābhṛta, a Puvva;[12] (XXIV) Kaṣāyaprābhṛta, a Puvva[13] and (XXV) Jīvasamāsa, a Puvva (?).[14]

The language of the Puvvas-This is usually supposed to be Saṁskṛta and not Prākṛta. This view is probably based upon the following references:—

(i) Vijayānanda Sūri in his Tattvanirṇayaprāsāda (p. 412) quotes the following verse, with "यत उक्तमागमे"[15] prefixed:—

"मुत्तूण दिट्ठिवायं कालिय-उक्कालियंगसिद्धंतं।
थी-बालवायणत्थं पाइयमुइयं जिणवरेहिं ॥"[16]

(ii) Prabhācandra Sūri in his Prabhāvakacaritra (Vṛddhavādiprabandha, v. 114) observes:—

"चतुर्दशापि पूर्वाणि संस्कृतानि पुराऽभवन् ॥ ११४ ॥"

---

1 See Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri's com. (p. 5[b]) on Uttarajjhayaṇa where the following verse from it is quoted:—

"कम्मप्पवायपुव्वे सत्तरसे पाहुडम्मि जं सुत्तं। सणयं सोदाहरणं तं चेव इहं पि णायव्वं ॥ २-६९ ॥"

2 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 257).

3 Ibid., p. 60. 4-5 Ibid., p. 239.

6 See Hemacandra Sūri's com. (p. 932[b]) on Visesā° (v. 2295).

7 Cf. "आयारपकप्पो पुण पच्चक्खाणस्स तइयवत्थूओ।
आयारनामधिज्जा बीसइमा पाहुडच्छेया ॥ २९१ ॥" —Āyāraniijjutti

8 See Prabhāvakacaritra (Mallavādiprabandha, v. 14).

9 See the Hindī prastāvanā (pp. 16-17) to Devendra Sūri's Kammavivāga published by "Śrī Ātmānanda Pustakapracāraka Maṇḍala in A. D. 1918. There it is said:—

"श्वेताम्बर-सम्प्रदाय में १ कर्मप्रकृति, २ शतक, ३ पञ्चसंग्रह, और ४ सप्ततिका ये ४ ग्रन्थ और दिगम्बर-सम्प्रदाय में १ महाकर्मप्रकृतिप्राभृत तथा २ कषायप्राभृत ये दो ग्रन्थ पूर्वोद्धृत माने जाते हैं।"

10-13 See fn. 9. 14 See Jīvasamāsa (v. 285).

15 Up till now I have not been in a position to trace this Āgama.

16 As stated in the upodghāta (p. 9) to Pāiyasaddamahaṇṇava (pt. iv), this verse is quoted in Ācāradinakara by Vardhamāna Sūri.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(iii) Some of the Śvetāmbaras of the present days state that the following 3 works written in Saṁskṛta have been extracted from Puvvagaya :—

(1) Namo'rhat, (2) Namo'stu Vardhamānāya and (3) Viśālalocana.

While trying to verify this statement, I find that in Hīrapraśna also called Praśnottrasamuccaya (prakāśa III, p. 28[b]) it is stated that Namo'rhat is extracted from a Puvva.

It may be however noted that the quotations from the Puvvas given on pp. 86–87 suggest that the Puvvas were composed in Prākṛta, in case these are reproductions ad verbatim.

The study of the Puvvas—A Caturdaśapūrvadhara can go through all the 14 Puvvas, both in word and meaning in a muhūrta[1], in case he has practised 'mahāprāṇa[2] dhyāna'. This is what is said in Pariśiṣṭaparvan (IX, 62[3]). Padmamandira Gaṇi, however, in his com. (p. 183[b])[4] on Dharmaghoṣa Sūri's Ṛṣimaṇḍalaprakaraṇa (v. 181) observes that in virtue of this dhyāna having been practised, a Caturdaśapūrvadhara can in an antarmuhūrta[5] have the guṇana of all the Puvvas from the beginning to the end and in the reverse order to boot.

Vatthus–The 14 Puvvas have sections known as Vatthus. Their numbers are respectively 10, 14, 8, 18, 12, 2, 16, 30, 20, 15, 12, 13, 30 and 25 (vide Nandī s. 57[6]). In all, they come to 225.

---

1 This is the 30th part of a day, and practically it equals 48 minutes.

2 This is alluded to in the following verse of Sirisirivālakahā:–
"महपाणज्झायदुवालसंगसुत्तत्थतदुभयरहस्सो। सज्झायतप्परप्पा एसप्पा चेव उवज्झाओ ॥ १३३० ॥"

3 "महाप्राणे हि निष्पन्ने कार्ये कस्मिंश्चिदागते। सर्वपूर्वाणि गुण्यन्ते सूत्रार्थाभ्यां मुहूर्ततः ॥ ६२ ॥"

4 "पूर्णे तस्मिन् महाप्राणे पूर्वाणि गुणयेत् किल। आदितोऽन्तं यावदन्तादादि चान्तर्मुहूर्ततः ॥ १८८ ॥"

5 This means a period which ranges from 9 samayas to a muhūrta less by one samaya, as can be seen from the following verse of Lokaprakāśa (III):–
"समयेभ्यो नवभ्यः स्यात् प्रभृत्यन्तर्मुहूर्तकम्। समयोनमुहूर्तान्तमसङ्ख्यातविधं यतः ॥ ३४ ॥"

6 "दस चोदस अट्ठ(ऽ)ट्ठारसेव बारस दुवे अ वत्थूणि। सोलस तीसा वीसा पन्नरस अणुप्पवायम्मि ॥
बारस इक्कारसमे बारसमे तेरसेव वत्थूणि। तीस पुण तेरसमे चोद्दसमे पण्णवीसाओ ॥"
From this it follows that the 10th Puvva is here named as Anuppavāya instead of Vijjaṇuppavāya.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Nowhere I have come across the names of all these Vatthus. Only the name of the 3rd Vatthu of the 9th Puvva is mentioned as Sāmāyāri in Droṇa Sūri's com. (p. 1[b]) on Ohanijjutti and that of a Vatthu of the 10th as Neuṇiya in Visesā° (v. 2390).

The Pāhuḍas

In Kammavivāga (v. 7) we find twenty varieties of suya-nāṇa referred to. Out of them Pāhuḍapāhuḍa, Pāhuḍa and Vatthu and each with the word 'samāsa' added it deserve to be here noted. Devendra Sūri in his com. (p. 19) on Kammavivāga (v. 7) explains them as under:—

"प्राभृतान्तर्वर्ती अधिकारविशेषः प्राभृतप्राभृतम् १३ । तद्ज्ञादिसमुदायस्तु प्राभृतप्राभृत-समासः १४ । वस्त्वन्तर्वर्ती अधिकारविशेषः प्राभृतम् १५ । तद्ज्ञादिसंयोगस्तु प्राभृतसमासः १६ । पूर्वान्तर्वर्ती अधिकारविशेषो वस्तु १७ । तद्ज्ञादिसंयोगस्तु वस्तुसमासः १८ ।"

Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 94) on Tattvārtha (I, 20°) also throws light on this topic. There it is said: "वस्तूनि पूर्वस्यैवांशोऽल्पः, वस्तुनः प्राभृतमल्पतरं, प्राभृतात् प्राभृतप्राभृतमल्पतरं, ततोऽध्ययनं ग्रन्थतोऽल्पतरं, तत उद्देशकोऽल्पतर इति ।"

From this it follows that Vatthu (Sk. Vastu) is a section of a Puvva, and Pāhuḍa (Sk. Prābhṛta) is a sub-section of this section.[1] This Pāhuḍa has sections each known a Pāhuḍapāhuḍa. Vatthu is bigger than Pāhuḍa and Pāhuḍa is bigger than Pāhuḍapāhuḍa.

The Digambaras believe that Kundakunda Ācārya has composed 84 Pāhuḍas out of which 8 are available at present; but, herein I am not dealing with any one of them; for, I am here concerned with the Śvetāmbara literature on this point, and, moreover, these 8 extant Pāhuḍas do not form a part of the canonical literature. I may say that in this literature, nowhere a list of all the Pāhuḍas[2] is given; but we can surely collect the stray references which give us the names of the following Pāhuḍas:—

1 It may be noted that this Pāhuḍa has nothing to do with the 20 pāhuḍas of Sūriyapaṇṇatti and 21 pāhuḍas of Joisakaraṇḍaga.

2 There seems to be no such work which mentions either the number or the names of the Pāhuḍas of each Vatthu. From p. 89, fn. 7, we learn that the 3rd Vatthu of the 9th Puvva has at least 20 Pāhuḍas, and that the name of this 20th is Āyāra. From p. 89, fn. 2, we learn that the 8th Puvva has at least 17 Pāhuḍas, and from p. 92, fn. 1, we see that the 5th Vatthu of the 2nd Puvva has 20 Pāhuḍas, and its 4th Pāhuḍa is named as Kammapayadi.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(1) Āyārapāhuḍa, (2) Kappapāhuḍa, (3) Kammapayaḍi-pāhuḍa, (4) Jayapāhuḍa, (5) Joṇipāhuḍa, (6) Dukkhmāpā-huḍa, (7) Nāḍayavihipāhuḍa, (8) Nimittapāhuḍa, (9) Paiṭṭhā-pāhuḍa, (10) Vijjāpāhuḍa, (11) Viṇṇāṇapāhuḍa[1], (12) Sadda-pāhuḍa, (13) Sarapāhuḍa and (14) Siddhapāhuḍa.

Out of these, Āyārapāhuḍa (Ācāraprābhṛta) is mentioned by Bhadrabāhusvāmin whereas Kappapāhuḍa (Kalpaprābhṛta) and Vijjāpāhuḍa (Vidyāprābhṛta) by Jinaprabha Sūri in his Vividha-tīrthakalpa on pp. 5 and 6 respectively. Kammapayaḍipāhuḍa (Karmaprakṛtiprābhṛta) is similarly mentioned by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 219)[2] on Kammapayaḍi (v. 474) and Joṇipāhuḍa (Yoniprābhṛta) by Kṣemakīrti Sūri in his com. (p. 401) on Kappa (I). Jinadāsa Gaṇi, too, has mentioned Joṇipāhuḍa in his Visehacuṇṇi where Nimittapāhuḍa (Nimittaprābhṛta) is referred to. Bhadreśvara Sūri in his Kahāvalī, has mentioned Joṇipāhuḍa and Nimitta-pāhuḍa as well as Vijjāpāhuḍa and Siddhapāhuḍa (Siddhaprābhṛta) while narrating the life of Pādalipta in the section known as "Pālittacarita". Saddapāhuḍa (Śabdaprābhṛta) is noted by Siddhasena Gaṇi in his ṭikā (p. 50) on Tattvārtha (I, 5). The pertinent line is:—"प्राभृतज्ञ इति, शब्दप्राभृतं तच्च पूर्वेऽस्ति यत इदं व्याकरणमायातं, ततः शब्दप्राभृतं यो जानाति स प्राभृतज्ञो गुरुरेवं ब्रवीति द्रव्यमिति।" Sarapāhuḍa (Svaraprābhṛta) is mentioned by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 395[b]) on Ṭhāṇa (VII, s. 553). Similarly Nāḍayavihipāhuḍa (Nāṭyavidhiprābhṛta) is referred to by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 52[b]) on Rāyapaseṇiya (s. 23). Dukkhamāpāhuḍa is mentioned by Devendra Sūri in his yantra viz. Dvisahasrayugapradhānasvarūpa where he attributes this work to Bhadrabāhusvāmin. See D. C. J. M. (No. 828 of 1895-1902). Paiṭṭhāpāhuḍa is alluded to by Ratnaśekhara Sūri in his com. on Śrāddhavidhi. See (p. 95).

In the introduction to Nirvāṇa-kalikā (p. 6) attributed to Pādalipta Sūri, it is said that the Pāhuḍas were composed between the period ranging from the life-time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin

---

1 This is mentioned in the intro. (p. 6) to Nirvāṇakalikā.

2 "तत्र च द्वितीयेऽग्रायणीयाभिधानेऽनेकवस्तुसमन्विते पूर्वे पञ्चमं वस्तु विंशतिप्राभृतपरिमाणम्। तत्र कर्म-प्रकृत्याख्यं चतुर्थं प्राभृतं चतुर्विंशत्यनुयोगद्वारमयम्। तस्मादिदं प्रकरणं नीतं आकृष्टमित्यर्थः।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

to the 2nd century A. D. If so, these cannot be looked upon as sections of the Puvvas composed by the Gaṇadharas.

2-3. Āyārapāhuḍa, Kappapāhuḍa and Kammapayaḍipahuḍa—I have not come across a description pertaining to any one of these Pāhuḍas except that as stated in Vividhatīrthakalpa (p. 5) Bhadrabāhusvāmin extracted Śatruñjayakalpa from Kalpaprābhṛta, and Vajrasvamin and Pādalipta Sūri abridged it.

4. Joṇipāhuḍa—In the com. (pp. 401 and 753) on Kappa it is said that this is a section of Puvva. Visehacuṇṇi throws greater light on it. There it is said that animate objects from ekendriyas to pañcendriyas can be generated by one who knows this Joṇipāhuḍa, and Siddhasena Sūri had accordingly generated horses.[1] The pertinent lines are: "तत्थ ओरालिए एगिंदियादि पंचविधं तं जोणिपाहुडातिणा, जहा सिद्धसेनायरिएण अस्सा पकता।"—Jainayuga (I, 3, p. 90)

In the Visehacuṇṇi (XVIII, 469) we have:—

"णिसीहमादियस्स च्छेदसुत्तस्स जो अत्थो आगतो सुत्तं वा मोक्कलंमि वा पच्छित्तविहाणाणि मंताणि वा जोणिपाहुडं वा गाहंतो अण्णत्थ गाहेति."

In Hemacandra's com. (p. 750) on Visesā° (v. 1775) it is said:—

"योनिविधाने च योनिप्राभृते विसदृशानेकद्रव्यसंयोगयोनयः सर्पसिंहादिप्राणिनो मणयो हेमादयश्च पदार्था नानारूपाः समुपलभ्यन्ते।"

In Prabhāvakacaritra (Pādaliptaprabandha, v. 115–127) we come across a narrative where it is said that Rudradeva Sūri was teaching Yoniprābhṛta to his pupil when there came the portion dealing with the method of generating fish. A fisherman who was staying beside this place heard this conversation and carried on his profession accordingly. The Ācārya, later on, came to know about this and dissuaded the fisherman from generating fish. In this very narrative (v. 128) we come across a line where it is said that lions were generated.

A photo-copy as well as the original Ms. of a work known as Joṇipāhuḍa can be had at the Bhandarkar O. R. Institute; but as this work is in a fragmentary condition and even several folios are not properly arranged, it is difficult to make out a head or 1 This act of generation is known as nirvartanādhikāra.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

tail out of it. Even then some lines are given by me in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 383–384). From this we learn that this work is composed by Panhapravaṇa Muni, and it is copied in Saṁvat 1582. In another place, we notice the name Praśnaśravaṇa mahāmuni. Some take this work to be the same as Joṇipāhuḍa, but I have grave doubts about it. See my "Preface" (p. xxiv) to D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III). In the introduction (p. 6) to Nirvāṇakalikā it is said: "Dharasena composed the Yoni-prabhrita about 135 A. D."

6, 7. Dukkhamāpāhuḍa and Nāḍayavihipāhuḍa–It seems that we have no description available of any one of these Pāhuḍas. All the same, it may be inferred that the latter must be dealing with dramas and their staging.

8. Nimittapāhuḍa—This is defined in Kahāvalī as under:–

"जत्थ उण केवलियाजोइससयणाइनिमित्तं सुत्तिज्जइ तं निमित्तपाहुडं।"

From this it follows that it deals with nimittas including astrology (jyotis) and the science of dreams. It may be noted that nimitta includes jyotiṣ; if not, it would have been separately mentioned in Nisīha etc., where the Jaina clergies are forbidden to get alms by yogacūrṇa vidyā and nimittaprayoga.

Nimitta is defined in Visesā° (v. 2163) as under:—

"लक्खिज्जई सुभासुभमणेण तो लक्खणं निमित्तं ति। भोमाइ तदट्ठविहं तिकालविसयं जिणाभिहियं॥"

That nimittajñāna is looked upon as valid can be seen from the following verse occurring in Sūyagaḍa (I, 12, 9):—

"संवच्छरं सुविणं लक्खणं च निमित्तदेहं च उप्पाइयं च। अट्ठंगमेयं बहवे अहित्ता लोगंसि जाणंति अणागयाइं॥"

Nimitta may be either eight-fold or six-fold. The former is referred to in the following gāthā:—

"भोम सुमिणंतलिक्खं दिव्वं अंगं सरलक्खणं तह य। वंजणमट्ठविहं खलु निमित्तमेव मुणेयव्वं॥"

When nimitta refers to happiness, misery, profit, loss, life and death, it is looked upon as six-fold. It seems that Gosāla knew this six-fold nimitta; for, in Viāhapaṇṇatti (xv; s. 539) it is said that he knew six types of nimitta. In Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 218[b]) on Sūyagaḍa we come across the following passage:—

"अत्र चाङ्गवर्जितानां निमित्तशास्त्राणामनुष्टुभेन छन्दसा अर्धत्रयोदश शतानि सूत्रं तावन्त्येव सहस्राणि वृत्तिः तावत्प्रमाणलक्षा परिभाषेति।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This means that the text of nimittaśāstras, Aṅgas apart, comes to 1250 ślokas, its vṛtti to 12500 and its paribhāṣā to 12 lacs and a half. It remains to be ascertained as to which this text is. Is it Nimittapāhuḍa or some other work probably based upon it?

There is a work known as Praśnavyākaraṇa on which the late Mr. C. D. Dalal has noted 3 commentaries viz. Cūḍāmaṇi, Jyoti and anonymous. He has suggested that Jayaprābhṛta is another name of Praśnavyākaraṇa, but Muni Kalyāṇavijaya expresses his doubt about it. Vide Jainayuga (I, 3, p. 93).

Pāhuḍas 9 to 13—We have practically no details available about these Pāhuḍas except what I have practically already noted. About Saddapāhuḍa I may add that Hemacandra Sūri while commenting upon a grammatical portion (p. 150[b]) occurring in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 130) expresses his inability to explain some part of it as Śabdaprābhṛta is lost (vide Chap. VII).

Jinamaṇḍana Gaṇi, in his Kumārapālaprabandha (pp. 98[b]–99[a]) has said that 21 names of Śatruñjaya are noted in Vidyāprābhṛta.

In the svopajña vṛtti (p. 56[b]) of Śrāddhavidhi we have:—

"प्रतिष्ठाप्राभृतात् श्रीपादलिप्तोद्धृतप्रतिष्ठापद्धतौ च यथाभणितम्"

From this it follows that Pādalipta's Pratiṣṭhāpaddhati is based upon Pratiṣṭhāprābhṛta.

Siddhapāhuḍa—This is defined in Kahāvalī as below:—

"जत्थ पायलेवंजणगुडिवाईहिं सिद्धा स(: ? प)रविज्जंति तं सिद्धपाहुडं"

It appears that Āryasamita Sthavira could stop the flow of a river by yogacūrṇa on account of his knowledge of Siddhapāhuḍa. That Pādalipta Sūri and Nāgārjuna Sūri could fly by applying some thing on the sole of a foot, is probably due to their knowledge of this work. It may be added that probably it was the knowledge of this Pāhuḍa that helped the two pupils of Susthitācārya in remaining invisible by means of some añjana applied to eyes and in sharing the food of King Candragupta.

In this connection it may not be amiss to state that we have another work available at present and named as Siddhapāhuḍa. It is extracted from Aggāṇīya (vide p. 88), but it should not be on that account confounded with the one in question.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Aṇuoga–Etymology of this word is already given on p. 10. Furthermore its main divisions[1] and their contents are also noted on pp. 10–11. So, there remains very little to be said here.

Extracts from the Aṇuoga–Some of the biographical sketches of the great men may have been extracted from Paḍhamāṇuoga.[2] Vasudevahiṇḍī[3] is probably so; if not, it is at least based upon it as can be seen from the following lines occurring in it:—

"तत्थ ताव सुहम्मसामिणा जंबुनामस्स पढमाणुओगे तित्थयर-चक्कवट्टि-दसारवंसपरूवणागयं वसुदेवचरियं कहियं ति तस्सेव पभवो कहेयव्वो, तप्पभवस्स य पभवस्स त्ति।"

Bambhadattacariya[4] is said to be extracted from Diṭṭhivāya and hence perhaps from Paḍhamāṇuoga.

Cūliyā–These Cūliyās are also known as Culla-vatthus.[5] Only the first four Puvvas have Cūliyās. Therein the 1st Puvva has 4 four Cūliyās, the 2nd 12, the 3rd 8, and the 4th 10. In all we have 34 Cūliyās.[6] They are studied last.[7]

---

1 In the com. (p. 93) on Siddhāntāgamastava, Aṇuoga is styled as Pūrvānuyoga, and it is there described as having two sections viz. Prathamānuyoga and Kalānuyoga.

2 It may appear that Paḍhamāṇuoga was not only extant but even available to Jinadāsa Gaṇi, as can be inferred from the following words occurring in his Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, p. 160):–

"एतं सव्वं गाहाहिं जहा पढमाणुओगे तहेव इहंपि वत्तिज्जति वित्थरतो।"

Moreover, the following lines thereof seem to substantiate this statement:–

(i) "एत्थंतरे चित्तंतरगंडिता विभासियव्वा जाव सगरो जातो त्ति"–Ibid., pt. I, p. 214

(ii) "एवं जधा मरुदेवाए, सेसाणि जहा चित्तंतरगंडियाए"–Ibid. pt., I, p. 488

From this it follows that Cittantaraganḍiyā was available to him–a fact corroborated by its description given by him in Nandicuṇṇi. But this inference is not valid. For, by taking into account the date Śaka Saṁvat 598 (Saṁvat 733) mentioned by him as the year in which he completed Nandicuṇṇi and the date of the extinction of Puvvagaya viz., Vīra Saṁvat 1000 (Saṁvat 530), it seems more reasonable to believe that he got the traditional information about the contents of the Aṇuoga rather than to say that he had this part of the Āgama directly accessible to him.

3 This is referred to in Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. II, p. 324).

4 This episode is given by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. on Uvaesapaya (v. 357).

5 "चत्तारि दुवालस अट्ठ चेव दस चेव चूलवत्थूणि।
आइल्लाण चउण्हं सेसाणं चूलिया नत्थि॥"–Nandī (s. 57)

6–7 "ता य चूलाओ आदिल्लपुव्वाण चउण्हं, चूलवत्थू भणितातो चेव सव्वुवरि ठवित्ता पडिज्जंति य।..... चूलवत्थु त्ति चउत्तीसं।"–Nandicuṇṇi (p. 61)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This finishes the exposition about the contents of Parikamma etc. So, as stated on p. 75, I shall now deal with the order in which the five sections of Diṭṭhivāya[1] became mostly[2] extinct. Up till now none seems to have tackled this problem. I am probably the 1st to have done so in 1939 in Tattvarasikacandrikā (pt. I, pp. 52–55) in Gujarātī. I do not know if any one has even criticized my views by this time. So, once more I express them[3] in this connection and request the veteran scholars to examine them and to give their verdict.

It appears that a work gets obliterated when its study ceases. If so, it means we should note how the 5 sections were being studied.[4] It is well-nigh certain that the study of the 1st two sections preceded that of the rest.[5] As regards Parikamma, it seems that at least some persons carried on its study side by side with and that, too, ahead of the corresponding Puvva—an inference I draw from Āryarakṣita Sūri's episode.[6] On this basis it can be suggested that the study of the Parikamma pertaining to each Puvva ended with the extinction of that Puvva; for, it was no use preparing the Parikamma of that Puvva which had ceased to exist. If this suggestion is correct, it follows that the Parikamma associated with the study of the last 4 Puvvas became a dead letter by

1 As stated in Samavāya (s. 46), Diṭṭhivāya has 46 Māuyāpayas. Each of the 14 varieties of Parikamma has only one Māuyāpayā (vide p. 83). So it follows that some other section or sections of Diṭṭhivāya must have Māuyāpayas. Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 69[b]) on Samavāya (s. 46) makes a tentative suggestion in this connection as under:—

"'दिट्ठिवायस्स' त्ति द्वादशाङ्गस्य 'माउयापय' त्ति सकलवाङ्मयस्य अकारादिमातृकापदानीव दृष्टिवादार्थप्रसवनिबन्धनत्वेन मातृकापदानि उत्पादविगमध्रौव्यलक्षणानि, तानि च सिद्धश्रेणि-मनुष्यश्रेण्यादिना विषयभेदेन कथमपि भिद्यमानानि षट्चत्वारिंशद् भवन्तीति सम्भाव्यन्ते।"

2 "सर्वमिदं प्रायो व्यवच्छिन्नं"—Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 238[b]) on Nandī (s. 57).

3 These are rather somewhat revised ones.

4 For a tentative treatment of this topic see J. S. E. (pp. 235–237).

5 This assumption is based upon the fact that in all the references about the 5 sections of Diṭṭhivāya, I know of, Parikamma is invariably assigned the 1st place and Suttā the second.

6 See p. 73, fn. 4.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the time Sthūlabhadra died, and a similar inference can be drawn for the Parikamma pertaining to the rest of the 10 Puvvas.

There is another alternative regarding the study of Parikamma. Just as even now-a-days some persons complete the study of the Saṁskṛta grammar before they enter the field of literature, so Parikamma being a stepping-stone to Puvvagaya, some may have been mastering it completely before they began to study even the 1st Puvva.

As regards the study of the Sutta, the Jaina literature-even the narrative branch of it, seems to be completely silent. So I may suggest that the case of the extent of the study of the Sutta is parallel to that of Parikamma, and equally so is its loss.

So far as the Puvvas are concerned, it appears that their study must have been preceded by that of the pertinent portions or the entire ones of the Parikamma and the Sutta.[1] The study of Aṇuoga may have been partly preceded and partly followed by that of the corresponding Puvva, in case it dealt with upakrama etc., as suggested on p. 9. As regards the branch of hagiology, its study may have been taken up after that of the corresponding portion of the Puvva or it may have preceded it, in case either the taught were inquisitive to know the lives of the persons referred to in the Puvva they were about to learn or the teacher wanted to create interest about the pertinent Puvva amongst his pupils. Whatever it may be, it is almost certain that the study of the Aṇuoga which may have been taken up in instalments corresponding to each Puvva or which may have been altogether reserved after that of the Puvva in question or to take an extreme case after that of all the Puvvas, was given up as soon as the study of the Puvvas came to an end. If so, it may be said that the loss of the last 4 Puvvas was followed by the cessation of the study of the corresponding Aṇuoga or as an extreme

1 The Sutta seems to be an index to the aphorisms of Puvvagaya and their meanings. If so, it is more or less a tabulated summary-an analytical digest of the contents of Puvvagaya in extenso, and thus it may be compared with the Mātikās of the Bauddhas, and it may be looked upon as forming a background for the study of the Puvvas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

case by that of the Aṇuoga in its entirety, and this cessation must have finally led to its loss. The loss of the remaining Puvvas gives rise to a parallel case for the loss of the corresponding Aṇuoga.

Turning to the Cūliyās, we find that though they are said to belong to the Puvvagaya and to be exact to the 1st four Puvvas only, their nature as expounded in Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 61) makes us believe that they had something to do with other sections, too[1]. Further, their study seems to have been preceded by that of the 1st four sections in case we endorse the opinion[2] expressed in the Nandīcuṇṇi that they are given the last place not only regarding the arrangement of the 5 sections but their study, too. This means that the Cūliyās got forgotten or became extinct by the time Sthūlabhadra died.

With these words about the order of the loss of the different sections of Diṭṭhivāya, I shall now resume the question about the nature etc. of the remaining extinct works, and shall accordingly commence with the works of the kāliya suya.

Khuḍḍiyā-Vimāṇapavibhatti–This is an ajjhayaṇa dealing with the vimānas which may or may not have entered āvalikā. It is the 1st ajjhayaṇa of Saṅkhevitadasā (vide p. 55, fn. 2). From Samavāya (s. 37, 38 and 40) we learn that this ajjhayaṇa had at least 3 vaggas, the 1st having 37 uddesaṇakālas, the 2nd 38 and the 3rd 40 respectively. This ajjhayaṇa used to be prescribed as one of the text-books to a Sādhu whose dīkṣāparyāya was of 11 years.

Mahalliyā-Vimāṇapavibhatti–This work has the same subject-matter as the above one, the only difference being that it treats it at a greater length. This is the 2nd ajjhayaṇa of Saṅkhevitadasā (vide p. 55, fn. 2). From Samavāya (s. 41–45) it can be seen that this work had at least 5 vaggas, the uddesaṇakālas of which were 41, 42, 43, 44 and 45 respectively. This ajjhayaṇa was also one of the text-books for a Sādhu of 11 years' standing.

1–2 "'चूल' त्ति सिहरं दिट्ठिवाते तं परिकम्म-सुत्त-पुव्व-पुव्वाणुओगे य भणितं,...चूलवत्थू भणितातो चेव सव्वुवरि ठवित्ता पढिज्जंति य." The earlier portion of this seems to be erroneous; for, Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 246) quotes it as under:–

"दिट्ठिवाए जं परिकम्म-सुत्त-पुव्वा-ऽणुओगे न भणियं तं चूलासु भणियं."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Aruṇovavāya[1]—This is an ajjhayaṇa dealing with the samaya (code) and upapāta of Aruṇa, a god. As stated in Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 49) Aruṇa approaches a saint who is engaged in the guṇaṇa of this ajjhayaṇa. He then respectfully hears the same from him. On this being completed, he requests that saint to ask for a boon; but the latter declines to do so. Thereupon he circumambulates the saint and returns to his celestial abode.[2] This work is the 6th ajjhayaṇa of Saṅkhevitadasā, and it is sātisaya (vide p. 82, fn. 6). It was one of the text-books for a Sādhu of 12 years' standing, the other text-books being Garulovavāya, Dharaṇovavāya, Vesamaṇovavāya and Velandharovavāya.

Varuṇovavāya[3], Garulovavāya, Dharaṇovavāya, Vesamaṇovavāya, Velandharovavāya and Devindovavāya.—All these except the 3rd and the last, are also the ajjhayaṇas of Saṅkhevitadasā. They have Varuṇa, Garula, Dharaṇa, Vaiśramaṇa, Velandhara and Devendra (Śakra) respectively as the main characters as is the case with Aruṇovavāya having Aruṇa. So it appears that some of the passages of Aruṇovavāya may be occurring mutatis mutandis in these ajjhayaṇas. Moreover, as stated in the Bhāsa (p. 109[a])[4] on Vavahāra (X) Varuṇa discharges a scented shower and Aruṇa and Garula give gold, when they are so to say invoked.

Uṭṭhāṇasuya and Samuṭṭhāṇasuya—As stated in Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 49), when an enraged Sādhu recites Uṭṭhāṇasuya once, twice or thrice, the family, the village or the capital or the like which has offended him becomes desolate. Later on, when he being pacified, recites Samuṭṭhāṇasuya once, twice or thrice, whatever has been desolated, becomes re-inhabited. Such an event is narrated in the case of Damasāra Muni in Ātmaprabodha[5] composed by Jinalābha

1 This is mentioned in Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. 1, p. 35).

2 In this connection, Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 513[b]) on Ṭhāṇa (s. 756) observes:—"एवम्भूतं च श्रुतं कालविशेष एव भवति"

3 According to Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 96[a]) on his own work Pañcavatthuga (v. 585) this was one of the text-books for a Sādhu of 12 years' standing.

4 "नागावरुणो वासं अरुणा गरुला य वीयगं देंती।
आगंतूण य वेंती संदिसह किं करेमि त्ति॥११०॥"

5 See pp. 137–138 of the edition published by Hiralal Hansaraj in A. D. 1909.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sūri in Saṁvat 1833. There he is represented as a contemporary of Lord Mahāvīra.

Both of these works are sātisaya. So says Koṭyācārya in his com. (p. 201) on Viseśā° (v. 555). Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri, too, says the same thing. It may be noted that both these commentators have given Samutthāna as the Saṁskṛta equivalent of Samuṭṭhāṇa; but Jinadāsa Gaṇi differs from them; for, he says in Nandicuṇṇi (p. 49): "समुवट्ठाणसुयं ति वत्तव्वे वगारलोवातो समुट्ठाणसुय त्ति भणितं".

Samuṭṭhāṇasuya was a text-book for a Sadhu of 13 years' standing, as was the case with Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya.

Nāgapariyāvaṇiya—This is an ajjhayaṇa wherein the Nāgakumāras play an important role. When a saint concentrates upon this work, the Nāgakumāras bow to him, and without leaving their residential quarters, give them boons therefrom.

Āsīvisabhāvaṇā—It is a work which more or less deals with venoms. As stated by Yaśodeva Sūri in his com. (p. 69[a]) on Pakkhiyasutta, this work says that there are two types of living beings having poison in their jaws. The first type of them is so by their very birth. They include scorpions, frogs, serpents and human beings. The poison of a scorpion can at best pervade a body equal to that of half of Bharata kṣetra; that of a frog, double this body; that of a serpent, a body equal to Jambūdvīpa; and that of a human being, a body equal to the samaya-kṣetra (i. e. manuṣyaloka).

The second type acquires poison by practising a penance or so. It includes the five-organed tiryacs, human beings and gods up to those of Sahasrāra, so long as these gods are aparyāpta. These beings kill others by cursing them. This act is tantamount to a serpent's bite etc.[1]

Diṭṭhīvisabhāvaṇā—This work deals with those who have poison in their dṛṣṭi (eyes). This may remind one of the dṛṣṭiviṣa-sarpas like Caṇḍakauśika who was enlightened by Lord Mahāvīra.

1 It should be borne in mind that this exposition is based upon the significance of the title of this work. Same is the case with the following four works. This is what Yaśodeva Sūri says in his com. (p. 69[b]) on Pakkhiyasutta, the actual wording being "अत्र चाशीविषभावनादिग्रन्थपञ्चकस्वरूपं नामानुसारतो दर्शितं, विशेषसम्प्रदायश्च न दृष्ट इति".

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Cāraṇabhāvaṇā—This work deals with Vidyācāraṇas and Jaṅghācāraṇas. They are saints who can fly owing to the labdhi[1] (miraculous power) acquired by them by practising austerities or by studying this work.[2]

Mahāsumiṇabhāvaṇā—This work deals with great dreams.[3]

Teyagganisagga—This work has for its subject-matter a discharge of a fiery substance. The acquisition[4] of tejoleṣyā[5] and perhaps that of śītaleṣyā may have been treated in this work.

Kappiyākappiya—This is a work which deals with the two topics viz. kalpa (what should be practised or is acceptable) and akalpa, its opposite.

Culla-Kappasuya—This work explains what is kalpa. Its title suggests that it is a smaller treatise as compared with Mahākappasuya.

Mahā-Kappasuya—This work, too, deals with kalpa. It is so named either because it is voluminous or because it is deep in meaning. This is probably a Cheyasutta; but, on that account it is not possible to identify it with any of the six well-known Cheyasuttas. It will be a folly to think that this work is the same as Kappa (Bṛhatkalpasūtra); for, it is mentioned over and above Kappa, in Visesā° (v. 2295)[6]

---

1 For the description of this labdhi and that of many more see Ovavāiya (s. 24, p. 16), Viāhapaṇṇatti (XX, 9; s. 683-4), Visesā° (v. 779-803); Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 47[b]) on Āvassaya, Pavayaṇasāruddhāra (v. 595-601), the svopajña com. (p. 14) on Yogaśāstra (I, 9) and the English translation of Triṣaṣṭi (vol. I, pp. 75 and 79).

2 "पन्नरसे चारणभावणं ति उद्दिसिए उ अज्झयणं। चारणलद्धी तहियं उपज्जंती तु अहि(ही)यम्मि ॥ ११५ ॥"

3 In all there are 72 dreams. Out of them 30 are great as stated in Pajjosaṇākappa (s. 73). But the Bhāsa (p. 109[b]) on Vavahāra (X) says as under:—

"इच्छंती सुमुमिणा बायाला चेव इंति महासुमिणा।
बायत्तरि सव्वसुमिणा वन्निज्जंते फलं तेसिं ॥ ११४ ॥"

4 This may be due to a penance or the study of this work. This is what is said in the following verse of Bhāsa (p. 110[a]) on Vavahāra:—

"तेयस्स निसरणं खलु आसीविसत्त तहेव दिट्ठिविसं। लद्धीतो समुप्पज्जे समहीएसुं तु एएसु ॥ ११७ ॥"

5 See Viāhapaṇṇatti (XV; s. 543). 6 See p. 36.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As stated in the Bhāsa (p. 108[b]) on Vavahāra (X), Vaggaculiyā is a cūliyā of Mahākappasuya.[1] The pertinent verse is as under:—

"अंगाणमंगचूली महाकप्पसुयस्स वग्गचूलीओ।
विवाहचूलिया पुण पण्णत्तीए मुणेयव्वा ॥ १०७ ॥"[2]

Mahāpaṇṇavaṇā—This work treats of the topics of Paṇṇavaṇā to a greater extent than what is done in Paṇṇavaṇā. Along with this it makes up the two Uvaṅgas of Samavāya.[3]

Pamāyappamāya—This ajjhayaṇa deals with five types[4] of pramāda and the cessation from them (i. e. apramāda).

Porisīmaṇḍala—This work mentions the porisīs pertaining to the different maṇḍalas.

Maṇḍalapavesa—This work throws light as to how the sun and the moon go from one maṇḍala to another.

Vijjācaraṇaviṇicchaya—This work deals with the nature and fructification of knowledge and character.

Jhāṇavibhatti—This work deals with the classifications of dhyāna (meditation).

Āyavisohi—This work points out repentence etc. as the ways of purifying a defiled soul.

Vīyarāgasuya—This work explains the nature of the passionate and the dispassionate.

---

1 Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 513[a]) on Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) however strikes a different note. For, he says:

"अङ्गस्य-आचारादेश्चूलिका यथाऽऽचारस्यानेकविधा, इहोक्तानुक्तार्थसङ्ग्राहिका चूलिका, वग्गचूलिय त्ति इह च वर्गः-अध्ययनादिसमूहः, यथा अन्तकृद्दशासु अष्टौ वर्गास्तस्य चूलिका वर्गचूलिका, विवाहचूलिय त्ति व्याख्याभगवती तस्याश्चूलिका व्याख्याचूलिका।"

2 Malayagiri Sūri while commenting upon this says:—

"अङ्गानामुपासकदशाप्रभृतीनां पञ्चानां चूलिका निरावलिका अङ्गचूलिका-महाकल्पश्रुतस्य चूलिका वर्गचूलिका व्याख्या पुनः प्रज्ञप्तेः-व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्तेश्चूलिका मन्तव्या।"-p. 108[b]

3 See p. 31, fn. 1.

4 Cf.-"मज्जं विसय कसाया निद्दा विगहा य पञ्चमी भणिया। एए पंच पमाया जीवं पाडन्ति संसारे॥"

This is a verse quoted by Yaśodeva Sūri in his com. (p. 64[a]) on Pakkhiyasutta.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Samlehaṇāsuya—This is a work which deals with dravya-samlekhanā and bhāva-samlekhanā. The former consists in reducing the necessities of life, and the latter, in controlling passions.

Vihārakappa—This work supplies a code governing the lives of the Sthavira-kalpins and the Jina-kalpins.

Caraṇavihi—This work has caraṇa (conduct of a clergy) as its subject-matter. This caraṇa includes the five great vows etc.

Nirayavisohi—As stated on p. 26, some look upon this work as ukkāliya suya.[1] But no additional information can be had about it except that it is extinct.

Maraṇavisohi—In Ācāradinakara (pt. II, p. 303[b]) we have a list of works belonging to the kāliya suya and ukkāliya suya, and therein this work is noted as ukkāliya.

Āyavibhatti—This work is noted as ukkāliya on p. 26. No further particulars are available except that it is extinct.

Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya[2]—This was one of the text-books for a Sādhu of 13 years' standing. It seems to be the same as Uṭṭhāṇasuya for the following reasons:

(i) In the edition of Vavahāra having Bhāsa and Malayagiri Sūri's com., there is Uṭṭhāṇasuya instead of Uṭṭhaṇapariyāvaṇiya. In Pañcavatthuga (v. 585), too, it is so.

(ii) In the Bhāsa (p. 109[a])[3] on Vavahāra (X), Devindovavāya is equated with Devindapariyāvaṇa. So, on this analogy Uṭṭhāṇasuya may be identified with Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya.

Ṭhiminabhāvaṇā—This was the text-book for a Sādhu of 14 years' standing according to Vavahāra. But, it is not so as can be seen from Pañcavatthuga (v. 586)[4].

---

1 On p. 26, l. 22, read ukkāliya-suya for kāliya-suya.

2 The word uṭṭhāṇapariyāṇiya occurs in Viāhapaṇṇatti (XV; s. 540); but there it is not used to denote this or any other work.

3 "तेरसवासे कप्पइ उट्ठाणसुए तहा समुट्ठाणे। देविंदं परियावण नागाण तहेव परियावणीया॥ १११॥"

4 This verse and verses 582–585 and 587 and 588 are quoted by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 301[b]) on Ṭhāṇa (V, I; s. 399).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Now I shall deal with the 10 Dasās. Kammavivāgadasā has 10 ajjhayaṇas. They are mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (X; s. 755) as under:- 1.

"मियापुत्ते १ त गोत्तासे २ अंडे ३ सगडे ति यावरे ४।
माहणे ५ नंदिसेणे ६ त, सोरिय त्ति ७ उदुंबरे ८॥
सहसुद्दाहे आमलते ९ कुमारे लेच्छती १० इति॥"

Out of these the 1st, the 4th, the 6th, the 7th and the 8th ajjhayaṇas agree in name with the 1st, 4th, the 6th, the 8th and the 7th of the 1st suyakkhandha of Vivāgasuya[1], whereas the 2nd, the 3rd, the 5th, the 9th and the 10th are equated with the 2nd, the 3rd, the 5th, the 9th and the 10th of the 1st suyakkhandha by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (pp. 507[b], 508[a] and 508[b]) on Ṭhāṇa. Thus it seems that none of the ajjhayaṇas of Kammavivāgadasā is lost. Same is the case with the 10 ajjhayaṇas of Uvāsagadasā.[2] For, their names as given in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) tally with those[3] given in Uvāsagadasā (p. 1). Antagaḍadasā has 10 ajjhayaṇas, the names of which are mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) as under:- 2. 3.

"णमि १ मातंगे २ सोमिले ३ रामगुत्ते ४ सुदंसणे ५ चेव।
जमाली ६ त भगाली त ७ किंकंमे ८ पल्लते ति य ९॥
फाले अंबडपुत्ते त १० एमेते दस आहिता॥"

Turning to the available Antagaḍadasā, we do not find therein these 10 ajjhayaṇas but come across 8 vaggas, and that the 1st vagga has ten ajjhayaṇas as noted in its following verse:—

"गोयम समुद्द सागर गंभीरे चेव होइ थिमिए य। अयले कंपिल्ले खलु अक्खोभ पसेणइ वण्ही॥"[4]

---

1 "मियापुत्ते य उज्झियए अभग्ग सगडे वहस्सइ नन्दी।
उम्बर सोरियदत्ते य देवदत्ता य अज्जू य॥"—Vivāgasuya (I)

2 "आणंदे १ कामदेवे २ अ गाहावति चूलणीपिता ३।
सुरादेवे ४ चुल्लसतते ५ गाहावति कुंडकोलिते ६॥
सद्दालपुत्ते ७ महासतते ८ णंदिणीपिया ९ सालतियापिता १०।"

3 We have here the above verses almost ad verbatim.

4 This verse is quoted by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 509[b]) on Ṭhāṇa, but there instead of Vaṇhi we have Viṇhū.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Thus the names herein entirely differ from those mentioned above.[1] Abhayadeva Sūri, however reconciles this incongruity by saying that this may be due to a difference in vācanās.[2] This view is strange; so, if it cannot be accepted, the old Antagaḍadasā should be looked upon as lost.

According to Thāṇa (s. 755), Aṇuttarovavāïyadasā has 10 ajjhayaṇas as noted below:—

"इसिदासे य १ धण्णे त २ सुणक्खत्ते य ३ कातिते ४ [ति य]।
सट्ठाणे ५ सालिभद्दे त ६ आणंदे ७ तेतली ८ ति त ॥
दसन्नभद्दे ९ अतिमुत्ते १० एमेते दस आहिया ॥"

On examining the available Aṇuttarovavāïyadasā, we find that it has 3 vaggas having 10, 13 and 10 ajjhayaṇas respectively. Their names are given there as below:—

---

1. All of them except Kiṅkama which occurs as a name of the 2nd ajjhayaṇa of the 6th vagga differ from the names of the ajjhayaṇas of the remaining 7 vaggas as can be seen from the following verses of the extant Antagaḍadasā:—

"अक्खोभ सागरे खलु समुद्द हिमवंत अयलनामे य। धरणे य पूरणे वि य अभिचंदे चेव अट्ठमए ॥"—p. 4

"अणीयसे अणंतसेणे अजियसेणे अहिणयरिऊ देवजसे सत्तुसेणे सारणे गए सुमुहे दुम्मुहे कूवए दारुए अणाहिट्ठी ॥"—p. 4

"जालि मयालि उवयालि पुरिससेणे य वारिसेणे य।
पज्जुन्न सम्ब अणिरुद्ध सच्चनेमी य दढनेमी य ॥"—p. 19

"पउमावई य गोरी गन्धारी लक्खणा सुसीमा य।
जम्बवई सच्चभामा रुप्पिणि मूलसिरि मूलदत्ता वि ॥"—p. 20

"मक्काती किंकमे चेव मोग्गरपाणी य कासवे।
खेमए धिइधरे चेव केलासे हरिचन्दणे ॥
वारत्त सुदंसण पुण्णभद्द सुमणभद्द सुपइट्ठे मेहे।
अइमुत्ते य अलक्खे अज्झयणाणं तु सोलसयं ॥"—p. 25

"नन्दा तह नन्दमई नन्दुत्तर नन्दसेणिया चेव।
मरुया सुमरुय महमरुय मरुदेवी य अट्ठमा ॥
भद्दा य सुभद्दा य सुजाया सुमणा इ या।
भूयदिन्ना य बोद्धव्वा सेणियभज्जाण नामाइं ॥"—p. 38

"काली सुकाली महाकाली कण्हा सुकण्हा महाकण्हा।
वीरकण्हा य बोद्धव्वा रामकण्हा तहेव य ॥
पिउसेणकण्हा नवमी दसमी महासेणकण्हा य।"—p. 38 (N. V. Vaidya's edn.)

2. "वाचनान्तरापेक्षाणीमानीति सम्भावयामः, न च जन्मान्तरनामापेक्षयैतानि भविष्यन्तीति वाच्यं, जन्मान्तराणां तत्रानभिधीयमानत्वादिति।"—p. 509[b]

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

"जालि मयालि उवयालि पुरिससेणे य वारिसेणे य।[1]
दीहदन्ते य लट्ठदन्ते य वेहल्ले वेहासे अभए इ य कुमारे॥"–p. 48
"दीहसेणे महासेणे लट्ठदन्ते य गूढदन्ते य सुद्धदन्ते।
हल्ले दुमे दुमसेणे महादुमसेणे य आहिए॥
सीहे य सीहसेणे य महासीहसेणे य आहिए।
पुण्णसेणे य बोद्धव्वे तेरसमे होइ अज्झयणे॥"–p. 50
"धन्ने व(?य) सुनक्खत्ते इसिदासे य आहिए।
पेल्लए रामपुत्ते य चन्दिमा [2]पुट्ठिमा इय॥
पेढालपुत्ते अणगारे नवमे पोट्टिले इय।
वेहल्ले दसमे वुत्ते इमेए दस आहिया॥"–p. 51 (N. V. Vaidya's edn.)

From this it follows that at best only the names of the 1st 3 ajjhayaṇas tally, and so Abhayadeva Sūri suggests that the names noted in Ṭhāṇa are according to some other vācanā. If this suggestion cannot be accepted, they must be supposed to be extinct.

The 10 ajjhayaṇas of Āyāradasā as noted in Ṭhāṇa[3] agree with those of the available one, and hence they are so to say in tact. 5.

As regards the 10 ajjhayaṇas of Paṇhāvāgaraṇadasā mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755),[4] they seem to be lost in toto; for, the available Paṇhāvāgaraṇa has 5 ajjhayaṇas dealing with āsrava and 5 with saṁvara, and the available Isibhāsiya has probably nothing to do with the 3rd ajjhayaṇa noted here, in fn. 4. 6.

As stated in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) Bandhadasā has 10 ajjhayaṇas as under:— 7.

"बंधे १ य मोक्खे २ य देवड्ढि ३ दसारमंडलेवित ४ आयरियविप्पडिवत्ती ५ उवज्झातविप्पडिवत्ती ६ भावणा ७ विमुत्ती ८ साती ९ कम्मे १०।"

---

1 These are also the names of the 1st 5 ajjhayaṇas of the 4th vagga of Antagaḍadasā.

2 In Abhayadeva Sūri's com. (p. 509b) on Ṭhāṇa, there is a variant "पोट्टिके".

3 "वीसं असमाहिट्ठाणा १ एगवीसं सबला २ तेत्तीसं आसायणातो ३. अट्ठविहा गणिसंपया ४ दस चित्तसमाहिट्ठाणा ५ एगारस उवासगपडिमातो ६ बारस भिक्खुपडिमातो ७ पज्जोसवणा कप्पो ८ तीसं मोहणिज्जट्ठाणा ९ आजाइट्ठाणं १०।"

4 "उवमा १ संखा २ इसिभासियाइं ३ आयरियभासिताइं ४ महावीरभासिआइं ५ खोमगपसिणाइं ६ कोमलपसिणाइं ७ अद्दागपसिणाइं ८ अंगुट्ठपसिणाइं ९ बाहुपसिणाइं १०।"

While explaining this, Abhayadeva Sūri notes on p. 512b: "'पसिणाइं' ति प्रश्नविद्या यकाभिः क्षौमकादिषु देवतावतारः क्रियते इति, तत्र क्षौमकं-वस्त्रं अद्दागो आदर्शः अङ्गुष्ठः-हस्तावयवः बाहवः-भुजा इति।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

If Bhavaṇā and Vimutti noted here cannot be identified with the 3rd and the 4th Cūlās of Āyāra, they, too, along with the remaining 8 ajjhayaṇas should be considered as lost.

8. Dogiddhidasā has 10 ajjhayaṇas. They are mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) as under:—

"वाते १ विवाते २ उववाते ३ सुक्खित्ते कसिणे ४ बायालीसं सुमिणे ५ तीसं महासुमिणा ६ बावत्तरिं सव्वसुमिणा ७ हारे ८ रामे ९ गुत्ते १०."

All of them are lost. From the titles of the ajjhayaṇas 5–7 it appears that they deal with dreams—a subject supposed to be treated in Mahāsuminabhāvaṇā.

9. As regards Dihadasā, we learn from Ṭhāṇa (s. 775) that it has 10 ajjhayaṇas. The pertinent portion is as under:—

"चंदे १ [1]सूरते २ सुक्के ३ त सिरिदेवी ४ पभावती ५
दीवसमुद्दोववत्ती ६ बहूपुत्ती ८ (?७) मंदरे ति त ९ (?८)
थेरे संभूतविजते ८ (?९) थेरे पम्ह ९ (?१०) ऊसासनीसासे ।"

In Pupphiyā (p. 21[b]) we come across the following verse which mentions its 10 ajjhayaṇas:—

"चंदे १ सूरे २ सुक्के ३ बहुपुत्तिय ४ पुन्नमाणिभद्दे ५-६ य । दत्ते ७ सिवे ८ बले या ९ अणाढिये १० चेव बोद्धव्वे ॥"

From this it may be inferred that the ajjhayaṇas 1, 2, 3 and 7 of Dihadasā are perhaps the same as the 1st 4 ajjhayaṇas of Pupphiyā. As regards the 4th, it may be equated with the 1st of Pupphacūlā.[2] Thus the rest seem to be lost.

10. So far as Saṅkhevitadasā is concerned, its 10 ajjhayaṇas as stated in Ṭhāṇa (s. 755) are those noted on p. 55, fn. 2. Out of them, only Aṅgacūliyā, Vaggacūliyā and Vivāhacūliyā are extant; the rest are extinct.

With these words about the 10 Dasās, I shall now refer to a remark in the introduction (p. 7) to Nirvāṇakalikā. It is as under:—

---

1 This appears to be a misreading. If so, it should be "सूरे त".

2 As stated herein it has 10 ajjhayaṇas noted in the following verse:—
"सिरि १ हिरि २ धिति ३ कित्ति(त्ती)ओ ४ बुद्धि(द्धी) ५ लच्छी ६ य होइ बोद्धव्वा । इलादेवी ७ सुरादेवी ८ रसदेवी ९ गन्धदेवी १० यं ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

"The most important feature of the work[1] is that it contains nearly 70 verses (Gathas[2]), some of which are actually quoted as from "Agamas"[3] and others are also probably from "Agamas"[4] although not expressly stated so to be. These verses cannot be identified in any of the available "Agamas"[5]".

If this statement is correct, it follows that either the available Āgamas are wanting in these Gāthās or that the corresponding Āgamas are now lost.

As regards the exegetical literature of the canonical texts, it may be noted that we have lost several Nijjuttis[6] etc. For instance, Govinda Vācaka's Nijjutti[7] is not available now, and so are Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Nijjuttis on Sūriyapaṇṇātti and Isibhāsiya. Even some of the Nijjuttis on Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha have long since become a dead letter.[8]

These are the details regarding the nature of the extinct Āgamas that I have been able to gather from some of the Jaina sources. I admit that in many a case they are nothing more than a mere guessing based upon their etymology. I may add that in certain cases it may be that even if the entire Jaina literature existing at present is fully investigated, it may not mend matters. Anyhow such an attempt is desirable as it can give us a final understanding about the nature of the extinct Āgamas.

In the end, before I conclude this chapter, I may tentatively suggest why these are lost. As already noted, certain ajjhayaṇas are sātisaya[9], and hence they were reserved to be studied by the

---

1 Nirvāṇakalikā.

2–5 No diacritical signs are here used.

6 That there was a fairly large number of Nijjuttis is borne out by the following line occurring in the Pakkhiyasutta (p. 66b):

"अंगबाहिरे कालिए भगवंते ससुत्ते सअत्थे सग्गंथे सन्निज्जुत्तीए ससंगहणीए"

7 This is mentioned in Visehacuṇṇi on Nisīha (XI) and Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 82). In the former we come across the following lines:—

"गोविन्दो नाम भिक्खू जे तो अट्ठारस वारा पुच्छा तेण एगिन्दियजीवसाहणं गोविन्दणिज्जुत्ती कया। एस णाणतेणो।"

8 See p. 80, fn. 4.

9 For instance, Mahāpariṇṇā (p. 78), Aruṇovavāya (p. 82), Uṭṭhāṇasuya (p. 101) and Samuṭṭhāṇasuya (p. 101) are some of them.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

selected few only—the few who were not going to misuse them. As the number of these persons slowly and slowly became less and less owing to the vicious period we are passing through, according to the Jaina tradition, it naturally brought about the extinction of the ajjhayaṇas in question. As regards the rest, it appears that they must have fallen into oblivion owing to the lack of interest on the part of those who had to study them.

This finishes the exposition about the extinct Āgamas whose number will go on increasing so much so that only four[1] of them will exist up to the end of the present tīrtha,[2] and thereafter they, too, will perish, and thus there will remain no Āgamas whatsoever, till a new epoch will dawn with the flourishing of Tīrthaṅkaras in India when the dvādaśāṅgīs etc. will be again composed. So says the Jaina tradition.

---

1 Out of them, Dasaveyāliya will be available only in meaning.

2 "वासाण सहस्सेण य एक्कवीसाए इहं 'भरह'वासे। दुसवेयालियअत्थो दुप्पसहजइंमि नासिहीति ॥ ५० ॥"
"इगवीससहस्साइं वासाणं वीरमोक्खगमणाओ। अव्वोच्छिन्नं होही आवस्सगं जाव तित्थं तु ॥ ५२ ॥ इगवीससहस्साइं वासाणं वीरमोक्खगमणाओ। अणुओगदार-नंदी अव्वोच्छित्ताउ जा तित्थं ॥ ५३ ॥"
—Titthogāli as suggested in Vividhaprašnottara (p. 188)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

III-170

CHAPTER V

THE EXTANT AGAMAS OF THE JAINAS

In the last chapter we dealt with the extinct Āgamas. So we shall here treat the extant ones which, together with the former, make up the Jaina canon. It is true that the Āgamas which we have to-day, are not the exact prototypes of those composed several centuries ago; for, they have undergone some changes, the linguistic ones and those introduced at the time of the Redaction of the canon being chief of them. The Āgamas available at present, however, confirm to their critical editions prepared under the able supervision of Devarddhi Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa. It appears that for several Āgamas, we have palm-leaf Mss. at least as old as the second quarter of the 12th century of the Vikrama era. It is neither possible nor necessary to consult them while dealing with the extant Āgamas; for, their printed editions seem to be fairly reliable.

1. ĀYĀRA

With these preliminary remarks, I shall now begin with Āyāra, the 1st Aṅga. It is divided into two suyakkhandhas[1], the 1st having at present 8 ajjhayaṇas[2] (formerly 9) and the 2nd 16.[3] Most of these ajjhayaṇas are sub-divided into uddesas[4], each of which consist of suttas. It appears that formerly there was only the 1st suyakkhandha comprising the following 9 ajjhayaṇas:-

---

1 Literally this means a trunk of (the tree of) the scripture. It may be roughly translated as 'section'. H. Jacobi has translated it as 'book'. See S. B. E. (vol. XXII, p. 1).

2 This word has been translated as 'lecture' by H. Jacobi.-Ibid., p. 1

3 Cf. "से णं अंगट्ठयाए पढमे अंगे, दो सुयक्खंधा, पणुवीसं अज्झयणा, पंचासीइ उद्देसणकाला" —Nandī (s. 46)

4 H. Jacobi has translated this as 'lesson'. See S. B. E. (vol. XXII, p. 1). Ajjhayaṇas 1 to 6, 8 and 9 of the 1st section have 7, 6, 4, 4, 6, 5, 8 and 4 uddesas respectively, whereas ajjhayaṇas 1 to 7 of the 2nd have 11, 3, 3, 2, 2, 2 and 2. Thus ajjhayaṇas 8 to 16 of the 2nd have no uddesas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(1) Satthapariṇṇā, (2) Logavijaya, (3) Sīosaṇijja, (4) Sammatta, (5) Logasāra, (6) Dhuya, (7) Mahāpariṇṇā, (8) Vimokkha, and (9) Uvahāṇasuya.[1]

By the time Bhadrabāhusvāmin wrote a Nijjutti on Āyāra, there were Āyāraggas added to this 1st section.[2] Āyāragga means a Cūlikā. So says Śīlāṅka Sūri in his com. (p. 6[b]) on Āyāra. From Āyāraṇijjutti (v. 11)[3] we learn that Āyāra, the 1st Aṅga, herein styled as Veda, has 9 ajjhayaṇas, each known as Bambhacera.[4] It consists of 18000 payas (Sk. padas), has 5 Cūlās and is vast and vaster[5] on account of the extent of the padas. It may be noted that nowhere in the Āyāraṇijjutti, we come across the names of all the 5 Cūlās. From its v. 297[6] we learn the names of Cūlās 2 to 5. They are (1) Sattikkagā, (2) Bhāvaṇā, (3) Vimutti and (4) Āyārapakappa. Further, we learn that the 1st Cūlā consists of 7 ajjhayaṇas,[7] and so is the case with the 2nd Cūlā. Each of the rest has, however, only one.[8] 1 These are the names given in Āyāraṇijjutti (v. 31–32) quoted on p. 77, fn. 5. All these except the 7th are translated in S. B. E. (vol. XXII) as knowledge of the weapon,[1] conquest of the world,[2] hot and cold,[3] righeousness,[4] essence of the world,[5] cleaning,[6] liberation[7] and the pillow of righteousness[8] respectively.

---

2 "आयारग्गाणत्थो बंभचेरेसु सो समोयरइ। सोऽवि य सत्थपरिण्णाएं पिंडिअत्थो समोसरइ ॥ १२ ॥"
—Āyāraṇijjutti

Āyāragga is also called Āyāraṅga. See p. 113, fn. 2.

3 See p. 78, fn. 6.

4 Cf. "नव बंभचेरा पन्नत्ता, तं जहा–सत्थपरिण्णा लोगविजओ etc.–Samavāya (s. 9). See also Samavāya (s. 51) and Śīlāṅka's com. (p. 290[a]) on Āyāra.

5 For explanation see p. 78, fn. 6.

6 "जावोग्गहपडिमाओ पढमा सत्तिक्कगा विइअचूला। भावण–विमुत्ति–आयारपकप्पा तिन्नि इअ पंच ॥२९७॥"

7 On this understanding can it not be named as Sattikkagā as has been done in the case of the 2nd Cūlā?

8 Thus, the 1st 4 Cūlās have 16 ajjhayaṇas. Their names are given as under by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 211[a]) on Nandī by way of a quotation:–
"पिंडेसण (१) सेज्जि(२)रिया (३) भासजाया (४) य वत्थ (५) पाएसा (६)। उग्गहपडिमा (७) सत्तसत्तिक्कया (८–१४) य भावण (१५) विमुत्ती (१६) ॥"
Herein there are no specific names for ajjhayaṇas 8–14. In a way, this is justifiable since each of them is spoken of as Sattikkayā or Sattikkagā or the like. However, from the ending portion of each of them

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

That the second suyakkhandha is a later addition[1] to the 1st, is borne out by the following considerations:—

(i) As suggested in Āyāraniijjutti (v. 287)[2] Āyārañgas (i. e. to say the 5 Cūlās) have been composed by the Sthaviras—the Śrutakevalins,[3] who extracted them from the 1st suyakkhandha known as Āyāra.

(ii) The sources for the five Cūlās are definitely pointed out in Āyāraniijjutti (v. 288–291).[4]

(iii) Several European scholars hold this view.[5]

Such being the case, I may mention the following particulars by way of a corroborative evidence:—

(i) Śīlāṅka Sūri points out the maṅgalas, the initial, the middle and the last from the 1st suyakkhandha only.[6]

---

we learn the names of the 1st four Sattikkagās as Thāṇā, Nisihiyā, Uccārapāsavaṇa, and Sadda respectively. The rest can be named as Rūva, Parakiriyā and Annamannakiriyā.

1 This cannot be dated later than the composition of Āyārantjutti.

2 "थेरेहिंऽणुग्गहट्ठा सीसहिअं होउ पागडत्थं च। आयाराओ अत्थो आयारेसु पविभत्तो ॥ २८७॥"

3 "'स्थविरैः' श्रुतवृद्धैः—चतुर्दशपूर्वविद्भिर्निर्यूढानीति"—Śīlāṅka's com. (p. 282[a])

4 "विइअस्स य पंचमए अट्ठमगस्स विइयंमि उद्देसे। भणिओ पिंडो[1] सिज्जा[2] वत्थं[3] पाउग्गहो[4]-[5] चेव ॥ २८८ ॥ पंचमगस्स चउत्थे इरिया[6] वण्णिज्जई समासेणं। छट्ठस्स य पंचमए भासज्जाय[7] वियाणाहि ॥ २८९ ॥ सत्तिक्कगाणि[8]-[9] सत्त वि निज्जूढाइं महापरिन्नाओ। सत्थपरिन्ना भावण[10] निज्जूढाओ धुय विमुत्ती"॥२९०॥ आयारपकप्पो[11] पुण पच्चक्खाणस्स तइयवत्थूओ। आयारनामधिज्जा वीसइमा पाहुडच्छेया ॥ २९१ ॥"

5 In S. B. E. (vol. XXII, intro., p. XLI), it is said: "I am of opinion that the first book of the Âkârâṅga Sûtra and that of Sûtrakṛitâṅga Sûtra may be reckoned among the most ancient parts of the Siddhânta." On p. XLVII we have: "The first book, then, is the oldest part of the Âkârâṅga Sûtra; it is probably the old Âkârâṅga Sûtra itself to which other treatises have been added."

In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, pp. 435–436) it is said: "The first Aṅga is the Āyāraṃga-Sutta. In two lengthy sections (s'ruta-skandha) it treats of the way of life (āyāra, Sansk. ācāra) of a monk. The first section, which makes a very archaic impression, is most decidedly earlier than the second, and yet even the first is a mosaic pieced together from heterogeneous elements." On p. 437 it is said: "Section II of the Āyāraṃga is a much later work, as can be seen by the mere fact of the subdivisions being described as Cūlās, i. e., "appendices".

6 See intro. (p. XLVII) to S. B. E. (vol. XXII). Here it is said: "Śîlâṅka points out as such the first sentence of the first lesson of the

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(ii) Both the suyakkhandhas evidently differ from each other in style and in the manner in which the subject is treated.[1] By the by it may be noted that there is a difference in style in the case of the 3rd Cūlā and the two preceeding ones. This is probably due to the diversity of the matter.[2]

Some even go to the length of saying that the 1st ajjhayaṇa of the 1st suyakkhandha is the oldest of all its ajjhayaṇas, and is written in the most archaic language. If this is correct, we can say that there are at least[3] three strata in Āyāra: (a) the very first ajjhayaṇa, (b) the remaining ones of the 1st suyakkhandha and (c) the 2nd suyakkhandha.

We may now turn to the contents[4] of the Āyāra. As its very name suggests, it deals with rules and regulations pertaining to the conduct of the Jaina clergy,[5] and it is thus an example of caraṇakaraṇānuyoga. Uvāsagadasā which has for its subject-matter the discipline of the Jaina laity, may be looked upon as its compliment. As regards the details about the contents of Āyāra, the titles of one and all the ajjhyaṇas indicate them. Even then it may be pointed out that ahiṁsā is held out as an ideal, and the means to refrain from hiṁsā and the rigidity of the monastic life are here treated at length. To conclude, the 1st Cūlā deals with topics associated with the begging of food, a couch, first lecture, the first sentence of the fifth lesson of the fifth lecture, and the latter half of the 16th verse in the fourth lesson of the eighth lecture of the first book."

---

1 Ibid., p. XLVII. 2 Ibid., p. LII.

3 The 5 Cūlās are not the composition of one and the same author, as can be seen from p. 113, fn. 2. So they present different strata according to their chronological order of composition. Moreover, if it is true that the verses and their fragments which are liberally interspersed with the prose of the 1st section, are older than the correspesponding passages in prose—a view held by some scholars, it furnishes us with another kind of strata.

4 Vasunandin in his com. Ācāravṛtti on Vaṭṭakera's Mūlāyāra observes that Vaṭṭakera intended to give in this work of his, a brief summary of the Āyāra. Cf. A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 577).

5 "आचारो ज्ञानादिर्यत्र कथ्यते स आचारः"—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

clothes and a bowl, and with the modes of speech[1] and the regulation of possession. . . . . .

The 2nd Cūlā gives rules regarding religious postures, the places of study and those for easing nature. Moreover, it points out the places the clergy should avoid e. g. the places where musical instruments are being played upon. In short, the clergy should withstand the temptations of sound, colour etc. . . . . .

. . . . Before I deal with the 3rd Cūlā, I may mention that Nisīha has certain suttas agreeing with those of the 1st two Cūlās. . . .

The 3rd Cūlā furnishes us with materials pertaining to the biography of Lord Mahāvīra—the materials embodied in several cases[2] in phrases recurring in Pajjosaṇākappa.[3] It also deals with the five mahāvratas and the reflections associated with them. . . .

. . . . The 4th Cūlā which marks the end of the Āyāra, contains 12 verses, the contents of which may remind a Bauddha scholar of Therāgāthās. . . . . .

. . This much may be deemed sufficient so far as the contents[4] of Āyāra are concerned. So I shall now mention the following

---

1 Here it is said that the words like hole and gole should not be used; for, they are abusive terms. They are translated in S. B. E. (vol. XXII, p. 151) as "you loon! you lout!" In the fn. of this page we have:—

My conjectural translation is based on the meaning of the Sanskrit words hoḍâ, golâ."

It may be noted that hole, gole and vasule occur in Dasaveyāliya (VII, 14), and the words hola, vasula and gola in Nāyādhammakahā (I, 9; s. 84).

2 For instance §§ 1, 2, 7, 8, 10, 14, 15, 15, 17 and 23 of Bhāvaṇā can be respectively compared with §§ 1, 2, 97, 98, 90, 10, 108, 109, 110 and 117 of Pajjosaṇākappa. See S. B. E. (vol. XXII).

3 The author of Āyāraniijjutti is supposed to be the same as that of Pajjosaṇākappa. If this is correct, the author of the latter must have borrowed from Āyāra. For, firstly Bhāvaṇā is extracted form Sattha-pariṇṇā, and secondly it is a work of a Sthavira other than the one who wrote a Nijjutti on it.

4 Incidentally it may be mentioned that in this Āyāra (I, vi, 1) there is a description of the untarnished soul, and that there is a reference to 16 diseases as under:— . . . . . .

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

factors whereby the 3rd and the 4th Cūlās cannot be looked upon as brought by Jyesthā from Lord Sīmandhara, though, so suggested in Pariśiṣṭaparvan (IX, v. 97–100).

(i) Jyesthā is a contemporary of Bhadrabāhusvāmin according to the Pariśiṣṭaparvan, and this very Bhadrabāhusvāmin informs us in his Āyāraniijjutti (v. 290) that Bhāvanā, the 3rd Cūlā, is extracted from Satthaparinnā, and Vimutti, the 4th Cūlā, from Dhuya.

(ii) The last verse of Dasaveyāliyaniijjutti, too, confirms this opinion; for, it speaks of only two Cūlās and not four, and they are supposed to be identical with the ones occurring at the end of Dasaveyāliya.[1]

(iii) As already noted on p. 45, Haribhadra Sūri mentions a tradition dealing with one Cūlā only.

All these factors go against Pariśiṣṭaparvan. But then there arises a question as to on what basis Hemacandra Sūri gave the episode in Pariśiṣṭaparvan. Was it a tradition that he narrated or had he any specific work to rely upon? Leaving this question for future investigation, I may note the following points:–

गण्डी अदुवा कोढी रायंसि अवमारियं। काणियं झिम्मियं चेव कुणियं खुज्जियं तहा॥
उयरिं च पास मुयिं (? मूयं) च सूणियं च गिलासिणं। वेवयं पीढ-सप्पिं च सिलिवइं मधु-मेहिणं॥
सोलस एए रोगा अक्खाया अणुपुव्वसो। अह णं फुसन्ति आयंका फासा य असमञ्जसा॥"

These 16 diseases may be translated as below:–

Boils (? scrofula), leprosy, consumption, epilepsy, blindness, stiffness, lameness, hump-backedness, dropsy, dumbness, apoplexy (?), morbid appetite from overdigestion, tremour, crippledness, elephantiasis and diabetes.

It may be noted that these have very little in common with the 16 diseases mentioned in Vivāgasuya (I) as under:—

"सासे कासे जरे दाहे कुच्छिसूले भगन्दरे।
अरिसा अजीरए दिट्ठीमुद्धसूले अकारए।
अच्छिवेयणा कण्णवेयणा कण्डू उयरे कोढे।"

[1] "आओ दो चूलाओ आणीआ जक्किणीए अज्जाए। सीमंधरपासाओ भवियाणं विबोहणट्ठाए॥ ४४७॥"

This verse is looked upon by some as spurious. But it should not be forgotten that in Dasaveyāliyaniijjutti, there is a reference to two Cūlās. The pertinent verse is as under:—

"दो अज्झयणा चूलिय विसीयंते थिरीकरणमेगं। विइए विवित्तचरिया असीयणगुणाइरेगफला॥ २४॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(i) The 1st ajjhayaṇa opens with the well-known sentence "सुयं मे आउसं भगवया एवमक्खायं"[1], and all its uddesas as well as those of the rest of the 1st suyakkhandha and some of the 2nd, too, end with "त्ति बेमि".

(ii) So far as I know it is not specifically mentioned as to who separated Nisīha from Āyāra. Even the reason of doing so is not stated. So I may suggest that the idea of teaching only the deserving may have been the cause of separating Nisīha from Āyāra. To be explicit, as already noted on p. 82, the nuns were debarred from studying Nisīha, a sātisaya work; but they were permitted to study Āyāra. So, from the days the above-mentioned restriction came into force, Nisīha must have got separated from Āyāra.

(iii) Āyāra (II, 1, 10, 6[2]) has been once a matter of great controversy between the Jainas and the late Prof. Jacobi. The latter translated the words मंस and मच्छ by meat and fish and thereby suggested that the Jaina ascetics in olden days accepted these articles of food. He, however, expressed his revised opinion in his letter[3] dated 14-2-28. There he has said that "बहुअट्ठियेण मंसेण वा मच्छेण वा बहुकण्टएण" has been used in the metaphorical sense as can be seen from the illustration of नान्तरीयकत्व given by Patañjali in discussing a Vārtika ad Pāṇini (III, 3, 9[4]) and from Vācaspatimiśra's com. on Nyāyasūtra (IV, 1, 54[5]). He has concluded: "This meaning of

1 This furnishes us with an example of a gama, and as such it is interpreted in 8 ways by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 212[a]) on Nandī, while illustrating a gama from the stand-point of abhidheya (artha), the other view-point being abhidhāna.

2 "से भिक्खू वा जाव समाणे सिया णं परो बहुअट्ठियेण मंसेण वा बहुकंटएण मच्छेण वा उवनिमंतिज्जा—आउसंतो समणा! अभिकंखसि बहुअट्ठियं मंसं बहुकंटयं मच्छं वा पडिगाहित्तए? एयप्पगारं निग्घोसं सोच्चा निसम्म से पुव्वामेव आलोइज्जा—आउसो त्ति वा र नो खलु मे कप्पइ बहु० पडिगा०, अभिकंखसि मे दाउं जावइयं पुग्गलं दलयाहि।" (s. 281).

3 This original letter is in my possession and has been printed in my article Prohibition of Flesh-eating in Jainism published in "The Review of Philosophy and Religion" (vol. IV, No. 2).

4 The pertinent lines are: "कश्चिन्मांसार्थी मत्स्यान् सशकलान् सकण्टकानाहरति नान्तरीयकत्वात्। स यावदादेयं तावदादाय शकलकण्टकान्युत्सृजति। एवमिहापि". This passage is repeated ad verbatim in the Mahābhāṣya ad IV, 1 92.

5 "तस्मान्मांसार्थीव कण्टकानुद्धृत्य मांसमश्नन्नानर्थं कण्टकजन्यमाप्नोतीत्येवं प्रज्ञावान् दुःखमुद्धृत्येन्द्रियादिसाधनं सुखं भोक्ष्यते।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the passage is therefore, that a monk should not accept as alms any substance of which only a part can be eaten and a great part must be rejected.".

(iv) The date of the composition of Āyāra can be settled from the metres used in it. An attempt in this direction was made by the late Prof. H. Jacobi in S. B. E. (vol. XXII, intro. XLI–XLII). There he has said:—

"Again, ancient Pâli works seem to contain no verses in the Âryâ metre; at least there is none in the Dhammapadam, nor have I found one in other works. But both the Âkârâṅga and Sûtrakṛitâṅga contain each a whole lecture in Âryâ verses of a form which is decidedly older than, and probably the parent of the common Âryâ... From all these facts we must conclude that the chronological position of the oldest parts of the Gaina literature is intermediate between the Pâli literature and the composition of the Lalita Vistara."

In this connection the late K. H. Dhruva has observed in his Evolution of Gujarati verse[1] (p. 171) that the German scholar Jacobi believes that the composition of Suttanipāta is followed by that of Dhammapada, and those of Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa are even later than those of these Bauddha works. Further, on p. 173, Dhruva says that there is a slip on the part of Jacobi in naming Gāthānuṣṭubhī saṁsṛṣṭi[2] as the olden Aryā and in assigning to Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa a date later than that of Dhammapada, on the ground that this metre is used in these two Jaina works. For, this metre is used even in Suttanipāta[3] in its Mettasutta and Tuvaṭṭakasutta[4], and consequently it should be looked upon as

1 This work is written in Gujarātī and is named as under:—
"પદ્યરચનાની ઐતિહાસિક આલોચના."

2 This metre is used for Thiparinnā and Uvāhāṇasuya. The latter is edited as it is and also as it should be from the metrical view-point by K. H. Dhruva in Evolution of Gujarati verse (pp. 185–196).

3 In this connection, K. H. Dhruva has observed on p. 174 as under:—
"લુપ્ત થયેલા શબ્દો જૂના પ્રયોગો અને ભિક્ષુની સાદી અસલી રહેણીકરણીને આધારે ઠરી ચૂક્યું છે કે સુત્તનિપાત જૂનામાં જૂનો બૌદ્ધ પદ્યાત્મક સંગ્રહ છે. બૌદ્ધ સંઘની સ્થાપના તે એનો પૂર્વ અવધિ મનાય છે. આયાર અને સૂયગડ અંગ એકજ જૈન મુનિની કૃતિ છે, ત્યારે સુત્તનિપાત અનેક ભિન્નકાળના બૌદ્ધ ભિક્ષુનાં સુત્તોનો સંગ્રહ છે."

4 "એનું મેત્તસુત્ત સમગ્ર અને તુવટ્ટકસુત્તનો મોટો ભાગ પણ એ જ મિશ્ર છંદમાં છે."
—Ibid., p. 172

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri younger to Dhammapada—a situation no scholar can approve of. On p. 174 he concludes this topic by saying that the canonical literature (suttasāhitya) of the Jainas is as old as that of the Bauddhas, and to be more exact, it seems that some of the suttas of Suttanipāta[1] are anterior to and some are posterior to those of Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa whereas some are even contemporaneous with those of these Jaina works.[2]

2. SŪYAGAḌA

Sūyagaḍa—This is the 2nd Aṅga having 3 titles as noted on p. 53. It is divided into 2 suyakkhandhas.[3] Out of them the 1st has 16 ajjhayaṇas, whereas the 2nd 7. Thus, in all there are 23 ajjhayaṇas.[4] But, only the 1st 5 ajjhayaṇas and those, too, of the 1st suyakkhandha only, have uddesas, their respective numbers being 4, 3, 4, 2 and 2; the rest have no uddesas whatsoever. The 1st suyakkhandha has all its ajjhayaṇas except the 16th (last) entirely in verse[5]. But, so far as the 2nd suyakkhandha is concerned, it has its 1st 2 ajjhayaṇas, the 4th and the 7th wholly in prose whereas the 3rd in prose with 4 verses almost at the end, and the 5th and the 6th entirely in verse.

---

૧ "પદ્યબંધની કસોટી સૂચવે છે કે એ સંગ્રહનો ત્રિષ્ટુભાનુષ્ટુભી સંસૃષ્ટિમાં રચાયલાં સુત્તવાળો ભાગ આચાર અને સૂયગડથી કંઈક જૂનો જણાય છે; અને કૌટાલિયક કુટુંબ સાથે સંબંધ ધરાવતો ભાગ હાલ જૈન અંગોથી અધીં સદી મોડો રચાયેલો સંભવે છે. સંપૂર્ણ આર્યા એમાં ઉપલબ્ધ નથી તે કારણથી પ્રસ્તુત બૌદ્ધ સુત્ત શય્યંભવ મુનિના દસવેઆલિયની પૂર્વે ગોઠવાય છે."—Ibid., p. 174

૨ "સુત્તનિપાતમાં કેટલાંક સુત્તો આચાર અને સૂયગડ અંગ પહેલાનાં, કેટલાંક તે બેના પછીનાં અને કેટલાંક સમકાલીન લાગે છે.—Ibid., p. 174

3 I do not know if there is any source which mentions the specific names of both of these sections. From Śīlaṅka's com. (p. 8[a]) on Sūyagaḍa we see that the 1st section is named as Gāthāṣoḍaṣaka (Pr. Gāhāsoḍasaya), i. e. one of which Gāhā is the 16th aijhayaṇa.

4 Cf. the following verse of Sūyagaḍanijjutti:—
"दो चेव सुयक्खन्धा अज्झयणाइं च होन्ति तेवीसं। तेत्तिसुद्देसणकाला आयारागो दुगुणमङ्गं ॥ २२ ॥"

5 They are in different metres such as Anuṣṭup, Vaitāliya etc. Prof. Jacobi in Z. D. M. G. (vol. XXXVIII, 593 and vol. XLV, 101) has noted that Vaitāliya stanzas and Yamakas occur.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As regards the language of this 2nd Aṅga, it is said in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 431):

"The most archaic language is to be found in the Ayāraṃga-Sutta, and next to this, in the Sūyagaḍaṃga-Sutta and the Uttarajjhayaṇa. Ardha-māgadhī is quite different from Jaina-Māhārāṣṭrī, the dialect of the non-canonical Jaina texts."

As regards the authorship of both the suyakkhandhas the Jaina tradition is unanimous in believing it to be a work of one and the same Ganadhara. It seems Prof. Winternitz differs; for, in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 438) he says:—

"This Aṅga, too, consists of two books, the second of which is probably only an appendix, added later, to the old Aṅga which we have in the 1st book."

I, however, do not endorse this opinion especially when Prof. Schubring in his Worte Mahavīras (p. 17 f.) observes that Sūyagaḍa (II, I) "is closely related to Āyāra I (Bambhacerāiṃ) both in wording and mode of expression."[1] and when K. H. Dhruva attributes the authorship of both of these works to the same author.[2]

We may now note the contents of Sūyagaḍa.[3] To begin with, we may quote Samavāya (s. 23) where the names of all the 23 ajjhayaṇas are given, since these names, being significant, help us in this direction:—

"तेवीसं सूयगडज्झयणा पन्नत्ता, तं जहा समए १ वेतालिए[4] २ उवसग्गपरिण्णा ३ थीपरिन्ना ४ नरयविभत्ती ५ महावीरथुई ६ कुसीलपरिभासए ७ वीरिए ८ धम्मे ९ समाही १० मग्गे ११ समोसरणे १२ आहत्तहिए १३ गंथे १४ जमईए[5] १५ गाथा

---

1 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 441 n).

2 See p. 118, fn. 3.

3 "सङ्गीकृता ज्ञानक्रियादयो यत्र वादिनस्तत् सूत्रकृतम्"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha

4 This name occurring in I, 2, 1, 22 is doubly interpreted in Sūyagaḍaniijjutti (v. 28): (i) vaidārika or destroyer of karmans and (ii) vattālika, the metre in which it is composed.

5 This title is explained in two ways: (i) indicating the opening words and (ii) suggesting the śṛṅkhalābaddha-yamaka. The latter fact has been noted in Sūyagaḍaniijjutti as under, while its another title Āyaṇijja is being explained:—

"जं पढमस्सऽन्तिमए विज्जस्स उ तं इवेज्ज आदिम्मि ।
एएणायाणिज्जं एसो अन्नो वि पज्जाओ ॥१३३॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

१६[1] पुंडरीए १७ किरियाठाणा १८ आहारपरिण्णा १९ [अप्]पच्चक्खाणकिरिया २० अणगारसुयं २१ अद्दइज्जं २२ णालंदज्जं २३"

These titles are translated by the late Prof. Jacobi as under in S. B. E. (vol. XLV, contents):—

"The doctrine,[1] the destruction of Karman,[3] the knowledge of troubles,[4] knowledge of women,[5] description of the hells,[6] praise of Mahāvīra,[7] description of the wicked,[8] on exertion,[9] the law,[10] carefulness, the path, the creed,[13] the real truth,[14] the Nirgrantha,[15] the Yamakas, the song,[17] the lotus,[18] on activity,[19] knowledge of food, renunciation of activity, freedom from error, Ârdraka and Nâlandâ."

On p. 249 of this work he has written the following foot-note, in connection with the title of the 2nd ajjhayaṇa:—

"The name of this lecture, which occurs in its last line, is vêyâliya, because, as the author of the Niryukti remarks, it treats on vidârika, destruction (of Karman), and because it is composed in the Vaitâliya metre[2].

1 In Samavāya (s. 16) the names of these 16 ajjhayaṇas are given with some slight variation here and there with the opening words viz. "सोलस य गाहा सोलसगा पन्नत्ता." Can we hereby infer that the generic title of each of the 16 ajjhayaṇas is Gāhā?

2 "નિર્યુક્તિકારને અનુસરીને જર્મન વિદ્વાન જેકોબી સૂયગડ અંગના ઇંગ્રેજી અનુવાદ (S. B. E. Series Vol. XLV)માં પ્રાકૃત વૈતાલીય બોલ the destruction of Karman (=કર્મનું વિદારણ કે વિદલન) એવા અર્થમાં લે છે, અને એ પ્રાકૃત બોલને વેઆલીયનું રૂપાંતર માની વૈતાલીય છંદનો પણ અર્થ ઊપજાવે છે. એમાં બહુ વાંધા આવે છે. પ્રથમ તો સં. वि+दृ અથવા वि+दल् ધાતુ ઉપરથી વિઆલિય (સં. विदारित) અથવા તો વિઅલિય (સં. विदलित) શબ્દ અનુક્રમે અગ્રિમ પ્રાકૃતમાં નીપજે, પણ વેઆલિય ન નીપજે. એ રૂપ તો અંતઃપાતી એ નહિ. પણ ઉત્તર પ્રાકૃતમાં સંભવે, ઉત્તરકાલીન રૂપના પ્રયોગ સામે સમયવિરોધના વાંધા ઉપરાંત બીજો એક વાંધો ઊભો થાય છે. એની વ્યુત્પત્તિ સં. वि+दृ અથવા તો वि+दल् ઉપરથી સાધી 'નાશ' અર્થ કરી શકાય, પણ 'કર્મનો નાશ' એવો અર્થ શી રીતે શક્ય બને? પોતાની કલ્પના અબાધિત છે એમ માની લેઈ જર્મન વિદ્વદ્વર્ય સૂયગડના પ્રથમ શ્રુતસ્કંધના પંદરમા અજ્ઝયણની જમકય સંજ્ઞાનો પડઘો આપે છે, પરંતુ આ સંજ્ઞા દ્વિઅર્થી છે નહિ. જમદ્અ (સં. यमकित) બોલનો એક જ અર્થ શક્ય છે, યમકવાળું. એ શબ્દને અજ્ઝયણના આદ્ય પ્રતીક જમકય સાથે કંઈ પણ સંબંધ હોય, તો યમકનો પ્રયોગ સૂચવવાનો છે. એમણે પસંદ કરેલા દૃષ્ટાંતમાં બે અર્થ છે જ નહિ. પંદરમા અજ્ઝયણનાં આયાણિય અને સંકલિય નામાંતર યમક કિંવા શૃંખલાયમકનાં વાચક છે. બીજો કોઇ અર્થ એમાંથી બલાત્કારે જ-ખેંચી તાણીને જ કઢાય. જમકય અને વેઆલીય શબ્દ અનુક્રમે અલંકારશાસ્ત્રના યમક અલંકારના અને છંદઃશાસ્ત્રના વૈતાલીય છન્દના બોધક છે. પ્રસ્તુત બે અજ્ઝયણનાં નામ વિષય ઉપરથી નહિ, પણ છન્દના અને શબ્દાલંકારના પ્રયોગ ઉપરથી જ રાખવામાં આવ્યાં છે."

—Evolution of Gujarati verse, p. 169n.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

For either word, vaidârika (or rather vaidâlika, cf. karmavidalana) and vaitâliya may, in Gaina Prâkrit, become vêyâliya or vetâliya. A play of words was apparently intended; it would have been impossible, if both words had not become identical in sound. We may, therefore, conclude that the language of the author obeyed the same phonetic laws as the Gaina Prâkrit exhibited in our Mss., or in other words, that the text has been written down in about the same language in which it was originally composed. The name of the Fifteenth Lecture leads to the same inference, for it is called gamaiya (yamakiya) because each of its verses contains the verbal ornament called yamaka, and because it opens with the words gamaiyam (yad atitam)."

As regards the title of the 15th lecture he has said as under on p. 329 by way of a foot-note:—

"This lecture has been named from its opening words gamaiyam, which also means, consisting of yamakas (compare Journal of the German Oriental Society, vol. xl, p. 101). For in this lecture each verse or line opens with a word repeated from the end of the preceding one. This artifice is technically called srinkhala-yamaka, or chain-yamaka, a term which seems to be contained in another name of our lecture, mentioned by the author of the Niryukti (verse 28), viz. âdâniya-sankaliyâ. For sankaliyâ is the Prâkrit for srinkhalâ (c. g. in our text, 1, 5, 2, 20), though Silânka here renders it wrongly sankalita; and âdâniya by itself is used as a name of our lecture."

This 2nd Anga wherein we come across a number of similes[1] deals with the refutation of heretical doctrines. Its 1st two ajjhayanas explain the holy life and give us a graphic description of the difficulties a monk should surmount and especially the temptations he should face boldly. The 3rd ajjhayana vividly depicts the various works exacted from a male who has become a slave of his wife owing to his being unduly attached to her, and thereby furnishes us with materials throwing light on the Hindu Society of those days. Then we have an entire ajjhayana which treats of hells and the gruesome torments therein.[2] This is followed

1 For example see I, 1, 2, 15 & 19; I, 2, 1, 15; I, 3, 1, 2 and I, 14, 2. For additional illustrations, the reader may refer to such verses as begin with एवम्. The number of these verses is, no doubt, enormous.

2 In this connection, in A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 440) it is said:—
"Like the authors of so many texts of the Purânas and Buddhist Suttas, a section of this Jaina Anga, too dwells with truly Sadistic complacency on the fantastic description of the hells..."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

by the praise of Lord Mahāvīra whom the author depicts as the standard of righteousness. Then we have later on the well-known four heresies: ajñānavāda, vinayavāda, akriyāvāda and kriyāvāda.[1] This finishes a rough survey of the 1st suyakkhandha. Turning to the 2nd we find that it has practically the same themes as the 1st; for, it, too, deals with polemics, which give us at least a glimpse of the various religious sects[2] of the olden India. In the end we have disputations of Ārdra with Gośāla, a Bauddha, a Vaidika priest, a Vedāntin and a Hastitāpasa, and that of Udaka, a follower of Lord Pārśva with Gautama.

Thus the contents of this 2nd Aṅga supply a young monk with materials whereby he can fortify himself against the heretical doctrines of alien teachers and preachers, can confirm himself in the right faith and can lead himself to the summum bonum.

Metres—There seems to be no old source which discusses the metres of verses of Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa. As already observed on p. 118 this question has been however handled in modern days by the late Prof. Jacobi and by the late K. H. Dhruva. The latter observes in Evolution of Gujarati verse (p. 152) as under:—

"સુત્તકાલના સાંપ્રત વ્યાખ્યાનમાં આધાર તરીકે સ્વીકારેલાં આયાર અને સૂયગડ અંગમાં ચાર જ છંદનો પ્રયોગ છે, અનુષ્ટુભ્નો ત્રિષ્ટુભ્નો વૈતાલીય (પ્રા. વેઆલીય)-નો અને ગાથાનુષ્ટુભી સંસૃષ્ટિનો. સૌમાં અધિક પ્રચાર અનુષ્ટુભ્નો છે."

On p. 154 he quotes a verse from Sūyagaḍa (I, 1, 4, 8) and names its metre as Sautta anuṣṭubh. Further, on this page he says that in Sūyagaḍa, Ārcika triṣṭubh is used 46 times, Traiṣṭubhī upajāti 92 times and Indravajrā 25 times. As an illustration of Sautta triṣṭubh he quotes on p. 156 Sūyagaḍa (1, 14, 17), and for that of Vaitālīya, 1, 2, 2, 20 on p. 157. Here he says that in Sūyagaḍa there is not a single verse in Vṛddhavaitāliya usually known as Aupacchandasika in prosody. On p. 158 is quoted I, 2, 1, 6 as an illustration of a verse of which the 1st foot is in Vṛddhavaitālīya and the rest in Vaitālīya. The metre of which

1 For details see my intro. (pp. 58–62) to Tattvārtha (vol. II). For a discussion in German see E. O. Schrader's Über den stand der Indischen Philosophie zur Zeit Mahāvīras und Buddhas (Strassburg, 1902).

2 See Schools and Sects in Jaina Literature by Mr. Amulya Chandra Sen.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

there is no name to be found in prosody and which is designated by K. H. Duruva as Gāthānuṣṭubhī saṁsṛṣṭi in virtue of its being a combination of Anuṣṭubh and Gāthā, is used in both the uddesas of Thīpariṇṇā and in the ending portions of some other ajjhayaṇas as well. On p. 159, 3 verses are quoted from Sūyagaḍa. They are: I, 4, 1, 4; I, 1, 3, 16; and I, 1, 8, 26. Out of these the 1st has its 1st and 3rd feet in Anuṣṭubh, the 2nd in Vṛddhatara gāthika khaṇḍa (18 mātrās) and the 4th in Vṛddha khaṇḍa (15 mātrās). As regards the remaining two verses, each has its 1st 3 feet in Anuṣṭubh whereas the 4th in Gāthika khaṇḍa of 15 and 18 matrās respectively. I, 2, 3, 22[1] of Sūyagaḍa is in Jāgatānuṣṭubhī saṁsṛṣṭi.

3. THĀṆA

Ṭhāṇa is the 3rd Aṅga. It is divided into ten sections known as ajjhayaṇas,[2] with no specific names for them except Ekasthānaka, Dvisthānaka, Tristhānaka etc., up to Daśasthānaka–the names probably coined by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. on this Ṭhāṇa. Some of these sections have sub-sections known as uddesas. For instance, sections II, III, IV and V have 4, 4, 4 and 3 uddesas, whereas the rest have none. Nevertheless each section is divided into suttas.[3] Their total number is 783.

The entire work is mostly in prose,[4] and each section of it deals with objects according to their number,[5] the maximum number going up to 10. In section III (s. 128) persons are divided into 3 classes, best, mediocre and worst, and these are each further subdivided into 3 sub-classes. In section VII, are mentioned 7 nayas (s. 552), 7 svaras or the notes of the musical scale (s. 553[6]), 7

1 In the edition used by K. H. Dhruva, it seems that this is written as if it is in prose. So he modifies it slightly on p. 162n and turns it into a verse.

2 For corroboration see p. 21, fn. 1. At times ajjhayaṇas are called ṭhāṇas. See the end of V, i.

3 The very 1st sutta is: "सुयं मे आउसं ! तेणं भगवया एवमक्खायं ।"

4 Sutta 553 consists of several verses.

5 "यत्रैकादीनि पर्यायान्तराणि वर्ण्यन्ते तत् स्थानम्"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

6 Over and above the svaras, their sthānas, their generating organs animate and inanimate, the fruits of singing the musical notes, their grāmas and mūrchanas,

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

samudghātas or explosions (s. 586) and 7 schisms[1] (s. 587). In section VIII we come across 8 types of philosophers (s. 607), 8 mahānimittas (s. 608), 8 vibhaktis (cases) with illustrations[2] (s. 609) etc. Therein the 8 types of philosophers are: (1) Egāyātis or Monists, Theists or Monotheists, (2) Aṇegāvātis or Pluralists, (3) Mitavādis or Extensionists, (4) Nimittavādis or Cosmogonists, (5) Sayavātis or Sensualists, (6) Samucchedavātis or Annihilationists, (7) Nitāvādis or Eternalists and (8) Na-santi-paraloga-vātis or Materialists-Hedonists. In section X we have 10 types of dravyānuyoga (s. 727), 10 kinds of satya (s. 741), 10 sorts of śuddhavākyānuyoga (s. 744[3]), 10 types of calculations (s. 747), 10 sections of the Aṅgas 7 to 9 (s. 755), 10 kinds of sons (s. 762) and 10 sorts of wonders (s. 777). At times, these enumerations contain parables in a nutshell. As for example, there are 4 kinds of baskets and also of teachers; there are 4 sorts of fish and also of mendicants; there are 4 varieties of ball and also of men etc.

4. SAMAVĀYA

This is the 4th Aṅga. It is divided into 160 suttas. These mostly deal with objects[4] according to their number, and thus, in their sources etc. are dealt with, in this sutta, with a passing reference to Sakkata (Sk. Saṁskṛta) and Pāgata (Sk. Prākṛta) and to Isibhāsiya (Sk. Ṛṣibhāṣita). The pertinent portion is as under:—

---

"सक्कता पागता चेव दुहा भणितीओ आहिया।
सरमंडलम्मि गिज्जंते पसत्था इसिमासिया॥" (p. 394)

This very verse with a variant "भणिईओ होंति दोण्णि वा" for the 2nd foot occurs in Aṇuogaddāra (p. 131).

In short, this is a svaramaṇḍala, and it is entirely reproduced in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 127).

1 See E. Leumann's article "Die alten Berichte von den Schismen der Jaina" published in Indischen Studien (vol. XXII, pp. 91–185).

2 The 6 verses given in this connection occur almost ad verbatim in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 128).

3 "दसविधे सुद्धावाताणुओगे पं० तं०—चंकारे १ मंकारे २ पिंकारे ३ सेतंकारे ४ सातंकारे ५ एगत्ते ६ पुधत्ते ७ संजूहे ८ संकामिते ९ भिन्ने १०।"

4 "सम्यगयनं वर्षधरनद्यादिपर्वतानां यत्र स समवायः"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

a way continue the subject-matter of the 3rd Aṅga; for, suttas 1 to 135 enumerate different entities in rising numerical groups (samavāyas) of 1 to 100[1], 150, 200, 250, 300, 350, 400, 450; 500, 600, etc. up to 1100; 2000, 3000 etc. up to 10,000; 1 lac, 2 lacs etc., up to 9 lacs; 9000[2], 10 lacs, 1 crore and 1 koṭākoṭi of sāgaropamas. This is followed by the description of the 12 Aṅgas, two rāsīs[4] and their sub-divisions, two types of hellish beings etc., varieties of avadhijñāna etc., 6 types of saṁhanana, 6 sorts of saṁsthāna, 3 vedas, the 7 Kulakaras of the past utsarpiṇī, the names etc., of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras, 12 Cakravartins, 9 Vāsudevas and 9 Baladevas of the present avasarpiṇī, names of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras of the Airāvata zone and those of the Tīrthaṅkaras to flourish. In s. 157, Kappa is referred to.

VIĀHAPANNATTI[5]

This is the 5th Aṅga having 5 titles as noted on pp. 53–54. It is divided into 41 sections known as saās[6], almost all of which

---

1 Under number 18, 18 kinds of the Brāhmī script are mentioned, and under number 36, names of the 36 ajjhayaṇas of Uttarajjhayaṇa are given. This latter topic must have been incorporated in Samavāya after its compilation, and same must be the case with the mention of Nandī therein.

2 As regards this incongruity Abhayadeva Sūri observes on p. 106[a]:—
"इदं च सहस्रस्थानकमपि लक्षस्थानाधिकारे यदधीतं तत् सहस्रशब्दसाधर्म्याद् विचित्रत्वाद् वा सूत्रगतेर्लेखकदोषाद् वेति।"

3 The data regarding the extents of these Aṅgas do not tally with their present extents.

4 They are: (i) jīvarāsi and (ii) ajīvarāsi.

5 Ten different meanings of this title are noted by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (pp. 2–3) on this work. Therein he has suggested the following Samskṛta equivalents of this title:—
(1) व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्ति, (2) व्याख्याप्रज्ञात्ति, (3) विवाहप्रज्ञप्ति, (4) विवाहप्रज्ञात्ति, (5) विवाधप्रज्ञप्ति, (6) विवाधप्रज्ञात्ति.

6 This word is used in the beginning of the 2nd saā. In Samavāya (s. 81) we have: "विवाहपन्नत्तीए एक्कासीतिं महाजुम्मसया पन्नत्ता". Abhayadeva Sūri, while commenting upon this says on pp. 88[b] and 89[a]:—
"व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्त्यामेकाशीतिर्महायुग्मशतानि प्रज्ञप्तानि, इह च 'शत'शब्देनाध्ययनान्युच्यन्ते, तानि कृतयुग्मादिलक्षणराशिविशेषविचाररूपाणि अवान्तराध्ययनस्वभावानि तदवगमावगम्यानीति।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

have sub-divisions styled as uddesas[1], and these, too, are further divided into suttas. Abhayadeva Sūri observes in his com. (p. 8) on this work that it has 10,000 uddes'akas, 36,000 praśnas[2] and 2,88,000 padas. But, in Samavāya (s. 140) and Nandī (s. 49) the numbers for the padas are given as 84,000 and 1,44,000 respectively.

As regards the subject-matter[3], various topics are discussed in this work. But, since there seems to be no inter-connection between the uddesas of one and the same saü, much less between those of the different saüs, we find that for getting a complete view of any one topic, we have often to refer to different uddesas of the various saüs. Śrībhagavatīsāra, a chāyānuvāda prepared by Mr. G. J. Patel, however, solves this difficulty; for, he has re-arranged the suttas and grouped them according to the subject they deal with. In doing so, he has divided the work into 10 khaṇḍas with their respective titles as under:-

Sādhana, cāritra, siddhānta, anyatīrthika, vijñāna, gaṇita, kutūhala, deva, nāraka and anyajīva, with the word khaṇḍa added to each of them.

---

1 Saüs 1 to 8, 12, 13, 14, 18, 19 and 20 have each 10 uddesas, the 9th and the 10th have each 34, the 11th 12, 15th none, 16th 14 and 17th 17. Saüs 21 to 41 have the number of their uddesas as under:—

80 (8 vaggas), 60 (6 vaggas), 50 (5 vagga), 24, 12, 11 (ṭhāṇas), 11, 11, 11, 11, 28, 28, 124, 124, 132, 132, 132, 132, 132, 231 and 196. The saüs 33 and 34 have each 12 avantarasaüs, and saüs 35 to 40 have each 12 mahā-jummāsaüs.

The significant titles of almost all these uddesas are mentioned in verse, mostly in the beginning of each of the saüs, and the corresponding verse is styled as saṅgrahaṇigāthā (vide the beginning of the com. of the 6th saü).

2 Most of these praśnas are asked by Indrabhūti Gautama to Lord Mahāvīra; for, only at times we find that his other pupils Agnibhūti, Vāyubhūti, Maṇḍitaputra, Mākandiputra and Roha, Jayantī, a Śrāvikā, and some non-Jainas ask him a question. In the answers given to these questions by Lord Mahāvīra we come across a queer case (XVIII., 3; s. 619) where Gautama is addressed instead of Mākandiputra, though the answer is in connection with the question asked by the latter. This is due to an answer being here reproduced from Paṇṇavaṇā (XV, 1). Vide its com. (p. 742[a]).

3 "व्याख्यायन्ते जीवादितत्त्वा यत्र नयद्वारेण प्ररूपणाः क्रियन्ते सा व्याख्याप्रज्ञप्तिः।"

—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

It may be here remarked that the following lines occur in Śrībhagavatīsāra (p. 300):—

"હું હમણાં મરણ પામવાનો નથી, પણ ૧૬ વર્ષ જીવવાનો છું. માટે તું મેંઢિક નગરમાં રેવતી ગૃહપત્ની છે, તેને ત્યાં જા. તેણે મારે માટે બે કબૂતર રાંધીને તૈયાર કર્યાં છે. પણ તેને કહેજે કે મારે તેમનું કામ નથી; પરંતુ ગઇ કાલે બિલાડાએ મારેલા કૂકડાનું માંસ તેણે તૈયાર કરેલું છે, તે મારે માટે લઈ આવ."[1]

This translation was greatly resented by the Jainas especially when Mr. G. J. Patel's article "महावीरस्वामीनो मांसाहार" got published in Prasthāna (Pustaka XXVI, No. 1, pp. 66–74, Saṁvat 1995, Kārtika). Several articles[2] were written as a rejoinder by some of the Jaina Sādhus and others. There they have pointed out that the words कपोय, मज्जार and कुक्कुड[3] do not here mean a pigeon, a cat and a cock; but stand for कुष्माण्ड, वायुविशेष or विरालिक (a kind of vanaspati) and बीजपूरक respectively. They have further supported their view by quoting Nighaṇṭus and Suśrutasaṁhitā (XLVI).

I may note in passing that in II, 5 (s. 112) a spring (haraä) of hot water in Rājagṛha is described, and in XII, 6 (s. 453) there are mentioned 9 names of Rāhu.

In the end, I may mention that by way of cross-references, the following Āgamas are alluded to, in this 5th Aṅga:—

(1) Rāyappaseṇaijja (s. 133,), (2) Jīvājīvābhigama (s. 114), (3) Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti (s. 362), (4) Paṇṇavaṇā (s. 173.), (5) Aṇuogaddāra (s. 593), (6) Ovavāïya (s. 383), (7) Nandī (s. 732) and (8) Āvassaya (s. 384).

Āyāradasā, too, is noted in A His of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 443).

---

1 The original passage is as under:—
"तं गच्छह णं तुमं सीहा! मेंढियगामं नगरं रेवतीए गाहावतिणीए गिहे। तत्थ णं रेवतीए गाहावइए मम अट्ठाए दुवे कपोयसरीरा उवक्खडिया तेहि नो अट्ठो अत्थि। से अण्णे पारियासिए मज्जारकडे कुक्कुडमंसए तमाहराहि, एएण अट्ठो।"—XVII, 9; s. 557.

2 Four of them have been published in Jaina satya prakāśa (vol. IV, nos. 6 and 7). Therein the articles of Ānandasāgara Sūri and Vijayalāvaṇya Sūri deserve to be specially noted.

3 These words may have been singled out with a view to making the pertinent lines construable according to the 4 different anuyogas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This Aṅga throws light on the biography[1] of Lord Mahāvīra. For, not only do we here come a cross his various names but we find those of his several pupils, that of his pseudo-pupil Gosāla,[2] those of his antagonists Jamāli[3] and others, and those of his contemporaries who were the followers of Lord Pārśvanātha. Further, this Aṅga (VII, 8; s. 299) mentions Vajjī Videhaputta who conquered nine Mallaī rulers and nine Lecchaī rulers. It furnishes us with information about the initiation of Jayantī, sister of the father of King Udayana.[4] Over and above this, in the 9th saā (33; s. 380) we come across the various tribes to which the female attendants of Devānandā belonged.[5] Names of the 16 jātis, grahas and heretical sciences viz. the 4 Vedas, Itihāsa, Nighaṇṭu, Vaidika Upāṅgas and Saṣṭhitantra[6] are here mentioned. Albrecht Weber in a note to his famous Lectures on the History of Indian Literature (2nd German edn., 1876) has referred to the atomistic theory of Jaina philosophers as found in this fifth Aṅga.

6 NĀYĀDHAMMAKAHĀ[7]

This is the 6th Aṅga. Its name is mentioned in Saṁskṛta in two or three ways, and it gives a nice food to one interested in etymological discussions.[8] This 6th Aṅga is divided into two

1 In IX, 33; s. 381 we come across an account of the meeting of Lord Mahāvīra with his mother Devānandā. As stated therein, at the sight of Lord Mahāvīra, milk began to flow from the breasts of this woman, her arms sweelled beside her bangles, her bodice got stretched, and she experienced horripilation.

2 See the 15th saā. Its English translation by R. Hoernle has been published as an appendix in his edition of Uvāsāgadasā (Bibliotheca India, Calcutta, 1888–1890). This saā is referred to by W. W. Rockhill in The life of the Buddha and the early History of his Order, 1884.

3 See IX, 33. 4 See XII, 2.

5 "चिलाइयाहिं वामणियाहिं वडहियाहिं बब्बरियाहिं इसिगणियाहिं जोण्हियाहिं चारुगणियाहिं पल्हवियाहिं लहासियाहिं लउसियाहिं आरबीहिं दमिलीहिं सिंघलीहिं पुलिंदीहिं पुक्कलीहिं मुरुंडीहिं सबरीहिं पारसीहिं" (s. 380). Cf. the 6th Aṅga (s. 18) and the 10th (s. 4).

6 For details about this work see Purātattva (V, p. 81).

7 This is also named as Nāyasuya. Vide Nāyādhammakahā (II; p. 246[b]).

8 See Malayagiri's com. (pp. 230[b] and 231[a]) on Nandī and "भगवान महावीरनी धर्मकथाओ" (p. 179), a Gujarātī translation of the 6th Aṅga.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

suyakkhandhas named as Nāya[1] and Dhammakahā.[2] The former has 19 subdivisions[3], each styled as ajjhayaṇa; and the latter has 10[4], each styled as vagga. Further, each vagga has subdivisions[5], each known as ajjhayaṇa.

As regards the contents, we have in the 8th ajjhayaṇa, the narration of Malli, the 19th Tirthaṅkara as a female. She gets a mohanaghara ("a house intended for confusion") prepared in order to make the six princes (who wooed her) realize the filth of the human body and thereupon make them decide to renounce the world. In the 9th, we come across a mariner's fairy tale. Herein is mentioned the winged horse as is the case with the Valahassa-jātaka (No. 196). The 16th ajjhayaṇa furnishes us with a narration of Dovaī (Sk. Draupadī) in the form of a story of her rebirth.[6]

In the 2nd suyakkhandha[7] there is a story of the goddess Kālī.

1-2 Each of these names occurs in plural.

3 Their names are given in the following verses of this very work:—

"उक्खित्तणाए १ संघाडे २ अंडे ३ कुम्मे ४ य सेलगे ५।
तुंब ६ य रोहिणी ७ मल्ली ८ मायंदी ९ चंदिमा १० इय॥
दावद्दवे ११ उदगणाए १२ मंडुक्के १३ तेयली १४ वि य।
नंदीफले १५ अवरकंका १६ अतिन्ने १७ छंसमा १८ इय॥
अवरे य पुंडरीयणायए १९ एगुणवीसतमे।"

It is said that out of these, the 14th ajjhayaṇa may be compared with Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. II) where paccakkhāṇa is explained.

4 "दोच्चस्स णं भंते! सुयक्खंधस्स धम्मकहाणं समणेणं जाव संपत्तेणं के अट्ठे पन्नत्ते? एवं खलु जंबू! समणेणं जाव संपत्तेणं धम्मकहाणं दस वग्गा पन्नत्ता"-II, 1; s. 148.

5 Their respective numbers are 5, 5, 54, 54, 32, 32, 4, 4, 8 and 8. The total comes to 196.

6 In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 448) it is remarked: "This is a monkish corruption of the legend from the Mahābhārata of Draupadī's marriage to the five brothers."

7 As regards this suyakkhandha, Prof. Winternitz observes:—

"Book II of this Aṅga is a complete contrast to Book I both in form and contents, and is more closely associated with the seventh and the ninth Aṅgas."—Ibid., p. 448

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

This entire work[1] deals with[2] narratives[3] which have a moral and religious purpose behind them.[4] They excite interest and attest attention, are free from sectarian spirit and are useful to persons of any and every school of thought. Such is the opinion expressed by Mr. D. B. Kalelkar in Gujarātī, in his foreword to the Gujarātī translation[5] of this work.

This Aṅga (I, 1; s. 17), too, supplies us with names of some of the anārya tribes. Furthermore it mentions 16 jewels[6] (I; s. 16) and 72 kalās (I; s. 20), and refers to 18 Deśī languages (I; s. 22), 4 Vedas and Saṣṭhitantra, 16 diseases[7] (XIII; s. 100) etc.

---

1 Herein almost in the beginning we come across the following line:—
"जति णं भंते! समणेणं भगवया महावीरेणं...पंचमस्स अंगस्स अयमट्ठे पन्नत्ते, छट्ठस्स णं अंगस्स णं भंते! णायाधम्मकहाणं के अट्ठे पन्नत्ते?।"
Similar lines are to be met with, in the Aṅgas 7 to 11. From this it may be deduced that the meanings of Aṅgas 5 to 11 have been propounded by Lord Mahāvīra.

2 Narratives, apologues, fables and the like wherein are clothed ethical and religious truth in the graceful and pleasing drapery of metaphor, serve a useful purpose of engaging the attention, of impressing the memory and strewing the path to abstract dogmas with flowers. This is what Rev. J. Long has said in his work entitled as Scripture truth in Oriental Dress (p. i).

3 "ज्ञाताः-दृष्टान्तास्तानुपादाय धर्मो यत्र कथ्यते ता ज्ञातधर्मकथाः।"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

4 The narrative of 4 daughters-in-law of a merchant given in VII (s. 68) may be cited as an instance. For its extract in English see A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 446).

5 This has been published in the Puñjābhāi Jaina Granthamālā No. 3, 1931.

6 The pertinent lines are:—
"रयणाणं १ वइराणं २ वेरुलियाणं ३ लोहियक्खाणं ४ मसारगल्लाणं ५ हंसगब्भाणं ६ पुलगाणं ७ सोगंधियाणं ८ जोइरसाणं ९ अंकाणं १० अंजणाणं ११ रयणा(१ या)णं १२ जायरूवाणं १३ अंजणपुलगाणं १४ फलिहाणं १५ रिट्ठाणं १६ अहावायरे पोग्गले परिसाडेइ."
This same passage occurs almost ad verbatim in Rāyapaseṇiya (s. 8). By रयण is here meant कर्केयण.
Ten gems are noted in Kummāputtacariya in the following verse:—
"सोगन्धिय-कक्केयण-मरगय-गोमेय-इन्दनीलाणं।
जलकन्त-सूरकन्तय-मसारगल्ल-ऽङ्क-फलिहाणं॥ ७४॥"
In Arthadīpikā (p. 159[a]) 60 kinds of jewels are mentioned.

7 See pp. 116 and 136.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

In IX; s. 90, we come across a pretended elegy[1] of Rayaṇa-dīvadevayā. In passing it may be noted that in this Aṅga, there are used reduplicatives[2] e. g. कर(ड)क(ड)स्प (IX; s. 80), तडतडेंत (IX; s. 80), धमधमेंत (IX; s. 81), मिसिमिसेमाणे (I; s. 27) etc.

While concluding this topic, I may mention that in this Aṅga we come across some graphic descriptions e. g. those of the bed-chamber of Dhāraṇī (I; s. 9), a voyage (VIII; s. 69), a Piśāca (VIII; s. 69), a ship-wreck (IX; s. 80) etc. Moveover, the six seasons are described in 6 verses, one for each of them (vide IX; s. 81).

In the end it may be remarked that the Mss. of this 6th Aṅga present many different readings.[3] Some of them are noted[4] and explained[5] by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. on it.

7 UVĀSAGADASĀ

This is the 7th Aṅga. It consists of 10 ajjhayaṇas noted on p. 105, fn. 2. Out of them the first enumerates, in minute details, the various vows and observances undertaken by Ānanda[6] and his wife in the presence of Lord Mahāvīra. Ānanda, on his leading a pious life as a lay adherent (uvāsaga[7]) for 20 years, attains avadhijñāna.

The next 4 ajjhayaṇas furnish us with the lives of 4 other lay adherents who did not give up their vows, even though each

1 This is perhaps the earliest to be met with, in the Jaina literature.

2 It may be noted in this connection that an interesting article entitled Reduplicatives in Indo-Aryan and written by Dr. S. M. Katre has been published in "Bulletin of the Deccan College Research Institute" (vol. I, no. 1, pp. 60–70), and a list of onometopoetic words occurring in Puṣpa-danta's Nāyakumāracariya (an Apabhraṁsa work of the 10th century) is given in its edition by Prof. Hirālāl Jain on p. lvii.

3 Out of them, those occurring in 3 Mss. deposited at B. O. R. I. and in Abhayadeva Sūri's com. are given by Prof. N. V. Vaidya, in his edition (pp. 231–245) of this Aṅga.

4 See pp. 8[a], 16[a] etc. 5 See p. 16[a] etc.

6 For analysis and episode of this Ānanda, one of the ten Mahāśrāvakas, see R. Ch. Dutt's A History of civilization in Ancient India (vol. II).

7 "उपासकैः-श्रावकैरेवं स्थातव्यमिति येष्वध्ययनेषु दशसु वर्ण्यते ता उपासकदशाः"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of them was threatened by one god or another, with the loss of the life, relatives, health and property respectively.

The 6th deals with the life of Kundakoliya whose faith remains unshaken in Lord Mahāvīra's teachings, though they are denounced by a god while propounding the tenets of Gosāla to him.

The 7th supplies us with a story of Saddālaputta, formerly a devotee of Gosāla. Lord Mahāvīra convinces him by arguments that the doctrine of Gosāla is faulty. Thereupon he becomes a staunch convert, so much so that an attempt made by Gosāla himself to make him re-embrace his faith, fails.

The 8th illustrates as to how Revaī (Sk. Revatī) harasses her husband Mahāsayaya by subjecting him to temptations to enjoy sensual objects. He however remains firm, and Revaī suffers for rejecting Jainism.

The 9th and the 10th ajjhayaṇas deal with the quiet and peaceful lives led by Nandiṇīpiya and Sālihīpiya, the two great devotees of Lord Mahāvīra, out of 10.

On the whole, this 7th Aṅga furnishes us with materials which give us a vivid picture of the social life of those days. Incidentally I may note that s. 184[1] mentions some of the vessels used in those days, and the suttas 94–95, 101–102 and 107 supply us with a graphic description of Piśāca, an elephant and a serpent– the 3 forms assumed one after another by a god who had come to verify the statement of Indra regarding the unflincting faith of Kāmadeva, one of the Mahāśrāvakas of Lord Mahāvīra.

---

1 "तत्थ णं वहवे पुरिसा दिण्णभइभत्तवेयणा कल्लाकल्लिं वहवे करए य वारए य पिहडए घडए य अद्धघडए य कलसए य अलिंजरए य जम्बूलए य उट्टियाओ य करेन्ति।"

Abhayadeva Sūri, while commenting upon this says:—

"करकान्–वार्धटिकाः, वारकांश्च–गडुकान्, पिठरकान्–स्थालीः, घटकान् प्रतीतान्, अर्द्धघटकांश्च–घटार्द्धमानान्, कलशकान्–आकारविशेषवतो वृहद्घटकान्, अलिंजराणि च महदुदकभाजनविशेषान्, जम्बूलकाश्च लोकरूढ्याऽवसेयान्, उष्ट्रिकांश्च–सुरातैलादिभाजनविशेषान्."

Other vessels such as कडाहय (s. 129), कडिल्ल (s. 94), कलन्द (s.), किलञ्ज (s. 94), कोट्टिया (s. 94) are mentioned. Further अहरी (s.), निसापाहाण (s. 94) and निसालोढ (s. 94) occur in this Aṅga, and they mean a crushing stone, a broad rectangular piece of stone and a cylindrical piece of stone respectively. The last two are spoken of, as निसार and निसादरो in Gujarātī and as पाटा and वरवंटा in Marāṭhī.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ANTAGADADASĀ

This 8th Aṇga consists of only one suyakkhandha. It has 8 vaggas[1] with 10, 8, 13, 10, 10, 16, 13 and 10 ajjhayaṇas[2] respectively. It deals with the lives of the Antakṛtkevalins or those who attained omniscience when they were about to die and who on their death became Siddhas (liberated).[3] The narratives given here are not complete by themselves. For instance, the narration of Prince Goyama given in the 1st ajjhayaṇa goes only so far as the dream of Dhāriṇī; for a further link up to the list of wedding presents we have to take passage mutatis mutandis, from the Bhagavaï (XI, II; s. 430); then, after two short paras taken from this 8 and 5th Aṅgas respectively, the material upto the taking of the vows is to be supplied from the 6th Aṅga; and thereafter this 8th Aṅga gives a little bit of information which gets completed on our referring to the 5th Aṅga.

The 1st 5 vaggas supply us with some information about the city of Bārāvaï (Sk. Dvārāvatī), Vasudeva, Devakī[4] and her 8 sons, Kaṇha (Sk. Kṛṣṇa) being the 7th, and the destruction of Bārāvaï.

In the 6th vagga we have the story of Muggarapāṇi and that of Prince Aïmutta[5]. The latter is a riddle story, its seed, so to say being implanted in the following riddle:—

"जं चेव जाणामि तं चेव न जाणामि। जं चेव न जानामि तं चेव जानामि"[6]

The 7th vagga mentions the names of the 13 queens of Seṇiya and the 8th, penances such as Rayaṇāvalī, Kaṇagāvalī, Sīhaṇikkīliya (small and big), Savvaöbhadda (small and big) and Muttāvalī.

---

1 This shows that this Aṅga is wanting in 2 sections. So some are inclined to interpret its title as 'the fortunes or vicissitudes of the Antagaḍas'. They do not translate dasā as 'ten'.

2 See p. 106, fn. 1.

3 Cf. अन्तकृतः-सिद्धास्ते यत्र ख्यायन्ते वर्धमानस्वामिनस्तीर्थे एतावन्त इत्येवं सर्वकृतान्ता अन्तकृद्दशाः।"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

4 At the sight of her 1st 6 sons she experiences a similar condition as done by Devānandā and described in the 5th Aṅga. See p. 129, fn. 1.

5 For a portion of his life see the 5th Aṅga (V, 3; s. 187).

6 Cf.—"यस्यामतं तस्य मतं मतं यस्य न वेद सः। अविज्ञातं विजानतां विज्ञातमविजानताम्॥"
—Kenopaniṣad (II)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ANUTTAROVAVĀĪYADASĀ

This is the 9th Aṅga. It is divided into 3 vaggas, each of which is further subdivided into 10, 13 and 10 ajjhayaṇas respectively.[1] It deals with the lives of persons who after their death, were born as gods in Anuttaravimāna[2] and who will therefrom descend to this world, will attain a human birth and will achieve final emancipation. In short, it treats about Ekāvatārins, most of whom are the sons of King Seṇiya. It may be noted that the kathās given here are not everywhere complete, but portions of the former ones are referred to, in short, in the latter ones. In the 3rd vagga we have a description of Dhanya's body immensely reduced on his having practised austerity. This description begins with his feet and ends with his head. The last sutta mentions some of the noble attributes of Lord Mahāvīra.

PAṆHĀVĀGARAṆA

This work somehow looked upon as the 10th Aṅga is divided into 10 ajjhayaṇas, out of which the 1st five deal with āsrava and the last five, with saṁvara[3]. We find herein names of anārya tribes (s. 4) and those of 9 grahas. The contents of this work widely differ from those of Paṇhāvāgaraṇa noted in Ṭhāṇa and Nandī. In Nandī this work is said to have consisted of 108 praśnas,[4] 108 apraśnas and 108 praśnāpraśnas, vidyātiśayas and discourses of saints with Nāgakumāras, and other Bhavanapatis. Malayagiri Sūri interprets praśnas, apraśnas and praśnāpraśnas as under:—

"या विद्या मन्त्रा वा विधिना जप्यमानाः पृष्टा एव सन्तः शुभाशुभं कथयन्ति ते प्रश्नाः तेषामष्टोत्तरं शतं, या पुनर्विद्या मन्त्रा वा विधिना जप्यमाना अपृष्टा एव शुभाशुभं कथयन्ति तेऽप्रश्नाः तेषामष्टोत्तरं शतं, तथा ये पृष्टा अपृष्टाश्च कथयन्ति ते प्रश्नाप्रश्नाः"

Thus it will be seen that the extinct work mostly dealt with vidyās and mantras.

---

1 For their names see p. 107, fn. 4.

2 Cf. "अनुत्तरोपपादिका देवा येषु ख्याप्यन्ते ता अनुत्तरोपपातिकदशाः"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

3 In s. 21, we have 60 synonyms for ahiṁsā.

4 Cf. "प्रश्नितस्य जीवादेर्यत्र प्रतिवचनं भगवता दत्तं तत् प्रश्नव्याकरणम्"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

VIVĀGASUYA

This is the 11th Aṅga. It deals with the fructification or matured fruits (vivāga)[1] of deeds, bad and good, done in previous births.[2] This work is accordingly divided into two suyakkhandhas styled as Duhavivāga[3] and Suhavivāga,[4] the former occupying a space about 7 times that occupied by the 2nd. Each of these furnishes us with ten narratives.[5] These narratives describe the lives of ten persons. Therein their two lives as a human being are given in details whereas their subsequent transmigrations in the saṁsāra and their attaining liberation in the end, are summarily disposed of. In the Duhavivāga all the 10 persons concerned are not males as is the case with Suhavivāga; but, there are only 8 males, the remaining two being females.

This Vivāgasuya can be looked upon as a work on kathānuyoga as it deals with narratives. These narratives supply us with a beautiful picture of the society of those days when this work was composed. For instance, we learn therefrom (§9) that a blind man led by a man having eyes and having a stick held in front of him used to earn his livelihood by going to various houses and by creating a feeling of compassion for him in the persons he came across. The mention of 16 diseases (§22) viz. asthama, cough, fever, burning sensation in the body, pain in the stomach or belly, fistula, piles, indigestion, an eye-disease, head-ache, loss of appetite, pain in eyes and ears, itching, dropsy and leprosy and over and above this, that of aggiā (§ 27), a disease which rapidly consumed anything when eaten and which according to Abhayadeva Sūri, is known as bhasmaka, give us an idea of the diseases known in those days. The remedies in the case of the 1st 16

1 Cf. "विपाकः—कर्मणामनुभवस्तं सूत्रयति—दर्शयति तद् विपाकसूत्रम्"
—Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. (p. 91) on Tattvārtha (I, 20)

2 This may remind a Bauddha scholar of Avadānaśataka and Karmaśataka.

3-4 Each of these names is mentioned in plural in Vivāgasuya. See § 4.

5 In Suhavivāga only the first narrative is given in full, whereas the rest, in bare outlines.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

diseases (§ 23) such as various kinds of enema, purgatives, vomitings, medicated baths etc., show how far the medical science was then developed. So far as surgical science is concerned, cutting of veins and skin for making them bleed, deserves to be noted.

Propiation of deities for begetting progeny[1] (§ 138), fanciful longings of women when pregnant (§ 40, 68), throwing of a still-born child on a dung-hill (§ 47) or placing it under a cart (§ 95) and then bringing it back with the belief that it may thereby live long (§ 47), human sacrifices (§ 107) for winning the favour of deities, festivals in honour of Indra and others (§ 11), extremely barbarous and cruel ways of inflicting punishments for theft and adultery (§ 37, 63) and the various instruments etc. used by jailors for inflicting corporal punishments to prisoners (§ 120-121), proficiency of harlots (§ 34), and various preparations of flesh etc. (§ 66, 93, 135, 151) are some of the aspects of the society which are reflected in the narratives given in this Aṅga.

OVAVĀIYA

This work is considered as the 1st Uvaṅga.[2] Herein are described in full, the city of Campā, the sanctuary of Puṇṇabhadda and the garden surrounding it, the Asoga tree therein, King Kūṇiya alias Bhimbhasāraputta, his queen Dhāriṇī and Lord Mahāvīra[3], to name a few out of many. These descriptions are reproduced, indicated by the word vaṇṇa or abbreviated by introducing the word jāva, when they are required elsewhere; for, this Uvaṅga is practically the 1st work codified at the council of Valabhī. Over

1 Some females are over-anxious to have a child. Sutta 137 describes their longings which can be compared with Abhijñānaśakuntala (VII, 17). Further, the wording of this sutta is identical with s. 5 of the 8th Aṅga (III, 8). So the description given in s. 137, ought to have been abbreviated by using jāva, and, if, at all, it was to be given in full, it ought to have been so done in s. 40.

2 Siddhasena Gaṇi, too, believes so, in case such an inference can be drawn from the following line occurring in his com. (p. 27) on Tattvārtha (VI, 14):

"उपाङ्गानि औपपातिकप्रभृतीन्यङ्गार्थानुवादीनि"

3 In Über ein Fragment der Bhagavatī a similar description of Lord Buddha is given by Dr. A. Weber.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

and above this work being a store-house of splendid descriptions, it has a historical importance, too, as it refers to Lord Mahāvīra's samosaraṇa in Campā and the pilgrimage of Kūṇiya to that place. Further, the various attainments and penances[1] of the saints of Lord Mahāvīra are here mentioned in details, and this is followed by the description of various celestial beings[2] who come to attend upon Lord Mahāvīra. His sermon delivered on this occasion may be looked upon as the last item of the 1st part[3] which may be named as Samosaraṇa. The 2nd part opens with the description of Indrabhūti's journey to Lord Mahāvīra, and various questions (regarding the re-births) asked by the former to the latter. Sutta 74 deals with various Tāvasas, and the following ones up to s. 100 with Parivāyagas, Ammaḍa being one of them. His subsequent life as Dadhapaiṇṇa is then dealt with. In the end we have exposition about the samugghāya resorted to, by some of the omniscient beings, description of the abode of the liberated and the condition therein. Suttas 168-189 which form the ending portion, are in verse, whereas the preceding portion is mostly in prose.

13. RĀYAPASEṆIYA

This Uvaṅga deals with the birth of King Paëśi as Sūriābha deva, his celestial grandeour and enjoyments, his staging of a drama and a dance in the presence of Lord Mahāvīra, the description of his vimāna, and a dialogue regarding the identity of soul and body between Paëśi and Kesi Gaṇadahara, a follower of Lord Pārśva. Prof. Winternitz attaches immense value to this dialogue; for, he considers it as a beautiful piece of literature.[4] As regards the title etc. of this Uvaṅga, it may be noted that in the 5th Aṅga (s. 133) and elsewherse[5], too, it is mentioned as Rāyappaseṇaïjja.

1 In s. 30 these are treated at length.

2 Sutta 38 furnishes us with a description of celestial damsels.

3 The author has not divided the work into 2 parts; but this is what some of the modern scholars do.

4 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 455).

5 See Āvassayacuṇṇi (pt. I, p. 142).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

14. JĪVĀJĪVĀBHIGAMA[1]

This Uvaṅga is divided into 9 sections[2] known as pratipattis.[3] It deals with the fundamental principles of Jainism, and thus furnishes us with details about the animate and inanimate objects. The 3rd pratipatti[4] contains the description of continents and oceans, and it is looked upon by Prof. Winternitz as an interpolation (vide A His. of Ind. Lit. vol. II, p. 456). The entire treatment in this Uvaṅga is in the form of questions and answers, as is the case with the 4th Uvaṅga.

15. PANNAVAṆĀ[5]

This Uvaṅga is a master-piece of Jaina philosophy. It is divided into 36 sections, each known as paya. Each of these payas deals with one particular topic in all its aspects and may be hence looked upon as a thesis on the subject concerned, in an epitomized form. These 36 payas are named in Prākṛta in v. 4–7[6]. Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 6[b]) on this work mentions their names in Saṁskṛta. They are: (1) Prajñāpanā, (2) Sthāna,

---

1 This is styled as ajjhayaṇa in its sutta I.

2 In A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 456) the number of sections has been given as 20. This gives rise to a set of questions: Is this a slip or is it owing to some other method of counting? And, if latter, what is that method?

3 This name occurs in Malayagiri Sūri's com. on this 3rd Uvaṅga. Furthermore, therefrom we learn the specific names of one and all the pratipattis. They are Dvividhā, Trividhā etc. up to Daśavidhā.

4 This is the biggest section out of 10.

5 This is styled as ajjhayaṇa in v. 8, and it is referred to in Jīvājīvābhigama (s. 106).

6 Cf. "पन्नवणा १ ठाणाइं २ बहुवत्तव्वं ३ ठिई ४ विसेसा ५ य।
वक्कन्ती ६ ऊसासो ७ सन्ना ८ जोणी ९ [य] चरिमाइं १० ॥ ४ ॥
भासा ११ सरीर १२ परिणाम १३ कसाए १४ इन्दिए १५ पओगे १६ य।
लेसा १७ कायठिई १८ या सम्मते १९ अन्तकिरिया २० य ॥ ५ ॥
ओगाहणसण्ठाणा २१ किरिया २२ कम्मे इयावरे २३।
[कम्मस्स] बन्धए २४ [कम्मस्स] वेद २५ [ए] वेदस्स, बन्धए २६ वेयवेयए २७ ॥ ६ ॥
आहारे २८ उवओगे २९ पासणया ३० सन्नि ३१ सञ्मे ३२ चेव।
ओही ३३ पवियारण ३४ वेदणा ३५ य तत्तो समुग्घाए ३६ ॥ ७ ॥"—Pannavaṇā

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(3) Bahuvaktavya, (4) Sthiti, (5) Viśeṣa, (6) Vyutkrānti, (7) Ucchvāsa, (8) Saññā, (9) Yoni, (10) Carama, (11) Bhāṣā, (12) Śarīra, (13) Pariṇāma, (14) Kaṣāya, (15) Indriya, (16) Prayoga, (17) Leśyā, (18) Kāyasthiti, (19) Samyaktva, (20) Antakriyā, (21) Avagāhanāsthāna, (22) Kriyā, (23) Karma, (24) Karmabandha, (25) Karmavedaka, (26) Vedabandhaka, (27) Vedavedaka, (28) Āhāra, (29) Upayoga, (30) Darśanatā, (31) Saññā (32) Saṃyama, (33) Avadhi, (34) Pravicāraṇā, (35) Vedanā and (36) Samudghāta.[1]

To my mind, this work is, in short, an encyclopedia of Jainism, and if one properly studies it with Viāhapaṇṇatti, it may make that individual a past-master of Jainism. It may be mentioned en passant that its 1st paya (s. 36–37) furnishes us with a geographical-ethnographic outline; for, herein there is a mention of the Ariyas (Aryas) and Milikkhus (Mlecchas) with their habitations.

16 SŪRIYAPAṆṆATTI

This Uvaṅga is a work on astronomy from a Jaina standpoint. It is divided into 20 sections, each of which is styled as pāhuḍa. This is likely to remind one of the sub-divisions of the Puvvas. The importance of this work for the study of the ancient Indian astronomy has been emphasized by various European scholars; e. g. Prof. H. Jacobi (S. B. E. vol. XXII, intro. p. xl), Prof. E. Leumann (Bezeihungen der Jaina-Literatur zu Andern Literatur-kreisen Indiens, pp. 552–553) and Dr. G. Thibaut (Astronomie, Astrologie und Mathematik and J. A. S. B. vol. XLIX, p. 108).

This work deals with the moon, too. So Prof. Winternitz is inclined to believe that "it almost looks as though the original Candā-Paṇṇti had been worked into the Sūra-Paṇṇatti". Vide A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 467).

17 JAṂBUDDĪVAPAṆṆATTI

This is so to say a work on Jaina cosmology. It is divided into seven sections, each known as vakkhakkāra. In the 3rd section,

1 Payas 3, 5, 6 and 33 are also named as Alpabahutva, Paryāya, Upapātodvartanā and Jñānapariṇāma.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

there is a description of Bhāratavarṣa (India), and, therein the legends about King Bharata are treated at length. According to Leumann (Z. D. M. G. vols. 48 and 82) "they can be called an exactly parallel text to Viṣṇu-Purāṇa II and Bhāgavata-Purāṇa V."[1]

16. CANDAPAṆṆATTI

This work as it is available now, differs very very little from Sūriyapaṇṇatti, and such a state of affairs existed at least in the time of Jinaprabha Sūri as can be seen from his Siddhāntāgamastava (v. 26). All the same, since Malayagiri Sūri has commented upon it, and since this work is noted in Ṭhāṇa (II, 1; p. 126), Nandī (s. 44), etc., there must have existed in olden days some work of this name.

17. NIRAYĀVALISUYAKKHANDHA

I use this title to indicate a collection of the 5 Uvaṅgas viz. (1) Nirayāvaliā or Kappiyā, (2) Kappavaḍiṁsayā, (3) Pupphiyā, (4) Pupphacūliyā and (5) Vaṇhidasā. Dr. Weber and Prof. Winternitz believe that these works are separately counted to make the number of the Uvaṅgas tally with that of the 12 Aṅgas.

Each of these five works except the last consists of 10 *ajjhayaṇa*s whereas the last has 12.

In Kappiyā we have lives of Kāla and others, the ten sons[2] of Śreṇika. Similarly Kappavaḍiṁsayā deals with the lives of their 10 sons.[3] Pupphiyā describes 10 gods such as the moon, the sun and others, whereas Pupphacūliyā furnishes us with some details about 10 goddesses such as Śrī, Hrī, Dhṛti and the like.

In Vaṇhidasā we come across legends of the 12 princes of the Vaṇhi race. Out of them, the 1st deals with Nisaḍha (Sk. Niṣadha), son of Balarāma and nephew of Kṛṣṇa.

18. NISĪHA[4]

This Cheyasutta consists of 20 uddesagas. It deals with the rules governing the life to be led by monks and nuns, and prescrib-

1 Vide A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 457).

2 They were killed in their fight with their grand-father Ceḍaga of Vesālī and have been born in the 4th hell.—Kappiyā

3 They have been born in various heavens.—Kappavaḍiṁsayā

4 Jarl Charpentier says that the title Nisīhā, though traditional, is wrong: it ought to be Niseha.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

es atonements and penances by way of punishment for various transgressions against rules pertaining to begging of alms, etc. This work mentions exceptions to the general rules, too.

21 MAHANĪSIHA

This Cheyasutta is divided into 6 sections known as ajjhayaṇas. A three-fold division referred to, in the beginning of this work, is not to be found. There are specific titles for the 1st, 2nd, 5th and 6th ajjhayaṇas. They indicate the subject-matter. The 3rd and the 4th ajjhayaṇas treat of Kuśīla Sādhus. In the 4th, there is a narrative about two brothers Sumati and Nāila. The 5th deals with the relation between a guru and his pupil. This ajjhayaṇa has supplied some materials for composing Gacchāyāra.[1] The 6th ajjhayaṇa treats of prāyaścittas and contains a narrative pertaining to a teacher Bhadda and Rayyā, the Āryikā. The last two ajjhayaṇas which are styled as Cūliyās, supply information about the daughter of Suyyasivī. Over and above these specific topics, this Cheyasutta has several topics in common with Nisīha.

22 VAVAHĀRA

This Cheyasutta is divided into 10 uddesagas. It deals with prescriptions and interdictions. It points out what Jaina saints are expected to do and what they are expected to refrain from, and the prāyaścittas they have to perform, in case they violate the prescribed rules. Further it deals with the desired type of spirit they should have at the time of expiations. It throws light as to what should be done when one or more saints go astray, while they itinerate with many more. It also informs us as to who do not deserve the status of an Ācārya, an Upādhyāya and the like. Nuns holding padavīs like Pravartinī have to lead their lives according to a set of rules. These are explained in this work. In the end we have the curriculum for a novice whose course of study ordinarily lasts for 20 years. This Cheyasutta, too, has been utilized for the composition of Gacchāyāra.[2]

1-2 Cf. "महानिसीह-कप्पाओ ववहाराओ तहेव य।
साइसाइणिअट्ठाए गच्छायारं समुद्धियं ॥ १३५ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

23. DASĀSUYAKKHANDHA

This Chcyasutta consists of ten significant sections. It seems that sections 1 to 7 and 9 are each known as dasā, whereas the rest as ajjhayaṇas. The respective topics treated therein are as under:-

(1) 20 asamāhiṭṭhāṇas – the causes that upset a Muni in his saṁyama when he follows a path adverse to his dharma; (2) 21 sabaladosas –causes that weaken the spirit of a Muni, (3) 33 āsāyaṇās associated with a guru, (4) gaṇisaṁpadā–the 8 saṁpadās of an Ācārya along with their sub-divisions, four types of vinaya prescribed to a pupil and their sub-varieties, (5) 10 cittasamāhiṭṭhāṇas, (6) 11 uvāsagapaḍimās–the 11 pratimās–postures, penances etc., a Jaina layman resorts to, (7) 12 bhikkhupaḍimās, (8) pajjosaṇākappa[1], (9) 30 mohaṇijjaṭṭhāṇas–causes that lead to the amalgamation of mohanīya karman with the embodied soul, and (10) āyatiṭṭhāṇas.

It may be added that each of the 7 dasās dealing with regulations pertaining to the discipline of the Sādhus and Śrāvakas, begins with suyaṁ me āïsam etc. as in Āyāra, and each ends with ti bemi. In the 5th dasā, there is treated a sermon of Lord Mahāvīra delivered in the presence of King Jiyasattu. It goes up to 17 verses. The 9th dasā furnishes us with a sermon of 39 verses preached by Lord Mahāvīra to King Koṇiya and others. In the 10th section we find King Seṇiya and his queen Cellaṇā listening to Lord Mahāvīra's sermon. Their splendour etc. detract the mind of almost all the Sādhvīs and Sādhus respectively; Candanabālā and Indrabhuti, however, remain unaffected by wicked thoughts. Lord Mahāvīra thereupon delivers a lengthy sermon.

24. PAJJOSAṆĀKAPPA

This work forms the 8th section of Dasāsuyakkhandha. It is divided into 3 sections styled as vācyas by Jinaprabha Sūri in his Sandehaviṣauṣadhī, a pañjikā on this work, and by Vinayavijaya Gaṇi, too, in his Kalpasubodhikā, a com. on this very work. These three vācyas are named as Jinacariya (Sk. Jinacarita), Therāvalī (Sk. Sthavirāvalī) and Sāmāyārī (Sk. Sāmācārī). In 1 For details see pp. 143-145.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Jinacariya, the life of Lord Mahāvīra occupies the major[1] portion. This is narrated "in great detail, with great diffuseness, with descriptions in the Kāvya style and with exaggerations beyond all measure." So says Prof. Winternitz in "A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 463). Here the conception, transference of the embryo[2] and the birth of Lord Mahāvīra are described in the same way as in Āyāra. Further this work furnishes us with vivid information regarding the well-known 14 dreams, their interpretation, Lord Mahāvira's gṛhavāsa, his twelve years' life as an asectic and his activities for about 30 years since he became omniscient.

In Therāvalī, we find a list of gaṇas (schools), their śākhās (branches) and the Gaṇadharas (heads of schools). This list is borne out by inscriptions of the 2nd century A. D. Vide Dr. Bühler's Epigraphica Indica i (1892) 371 ff., 393 ff. This indirectly shows how far the works codified at Valabhī are genuine. It is true that this Therāvalī mentions some of the successors of Bhadrabā-

1 The lives of 23 Tirthaṅkaras are also given here. But they begin with that of Lord Pārśva and go up to that of Lord Ṛṣabha. Out of them, those of Pārsva, Ariṣṭanemi and Ṛṣabha are given in English by Dr. Bimala Churn Law in his article "The Kalpasūtra" published in Jaina Antiquary (vol. II, Nos. III and IV).

2 The episode about this given in this Pajjosaṇākappa practically tallies in words with one given in Āyāra (s. 176). It is presented in a versified form in v. 450, 457 and 458 of Āvassayanijjutti. As suggested by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. on Viāhapaṇṇatti (v. 3; s. 186) it is here alluded to. This episode is admitted as genuine by the Śvetāmbaras only. The Digambaras distrust it. But strange to say, it is supported by the excavations carried out in the Kankāli ṭīlā at Mathura. Alexander Cunningham in his Archaelogical Survey of India (Annual Reports) III 1873, p. 46 says: "The Kankali Tila has been...prolific...both in sculptures and inscriptions all of which are pure Jaina monuments. On the upper level stands a large Jaina temple dedicated to Jambū Svāmī. An annual fair is held at this place."

Amongst these excavations we come accross sculpture and inscriptions and it is in the former section that we come accross an engraved illustration (2½ ft. by 1½ ft.). This is what we learn from Epigraphic Indica p. 317, Mathura Sculptures, Plate II, and Cunnigham's Reports for the Archaelogical Survey of India XX, Plate IV, 2–5.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

husvāmin; but, as it is possible to look upon that portion as inserted in the original work by Devarddhi Gani at Valabhī, it cannot be argued on that account that this Therāvalī is not a composition of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. So some other arguments must be advanced to disprove the authorship attributed to him by the Jaina tradition.

In Sāmāyārī we have in prose rules and regulations pertaining to pajjusaṇa or the Lenten period. Dr. Bimala Churn Law says in this connection in his article "The Kalpasūtra" published in Jaina Antiquary (vol. II, No. IV, March 1937, p. 82):—

"This Pajjusaṇa corresponds to the Buddhist Vassa and is divided into two parts the 50 days that precede and the 70 that succeed the 5th of Bhādra, Śuklapakṣa. The Śvetāmbaras observe fast during the former period and the Digambaras during the latter."

This third section which is a code of rules for asceticism, is looked upon by Western scholars as the oldest nucleus, and they opine that Bhadrabāhusvāmin does not seem to be the author of all the three sections which have been united to form a whole in the Pajjosaṇākappa.

Before proceeding further, it may be noted that out of these 3 vācyas the 1st is the biggest. Its extent is a little more than 900 ślokas. It consists of 228 suttas.[1] It is mostly in prose; for, some verses[2] interspers it. Its 15th sutta is an eulogy of Lord Mahāvīra by Śakra. It is hence known as Śakrastava. Its wording is almost identical with Ovavāiya (s. 16 & 20). Sutta 13 of Antagaḍadasā (VI) and the last para of Anuttarovavāiyadasā have also something in common with this wording.[3] Sutta 129 refers to a great planet Bhāsarāsi (Sk. Bhasmarāśi) which is mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (II, 3), too. It has remained unidentified up till now.

The 2nd vācya has more verses than any of the other two. Its last 14 verses are worth noting. Some of them remind us of the Therāvalīs to be met with, in Nandī and Āvassayanijjutti. In

1 See D. L. J. P. F. Series, No. 18.

2 Ibid., pp. 2[b], 11[b], 15[b], 32[a], and 39[b].

3 For ther details see D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 173).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

this vācya we have a reference to saṅkhitta vāyaṇā on p. 51[a] and to vitthāravāyaṇā on p. 52[a].

Just as Pajjosaṇākappa is divided into 3 vācyas, so it is also divided by some of its commentators into 9 sections known as vāçanās or vyākhyānas and into 9 kṣaṇas as well. These 9 sections seem to be more or less arbitrary so much so that at times one and the same sutta is so split up that one portion of it belongs to one vāçanā and the remnant, to the other. Vide s. 15.

The extant Pajjosaṇākappa is known as Bārasāsūtra, too. Its extent is said to be 1216 ślokas; but, on actual counting it comes to 100 ślokas more. So says Dr. Bimala Churn Law in Jaina Antiquary (vol. II, No. III, p. 72).

This Pajjosaṇākappa has a very big number of commentaries[1], the only other Āgama that can vie with it, to some extent in this respect, being Āvassaya.

---

1 A tentative list of them may be given as under:—

(i) Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Pajjosaṇākappaniijjutti (c. Vira Saṁvat 160); (ii) Pṛthvīcandra Sūri's Paryuṣaṇākalpaṭippaṇaka (13th century); (iii) Vinayacandra Sūri's Durgapadanirukta (Saṁvat 1325); (iv) Jinaprabha Sūri's Sandehaviṣauṣadhi (Saṁvat 1364); (v) Jñānasāgara Sūri's Kalpasūtrāvacūri (Saṁvat 1443); (vi) Jayasāgara Sūri's Sukhāvabodhavivaraṇa 15th century); (vii) Māṇikyaśekhara Sūri's Kalpasūtraniryuktyavacūri (15th century); (viii) Dharmasāgara Gaṇi's Kalpakiraṇāvali (Saṁvat 1628); (ix) Śubhavijaya's Kalpasūtravṛtti (Saṁvat 1671); (x) Saṅghavijaya Gaṇi's Kalpapradīpikā (Saṁvat 1674); (xi) Jayavijaya's Kalpadīpikā (Saṁvat 1677); (xii) Samayasundara Pāṭhaka's Kalpalatā (Saṁvat 1684–86); (xiii) Sahajakīrti's Kalpamañjari (Saṁvat 1685); (xiv) Vinayavijaya Gaṇi's Kalpasubodhikā (Saṁvat 1696); (xv) Ajitadeva Sūri's Kalpasūtradīpikā (Saṁvat 1698); (xvi) Kamalakīrti's Kalpabālāvabodha (17th century); (xvii) Śivanidhāna's Kalpabālāvabodha (17th century); (xviii) Śāntisāgara's Kalpakaumudī (Saṁvat 1707); (xix) Khimāvijaya's Kalpabālāvabodha (Saṁvat 1707); (xx) Jñānavijaya's Kalpajñānadīpikā (Saṁvat 1722); (xxi) Vidyāvilāsa's Kalpabālāvabodha (Saṁvat 1729); (xxii) Dānavijaya's Dānadīpikā (Saṁvat 1750); (xxiii) Udayasāgara's Kalpasūtravṛtti (Saṁvat 1755); and (xxiv) Lakṣmīvallabha's Kalpadrumakalikā (18th century).

Out of these the Mss. of Nos. i–iv, vii, viii, x–xiv, xviii, xx, xxiii and xxiv are described in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, pp. 90–199). Further, herein are dealt with, some anonymous avacūrṇis dated Saṁvat 1469, 1568 and 1613 and a few Kalpāntaravācyas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As stated in Kalpasubodhikā (p. 7b) Pajjosaṇākappa was read publicly for the 1st time in the assembly of King Dhruvasena in Vīra Saṁvat 980 or 993. Further, it is stated there that Sādhus used to recite it at night and Sādhvīs used to hear it by day, too, according to the vidhi prescribed in Niśīhacuṇṇi.

2. KAPPA

This is a Cheyasutta. It is popularly known as Bṛhatkalpasūtra. Some name it as Bṛhatsādhukalpasutra. It is divided into 6 uddesagas, and it deals with rules and regulations governing the lives of Jaina monks and nuns. Restrictions pertaining to their food, apparatuses, halting place etc. are here expounded, and expiations regarding violations or partial transgressions are prescribed. This Cheyasutta has some of the passages in common with other Āgamas.[1] As already noted on p. 40, this Kappa along with Vavahāra and Dasā form one suyakkhandha. At times it is mentioned with Vavahāra only.[2] It is difficult to fix up the date of the compilation of this Cheyasutta; but its 50th sutta[3] and the like may be helpful in this direction.

3. JIYAKAPPA

At least now-a-days this work is looked upon as the 6th Cheyasutta by several Śvetāmbaras. It consists of 103 verses in Prākṛta, and its authorship is attributed to Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa[4]. Herein are prescribed penances pertaining to violations of rules enjoined for Jaina saints in their canon. It deals with 10 prāyaścittas as usual, and not with 9 as in Tattvārtha. Mr. M. D. Desai has noted in Jaina sāhityno saṁkṣipta itihāsa

---

1 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, pp. 225–226).

2 See p. 39, fn. 1 and Drona Sūri's com. (p. 1b) on Ohaniyjutti where we have: "पदविभागसामाचारी कल्पव्यवहारः".

3 "कप्पइ निग्गंथाण वा निग्गंथीण वा पुरित्थमेणं जाव अंग-मगहाओ एत्तए, दक्खिणेणं जाव कोसंबीओ, पच्चत्थिमेणं जाव थूणाविसेसाओ, उत्तरेणं जाव कुणालाविसयाओ एत्तए। एताव ताव कप्पइ। एताव ताव आरिए खेत्ते। णो से कप्पइ एत्तो बाहिं। तेण परं जत्थ नाण-दंसण-चरित्ताइं उस्सप्पंति त्ति बेमि।"

4 He has been praised by Siddhasena Sūri in his Cuṇṇi (v. 5–11) on this work Jiyakappa. His approximate date is Vīra Saṁvat 1115.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(p. 83) that herein 19 kinds of prāyaścittas are treated, and that this work is a part and parcel of Nisīha, since the vidhāna of jitakalpa is mentioned there.

27. UTTARAJJHAYAṆA

As already noted on pp. 47–48, this is a Mūlasutta[1] of multiple authorship. It consists of 36 ajjhayaṇas. Their significant titles are given in the Uttarajjhayaṇaniijjutti (v. 13–17)[2] as under:–

(1) Vinayasuya, (2) Parīsaha, (3) Caüraṅgijja, (4) Asaṁkhaya, (5) Akāmamaraṇa, (6) Niyaṇṭhi, (7) Orabbha, (8) Kāvilijja, (9) Naṁipavvajjā, (10) Dumapattaya, (11) Bahusuyapujja, (12) Hariesa, (13) Citta-Saṁbhūi, (14) Usuārijja, (15) Sabhikkhu, (16) Samāhiṭhāṇa, (17) Pāvasamaṇijja, (18) Sañjaijja, (19) Miyacāriyā, (20) Niyaṇṭhijja, (21) Samuddapālijja, (22) Rahaṇemiya, (23) Kesi-Goyamijja, (24) Samiïä, (25) Jaṇṇaijja, (26) Sāmāyārī, (27) Khaluṅkijja, (28) Mukkhagaï, (29) Appamāä, (30) Tava, (31) Caraṇa, (32) Pamāyaṭhāṇa, (33) Kammappayaḍi, (34) Lesā, (35) Aṇagāramagga and (36) Jīvājīvavibhatti.

In Samavāya (XXXVI, p. 64) we come across the names of these 36 ajjhayaṇas; but they differ at times from the ones noted above.[3] It may be added that the names of the ajjhayaṇas 3, 4, 7, 10, 14 and 25 can be cited as instances of a name by ādāna-pada, one of the 10 types of names noted in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 130).

---

1. Instead of this word, Kulamaṇḍana Sūri has used the word Mūlagaṇṭha as can be seen from the following lines quoted in Senaprasna (III, p. 80[b]):

"आवस्सय ओहनिज्जुत्ति १ पिण्डनिज्जुत्ति २ उत्तरज्झयणे ३।
दसकालियं ४ चउरो वि मूलगन्थे सेरमि सया॥
इति श्रीकुलमण्डनसूरिकृतप्राकृतसिद्धान्तस्तवगाथा। एतस्यां च मूलग्रन्थाश्चत्वार एते प्रोक्ताः सन्ति"

The use of this word Mūlagrantha may remind one of the word Mūlagrantha occurring in the Bauddha dictionary Mahāvyutpatti and meaning Buddha's own words.

2. Verses 18–26 mention the respective topics of these 36 ajjhayaṇas.

3. Ajjhayaṇas 6, 20 and 28 are respectively named here as Purisavijjā, Aṇāhapavvajjā and Goyama-Kesijja. The rest have their names practically the same as noted above. These names may be compared with those given on p. 80 of D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Some information pertaining to the Jaina canon can be had from this Mūlasutta. For instance in XXIV, 3 we come across the word duvālasaṅga, and in XXVIII, 21 we find the words Aṅga and bāhira. Similarly in XXXI, v. 13 there is a reference to 16 Gāhās[1], in v. 14, to (19)[2] ajjhayaṇas of Nāyā, in v. 16, to 23 ajjhayaṇas of Sūyagaḍa, in v. 17, to (26) uddesas of Dasā etc.[3], and in v. 18, to (28 ajjhayaṇas of) Pagappa. As regards this last item, there seems to have been some confusion. Prof. Jacobi and Mr. G. J. Patel, too, have equated Paggappa with Āyāra, and each of them has said that formerly Āyāra had 28 ajjhayaṇas, and it now contains 24, the lost ones being Mahāpariṇṇā, Ugghāya, Aṇugghāya and Āroṇā. I think the author wants to convey by Paggappa, Āyāra including Nisīha which as noted on p. 117 was somehow separated from Āyāra. Mahāpariṇṇā is lost as already stated on p. 78. Ugghāya, Aṇugghāya and Āroṇā are each a portion of the extant Nisīha dealing with the penances having these very names. To be explicit, uddesas 2–5 and 12–19 deal with Ugghāya, 1 and 6–11 with Aṇugghāya and 20 with Āroṇā. Further, in support of this statement of mine I may quote the following line occurring in Āvassaya (III):–

"उग्घायमणुग्घायं आरोवण तिविहमो निसीहं तु।"[4]

So it follows that only one ajjhayaṇa of Āyāra is lost and not four. Besides, on this understanding it may be said that by the time Uttarajjhayaṇa was composed, Nisīha still formed a part and parcel of Āyāra, and that it was composed after Āyāragga

---

1 These are the 16 ajjhayaṇas of Sūyagaḍa (I).

2 There are the 19 ajjhayaṇas of Nāyādhammakahā (I).

3 By etc. are meant Kappa and Vavahāra.

4 This very line with the following one occurs in Śānti Sūri's com. (p. 617[a]) on Uttarajjhayaṇa:

"इह अट्ठावीसविहो आयारपकप्पनामो उ॥"

It may be noted that in this com. (p. 616[b]) we have:

"प्रकृष्टः कल्पः–यतिव्यवहारो यस्मिन्नसौ प्रकल्पः, स चेह आचाराङ्गमेव"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

was added to Āyāra (1). It is also possible to say that this is only a record of the old tradition.

Before I deal with the contents of Uttarajjhayaṇa, I may mention that leaving aside the 29th ajjhayaṇa and some portion in the beginning of the 2nd and the 16th ajjhayaṇas, the rest of the work is in verse, and it comes to 1643 ślokas. In this connection I may note the following observation made by Prof. Schubring in his intro. (p. v, fn. 2) to "The Dasaveyāliya Sutta":-

"The Āryā chapters of the Uttarajjhayaṇa Sutta are evidently later than the bulk of that work. The same can be said of the Āryās in Āyāraṅaga II, 15."

Ajjhayaṇas IX, XII–XIV, XXII, XXIII and XXV supply us with old legends: Ajjhayaṇa IX deals with a dialogue of King Nami with Indra disguised as a Brāhmaṇa. The latter tells him that he should perform his duties as a ruler and a Kṣatriya. Thereupon Nami ably refutes his arguments by pointing out the excellence of true asceticism.

Ajjhayaṇa XII is a dialogue between a proud Purohita and Bala, a despised Muni of the Cāṇḍāla caste. The latter says that a Brāhmaṇa is not superior to others simply because he happens to be born as a Brāhmaṇa; for, it is rather the right sort of penance that makes a man dignified and lofty. Moreover, undue importance should not be attached to external formalism and ceremonialism.

Ajjhayaṇa XIII is a dialogue between Brahmadatta (an emperor) and an ascetic. Both of them were once born as brothers in a Cāṇḍāla family, and on their being harrassed for their untouchability, they had resorted to asceticism. In this birth, Brahmadatta is being pursuaded to renounce the world but he pays no heed to it.

Ajjhayaṇa XIV is a splendid dialogue between a Purohita and his sons. Herein the latter convince the former that the ascetic ideal is to be preferred to the pseudo-Brāhmaṇika one. Thereupon all of them and the wife of that Purohita, too, take the Jaina dīkṣā.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

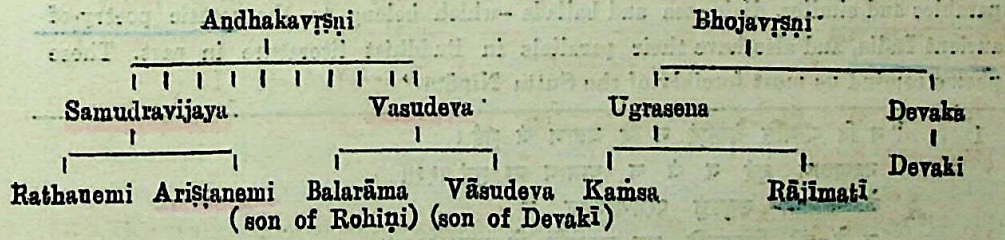
CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ajjhayaṇa XXII[1] is a dialogue between Rathanemi, an elder brother of Lord Nemināṭha and Rājīmatī. The former, though a Muni, makes an indecent offer to the latter, a nun. Thereupon this nun admonishes him and makes him steady in his asceticism.

Ajjhayaṇa XXIII furnishes us with a dialogue between Gautama, the 1st Gaṇadhara of Lord Mahāvīra and Keśin, a learned follower of Lord Pārśva.[2] The former was asked by the latter as to how he reconciled the five mahāvratas of Lord Mahāvīra with the cāujjāma dhamma of Lord Pārśva, and further, how he interpreted the acelakatva propounded by Lord Mahāvīra with sacelakatva of Lord Pārśva. Both these points were satisfactorily explained by Gautama. Thereupon Keśin asked him several riddles pertaining to Jainism, and these, too, were beautifully answered. These riddles may remind one of the Brahmodyas.

Ajjhayaṇa XXV is a dialogue between Jayaghoṣa Muni and Vijayaghoṣa, a Brāhmaṇa engaged in performing sacrifice. The

1 Herein it is mentioned that Kṛṣṇa is a son of Vasudeva, and Neminātha, that of Samudravijaya, a brother of Vasudeva. As regards Rājīmatī it is said that she was the daughter of Ugrasena, and sister of Kaṁśa and was betrothed to Lord Neminātha. All these relations with some more may be presented as under:



Kaṁsa had married Jīvayaśā, sister of Jarāsandha.

2 He is said to have attained salvation 250 years before Lord Mahāvīra. In one of his previous births he is represented as King Suvarṇabāhu. This episode reminds one of the description of Duṣyanta's seeing Śakuntalā and her female friends given in Abhijñānaśākuntala (I).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

former goes to the latter for bhikṣā (alms); but the latter refuses to give it to him on the ground that it is meant for the Brāhmaṇas who are well-versed in the Vedas, who are for sacrifices, who are conversant with the Jyotiṣāṅga, etc. Thereupon Jayaghoṣa asks him questions[1] which Vijayaghoṣa fails to answer and which are replied by the former at the request of the latter. This answer given in verses[2] provides us with a vivacious description of the characteristics of a true Brāhmaṇa. Vijayaghoṣa is satisfied by this answer and renounces the world.

Ajjhayaṇas XXIV and XXVI–XXXVI deal more or less with the Jaina dogmatics. Ajjhayaṇa XXVI forms the basis of daśavidhasāmācārī as stated by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 341[b]) on Āvassayanijjutti (v. 665), by Hemacandra Sūri in his com. (p. 842) on Viseśā° and by Droṇa Sūri in his com (p. 1[b]) on Ohanijjutti. It appears that ajjhayaṇa XXVIII may be looked upon as the basis of Tattvārtha. Ajjhayaṇa XXIX points out the different guṇas which finally lead to salvation. In all, they are here given as 73, and each of them is separately treated in order with numbers 1, 2 etc.

As regards the contents of the remaining ajjhayaṇas, it may be noted that the 7th consists mainly of parables, and the 16th deals with the commandment of chastity.

In conclusion I may quote the following lines from A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 466):—

"The oldest nucleus[3] consists of valuable poems—series of gnomic aphorisms, parables and similes, dialogues and ballads—which belong to the ascetic poetry of ancient India, and also have their parallels in Buddhist literature in part. These poems remind us most forcibly of the Sutta Nipāta."

---

1 "न वि जाणसि वेयमुहं न वि जन्नाण जं मुहं।
नक्खत्ताण मुहं न जं च धम्माण वा मुहं ॥११॥
जे समत्था समुद्धत्तुं परमप्पाणमेव य
न ते तुमं वियाणासि अह जाणासि तो भण ॥१२॥"

2 Each of these verses has for its refrain: "तं वयं बूम माहणं".

3 "The earlier sections contain 'an abundance of archaic and curious forms' of Prākrit, s. R. Pischal, Grammatik der Prākrit-sprachen, in 'Grundriss' 1, 8 para 19."—A His of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 466, fn. 3)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Verse 266 of the 36th ajjhayaṇa runs as under:—

"इइ पाउकरे बुद्धे नायए परिनिव्वुए। छत्तीसं उत्तरज्झाए भवसिद्धीयसंमए॥ २६६॥"

From this some are led to believe that these are the last words uttered by Lord Mahāvīra before he attained salvation. But commentators of this work as well as Malayagiri Sūri[1], Siddhasena Gaṇi and others explain the word uttara as 'excellent' and not as 'last'. Mr. G. J. Patel however interprets uttara as last. Further he accepts the view expressed in Kalpalatā to the effect that the exposition of 36 unasked questions is Uttarajjhāya; for, he says that there is no other canon which has got 36 ajjhayaṇas and which at the same time can be looked upon as unasked questions. I have already expressed my opinion in this connection on pp. 47–48. So I may now end this topic by noting the following verse from Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti:—

"कमउत्तरेण पगयं आयारस्सेव उवरिमाइं तु। तम्हा उ उत्तरा खलु अज्झयणा हुंति णायव्वा॥३॥"[2]

This suggests that the word uttara occurring in Uttarajjhayaṇa was used to convey that this Āgama used to be read after Āyāra. This arrangement lasted up to Śayyambhava; for, on his composing Dasaveyāliya it is being read after it and not after Āyāra.

28. DASAVEYĀLIYA

This work is also a Mūlasutta inasmuch as it explains the first and fundamental principles of the religious order preached by Lord Mahāvīra and serves as the foundation for the ascetic life. The title Dasaveyāliya is not to be met with in this work; but it

1 Vide his com. (p. 206[b]) on Nandi.

2 Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri explains this verse on p. 5[a] as under:—
"क्रमापेक्षमुत्तरं, शाकपार्थिवादित्वान्मध्यमपदलोपी समासः, तेन प्रकृतम्–अधिकृतम्, इदं च क्रमोत्तरेणेति भावतः क्रमोत्तरेण, एतानि हि श्रुतात्मकत्वेन क्षायोपशमिकभावरूपाणि तद्रूपस्यैव आचाराङ्गस्योपरि पठ्यमानत्वेनोत्तराणीत्युच्यन्ते, अत एव आह–'आयारस्सेव उवरिमाइं' ति। एवकारो भिन्नक्रमः। ततश्च आचारस्योपर्येव–उत्तरकालमेव 'इमानि' इति हृदि विपरिवर्तमानतया प्रत्यक्षाणि, प्रठितवन्त इति गम्यते। 'तुः' पूरणे, विशेषश्चायं यथा–शय्यम्भवं यावदेष क्रमः, तदारतस्तु दशवैकालिकोत्तरकालं पठ्यन्त इति। 'तम्हा उ' त्ति 'तुः' पूरणे, यत्तदोश्च नित्यमभिसम्बन्धः ततो यस्मादाचारस्योपर्येवेमानि पठितवन्तस्तस्माद् 'उत्तराणि' उत्तरशब्दवाच्यानि।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

is so mentioned twice by Bhadrabāhusvāmin in his Nijjutti (v. 6 and 330) on it. Moreover it is implied in v. 7, 12 and 15 of this Nijjutti, though therein he has named this work as Dasakāliya as he has done in v. 1, 14 and 25. Thus he has six times designated this work as Dasakāliya and twice as Dasaveyāliya.

As stated in v. 7, the title is based upon two ideas viz. the number and the time. The first gives us a clue to the fact that this work consists of ten ajjhayaṇas. As regards the time, from v. 12 we see that this work was extracted when the pauruṣī was over, whereas from v. 15 we learn that the 10 ajjhayaṇas which were extracted, were (systematically) arranged at the veyāliya (Sk. vaikālika) i. e. to say in the evening. The Cuṇṇi on the Dasaveyāliya (pp. 5 and 7) explains the title Dasaveyāliya in various ways. One of them is that this work is read at vikāla. Some of the modern scholars who do not agree with these derivations of the title, make various conjectures. For instance, Mr. G. J. Patel opines that Manaka was taught Puvvas just after his dīkṣā and not after a lapse of 19 years, the period specified for it. Thus he was taught at the improper time (akāla-vikāla). Consequently this work goes by the name of Dasaveyāliya. He believes that the right name is Dasakāliya, the word kāliya therein implying its association with caraṇakaraṇānuyoga of which kāliyasuya is a synonym according to the Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi (p. 2). He adds that when this explanation may have been forgotten and when it may have been found impossible to reconcile its entry as ukkāliyasuya and not kāliyasuya in Nandī (s. 44), its original name Dasakāliya may have been replaced by Dasaveyāliya, and then to explain this latter title, somehow it was believed to have been compiled at vikāla. In this connection I, for one, believe that Dasakālika is an abbreviation of Daśavaikālika, the Saṁskṛta equivalent of Dasaveyāliya. Furthermore, I do not think that the term kāliya occurring in the title Dasakāliya has been used to denote its association with caraṇakaraṇānuyoga; for, otherwise, at least once in the entire Jaina literature, we could have come across the name of at least one of the 1st 11 Aṅgas wherein the word kāliya would have occurred in virtue of these Aṅgas being called kāliyāsuya, a fact noted on p. 26.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Prof. Schubring has made an ingenious suggestion in his introduction (pp. iv–v) of The Dasaveyāliya Sutta as under:–

"वेयालिय is the Prakrit substitute for more than one Sanskrit word."[1]

In the fn. to this he says: "Besides वैकालिक 'connected with the evening time' it may be वैचारिक, वैतारिक and वैतालिक[2]. In the canonical Jaina work तन्दुलवेयालिय it is the first of these three words."

Dasaveyāliya is divided into 10 ajjhayaṇas. Out of them the 5th has two sub-divisions known as uddesas and the 9th 4 whereas the rest have none. Ajjhayaṇas I–III, V–VIII and X are entirely in verse.[3] Ajjhayaṇa IV[4] begins with a number of passages in prose and ajjhayaṇa IX has some portions in prose intersepted by verses.[5] The titles of one and all these ajjhayaṇas are significant. They are: (1) Dumapupphiyā, (2) Sāmaṇṇapuvvaga, (3) Khuḍḍiyāyārakahā, (4) Chajjīvaṇiyā[6], (5) Piṇḍesaṇā[7], (6) Dhammaṭṭhakāma[8], (7) Vakkasuddhi[9], (8) Āyārappaṇihi, (9) Viṇayasamāhi and (10) Sabhikkhu. These titles can be respectively translated as (1) (a parable) pertaining to flowers of a tree, (2) (the chapter) commencing with monkhood, (3) a brief exposition of conduct, (4) six groups of living beings, (5) search for food, (6) exposition of dharma, (7) purity of speech, (8) restriction to conduct, (9) devotion to discipline and (10) he is a saint. These

1 They are: वैचारिक, वैतारिक, वैतालिक, वैक्रिय and विदारक.

2 I think this is a slip, if it is not a misprint. It should be वैतालिक.

3 These have 5, 11, 15, 100+50, 69, 57, 64 and 21 verses respectively.

4 This ajjhayaṇa has 29 verses.

5 The 1st 3 uddesas of IX has 17, 23 and 15 verses whereas the 4th 7.

6 This is named as Dhammapannatti in this very chapter and in Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 16) as well.

7 Cf. the 1st ajjhayaṇa of Āyāra (II).

8 This is also called Mahāyārakahā.

9 See the 4th ajjhayaṇa of Āyāra (II).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

titles indicate the topics discussed in this work. So it will suffice to add that [1]eulogy of dharma, [2]firm faith in it, [3]code of discipline and [4]ahiṁsā (non-injury) are the main features of this Mūlasutta.

It may be noted that Dasaveyāliya appears to be more of a nature of compilation or adaptation than that of an original treatise; for, Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 16–18)[1] mentions several Puvvas as the sources of its ajjhayaṇas. As one and all the Puvvas have become extinct by this time, we are not in a position to say whether the sources have been utilized ad verbatim or that their spirit is made use of. However turning to the extant Āgamas we find:

(i) Verses 7 to 11 of ajjhayaṇa II[2] of Dasaveyāliya agree word for word with v. 42 to 44, 46 and 49 of ajjhayaṇa XXII of Uttarajjhayaṇa.

(ii) The five prose passages[3] dealing with the 5 mahāvratas and occurring in ajjhayaṇa IV of Dasaveyāliya tally almost word for word, with the ending portions of Āyara (II, 15).[4]

(iii) Ajjhayaṇa VII of Dasaveyāliya can be compared with Āyāra (II, 4) so far as ideas and phraseology are concerned.

(iv) Ajjhayaṇa X of Dasaveyāliya has many a point in common with Uttarajjhayaṇa (XV). For instance, both have the

---

1 See p. 88, fn. 7–10.

2 The narrative of Rājīmatī and Rathanemi given here is looked upon by Prof. M. V. Patwardhan as only a mutilated version of the same narrative in Uttarajjhayaṇa (XXII).

3 The ideas expressed herein and the phraseology in which they are clothed, are to be met with in Samaṇasutta, a portion of Āvassaya. As regards the repetition of words occurring in these passages it may be said that such a style was adopted for religious works even by the Vaidika Hindus. The Aitareya Brāhmaṇa (Pañcikā VII) which is reproduced in Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar's Second Book of Sanskrit (p. 192) may be cited as an instance.

4 Prof. Walther Schubring, in his intro. (p. iv) on Dasaveyāliya observes:—
"It is evident that Dasav. 4 I–V, 5 and 7 show a very close connection with passages in the Cūlāo of the Āyāranga, the existence of which, together with that of the Viyāhapannatti and the Diṭṭhivāya, is presupposed by Dasav. 8, 49."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

same title, the same refrain for every verse, the same metre[1] and the same topic viz. the qualities of an ideal monk.

In this connection it may be noted that Prof. A. M. Ghatage has reproduced in his article "Parallel Passages in the Daśavaikālika and the Acārāṅga"[2] 30 paras from Āyāra II and certain verses from Dasaveyāliya to show their verbal agreement. He has ended this article on p. 137 as under:

"All these considerations go to show that out of the two parallel texts the one found in the Daśavaikālika is the older and is preserved in the original form while the prose of the Acārāṅga is younger and is a mutilation of the original verses."

My tentative suggetions are:–

(i) Not only Dasaveyāliya is based upon the Puvvas but equally so are all the 5 Cūlās of Āyāra i. e. to say Āyāra (II) and Nisīha, though in the Āyāraniijjutti,[3] only Nisīha is so mentioned.

(ii) The original source for both of these Āgamas is in verse and that, too, probably in Prākṛta.

(iii) Āyāra (II) was composed prior to Dasaveyāliya; but, since the original verses were modified therein into prose, it appears to be posterior to Dasaveyāliya where the verses must have been kept in tact.

In II, 9 there is mention of a plant named Haḍha, and in II, 6 and 8, there is a reference to two types of serpents Agandhana and Gandhana. In III, 8 are mentioned 7 kinds of salt. In verses 13 to 25 occurring at the end of IV are described the stages of spiritual evolution. In VIII, 51 a monk is forbidden to say anything about stars, dreams, omens, spells, medicine etc.

As already noted on p. 46, from the time of Bhadrabāhusvāmin or so, two Cūlās have been appended to this work.

---

1 This appears to be a strange combination of Triṣṭubh and Vaitāliya padas.

2 This has been published in New Indian Antiquary (vol. I, No. 2, May 1938, pp. 130–137).

3 See p. 113.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

27. ĀVASSAYA

This has got six sections known as Sāmāiya[1], Caüvīsatthava[2], Vandaṇaya[3], Paḍikkamaṇa[4], Kāüssagga[5] and Paccakkhāṇa[6]. It is difficult to say as to which suttas rightly constitute this Mūla-sutta. It is however possible to believe that the suttas explained or alluded to in the Āvassayanijjutti belong to the Āvassaya. See p. 47. The suttas treated by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. on this work are as under:—

(१) करेमि भंते, (२) लोगस्स, (३) वन्दणगसुत्त, (४) चत्तारि मंगलं, (५) चत्तारि सरणं, (६) चत्तारि लोगुत्तमा, (७) इच्छामि पडिक्कमिउं जो मे देवसिओ (८) इरियावहियसुत्त, (९) समणसुत्त, (१०) इच्छामि ठाइउं काउस्सग्गं जो०, (११) तस्स उत्तरी, (१२) अन्नत्थ, (१३) अरिहंतचेइआणं, (१४) पुक्खरवर, (१५) सिद्धाणं बुद्धाणं, (१६) इच्छामि खमासमणो ! उवट्ठिओमि अब्भितर०; (१७) पक्खियखामणा, (१८) सम्मत्तालावग सातिचार, (१९–३०) एगादिक्य सातिचार, (३१) संलेहणाविचारं and (३२–३५) पच्चक्खाण.

Out of these (1) belongs to Sāmāiya, (2) to Caüvīsatthava, (3) to Vandaṇaya, (4) to (9) to Paḍḍikkamaṇa, (10) to (18) to Kāüssagga and (19) to (35) to Paccakkhāṇa. But it should be noted that (14) and (15) are not the real constituents of Āvassaya.

It may be observed that the 1st 3 suttas are printed in Roman characters along with their German translation in Übersicht über die Āvas'yaka-Literatur which is a splendid work of the late veteran scholar Leumann. This will be hereafter referred to as Āv. Lit. An exposition of this Āvaśyaka-Literature is reserved for the next chapter. So the reader may refer to it or to D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, pp. 132–137). In the end I may add that from Senapraśna (p. 20[a]) it seems that Āvassaya is a composition of Śrutasthavira; but, on its p. 51[a7] it is expressly said that there is every possibility of its being that of a Gaṇadhara. Cf. p. 47.

1–6 These may be roughly translated as (i) equanimity of mind, (ii) eulogy of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras, (iii) veneration (of the teacher), (iv) confession and expiation, (v) indifference to body and (vi) abstinence from food etc.

7 The pertinent lines are as under:–

"आवश्यकान्तर्भूतश्चतुर्विंशतिस्तवस्त्वारातीयकालभाविना श्रीभद्रबाहुस्वामिनाऽकारीति आचाराङ्गवृत्तौ द्वितीयाध्ययनस्यादौ तदत्र किमिदमेव सूत्रं भद्रबाहुनाऽकारि सर्व्वाणि वा आवश्यकसूत्राणि कृतान्युत पूर्वं गणधरैः कृतानीति किं तत्त्वमिति प्रश्नः। अत्रोत्तरम्—आचाराङ्गादिकमङ्गप्रविष्टं गणभृद्भिः कृतम्,

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

30. OHANIJJUTTI

This work deals with caraṇasattari[1], karaṇasattari[2], paḍilehaṇā etc. Bhadrabāhusvāmin is said to be the author of this Mūlasutta. The extant work has some verses of its Bhāsa incorporated in it. The following lines occurring in Senapraśna (III, p. 80[b]) show the relation of this Ohanijjutti with Āvassaya-nijjutti and that of Piṇḍanijjutti with Piṇḍesaṇā-ajjhayaṇa. These lines are as under:-

"श्रीहीरविजयसूरिप्रश्नादितप्रश्नोत्तरसमुच्चयग्रन्थे च कश्चिद् भेदो दृश्यते तत् कथमिति प्रश्नः। अत्रोत्तरम्-उक्तगाथायामोघनिर्युक्तेर्निर्युक्तित्वेन आवश्यकनिर्युक्त्यन्तर्भूतत्वान्न पृथग् विवक्षा, पिण्डनिर्युक्तेस्तु निर्युक्तित्वेनैव पिण्डैषणाध्ययनसूत्रात् पृथग्विवक्षया; प्रश्नोत्तरसमुच्चये तु ओघनिर्युक्तेः छुटकपत्रलिखितानुसारेण विभिन्नविषयत्वात् पृथग् गणनं, पिण्डनिर्युक्तेस्तु पृथग्विवक्षैव सर्वमवदातम्।"

31. PIṆḌANIJJUTTI

This is a work which throws light on piṇḍa (alms). It enters into a detailed discussion as to which sort of food can be accepted by a Jaina monk and which rocks he should steer clear of, while on his way to procure alms. Its authorship is attributed to Bhadrabāhusvāmin.

32. NANDĪ

This work mainly indulges in the exposition of knowledge and its various classifications. It is partly in prose and partly in verse.[3]

आवश्यकादिकमनङ्गप्रविष्टमङ्गैकदेशोपजीवनेन श्रुतस्थविरैः कृतमिति विचारामृतसङ्ग्रहावश्यकवृत्त्याद्यनुसारेण ज्ञायते, तेन भद्रबाहुस्वामिनाऽऽवश्यकान्तर्भूतचतुर्विंशतिस्तवरचनमपरावश्यकरचनं च निर्युक्तिरूपतया कृतमिति भावार्थः श्रीआचाराङ्गवृत्तौ तत्रैवाधिकारेऽस्तीति बोध्यम्।"—p. 20[a]

"षडावश्यकमूलसूत्राणि गणधरकृतान्यन्यकृतानि वेति प्रश्नः। अत्रोत्तरम्-षडावश्यकमूलसूत्राणि गणधरकृतानीति सम्भाव्यते, यतो वन्दारुवृत्ति सिद्धाणं बुद्धाणमित्यस्यावचूरिस्तो गाथा गणधरकृता इत्युक्तमस्ति, तथा पाक्षिकसूत्रे नमो तेसिं खमासमणाणमित्यत्र सर्वत्रालापके सामान्येनैवैककर्तृकत्वं दृश्यते, आवश्यकं मूलसूत्रं मूलसूत्राणि चागमः ततो गणधरकृतमित्यापन्नं, तथा सकलसिद्धान्तादिपुस्तकटिप्पासु 'षडावश्यक-मूलसूत्राणि सुधर्मस्वामिकृतानि' इति लिखितमस्ति, तथा 'सामाइयमाइयाइं एक्कारसअंगाइं अहिज्जइ' इत्याद्युक्तेश्चेति ज्ञेयम्।"—p. 51[a] and p. 51[b].

१ "वय ५ समणधम्मे १० संजम ११ वेयावच्चं १० च बंभगुत्तीओ ९।
नाणाइतियं ३ तव १२ कोहनिग्गहाई ४ चरणमेयं ॥ २ ॥"—Ohanijjuttibhāsa

२ "पिंडविसोही ४ समिई ५ भावण १२ पडिमा १२ य इंदियनिरोहो।
पडिलेहण २५ गुत्तिओ ३ अभिग्गहा ४ चेव करणं तु ॥ ३ ॥"—Ibid.

3 The total number of verses in this Nandī comes to 90, and that of suttas to 59.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

In the beginning there are 47 verses. Out of them, the 1st is an eulogy of a Tīrthaṅkara. This is followed by two verses whereby Lord Mahāvīra is praised. Then we have 14 verses which glorify the Jaina church (Saṅgha) by comparing it with a city, a wheel, a chariot, a lotus, the moon, the sun, a sea, and Mandara (Meru) mountain. Verses 18–19 mention the names of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras of the present Avasarpiṇī, as is done in Viāhapaṇṇatti (II, 6; s. 676). Similarly verses 20–21 supply us with the names of Lord Mahāvīra's 11 Gaṇadharas. In v. 22 his śāsana is extolled. Verses 23–43 form a Therāvalī. Herein the following 27 saints are praised:-

(1) Suhamma, (2) Jambū, (3) Pabhava, (4) Sijjambhava, (5) Jasabhadda, (6) Sambhūya, (7) Bhaddabāhu, (8) Thūlabhadda, (9) Mahāgiri, (10) Suhatthi[1], (11) Bahula, (12) Sāī, (13) Sāmajja, (14) Saṇḍilla, (15) Jīyadhara[2], (16) Ajja Samudda[3], (17) Ajja Maṅgu, (18) Ajja Nandila khamaṇa, (19) Ajja Nāgahatthi[4], (20) Revaīnakkhatta, (21) Bambhaddīvaga Sīha, (22) Khandila, (23) Himavanta, (24) Nāgajjuṇa, (25) Bhūyadinna, (26) Lohicca and (27) Dūsa Gaṇi.

Verse 44 deals with 14 illustrations which deal with various types of pupils. It occurs as v. 1454 in Visesā° and v. 334 in Kappabhāsa. This is followed by 3 verses[5] which point out the 3 types of the audience viz. intelligent, unintelligent and foolishly puffed up. Then we have mostly in prose a detailed exposition of the five kinds of knowledge. In the end there are 5 verses some of which occur in Visesā°, too.

Deva Vācaka, pupil of Dūṣya Gaṇi is looked upon as the author of this work, and some identify him with Devarddhi Gaṇi kṣamāśramaṇa.

---

1 "इहत्थिस्स सुट्ठित-सुप्पडिबद्धादयो आवलीते जहा दसासुते तहा भाणियव्वा, इह तेहिं अहिगारो नत्थि। महागिरिस्स आवलीए अधिगारो॥"- Nandicuṇṇi (pp. 6–7)

2 Some believe this to be an attribute of Saṇḍilla.-Ibid., (p. 7)

3 He is spoken of as द्वीपसागरप्रज्ञप्तिविधायक by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 16) on Nandī.

4 He is said to be an author of a grammar or Praśnavyākaraṇa, Bhaṅgika, and Kammapayāḍi.-Ibid., p. 16

5 Out of them, the 1st two may be compared with v. 366 and 367 of Kappabhāsa and the 3rd tallies with its v. 371.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As regards the date of this work it can be roughly ascertained by taking into account the list of non-Jaina works given in its s. 42. But this question will be taken up hereafter, as practically this very list is found in Aṇuogaddāra.

33. ANUOGADDĀRA

This is a Cūliyāsutta mostly in prose in the form of questions and answers, and it serves as a stepping-stone to one who wishes to study Āvassaya. It is prolific in contents; for, sacred topics and secular ones as well are treated here. For instance, upakrama, pramāṇa (valid proof), nikṣepa, anugama and naya are some of these sacred topics whereas 10 types of nāman, grammatical exposition, 9 kāvyarasas along with their illustrations etc. are the secular ones. Further its 41st sutta supplies us with names of some non-Jaina works. The pertinent portion is as under:—

"भारहं रामायणं भीमासुरुक्कं कोडिल्लयं घोडयमुहं सगडभद्दिआउ कप्पासिअं णागसुहुमं कणगसत्तरी वेसियं वइसेसियं बुद्धसासणं कविलं लोगायतं सट्ठितंतं माढरपुराणवागरणनाडगाइ, अहवा बावत्तरिकलाओ चत्तारि वेआ संगोवंगा."

This is practically the same as s. 42 of Nandī given on p. 14, except that the latter notes a few more works or schools viz. Terāsiya, Bhāgava, Pāyañjali and Pussadevaya. As regards the importance of this Aṇuogaddāra and Nandī the following remark occurring in A His of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 472) may be noted:—

"Both works are huge encyclopædias dealing with everything which should be known by a Jaina monk."

As regards the author of this work Prof. A. B. Dhruva has said in his intro. (p. XLIX, fn.) to Syādvādamañjarī as under:—

"The Jaina tradition ascribes not only the division of Anuyoga, but also the compilation or composition of Anuyogadvāra to Āryarakṣitā (Âvaśyaka I; 774)."

It seems Prof. Dhurva alludes to v. 774 of Āvassayabhāsa noted on p. 12, fn. If this surmise is correct, it means that Prof. Dhruva has misunderstood this verse, the real meaning being one noted by me on pp. 52–53. The word aṇuoga occurring in this verse does not stand for Aṇuogaddāra but it means 'exposition'. Such being the case, the date of Aṇuogaddāra can be rather settled by taking into account the dates of the works noted on p. 161. But, since unfortunately the Jaina commentaries[1] are silent about them except the mention of the 4 Vedas and their 6 Aṅgas[2], some of them cannot be at all identified. Further the dates of the rest are not still finally fixed. So I shall make a tentative suggestion in this connection as under:

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

By Bhāraha and Rāmayaṇa are meant the two well-known Indian epics viz. Mahābhārata and Rāmāyaṇa. It seems at the time of the composition of Aṇuogaddāra, the former was known as Bhārata which later on went on increasing in size on account of the various verses interpolated therein from time to time and which finally received the name of Mahābhārata. As stated in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 25) Bhāraha was read and heard in the morning and Rāmāyaṇa in the afternoon.

Bhimāsurukka or °kkha[3] may be taken to be Bhīmāsura or Bhīmāsurākkhyāna. Its subject and authorship are not known up till now.

Koḍillayā is equated with Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra. Its date is not fixed. Some take it to be 326 B. C. and some even suppose it to be so very late as 400 A. D.

Ghoḍayamuha[4] is supposed to be some work on kāmaśāstra by Ghoṭakamukha[5], a predecessor of Vātsyāyana.

Sagaḍabhaddiyā stands for Śakaṭabhadrikā. Nothing can be said about this work except that its title is in plural.

---

1 Nandicuṇṇi (p. 39), Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 83) on Nandī, Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 194[b]) on Nandi, Aṇuogaddāracuṇṇi (p. 16), Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 22) on Aṇuogaddāra and Hemacandra Sūri's com. (p. 36[b]) on Aṇuyogaddāra are the sources I have examined in this connection.

2 Hemacandra Sūri in his com. (p. 36[b]) on Aṇuogaddāra (s. 41) says:— "चत्वारश्च वेदाः सामवेद-ऋग्वेद-यजुर्वेदाऽथर्वणवेदलक्षणाः साङ्गोपाङ्गाः, तत्राङ्गानि शिक्षा १-कल्प २ व्याकरण ३ च्छन्दो ५ निरुक्त ५ ज्योतिष्कायन ६ लक्षणानि षट्, उपाङ्गानि तद्व्याख्यानरूपाणि तैः सह वर्तन्ते इति साङ्गोपाङ्गाः।"

3 See p. 14 fn. (here कावालिअं is a misprint; it should be काविलिअं).

4 In p. 14 fn. and in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 292), too, there is mention of Khoḍamuha instead of Ghoḍayamuha. So it may be some unknown work.

5 He is referred to in Arthaśāstra.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kappāsia[1] can be rendered as Kārpāsika or Kalpāśika in Saṁskṛta. In the former case it may be a work dealing with cotton and in the latter case with permissible food etc.

Nāgasuhuma stands for Nāgasūkṣma. It may have something to do with serpents or the Nāga tribes. Its date etc. are unknown.

Kaṇagasattari (Sk. Kanakasaptati) can be equated with Īśvarakṛṣṇa's Sāṁkhyakārikā which is also known as Sāṁkhyasaptati. It is based upon Ṣaṣṭitantra and is commented upon by Māṭhara and Gauḍa. This Īśvarakṛṣṇa was once identified as Vindhyavāsin, a Sāṁkhya leader[2]; but now a days he is looked upon as different from him. Some place him in the second century A. D., and some say his period ranges from 340 A. D. to 390 A. D.[3]

Vesiya (Sk. Vaiśika) is said to be some work on Kāmaśāstra.

Vaisesiya probably refers to either the Vaiśeṣika system of philosophy or some standard work of this name of this school.

Buddhasāsaṇa for which in Nandī (s. 42) we have Buddhavayaṇa appears to be a Bauddha work by that name. If not, it means the Bauddha school of thought.

Kāvila seems to refer to the system of Kapila, the propounder of the Sāṁkhya system or to a standard work so named by this school or some one else.

Logāyata (Sk. Laukāyata) seems to imply the Lokāyata system the Cārvāka darśana or a work of this school.

Saṭṭhiyanta (Sk. Ṣaṣṭitantra) is supposed to be a work of the Sāṁkhya school composed by Vārṣagaṇya or Varṣagaṇa, guru of Vindhyavāsin. He is assigned a period from 230 A. D. to 300 A. D. This work is referred to in Viāhapaṇṇatti (II, 1;

1 There is a variant कप्पाणिसिय in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 292).

2 He is assigned a period from 250 A. D. to 320 A. D. Vide Foreword (p. xcv) to Tattvasaṅgraha.

3 Ibid. See also Jagadīśacandra Jaina's edition (p. 425) of Syādvādamañjarī.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

s. 89[1]), Nāyādhammakahā (I, v; s. 55), Ovavāïya (s. 77[2]) and Pajjosaṇākappa (s. 8[3]). Its authoship is attributed Āsuri.[4]

Māḍhara (Sk. Māthara) is the name of the commentator of Sāṅkyakārikā. He is placed in the 1st century A. D. by some scholars whereas some think that the correct date is cir. 500 A. D.[5] The word Māḍhara here used means a work of Māthara and seems to be his com. above referred to.

Purāṇa stands for any one or more of the well-known 18 Purāṇas which must have a date earlier than those of Nandī and Anuogaddāra.

Vāgaraṇa (Sk. Vyākaraṇa) may be a proper name of a work or it may be meaning grammar or exposition. Nothing can be said for certain.

Nāḍaya (Sk. Nāṭaka) means a drama. It is difficult to say whether this stands for any particular drama or not. And even if it is, we do not know what that drama is.

By Veyas are meant the 4 well-known Vedas. For their names and those of their six Aṅgas see p. 162, fn. 2. The Upāṅgas are commentaries to these six Aṅgas. See p. 162, fn. 2.

We may now deal with other works noted in Nandī.

Terāsiya (Sk. Trairāśika) stands for the school of the Trairāśikas of whom Rohagupta, pupil of Gupta Sūri is looked upon as the founder. Or it may be a name of some standard work of this school. Rohagupta's date is cir. Vīra Saṁvat 544.

Bhāgava may be a misreading for Bhaggava. If so, it can be looked upon as a work of Bhārgava, a distinguished follower

---

1-3 So far as the pertinent portion is concerned, it is practically the same in all of these suttas. It runs as under:-

"रिउव्वेद-जजुव्वेद-सामवेद-अहव्वणवेद इतिहासपंचमाणं निघंटुछट्ठाणं चउण्हं वेदाणं संगोवंगाणं सरहस्साणं सारए वारए पारए सडंगवी सट्टितंतविसारए संखाणे सिक्खाकप्पे वागरण छंदे निरुत्ते जोतिसामयणे अन्नेसु य बहूसु बंभण्णएसु परिव्वायएसु ए नयेसु सुपरिनिट्ठए यावि"

4 See the edition (p. 424) of Syādvādamañjari noted on p. 163.

5 Vide Foreword (pp. lxxvi-lxxvii) to Tattavasaṅgraha.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of the Sāṁkhya school. Prof. Winternitz, however, equates it with Bhāgavata-Purāṇa; but is this consistent when Purāṇa is already mentioned prior to this?

Pāyañjali (Sk. Pātañjali) stands for either the Yogasūtra of Patañjali or the Mahābhāṣya.

Pussadevaya (Sk. Puṣyadaivata) may be some astronomical work dealing with Puṣya, a constellation or Jupiter who is associated with Puṣya.

From this it may be inferred that on one hand Nandī and Aṇuogaddāra belong to the 3rd century A. D. whereas on the other hand to the 5th century A. D.

34. PAKKHIYASUTTA

As already noted on p. 43, this is looked upon by some as a Mūlasutta. It begins with the mention of the 5 mahāvratas and supplies us with a list of canonical treatises. It also includes the worship of the kṣamāśramaṇas. It is a liturgy in verse for the fortnightly paḍikkamaṇa. It is recited by the Jaina clergy during this paḍikkamaṇa.

35. CAÜSARAṆA

This work "four-fold refuge" also known as Kusalānubandhi-ajjhayaṇa consists of 63 verses in Prākṛta. The first few ones mention the six essential daily duties (āvaśyakas) whereas the rest deal with the four-fold refuge viz. that of the Tīrthaṁkaras, that of the liberated, that of the Jaina clergy and that of religion.

36. ĀURAPACCAKKHĀṆA

This work "the sick one's refusal" is also designated as Bṛhadāturapratyākhyāna. It is mostly in verses. The 10th verse is followed by a passage in prose. It deals with various types of death, and indicates the stages arrived at by these types and points out the means leading to them. Muni Darśanavijaya in his article[1] entitled Mūlācāra has stated that several verses of this Paiṇṇaga have been incorporated in Mūlācāra (II).

1 This has been published in Jainasatyaprakāśa (vol. VI, No. I, pp. 6–10),

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

37 BHATTAPARIṆṆĀ

This work "dispensing with food" consists of 173 gāthās in Prākṛta. It recommends bhattapariṇṇāmaraṇa[1] and deals with ethical precepts. The word bhattapariṇṇa along with candagavejjha occur in v. 807 of Ohanijjutti.

38 SAṆTHĀRAGA

This work "the pallet of straw" consisting of 121 gāthās or so points out the importance of saṁstāraka and praises those who rightly resort to it. It contains references pertaining to Arṇikāputra, Sukośala Ṛṣi, Cāṇakya, Gajasukumāla and others who gave up attachment to body etc. and attained final emancipation. It may be noted that an attempt to collect references about narratives, legendary anecdotes etc., was made by Kurt von Kamptz in his monograph "Über die vom Sterbefasten handelnden älteren Païṇṇa des Jaina-Kanons", Hamburg, 1929. Though this and other Païṇṇas above-referred to deal with rules for a death befitting the sage, they are none the less didactic poems, contain sermons, and "make use of plays on numbers and all kinds of figures of ornate poetry."[2]

39. TAṆḌULAVEYĀLIYA

This work is styled as Payaṇṇaya just in the beginning of this work. It is referred to as Taṇḍulavicāraṇā by Maladharin Hemacandra Sūri in his commentary (p. 5[a]) on Aṇuogaddārasutta. It is mostly in verses, their number being about 125. The main topics dealt with, herein are as under:—

Embryology, food in the embryonic condition, births as a celestial being and a hellish being, 10 conditions of a living being[3], description of the yugmins, 6 types of osseous structure, and those of the shape of the body, condemnation of woman and resort to dharma.

---

1 Death forms a subject-matter of several other Paiṇṇagas viz. Saṁthāraga, Āurapaccakkhāṇa, Mahāpaccakkhāṇa and Maraṇasamāhi.

2 See A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 460).

3 The pertinent verse is the same as v. 10 of Dasaveyāliyanijjutti. It runs:—

"बाला १ किड्डा २ मंदा ३ बला ४ य पन्ना ५ य हायणि ६ पवंचा ७।
पब्भारा ८ मुम्मुही ९ सायणी १० य दसमा य कालदसा ॥३१॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Thus this Āgama is useful for the study of ancient notions about physiology, anatomy etc. It is quoted in Dasaveyāliya-cuṇṇi (p. 5).

CANDĀVIJJHAYA

This work also known as Candagavijjha and consisting of 174 verses, explains how one should behave at the time of death. Incidentally we here come across the description of rādhāvedha.

DEVINDATTHAYA

This is a work containing about 292 verses in Prākṛta. It deals with questions and answers pertaining to 32 Indras, their residential quarters, vimānas etc. Furthermore it gives us information regarding all the four types of gods.

GAṆIVIJJĀ

This work consisting of 86 verses in Prākṛta is more or less of an astrological character. For, it deals with auspicious and unauspicious days, constellations, muhūrtas, omens etc. In v. 63 the word horā occurs.

MAHĀPACCAKKHĀṆA

This Prākṛta work "great refusal" contains 142 verses. It deals with rules pertaining to confession, renunciation etc.

VĪRATTHAVA

This is a small work in Prākṛta in 43 verses. It has for its main topic enumeration of the various names of Lord Mahāvīra. In short, it is a hymn.

This finishes a discussion about the principal Āgamas of the Jainas. Of course, there remain certain Paiṇṇagas. Out of them only a few are being selected here, for being dealt with.

AṄGAVIJJĀ

This is looked upon by some as Paiṇṇaga. It is written in Prākṛta, some portions of which are in prose and some in verse. Its extent is indicated in Jaina granthāvalī as 9000 ślokas. It seems to be an anonymous work. It appears that at least to some extent, it is a nimittaśāstra.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

46. AJĪVAKAPPA

This is a small work in Prākṛta in 44 verses. It deals with certain articles like a stick, a needle, a nail-cutter etc. which a Jaina saint is likely to have with him.

47. ĀURAPACCAKKHĀṆA

This is also a work in Prākṛta in verse. It deals with the glorification of the five Parameṣṭhins. See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 326).

48 GACCHĀYĀRA

This work "school rules" consists of 137 verses or so in Prākṛta. As stated in its 135th verse, it is based upon Mahā-nisīha, Vavahāra etc. It deals with the following topics:—

The fruit accruing from staying in gaccha, characteristics of a Gaṇi alias Sūri, prowess of gītārtha, distinguishing features of gaccha, avoidance of undue contact with the Jaina nuns and behaviour of these nuns.

49. JAMBŪSĀMIAJJHAYAṆA

This is a work consisting of 21 sections known as uddesagas. It deals with the life of Jambūsvāmin.

50 JOÏSAKARAṆḌAYA

This work is in verses in Prākṛta. Its sections, like those of the Puvvas and Sūriyapaṇṇatti are styled as pāhuḍas. Its subject-matter is more or less astronomy. It is an epitome of Sūriya-paṇṇatti (vide v. 1). It is in accordance with the Vālabhī tradition as is the case with Jīvasamāsa.

51 TITTHOGĀLI

This work consists of about 1251 verses in Prākṛta. It has as one of its topics, the life of Bhadrabāhusvāmin. Its verses 620 to 622 throw light on the date of Candragupta's coronation—a subject dealt with by Shantilal Shah in "The Traditional chronology of the Jainas" (pp. 16–17).

These are some of the Paiṇṇagas, out of the 20 supernumerary ones described by me in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I). For

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the description of the rest and the various references pertaining to the extant Āgamas, the reader may refer to D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pts. I–III).

2. ISIBHĀSIYA

This is a work of which the title is in plural.[1] It is associated with dharmakathānuyoga.[2] Bhadrabāhusvāmin had composed a Nijjutti on it; but, unfortunately it is not available now. He has mentioned this work, over and above Uttarajjhayaṇa. But Śīlāṅka Sūri[3] and Malayagiri Sūri[4] include this Uttarajjhayaṇa under the head Isibhāsiya. Further, Siddhasena Gaṇi too, seems to hold a similar view.[5] I do not know if this difference of opinion is reconciled by any one. So I may tentatively suggest that all those works which are expounded by Ṛṣis are classed as Isibhāsiya by Śīlāṅka, Malayagiri and Siddhasena, and consequently Uttarajjhayaṇa, too, is designated by them as Isibhāsiya. As already noted on p. 16, fn. 3, Yaśodeva Sūri opines that Isibhāsiya consists of 45 ajjhayaṇas, and they are expositions of 45 Pratyekabuddhas. Out of them 20 belong to the tīrtha of Lord Neminātha, 15 to that of Lord Pārśvanātha and 10 to that of Lord Mahāvīra.[6]

1 See p. 12. 2 See p. 12.

3 ऋषिभाषितेषु-उत्तराध्ययनादिषु-com. (p. 386[b]) on Āyāra

4 "ऋषिभाषितानि-उत्तराध्ययनादीनि"- com. (pt. II, p. 399) on Āvassaya

5 In his com. (p. 90) on the Bhāṣya (p. 90) of Tattvārtha (I, 21) he has said: "यद् ऋषिभिर्भाषितानि प्रत्येकबुद्धादिभिः कापिलीयादीनि".

6 This is borne out by the Isibhāsiya published in A. D. 1927 by Ṛṣabhadeva Keśarīmalajī Saṁsthā, Rutlam. On its p. 40 we have the Isibhāsiya-saṅgahaṇī as under:

"पत्तेयबुद्धमिसिणो वीसं तित्थे अरिट्ठनेमिस्स। पासस्स य पण्णरस वीरस्स विलीणमोहस्स ॥ १ ॥
णारद १ वज्जितपुत्ते २ असिते ३ अंगरिसि ४ पुप्फसाले ५ य।
वक्कल ६ कुंमा ७ केयलि ८ कासव ९ तह तेतलिसुते १० य ॥ २ ॥
मंखलि ११ जण्ण १२ भयाली १३ बाहुयमहु १४ सोरियाण १५ विदू १६ विंपू १७।
वरिसे कण्हे १८ आरिय १९ उक्कलवादा य २० तरुणे २१ य ॥
गद्दभ २२ रामे २३ य तहा हरिगिरि २४ अंबड २५ मयंग २६ वारत्ता २७।
तंसो य अद्दए २८ वद्धमाणे २९ वाऊ ३० य तीसतिमे ॥४॥
पासे ३१ पिंगे ३२ अरुणे ३३ इसिगिरि ३४ यट्टालए ३५ य विदे ३६ य।
सिरिगिरि ३७ सातियपुत्ते ३८ संजय ३९ दीवायणे ४० चेव ॥५॥
तत्तो य इंदणागे ४१ सोम ४२ यमे ४३ चेव होइ वरुणे ४४ य।
वेसमणे ४५ य महप्पा चत्ता पंचेव अक्खाए ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

A majority of these is mostly in verse, and indulges in various similes. Turning to Samavāya (s. 44) we learn that the Isibhāsiya contains 44 ajjhayaṇas and deal with 44 Ṛṣis born here after the expiry of their life as celestial beings. Ṭhāṇa (X; s. 755) strikes altogether a different note; for, therein one of the ajjhayaṇas of Paṇhāvāgaraṇa, is looked upon as Isibhāsiya. Of course, as already noted on p. 107 such an ajjhayaṇa is not to be found in the 10th Aṅga available at present.

53. SAṂSATTANIJJUTTI[1]

This is a metrical composition having 63[2] verses. Its first two verses run as under:–

"उसहाइवीरचरिमे सुरअसुरनमंसिए पणमिऊणं। संखेवओ महत्थं भणामि संसत्तनिज्जुत्तिं ॥१॥ बीयाओ पुव्वाओ अग्गेणीयस्स इमं सुअमुआरं। संसइमसंमुच्छिमजीवाणं जाणिऊणंगं ॥२॥"

From this 2nd verse it follows that this work is extracted from the 2nd Puvva. It deals with the birth of sammūrcchima jīvas that prop up under certain conditions. It points out as to what articles of food and drink are acceptable to a Jaina Sādhu. It mentions the periods of days etc., when certain eatables and drinkables cease to be acceptable to him. Further it refers to countries like Magadha, Nepal, Kalinga, Dravida and Saurāṣtra while discussing the above-mentioned topic.

---

1 This is named as Jivasamsattaniijutti in one of the Mss.

2 In one of the Mss. there are only 24 verses. The 1st verse begings with बीयाओ पुव्वाओ. Its last verse runs as under:—
"संसत्तनिज्जुत्ती प(सा) साहूही वे (?) पढियव्वा। अत्थो पुण सोयव्वो सद्दुहिं साहुपासा य ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

CHAPTER VI

THE CANONICAL EXEGETICAL LITERATURE

At the very outset, I may mention that I divide the canonical literature of the Jainas into two groups. In the first group, I include the pure texts forming the Jaina canon, whereas in the second all those works which explain these texts. It is this second group which I wish to deal with, in this chapter.

It seems that in an ordinary course, the need for explanation must have been felt from the time human beings began to communicate their thoughts to one another, and this must have led in its turn to the evolving of the exegetical literature of all the nations, that of the Indians being no exception to this rule. This is not the place where I can enter into a discussion about its origin. Even the fundamental and distinguishing characteristics of the exegetical literatures of all the Indian schools of thought cannot be fully treated. Further it is not here possible to deal with the exegetical literature pertaining to the non-canonical works of even the Jainas. So keeping these limitations in view, I shall now proceed with the subject here specified.

In every epoch, so to say, at least one prophet appears to have flourished in India and his sermon, to have served as a basis for explanation and elucidation to be indulged in, by his apostles and followers. To take a special case, according to the Jaina tradition, the Gaṇadharas compose dvādaśāṅgīs, and each of them teaches his own dvādaśāṅgī to his pupils. Consequently, while doing so, each must be offering some explanation or other, at least regarding knotty points. But, strange to say, there seems to be no record maintained regarding these explanations of the dvādaśāṅgīs. This state of affairs exists not only in connection with the dvādaśāṅgīs composed prior to the birth of Lord Mahāvīra, but also in the case of the 11 dvādaśāṅgīs composed by his own 11 Gaṇadharas.

A student conversant with the Jaina system of education knows it full well that first of all, the meaning

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(attha) of a sutta is explained, then is given an explanation associated with Nijjutti, and this is followed by a detailed exposition which is not necessarily confined to what is explicitly expressed in the sutta.[1] It seems a similar process must have been followed at least by the 11 Gaṇadharas of Lord Mahāvīra. This means that several types of literature may have been then evolved. We do not know precisely what their natures must have been. Equally ignorant we are regarding their generic name and specific names, too, if any. For, the very first type of the Jaina explanatory works on the Agamas which form a part of our valuable legacy, is known as Nijjutti in Prākṛta and Niryukti in Saṁskṛta, and that its authorship is attributed to Bhadrabāhusvāmin, caramasayalasuyanāṇi who died in Vīra Saṁvat 170. He has composed 10 Nijjuttis. But we do not know their specific names except those like Āvassayanijjutti etc., coined by taking into account the work of which it is the Nijjutti. Further, we do not know the exact dates of their composition. All the same, we may say almost with certainty that none of them is composed after Vīra Saṁvat 170. This date is at times questioned on the ground of anachronisms etc.[2] But this does not seem to be justifiable; for, these anachronisms are in all probality due to the procedure adopted at the time of the Redaction of the Jaina canon, and further the question of salutation to himself and the like are an outcome of the sweet confusion due to the intermixture of some of the verses of the Bhāsa with those of the Nijjutti. As a corroborative evidence of the latter fact, it may be mentioned that in the Āvassayanijjutti one comes across at least some verses belonging to its Bhāsa (vide p. 177). Same is the case with Dasaveyāliyanijjutti. In its edition (having Haribhadra Sūri's com.,) its learned editor

1 See J. S. E. (p. 228).

2 By etc., are meant salutation to Bhadrabāhusvāmin to himself and the like. As an example of this salutation the following verse occurring in Dasāsuyakkhandhanijjutti may be here noted:

"वंदामि भद्दबाहुं 'पाईणं' चरमसयलसुयनाणिं। सुत्तस्स कारगमिसिं दसासु कप्पे य ववहारे॥१॥"

See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, pp. 70 and 259). See also p. 16, fn. 2.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

has pointed out that 63 verses of Bhāsa have been incorporated in this Nijjutti. See p. 278 of this edn. That some of the verses of the Bhāsa on Kappa have got mixed up with those of its Nijjutti, is a remark made by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 2) on this Kappa. There he has observed that it is well-nigh impossible to separate these two elements. It may be further noted that Pañcakappa which is an offshoot of either the Kappabhāsa or more probably that of Kappanijjutti seems to contain the gāthās of both of them. Perhaps the 1st 4 or 5 gāthās may be definitely pointed out as belonging to the Kappanijjutti. As regards the rest, it is very difficult-almost impossible to decide as to which gāthā is that of the corresponding Nijjutti and which is that of the pertinent Bhāsa. This is the view held by Muni Puṇyavijaya, a learned disciple of the late Muni Caturavijaya.[1]

Under these circumstances, almost[2] all the extant Nijjuttis and Bhāsas may be defined as under:—

Nijjutti contains verses really belonging to it and some of the corresponding Bhāsa, too; but the former preponderate over the latter. Similarly Bhāsa consists of verses which legitimately belong to it; and, in addition it has some verses of the relevant Nijjutti as well; but the former exceed the latter in number.

It is in this light that the designations such as Āvassayanijjutti, Dasaveyāliyanijjutti, Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti, Dasāsuyakkhandhanijjutti, Nisīhabhāsa, Vavahārabhāsa, Kappabhāsa and Pañcakappabhāsa of the extant works should be interpreted. The same thing can be said about Ohanijjutti and Piṇḍanijjutti, too; for, they contain at least some verses of their corresponding Bhāsas. This may suffice so far as the general nature of the Nijjuttis is concerned. So I shall now deal with the extant Nijjuttis.

Āvassayanijjutti-This is a versified com. on Āvassaya. Its extent is differently noted in different Mss.[3] Roughly speaking, it varies from 2575 ślokas to 3550 ślokas. It seems that the original Nijjutti has undergone several additions. These are associated 1 Vide his private communication dated 13-7-40.

2 Nijjuttis on Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa seem to have very little spurious matter. They appear to have been preserved to us in a form almost free from later additions.

3 Vide D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III Nos. 1003, 1004, 1007-1009).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

with 4 redactions by Prof. E. Leumann who attributes the 1st 3 of them to Bhadrabāhusvāmin, Siddhasena (Divākara)[1] and Jinabhaṭa respectively. After entering into a learned discussion pertaining to these redactions, he has presented it in a tabular form (p. 31) which may be given as under:-

Āvassaya	Āvassayanijjutti
	Redaction I	Red. II	Red. III	Red. IV
				Therāvalī
		I Peḍhiyā
	II-VIII (Uvagghāya-nijjutti)
Pañcanamokkāra	IX
I Sāmāiya	X
II Caüvisatthava	XI
III Vandaṇa	XII
IV Paḍikkamaṇa	XIII		XIV (Jhāṇa-sāya)
	XV (Pāriṭṭhā-vaṇiyānijjutti)	XVI (Saṅga-haṇī).
	XVII (Joga-saṅgaha)
	XVIII (Asaj-jhāyanijjutti)
V Kaüssagga	XIX
VI Paccakkhāṇa	XX

1. The authorship of Pīyācaüvvisī, a small work in Prākṛta is attributed to him. It is published in Jainasatyaprakāśa (vol. V, No. 11, pp. 1-2). From this it appears that it is extracted from some Puvva.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

In this connection it may be mentioned that no doubt some of the Mss.[1] of Avassayanijjutti have in the beginning about 50 verses which form a Therāvalī and which tally with the verses occurring in Nandī. But the exposition of this Therāvalī has no place so far as Visesā°, the Cuṇṇi on Āvassayanijjutti and its commentaries by Haribhadra Sūri, Malayagiri Sūri[2] and Śrītilaka Sūri[3] are concerned. It is however in the 15th century or so that some of the commentators of Āvassayanijjutti have assigned a place to it therein, e. g. Jñānasāgara[4], pupil of Devasāgara and Mānikyaśekhara Sūri, pupil of Merutuṅga Sūri. Hence it may be inferred that this Therāvalī may have been inserted in Āvassayanijjutti earliest in the 13th century of the Vikrama era.

Āvassayanijjutti explains the six ajjhayaṇas of Āvassaya. Therein the portion dealing with ajjhayaṇa I (Sāmāiya) is divided into two parts: Uvagghāyanijjutti and Namokkāranijjutti. Out of them the 1st part is further sub-divided into 9 sections as under:—

(i) Peḍhiyā, (ii) Lahuvaravariyā[5], (iii) Vuḍḍhavaravariyā[6], (iv) Uvassagga, (v) Samosaraṇa, (vi) Gaṇahara also known as Gaṇaharavāya, (vii) Sāmāyārī, (viii) Niṇhavavattava[7] and (ix) Sesāivagghāyanijjutti[8].

The Nijjutti of ajjhayaṇas II, III, V and VI has no such sections, whereas that of IV has the following ones:—

---

1 A Ms. dated Saṁvat 1483(?) may be cited as an instance. See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, No. 1002).

2 He has referred to a work named Pravacanasiddhi on p. 367[a]. This work is probably extinct.

3 He has composed this com. in Saṁvat 1296.

4 He has composed the pertinent com. in Saṁvat 1440. See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 452)

5-6 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, pp. 391 and 394). These are also named as Paḍhamāvaravariyā and Bīiyavaravariyā. Ibid., pp. 391-393.

7 At times this is not separately mentioned.

8 This is also designated as Uvagghāyanijjutti.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(i) Jhāṇasaya, (ii) Pāriṭṭhāvaṇiyānijjutti[1], (iii) Paḍikkamāsaṅgahaṇī[2], (iv) Jogasaṅgaha[3] and (v) Asajjhāyanijjutti.

(i) Peḍhiyā—Ordinarily this means 'an introduction'; but, here it means a Nandī dealing with five-fold knowledge and its sub-varieties. It comprises 79 verses or so. Incidentally herein there is an exposition about the sound we hear, some of the labdhis (miraculous powers) and strengths of Vāsudeva and others.

(ii) Lahuvaravariyā—Varavariyā means proclamation of giving the desired object. This meaning is applicable here at least to some extent; for, the ending verse mentions the amount of donations given by a Tīrthaṅkara in a year. This section consists of about 178 verses. Before commenting upon its verse Malayagiri Sūri says: "तत्रोपोद्घातस्यादिमङ्गलमाह". Can this be construed as suggesting that the Uvagghāyanijjutti really commences henceforth and that Peḍhiyā is an interpolation? The 1st 3 verses deal with salutations to the Tīrthaṅkaras in general, the liberated, Lord Mahāvīra, his 11 Gaṇadharas, Gaṇdharavaṁśa, Vācakavaṁśa and the holy canon. In the following verse the author says that he will compose the Nijjutti of suyanāṇa, and in the subsequent two verses he mentions 10 works of which he intends to compose Nijjuttis. He then commences Sāmāiyanijjutti. There he discusses the relative importance of knowledge and character and deals with upaśamaśreṇi[4], kṣapakaśreṇi[5], nikṣepas of anuyoga, and methods of exposition. This is followed by uddeśa etc., which form 26 entrances of Uvagghāyanijjutti. Then is depicted the life of Lord Mahāvīra wherein incidentally there is mention of 7 Kulakaras and 4 types of nīti. The life of Lord Ṛṣabha, too, is here narrated.

(iii) Viḍḍhavaravariyā—This section consists of about 348 verses. On examining the edition of Malayagiri Sūri's com., it can be said that verses 243–460[6] of the Āvassayanijjutti along with v. 33–111

1-2 Some do not look upon these two as forming a part and parcel of the Nijjutti on Āvassaya (IV).

3 This is also styled as Jogasaṅgahanijjutti.

4-5 These are respectively the subsidential and destructive ladders useful for spiritual advancement.

6 After verse 415 we have vs. 1-17 dealing with the intervals between every two Tīrthaṅkaras out of 24. Similarly there are vs. 1-4 following v. 418.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of its Bhāsa make up this section.[1] The latter verses cannot be legitimately looked upon as the pertinent portion. Even then, so far as the contents are concerned, I shall not neglect them. This section commences with the details about the dīkṣās of the 24 Tīrthaṅkaras. It, too, deals with the life of Lord Ṛṣabha. It refers to the origin of the Veda (v. 366). It ends by giving some details about the life of Lord Mahāvīra, such as his donation, his renouncing the world and his going to Karmāragrāma.

On a cursorary examination of the contents of this section and the preceding one, I am tempted to believe that only one of them and probably the former rightly constituted the Āvassayanijjutti, and that the latter one which is more extensive than the former, is a later product subsequently incorporated therein probably at the time of the Redaction of the Jaina canon. This surmise is supported by another name of Vuḍḍhavaravariyā.

(iv) Uvasagga—As this word suggests, this section consisting of about 70 verses, deals with various terrible hardships experienced by Śramaṇa Mahāvīra till he attained omniscience.

(v) Samosaraṇa—This section comprises about 69 verses, in case the portion dealing with various penances of Lord Mahāvīra given in the beginning is here included. Otherwise it consists of about 48 verses which describe the samosaraṇa.

(vi) Gaṇahara—This section having about 65 verses, deals with the doubts of the 11 Gaṇadharas of Lord Mahāvīra and their removals by the latter.

(vii) Sāmāyārī—This is a metrical composition of about 64 verses, and it supplies us with a ten-fold code of laws governing the life of the Jaina clergy. Before dealing with this section Malayagiri Sūri observes on p. 341[b]: "साम्प्रतमोघनिर्युक्तिर्वक्तव्या, सा च महत्त्वाद् पृथग्-ग्रन्थान्तररूपा कृता ॥ सम्प्रति दशविधसामाचारीप्रतिपादनार्थमाह ।" Similaraly, while commenting upon the last verse of this section he remarks on p. 355[b]: "इदानीं पदविभागसामाचार्याः प्रस्तावः, सा च कल्पव्यवहाररूपा बहुविस्तरा, ततः स्वस्थानादवसेया।"

1 Herein there are 14 interpolated verses. See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 394).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The remaining portion of Uvagghāyanijjutti consists of about 216 verses. It commences by mentioning 7 causes that decrease the life-period. It deals with 7 nayas, 4 anuyogas, 7 Nihnavas and sāmāyika. Incidentally it narrates the lives of Vajrasvāmin, Āryarakṣita Sūri, Damadanta, Metārya, Kālaka, Cilātiputra, Ātreya, Dharmaruci, Ilāputra and Tetaliputra. This finishes the rough survey of Uvagghāyanijjutti which is referred to, in the Nijjutti on other sections of Āvassaya and which opens the doors for the treatment of suttapphāsiyanijjutti wherein the 1st topic dealt with is the nature of sutta. This is followed by Namokkāranijjutti of about 144 verses. Then we have sāmāïyanijjutti of about 111 verses.[1] This completes the Nijjutti of Āvassaya (I).

Caüvvīsatthavanijjutti and Vandaṇanijjutti consist of about 60 and 190 verses respectively.

Jhāṇasaya[2] consists of about 106 verses, and it is composed by Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa. It is an exposition of meditation.

Pāriṭṭhāvaṇiyānijjutti[3] comprises about 153 verses, and Paḍikkamaṇasaṅgahaṇī about 80 verses. Some of the topics dealt with, in the latter are: 7 types of fear, 9 kinds of brahmaguptis, 10 types of dharma, 11 pratimās of a Jaina layman and 12 of a saint, 13 kriyā-sthānas, 14 guṇasthānas, 15 Paramādhārmikas, 16 ajjhayaṇas of Sūyagaḍa (I), 17 kinds of self-control, 18 types of non-celibacy, 19 ajjhayaṇas of Nāyādhammakahā (I), 22 hardships, 28 ajjhayaṇas of Āyāra including Nisīha, 29 types of pāpa-śruta and 31 attributes of the liberated. So leaving aside these two sections and Jhāṇasaya, Paḍikkamaṇanijjutti contains about 227 (51+60+5+111) verses. Therein Jogasaṅgaha having about 60 verses has the 1st verse in common with Samavāya (s. 32). It runs as under:—

"आलोयणनिरवलावे आवईसु दढधम्मया। अणिस्सओवहाणे य सिक्खा णिप्पडिकम्मया॥"

---

1 Its 1st verse is as under:—
"नंदिमणुओगदारं विहिवदुवग्घाइअं च नाऊणं। काऊण पंचमंगलमारंभो होइ सुत्तस्स॥"
Do the words Nandi and Anuogadāra here used refer to the two Cūliyāsuttas?

2 This is referred to by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 32[a]–32[b]) on Dasaveyāliya.

3 Its 15th verse defines sutta. It is as below:—
"पुव्वापरसंजुत्तं वेरग्गकरं सतंतमविरुद्धं। पोराणमद्धमागहभासानिययं हवइ सुत्तं॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kāiissaggaṇijjutti and Paccakkhāṇaṇijjutti consist of about 172 and 94 verses respectively.

Prof. E. Leumann has noted that Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Āvassayaṇijjutti is the 1st redaction. This is due to his surmise that this work and Mūlāyāra (VII)[1] are based upon some common source which he names as "original-Niryukti" consisting of 170 stanzas.

Dasaveyāliyaṇijjutti—This is a Nijjutti on Dasaveyāliya. It consists of about 447 verses. Out of them there are about 63 verses belonging to its Bhāsa, and they mostly occur in the Nijjutti of the 4th ajjhayaṇa. Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 84[a]) to it has noted one verse as भिन्नकर्तृकी. In this Nijjutti we come across the nikkevas of एक्कअ (v. 8), दसग (v. 9), दुम (v. 34), पुप्फ (v. 34), धम्म (v. 39), समण (v. 153), काम (v. 161), पय (v. 166), आयार (v. 179), जीव (v. 222), वक्क (v. 269), बुद्धि (v. 283), सयार (v. 328), भिक्खु (v. 333) etc., and niruttas of अज्झयण (v. 29-30), समण (v. 156), भिक्खु (v. 342) etc. Egaṭṭhas also are given e. g. that of आअ (v. 32), दुम (v. 35), पुप्फ (v. 36), नाय (v. 52), समण (v. 158-159), वक्क (v. 270) and तवसंजमरय (v. 345-347). In v. 6 Kappa is mentioned. In v. 50 there is a reference to a syllogism consisting of 5 members and to one having 10, and in v. 157, a Jaina saint is compared with several objects. Four varieties of gahiyapaya viz. gajja, pajja, geya and cuṇṇa are given in v. 170, and the following 4 verses define them. Verse 188 states four types of narration whereas the subsequent ones up to 201 deal with their varieties.[2] Verses 220, 221 and 224 explain the nature of the soul. In v. 252-253 are enumerated 24 kinds of corn and in v. 254-255 24 kinds of jewels. Verses 259-262 deal with erotics, and v. 351 mentions 8 qualities of gold.[3]

---

1 189 verses of this are printed in Āv. Lit. (pp. 16-19). On one hand this work is commented upon by Vasunandin in his Ācāravṛtti (VII) and on the other hand by Aparājita and Āśādhara in Dharmāmṛta.

2 Cf. Samarāiccacariya (pp. 2-3), Upamitibhavaprapañcākathā (v. 25-50) and Kuvalayamālā of Uddyotana Sūri.

3 For details see Prof. A. M. Ghatage's article "Daśavaikālika-Niryukti" published in The Indian Historical Quarterly (vol. XI, No. 4, pp. 627-639). Therein he observes:

(i) "The commentator is clearly far-fetched and twisting in interpreting udāharaṇas as the dṛṣṭāntas of the logical syllogisms."—p. 637

(ii) "Haribhadra's opinion that a vāuliya is a reference to the school of the Nāstikas is not very accurate."—p. 638

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

3. Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti—This comprises about 600 verses. In v. 91[1] there is mention of Bhaddabāhu, in v. 97 that of Ajja-rakkhiya and in v. 104[2] that of Thūlabhadda with the honorific bhayavaṁ. These are no doubt instances of anachronism; but they can be justified in the light of the remarks made on p. 173.

This Nijjutti deals with nikkevas of several words[3] and gives synonyms[4], too. It mentions suvaṇṇabhūmi in v. 120 and Vāsa-vadattā and Udayaṇa in v. 148. Verses 165–178 supply us with information about 7 Nihnavas and v. 38 to 41 deal with various shapes and sizes –a mathematical topic. Verse 153 mentions 8 limbs of the body, and so does v. 189, whereas v. 190 mentions sub-limbs (upāṅgas). Verses 198–200 deal with karaṇas–an astrological item, and v. 212–235 treat the subject of 17 kinds of death etc. Verses 146–148 mention the ingredients of the best scent-perfume and v. 151 those of an excellent wine. Verse 149 deals with the preparation of a pill, and v. 150 informs us about the diseases that can be cured by it. Verses 124, 126–128 and 130–134 have the same last foot viz. "जायं सरणओ भयं." From Vādi-vetāla Śānti Sūri's com. (p. 141[a]) on v. 142 it follows that Dasaveyāliyanijjutti is prior to this Nijjutti.[5]

4. Āyāranijjutti—This metrical composition contains about 350 verses. It extends up to the 4th Cūlā of Ayāra. It, too, supplies us with nikkevas of various words.[6] Verses 18–27 deal with 7 vaṇṇas (castes) and 9 vaṇṇantaras etc., and v. 43–59 discuss 10 directions. Various living beings along with their varieties

1–2 These are the Nos. according to D. L. J. P. F. Series, No. 33.

3 संजोग (v. 30), एकअ (v. 142), गणण (v. 143), अंग (v. 144), पमाअ (v. 179), करण (v. 183), काम (v. 208), मरण (v. 208), निगंठ (v. 237), उरब्भ (v. 244), कविल (v. 250), नमि (v. 260), दुम (v. 280), बहु (v. 310), सुय (v. 310), पूजा (v. 310), पवयण (v. 455), जन्न (v. 460), साम (v. 480), खलुंक (v. 487), मुक्ख (v. 496), चरण (v. 514), and विहि (v. 516) may be cited as instances.

4 See v. 9, 64, 157 and 158. In v. 158 we have the synonyms of ahiṁsā.

5 "एतद्व्याख्या च दशवैकालिकनिर्युक्तावेव निर्युक्तिकृता कृतेत्यत्रोदासितं"

6 आयार (v. 5), अंग (v. 5), बंभ (v. 18), चरण (v. 29), सत्थ (v. 36), परिण्णा (v. 37), सण्णा (v. 38), दिसा (v. 40), पुढवी (v. 69), सम्म (v. 216), विमुक्ख (v. 257), इरिया (v. 308), etc, are some of them.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

form the subject of v. 43–166. Therein the earth-bodied, water-bodied, fire-bodied, vaṇassaï, the mobile and the wind-bodied are treated in v. 71–79, 107–108, 117–118, 127–143, 152–155 and 165–166 respectively. Verses 228–231 are the pādapūrtis of "सकुण्डलं वा वयणं न व त्ति."[1] In v. 264 there is mention of Ajja Vaira and in v. 266, that of Tosali. These are anachronisms, and hence these verses must have been added at the time of the Redaction of the Jaina canon. On examining v. 176[2] and Śilāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 76[a])[3] on it, it follows that Āvassayanijjutti was composed earlier than this Āyāranijjutti, and from v. 298–299[4] and 313 it follows that this Āyāranijjutti is posterior to Dasaveyāliyanijjutti. Besides it is posterior to Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti as well, as can be seen from v. 343[5] and its com. (p. 397[b])[6].

5. Sūyagaḍanijjutti[7] —This consists of about 205 verses. Verses 18 and 20 explain the title Sūyagaḍa and Suttagaḍa. In v. 68–69

1 Cf. Śatārthika Somaprabha Sūri's Kumāravālapaḍiboha (I; p. 27).

2 Herein Bhadrabāhusvāmin says: "लोगो भणिओ."

3 "भद्रबाहुस्वामिनाऽयमतिदेशोऽभ्यधायि, स च पूर्वमावश्यकनिर्युक्तिं विधाय पश्चादाचाराङ्गनिर्युक्तिं चक्रे, तथा चोक्तम्-'आवस्सयस्स दसकालियस्स तह उत्तरज्झमायारे' त्ति सूक्तम्।"

4 "पिंडेसणाए जा णिज्जुत्ती सा चेव होइ सेज्जाए। वत्थेसण पाएसण उग्गहपडिमाए सच्चेव ॥ २९८ ॥
सव्वा वयणविसोही णिज्जुत्ती जा वक्कसुद्धीए। सच्चेव णिरवसेसा भासज्जाए वि णायव्वा ॥ २९९ ॥"

5 "जो चेव होइ मुक्खो सा उ विमुत्ति पगयं तु भावेणं। देसविमुक्का साहू सव्वविमुक्का भवे सिद्धा ॥३४३॥"

6 "नामनिष्पन्ने तु निक्षेपे विमुक्तिरिति नाम, अस्य च नामादिनिक्षेप उत्तराध्ययनान्तःपातिविमोक्षाध्ययनवदित्यतिदेष्टुं निर्युक्तिकार आह।"

7 Prof. A. M. Ghatage has written an article on this, and it has been published in The Indian Historical Quarterly (vol. XII, No. 2, pp. 270–281, June 1936). Herein he has divided the Nijjuttis into 3 groups. In the 1st group he has included the Nijjuttis on the first two Aṅgas. As regards the remaining groups he has said:

"The second group consists of those Niryuktis where verses of the so-called mūla-Bhāṣya are added to the original Niryukti either to explain it or to supplement it (p. 270).

"In the third group come the Niryuktis which are now called by the names of the Bhāṣyas and Bṛhad-Bhāṣyas like those on Nisīha and others where it is not now possible to separate the original Niryukti and the latter commentary on it." (pp. 270–271).

For comparison see p. 173.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

there is mention of the 15 Paramādhārmikas, and in v. 70–84 there is a vivid description of the harassments they cause to the denizens of hell. Verse 119 refers to 363 heterodox schools of thought and v. 127–131 mention the various types of the teacher and the taught. In v. 189, Isibhāsiya is referred to. Nikkevas of several words are noted e. g. those of गाहा (v. 23), सोलस (v. 23), सुय (v. 23)[1], खंध (v. 23)[2], पुरिस (v. 57), विभत्ति (v. 66), समाहि (v. 104), मग्ग (v. 107), आदाण (v. 132), गहण (v. 132), महत (v. 142), अज्झयण (v. 143)[3], पुंडरीय (v. 144), आहार (v. 169), परिन्ना (v. 178), पच्चक्खाण (v. 179), सुत्त (v. 181), अह (v. 184) and अलं (v. 201)[4]. In v. 154 it is said that geometry is the best in Mathematics, and v. 191–200 delineate the life of Adda (Sk. Ārdra). From the com. (p. 241[a])[5] on v. 127 it follows that this Nijjutti is posterior to Uttarajjhayananijjutti, and from v. 182 and its com. (p. 371[a]–371[b]) it can be seen that this Nijjutti is preceded by Dasavayāliyanijjutti, too. See fn. 1–3.

6. Dasāsuyakkhandhanijjutti—This contains 154 verses distributed over the 10 sections of Dasāsuyakkhandha as under:—

11, 3, 10, 7, 4, 11, 8, 6, 7, 8 and 15.

Thus it will be seen that the Nijjutti on the 8th section viz. Pajjosanākappa is the biggest as compared with those of the rest.

7. Kappanijjutti—This is mixed up with its Bhāsa, at least since the time of Malayagiri Sūri. Pañcakappa is associated with it. This name Pañcakappa occurs in Āvassayacuṇṇi (Pt. I, p. 415) and in Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 83[6]) on v. 274[7] of Kappanijjutti mixed up with Kappabhāsa. Two Pañcakappabhāsas and Pañcakappacuṇṇi are available. There is no mention of Pañcakappanijjutti

1–3 Śīlāṅka Sūri says that these nikṣepas are treated elsewhere. On p. 371[a]–371[b] he says: "तत्राचारः क्षुल्लिकाचारकथायामभिहितः, श्रुतं तु विनयश्रुते।" Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 9[b]) on Dasaveyāliya says: "श्रुतस्कन्धयोस्तु निक्षेपश्चतुर्विधो द्रष्टव्यो यथाऽनुयोगद्वारेषु."

4 These nos. of verses are according to Āgamodaya Samiti Series. There the 50th verse is followed by the verse numbered as 53.

5 "ग्रन्थो द्रव्यभावभेदभिन्नः क्षुल्लकनैर्ग्रन्थ्यं नाम उत्तराध्ययनेष्वध्ययनं तत्र पूर्वमेव सप्रपञ्चोऽभिहितः।"

6 "भावकल्पः 'पञ्चविधः' पञ्चप्रकारः ॥२७३॥.....एते पञ्चापि प्रकाराः पञ्चकल्पे व्याख्यातास्तथा ज्ञातव्याः।"

7 "छव्विह सत्तविहे वा दसविह वीसइविहे य बायाला। जस्स उ नत्थि विभागो सुव्वत्त जलंधकारो से ॥ २७४ ॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

probably because its verses have got mixed up with those of either of the two Pañcakappabhāsas. I am inclined to equate the above-noted Pañcakappa with Pañcakappanijjutti and consider the former name as the abbreviation of the latter. On this understanding I have attributed its authorship to Bhadrabāhusvāmin on p. 38.

8. Pañcakappa as its very name suggests, deals with five kappas which are the five varieties of bhāvakalpa noted on p. 182, fn. 6. I think the exposition of these varieties was reserved by Bhadrabāhusvāmin for being treated as a separate work on the following grounds:—

(i) This exposition was going to be a detailed one.[1]

(ii) It could be safely dropped from Kappanijjutti.

9. Vavahāranijjutti—This is on the same footing as Kappanijjutti.

10. Nisīhanijjutti—It is from the Visehacuṇṇi of Nisīha that we know about the existence of this work. It points out some of its verses and attributes their authorship to Bhadrabāhusvāmin. It has been practically superseded by Nisīhabhāsa wherein these verses have got amalgamated.

Before we proceed further and examine the order of the Nijjuttis we may note:—

(i) Ohanijjutti and Piṇḍanijjutti are not separate Nijjuttis.

(ii) Saṁsattanijjutti is not a Nijjutti on any work, and same is the case with Ārāhaṇānijjutti.

(iii) The Nijjutti on Āvassaya should not be confounded with Āvassayanijjutti forming the seventh section of Mūlāyāra, a Digambara work attributed to Vaṭṭakera. For, this seventh section is not a com. on any work either belonging to the Śvetāmbara school or the Digambara one, though it is true that it resembles Bhadrabāhusvāmin's Nijjutti on Āvassaya in several respects. For instance, both are divided into six sections corresponding to (i) Sāmāiya, (ii) Caüvisatthava, (iii) Vandaṇaya, (iv) Paḍikkamaṇa, (v) Paccakkhāṇa, and (vi) Kāüssagga, the six well-known divisions of Āvassaya. Besides, they deal with the same subject, and that, too, in gāthās in Prākṛta.

1 In Bṛhaṭṭippaṇikā, the extent of Pañcakappa is noted as 1118 ślokas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Order—We may now take up the question as to the order in which Bhadrabāhusvāmin composed his Nijjuttis. Leaving aside the Nisīhanijjutti, the 10 Nijjuttis appear to be composed in the very order mentioned by him in Āvassayanijjutti (v. 82–83). As noted on p. 181 Āvassayanijjutti was composed earlier than Āyāranijjutti, and the latter and Sūyagaḍanijjutti, too, are posterior to Dasaveyāliyanijjutti and Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti (vide p. 182, fn. 1–3). Further this last one is preceded by Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (vide p. 180). Padmamandira Gaṇi[1] however strikes a different note[1] but adduces no arguments to support his statement. But I am inclined to side with Śīlaṅka Sūri and Vādivetāla Sūri and not with this Gaṇi. Further, for the following reasons, I am led to believe that out of ten, Āvassayanijjutti is composed first:—

(I) All the entrances such as uddesa etc., (vide p. 186) are treated at length in Uvagghāyanijjutti, a section of this Nijjutti.

(II) This Uvagghāyanijjutti is referred to in the Nijjuttis of other Āgamas.

(III) No Nijjutti except the Avassayanijjutti is as complete as desired.

(IV) It is this Nijjutti alone that proceeds on a scientific basis and follows the order of the suttas it deals with.

From this exposition of the extant Nijjuttis their nature must have been realized. So, in order to have an exact idea we shall note the explanations of the word Nijjutti given in several places. Some of them are as under:—

(1) Āvassayanijjutti. Here we have:—

"निज्जुत्ता ते अत्था, जं बद्धा तेण होइ निज्जुत्ती। तहवि य इच्छावेई, विभासिउं सुत्तपरिवाडी॥"

(2) Visesā°. Herein the above-noted verse is incorporated and numbered as 1085. Besides, there runs a verse as under:—

"जं निच्छयाऽऽइजुत्ता, सुत्ते अत्था इमीएँ वक्खाया। तेणेयं निज्जुत्ती, णिज्जुत्तत्थाभिहाणाओ॥"

---

1 This Gaṇi in his com. on Isimaṇḍalapayaraṇa—the com. dated Saṁvat 1558 says:

"क्रमाद् दशचतुःपूर्ववेदी सूरिगुणाग्रणीः। भद्रबाहुर्यशोभद्रैर्न्यस्तः सूरिपदक्रमे॥
दशवैकालिकस्याचाराङ्ग-सूत्रकृताङ्गयोः। उत्तराध्ययन-सूर्यप्रज्ञप्त्योः कल्पकस्य च॥
व्यवहारर्षिभाषितावश्यकानामिमाः क्रमाद्। दशाश्रुताख्यस्कन्धस्य निर्युक्तीर्दश सोऽतनोत्॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(3) Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 2[b]) to Dasaveyāliya and its Nijjutti. There it is said: "निर्युक्तानामेव सूत्रेऽर्थानां युक्तिः-परिपाट्या योजनं, निर्युक्तयुक्तिरिति वाच्ये युक्तशब्दलोपान्निर्युक्तिः।

(4) Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 4[a]) to Āyāra (I. 1. 1). There it is remarked: "निश्चयेनार्थप्रतिपादिका युक्तिर्निर्युक्तिः।"

(5) Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri's com. (p. 258[b]) to Aṇuogaddāra (s. 151). Here it is said: "नितरां युक्ताः-सूत्रेण सह लोलीभावेन सम्बद्धा निर्युक्ता अर्थास्तेषां युक्तिः-स्फुटरूपतापादानम्, एकस्य युक्तशब्दस्य लोपान्निर्युक्तिः".

(6) Mūlāyāra. In its 515th verse it is said as under:—

'ण वसो अवसो अवसस्स कम्ममावासयं ति बोधव्वा। जुत्ति त्ति उवाय त्ति य णिरवयवा होदि णिज्जुत्ती॥'

These definitions, no doubt, explain to some extent the meaning of Nijjutti; but, in order that its nature may be completely realized, it is necessary to tap another source wherein there is a specific mention of at least its constituents. Up till now I have not come across such a source. So I shall, first of all, quote from the Dasavcyāliyanijjutti the following verses which throw some light in this direction and then refer to Aṇuogaddāra:—

"निक्खेवेगट्ठनिरुत्तविही पवित्ती य केण वा कस्स। तदाराभेयलक्खण तयरिहपरिसा य सुत्तत्थो॥ ४॥"

"भिक्खुस्स य निक्खेवो १ निरुत्त २ एगट्ठियाणि ३ लिंगाणि ४। अगुणट्ठिओ न भिक्खू अववाया पंच दाराइं॥ ३३२॥"

This shows that nikkheva[1], egattha[2] and nirutta[3] are the main constituents of Nijjutti.

From Aṇuogaddāra (s. 151) it can be inferred that Nijjutti is three-fold: (i) Nikkheva-nijjutti, (ii) Uvagghāya-nijjutti and (iii) Suttapphāsiyanijjutti. The 1st type deals with nikkevas, and the 2nd brings us nearer the sutta by dealing with 25 items noted in the following two verses occurring in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 151):—

"उद्देसे १ निद्देसे २ य निग्गमे ३ खेत्त ४ काल ५ पुरिसे ६ य।
कारण ७ पच्चय ८ लक्खण ९ नए १० समोआरणाणुमए ११॥
किं १२ कइविहं १३ कस्स १४ कहिं १५ केसु १६ कहं १७ किच्चिरं हवइ कालं १८।
कइ १९ संतरं २० अविरहियं २१ भवा २२ गरिस २३ फासण २४ निरुत्ती २५॥"[4]

1-3 These are treated in Chapter VII.

4 These very verses occur in Āvassayanijjutti as v. 137-138. But, therein अणुमए is separately counted as it should be.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The 3rd type explains the sutta under consideration.

All the Nijjuttis attributed to Bhadrabāhusvāmin must have been concise and written in gāthās as can be inferred from the 8 printed ones. They were surely compiled long before the Redaction of the Jaina canonical works, and according to the Jaina tradition they belong to the fourth century B. C. If this is correct can we look upon them as the oldest metrical commentaries forming a part of the Indo-Āryan literature? Whatever may be a reply to this question, it is certain that these Nijjuttis were later on followed by several other commentaries. Out of them the two types of commentaries known as Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi seem to be the oldest. After their composition, there came an age when the commentaries began to be freely composed in Saṁskṛta, thus making the exegetical literature on the Āgamas of the Jainas of four types: (1) Nijjutti, (2) Bhāsa, (3) Cuṇṇi and (4) Ṭīkā. I use this last word to denote Saṁskṛta commentaries. This Nijjutti etc. are mostly in the chronological order of development. For, Cuṇṇi seems to be an intermediate stage between Bhāsa on the one hand and Ṭīkā on the other, on the ground that it is neither entirely in Prākṛta like its predecessors Nijjutti and Bhāsa nor mostly or completely in Saṁskṛta like its successor Ṭīkā; but it is a mixture of Prākṛta and Saṁskṛta so much so that not only one and the same sentence contains portions written in two languages[1], but even a Saṁskṛta stem has Prākṛta terminations at times. This indicates that the Saṁskṛta language was slowly but surely receiving more and more attention at the hands of the Jainas who wanted to popularize their literature. Cuṇṇi is written in prose, and this is another respect in which it differs from Nijjutti and Bhāsa.

1. Dhanapāla has written Vīrastuti of 11 verses wherein the 1st hemistich of every verse is in Saṁskṛta and the 2nd in Prākṛta, and Rāmacandra Sūri, too, has written Ādidevastava of 8 verses in this manner whereas Haribhadra Sūri's Saṁsāradāvānala, Ratnaśekhara Sūri's Caturviṁśatistavana and Bhaṭṭi's Bhaṭṭikāvya (XIII) are so composed that they can be considered to be works both in Saṁskṛta and Prākṛta and can hence be looked upon as examples of bhāṣāśleṣa.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Bhāsa is styled as Gāhā, too, since it is composed in gāthās in Prākṛta. This is what we learn from the Vyākhyā of Viseha-cuṇṇi of Nisīha (XX). There its author Śrīcandra Sūri, pupil of Śīlabhadra has made the following observation—

"जे गाहेत्यादि। 'गाथा'शब्देन भाष्यं गाथानिबद्धत्वादभिधीयते।"

Just as we have not got Nijjuttis for all the canonical texts, similarly there are not Bhāsas for every Nijjutti[1] —much less for every Āgama. It seems that Bhāsas were composed in the case of at least the following 11 Āgamas:—

(1) Avassaya, (2) Dasaveyāliya, (3) Uttarajjhayaṇa, (4) Kappa, (5) Pañcakappa[2], (6) Vavahāra, (7) Nisīha, (8) Pañca-maṅgalasuyakkhandha[3], (9) Jīyakappa, (10) Ohanijjutti and (11) Piṇḍanijjutti.

For Āvassaya, there are three Bhāsas, one of which is known as Mūlabhāsa.[4] The others are known as Bhāsa[5] and Visesā°. There are about 183 verses in Mūlabhāsa, about 350 in Bhāsa and about 4314 in Visesā°.

Visesā°—This is Sāmāiyabhāsa[6] i. e. to say a Bhāsa on the Nijjutti of Avassaya (I). Not only are some of the verses of this Nijjutti incorporated in it[7]; but, even some of the gāthās of two earlier Bhāsas on this Nijjutti, too, are assigned a place herein. This work is named as Visesā° in order to distinguish it from this Bhāsa and that, too, probably by some commentator other than

---

1 For instance there seem to be no Bhāsas pertaining to the Nijjuttis on Āyāra, Sūyagaḍa, Sūriyapaṇṇatti, Dasāsuyakkhandha and Isibhāsiya.

2 I have included Pañcakappa in this list, as I think that it is after all a Nijjutti on a portion of Kappa. Herein there is a reference to Kālika Sūri's going to an Ājīvaka for studying the aṣṭāṅga-nimitta.

3 The Bhāsa on this is extant. See p. 80, fn. 4.

4–5 See the edition (pp. 573 and 591) of Visesā° with Gujarātī translation.

6 Cf. "सव्वाणुओगमूलं भासं सामाइयस्स सोऊण।
होइ परिकम्मियमई जोगो सेसाणुओगस्स॥ ४३१४॥"—Visesā°

7 For a list of these verses see Āv. Lit. (pp. 35–36).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Jinabhadra.[1] It refers to Vāsavadattā and Taraṅgavaī in v. 1508.[2] The former seems to be none else than the work of Subandhu, a predecessor of Bāṇa and the latter that of Pādalipta Sūri.[3] Further, in Visesā°, there are some verses which tally with those of Kappabhāsa and Vavahārabhāsa.[4] Its verses 2104 and 2195 agree ad verbatim with Sammaïpayaraṇa (III, v. 52 and 49). Besides, in this work, there are Vaidika references.[5] These along with their original sources are noted in Āv. Lit. on pp. 37–38.[6] All these facts along with the mention of Jinabhadra Gaṇi by Haribhadra Sūri may be utilized for verifying his traditional date (Saṁvat 645). He himself has composed a com.[7] on Visesā°—a statement[8] made by Koṭyācārya in his com. (p. 245) on Visesā°. This Koṭyācārya is identified by some as Śīlāṅka Sūri, the commentator of Ayāra etc. But this view is challenged by Ānandasāgara Sūri in his intro. (p. 3) to Part II of Visesā° edited by him with Koṭyācārya's com. Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri, too, has written a com. on Visesā°.[9]

---

1 In Kappacuṇṇi (peḍhabandha 93) we have: "जहा विसेसावस्सयभासे." Vide Āv. Lit. (p. 31 fn.).

2 "जह वा निद्दिट्ठवसा वासवदत्ता-तरंगवइयाइं। तह निद्देसगवसओ लोए मथुरक्खवाड त्ति ॥१५०८॥"

3 He is referred to in Nisīhabhāsa and Kappacuṇṇi. He is said to be a favourite of Muruṇḍa, who may be Vinaspharṇi (?), a governor of Pāṭaliputra appointed by King Kaniṣka. It seems he flourished sometime between A. D. 94 to A. D. 162. He is regarded as the originator of a language (?) named after him. He composed a Deśināmamālā as can be inferred from Kalikālasarvajña Hemacandra's com. on his own work Rayaṇāvali (v. 2).

4 See Āv. Lit. (p. 36) and pp. 21–22 of the portion preceding the Gujarātī prastāvanā to Visesā° (Part II).

5 Some of these occur in the Cuṇṇi on Āvassaya, in Haribhadra Sūri's com., on it, in various commentaries on Visesā°, in Kincidgaṇadharavāda and in a laghuvṛtti on Dasaveyāliya, too.

6 They are reproduced in Jaina sāhitya saṁśodhaka (vol. II, No. 1, pp. 84–91).

7 This com. is now extinct; but it existed in the time of Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri (vide his com. on v. 500 of Visesā°) and also Malayagiri Sūri as can be seen from his com. (pp. 424b–425a) to Paṇṇavaṇā (paya XXI).

8 "अत एव पूज्यपादैः स्वटीकायां प्रायोग्रहणं कृतम्".

9 In this com. (p. 649) on v. 1508, he has mentioned Bhadrabāhunimitta, Nandasaṁhitā and Kāpiliya. The last two are once more mentioned in the com. on v. 1509 where even the name of Manu occurs.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

The Bhāsa on Dasaveyāliya comprises about 63 verses, and that on Uttarajjhayaṇa about 45[1] verses.

For Kappa, there are two Bhāsas small and big. The former is composed by Saṅghadāsa Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa and contains about 6600 gāthās. The latter is anonymous, and its extent is 8600 ślokas or so.[2] This latter Bhāsa appears to be preceded by the corresponding Cuṇṇi and Visehacuṇṇi.[3]

There seem to be two Pañcakappabhāsas (vide p. 38). Out of them the authorship of the bigger one is attributed to Saṅghadāsa Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa.[4] It comprises about 2574 verses.[5]

The available Bhāsa on Vavahāra is printed. It is anonymous and consists of about 4629 verses.

In Jainagranthāvalī (p. 10) there are noted two Nisīhabhāsas. Out of them, one having about 6439 verses is anonymous. But it may be that either this work or the bigger one is composed by Jinabhadra Gaṇi[6] Kṣamāśramaṇa.[7] Muni Kalyāṇavijaya in his Gujarātī intro. (p 48) to Prabhāvakacaritra says that either this Bhāsa itself or a metrical composition expounding Nisīha may be the work of Siddhasena Divākara. He further says on p. 49 that this Siddhasena seems to have written Ṭikās and Bhāsas on several Āgamas; but, now all of them are lost.

Jīyakappabhāsa is anonymous, and its extent is about 3300 ślokas. There is one Ms. of it in the Līmbdī Bhaṇḍāra. Its first 3 verses and the last 3 ones are given on p. 17 of the intro. to Jītakalpasūtra. Therein it is stated on p. 18 that this Bhāsa is posterior to Siddhasena Sūri's Jīyakappacuṇṇi.

1 Two gāthās of this Bhāsa are noted in Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri's com. (p. 181[a]) on Uttarajjhayaṇa where on p. 178[b], Pañcakappa is referred to.

2–3 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 254). 4–5 Ibid., p. 261.

6 In his Visesā°, v. 235 begins with "पोग्गलमोयगदंते." This very verse and the illustrations here referred to occur in Nisīhabhāsa. This is borne out by Koṭyācārya's com. (p. 95) on Visesā° where he says: "पुग्गले इत्यादि निशीथे वक्ष्यामः". Further, the 1st hemistich of this verse occurs in Jīyakappacuṇṇi (p. 29).

7 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 468).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ohanijjuttibhāsa and Piṇḍanijjuttibhāsa are each anonymous, and some of the verses of each of them have got mixed up with Ohanijjutti[1] and Piṇḍanijjutti[2] respectively.

It may be noted that it will be committing oneself to say that any and every Bhāsa is older than one and all the Cuṇṇis, though it is true that that Bhāsa on which we have a Cuṇṇi, is certainly anterior to that Cuṇṇi. Visesā° is posterior to some of the Cuṇṇis. Vuḍḍhabhāsa of Kappa is preceded by its Cuṇṇi and Visehacuṇṇi, and same is the case with Jīyakappabhāsa. Cuṇṇi is as a rule anterior to its corresponding Visehacuṇṇi, and it seems that in order that the latter may be distinguished from the former, the word viseha is added to it.

Just as Bhāsa is designated as Gāhā so Cuṇṇi seems to be styled as Paribhāsa, too. Cuṇṇis seem to have been written on at least the following 20 Agamas:—

(1) Āyāra[3], (2) Sūyagaḍa[4], (3) Viāhapaṇṇatti[5] (4) Jīvābhigama, (5) Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti[6], (6) Nisīha, (7) Mahānisīha, (8) Vavahāra, (9) Dasāsuyakkhandha, (10) Kappa, (11) Pañcakappa, (12) Ohanijjutti, (13) Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha, (14) Jīyakappa, (15) Uttarajjhayaṇa[7], (16) Āvassaya[8], (17) Dasaveyāliya[9], (18) Nandī[10], (19) Aṇuogaddāra[11] and (20) Pakkhiyasutta.

There were two Cuṇṇis for (6) and (14); but, now-a-days only one is available in each case. The available one for (6) is

1-2 See the printed editions of these works.

3-4 The Cuṇṇis of these Āgamas are in press.

5 Its Cuṇṇi will be printed hereafter. Its press-copy is being revised by Ānandasāgara Sūri. He says that the Cuṇṇis on Nandī, Aṇuogaddāra, Āvassaya, Dasaveyāliya, Uttarājjhayaṇa, Āyāra, Sūyagaḍa and Viāhapaṇṇatti are in their order of composition. Vide his article "આર્હત આગમોની ચૂર્ણિઓ અને તેનું મુદ્રણ" published in Siddhacakra (vol. IX, No. 8, p. 165).

6 It is doubtful if there is really a Cuṇṇi on this work. One noted by me in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, pp. 233-236) is not any com.; but it is a treatise dealing with calculations pertaining to the Jambūdvīpa. This is what Prof. Schubring says. See my Preface (p. xxv) of D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III).

7-11 The Cuṇṇis of these Āgamas are published from Rutlam.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

called Nisīhavisehacuṇṇi, and it is very prolific in contents.[1] Its author Jinadāsa Gaṇi himself has given it this name in this very work itself. Herein the author has ingeniously mentioned his name[2], and has referred to Pradyumna Kṣmāśramaṇa as his vidyāguru. Further he has explained the meaning of Addhamāgahā, a Prākṛta language, has mentioned works such as Siddhiviṇicchaya, Sammaï, Joṇipāhuḍa, Naravāhaṇadattakahā[3], Magahasenā[4], Taraṅgavaï[5] etc., and has referred to Siddhasena Divākara and his creation of horses[6] and to a famine during the reign of Candragupta. He has composed Nandīcuṇṇi, too, and there in the end, he has cleverly mentioned his name.[7] In its several Mss., it is assigned a date Śaka Saṁvat 598 i. e. Vikrama Saṁvat 733. Ānandasāgara Sūri has edited this Cuṇṇi, and therein the date is given as Śaka 500. This date as well as the upper one are challenged by him. He says that the line pertaining to the date comes from the pen of a scribe and not that of the author.[8] He has not assigned any reason for it; but it appears that he says so as this date upsets his belief to the effect that Haribhadra Sūri died in Vīra Saṁvat 1055.[9] In this Nandīcuṇṇi (pp. 7, 21 etc.) differences of opinion are noted, and on pp. 21–22 there is a discussion about the coexistence of kevalajñāna (omniscience) and kevaladarśana (absolute undifferentiated cognition). At times there are quotations in Prākṛta (vide p. 43).

From the last line of the printed edition of Aṇuogaddāracuṇṇi, it follows that this Cuṇṇi, too, is composed by Jinadāsa Gaṇi

1 Cyclostyled copies of this Nisīhavisehacuṇṇi have been recently prepared and presented to several Ācāryas and Bhaṇḍāras. Therein the topics are given in margins.

2 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 357).

3–5 All these 3 works are extinct as is the case with Dvāsaptatiprabandha– a work mentioned by Kalyāṇavijaya in his intro. (p. 7) to Prabhāvakacaritra.

6 For pertinent extracts see my article The Jaina Commentaries (pp. 299–300) published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XVI, pts. III–IV).

7 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. xxv of Preface).

8 See his preface to Nandīcuṇṇi.

9 For details see my article "નન્દીસુત્ત અને એની ચુર્ણિનું વિહંગાવલોકન" published in Jainadharmaprakāśa (vol. LVI, no. 5, pp. 156–163).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Mahattara. Several works are mentioned here e. g. Nandīcuṇṇi (p. 1), Āvassaya (p. 3), Tandulaveyāliya (p. 3), Dharmasaṁhitā (p. 12), Nandī (p. 16), Saddapāhuḍa (p. 47), Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa's Cuṇṇi[1] on sarīrapada (p. 74) etc. Further this Cuṇṇi supplies us with quotations in Prākṛta[2] and notes differences of opinions.[3] It explains the word dharmāstikāya on p. 29 as "अस्तीति ध्रौव्यं आय त्ति कायः उत्पादविनाशो(ः शौ), अस्ति चासौ कायश्च अस्तिकायः, धर्मश्चासावस्तिकायश्च धर्मास्तिकायः". On pp. 37–40, are defined Puvvaṅga etc., up to Sīsapaheliyā, and their dots and numerical figures are explicitly mentioned.

Āvassayacuṇṇi is also a work of Jinadāsa Gaṇi Mahattarra according to Ānandasāgara Sūri and Jaina Granthāvalī (p. 18); but, in none of the Mss. deposited at B. O. R. I., there is an entry whereby its authorship may be so attributed. This work is published in two parts. Several works are mentioned therein e. g. in Pt. I Govindanijjutti (p. 31), Ohanijjutticuṇṇi (p. 341), Pañcakappa (p. 415), Risibhāsita (p. 501) and in Pt. II Dīvasāgarapaṇṇatti (p. 6), Uttaracūliyā (p. 157) and Vasudevahiṇḍī (p. 324).[4] There are quotations in Saṁskṛta[5] and Prākṛta[6]. This Cuṇṇi is mostly in Prākṛta, and on pp. 416–417 and 569–576 of its Pt. I, we have passages in Saṁskṛta. In Pt. I, on pp. 374 and 377, a pitcher is described, on p. 530 there is a reference to a writing on bhūrjapatra, on p. 566 Cāṇakka is mentioned, and on p. 601 we have "ग्रा इति सप्तपदा." In Pt. II, on p. 233 there is mention of Siddasena Kha-

---

1 "सरीरपदस्स चुण्णी जिणभद्दखमासमणकित्तिया समत्ता ॥" From this I am inclined to infer that Jinabhadra had composed a Cuṇṇi and that, too, probably on Paṇṇavaṇā.

2 See p. 32 etc. 3 See pp. 12, 15, 82, 84 etc.

4 For some of the other works or their sections see pp. 31, 35, 80, 83, 142, 146, 151, 160, 210, 214, 341, 354, 384, 390, 416, 453, 504, 600 and 601 of Part I.

5 See pp. 84, 85, 121, 375, 427, 435 and 462 of Part I and pp. 52, 202, 306 and 307 of Part II.

6 See pp. 515 and 609 of Part I and pp. 24 and 306 Part II. There are good many verses in Prākṛta. See pp. 202–203 of Pt. I and pp. 115, 140–142 and 302 of Pt. II.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

māsamaṇa. Differences of opinion are noted in some places e. g. on pp. 380 and 553 of Pt. I and on p. 147 of Pt. II. On p. 548 we have the well-known story of weighing an elephant, and on p. there is a discourse between Kālaka Sūri[1] and King Datta about the fruit of a sacrifice.

Ānandasāgara Sūri attributes the authorship of Dasaveyāliya-cuṇṇi to Jinadāsa Gaṇi Mahattara in his preface to this work. Herein, too, there are quotations in Saṁskṛta[2] and Prākṛta[3]. Several sūtras which can be traced to Pāṇini's Aṣṭādhyāyī are given here (vide pp. 66, 67, 75, 271–274 etc). Taraṅgavaī is mentioned on p. 109, Āvassagacuṇṇi on p. 118, Ohanijjutti on p. 175, Piṇḍanijjutti on p. 178, and Aṇuogadāra on p. 300.

Jinadāsa Gaṇi Mahattara has composed Uttarajjhayaṇacuṇṇi[4]. So says Ānandasāgara Sūri who has edited it. In this Cuṇṇi at the end, its author has given some account of himself; but, unfortunately he has not mentioned his name. As stated therein, he is one of the pupils of Govāliya Mahattara of Vāṇija kula, Koḍiya gaṇa and Vayara śākhā. In this Cuṇṇi we

1 There have been in olden days at least 3 Sūris by name Kālaka. Kālaka I lived from Vīra Saṁvat 300 to 376. Kālaka II flourished in about Vīra Saṁvat 453. He expounded the nature of nigoda to Śakra. This is what one can infer from Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti (v. 120); but, according to the Therāvalī (?) given in Pajjosaṇākappa, this exposition is associated with Kālaka I. Kālaka III died in Vīra Saṁvat 465 or so. He is said to have gone to an Ājīvaka for studying Aṣṭāṅganimitta (vide Pañcakap-pacuṇṇi). He translated the versified prakaraṇas of the Jaina canon and became the founder of gaṇḍikānuyoga. Further he composed a standard work of narration known as Prathamānuyoga. He is the author of Kālakasaṁhitā dealing with nimittas and associated with lokānuyoga. He transferred the date of paryuṣaṇaparvan from the 5th of Bhādrapada to the 4th. He once left his disobedient pupils and went to his grand-pupil Sāgara who was in Suvarṇabhūmi. Out of these 3 Kālaka Sūris, the one here referred to, may be Kālaka I or he may have nothing to do with any one of these. See Muni Kalyāṇavijaya's intro. (pp. 23–26) to the Gujarātī translation of Prabhāvakacaritra.

2 See pp. 105, 123 etc. 3 See pp. 35, 46, 159, 173, 217 etc.

4 Its extent is about 5850 ślokas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

come across quotations in Saṁskṛta[1] and Prākṛta[2] and differences of opinion[3] regarding philosophical topics. On p. 274 we have: "तदन्यत्राभिहितं शेषं दशवैकालिकचूर्णौ अभिहितं". This Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi may or may not be belonging to this very author. If it is his work it follows that Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi was composed by him before he composed Uttarajjhayaṇacuṇṇi.

Abhayadeva Sūri has used a Cuṇṇi and a com. on Viāhapaṇṇatti while commenting upon it.[4]

On Kappa there are two anonymous Cuṇṇis. But according to Jaina Granthāvalī (p. 12), one of them is composed by Pralamba Sūri.

Vavahāracuṇṇi narrates an episode[5] pertaining to King Gardabhilla and Kālaka Sūri wherein the latter succeeds in relieving his sister Sarasvatī, a nun from this king who had abducted her, and in dethroning this king. In its 8th section it is stated that Ārya Rakṣita Sūri gave permission to the Jaina clergy to keep a mātraka (a kind of small vessel) during the rainy season.

Dasāsuyakkhandhacuṇṇi is anonymous, and it mentions Siddhasena (Divākara). See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 70).

Jīyakappacuṇṇi, a Prākṛta work of Siddhasena Sūri, is mostly in prose. From p. 19, ll. 20–21[6] and p. 23, l. 22[7] it follows that some one else also had composed a Cuṇṇi on Jīyakappa; but it seems that this is now lost. The extant Cuṇṇi explains the five varieties of vyavahāra with their sub-varieties, gives etymologies and synonyms of some words (vide pp. 4–5, 28 and 30) and explains a rule of Prākṛta grammar on p. 2.[8] This Cuṇṇi mentions some works as well. Out of them Piṇḍanijjutti (p. 14) and Joṇipāhuḍa (p. 28) may be here noted. On p. 17, there is a refe-

1 See pp. 26, 30, 65, 152, 206, 223–224, 225 etc.

2 See p. 198, 225, 230 etc. 3 See pp. 145–146 etc.

4 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 86).

5 This episode and the transference of the date of the paryuṣaṇāparvan are mentioned in Niśīhacuṇṇi.

6 "विइयचुन्निकारमएण पोत्थयपणगे वि पुरिमड्ढं।"

7 "अहवा बितियचुन्निकाराभिप्पाएण चत्तारि वि सुत्तेणेव गहिया।"

8 "पायए चकारस्स छकारो लक्खणिओ।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

rence to games viz. aṭṭhāvaya and caüraṅga; to gambling, and to saṃāsa, paheliyā and kuheḍaga. So far as the date of this Cuṇṇi is concerned, only its lower limit can be fixed; for, Śrīcandra Sūri[1], devotee of Dhaneśvara Sūri, pupil of Śīlabhadra Sūri has composed a com. on it in Saṁvat 1227[2]. As regards its upper limit, it is certainly posterior to the date of the composition of Jīyakappa by Jinabhadra Gaṇi.

As regards the remaining Cuṇṇis, I may simply say that those on Āyāra, Sūyagaḍa and Pañcakappa are described by me in D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII) whereas the Cuṇṇis on Jīvājīvābhigama, Ohanijjutti and Pakkhiyasutta are noted in Jaina Granthāvalī etc., and one on Mahānisīha in Catalogue of Mss. at Jeselmere (p. 23).

It may be remarked that the Cuṇṇis on various Āgamas are said to be belonging to a period running from the 4th century to the 8th of the Vikrama era.

Before dealing with Ṭīkā we may note that out of the terms Nijjutti, Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi, the first does not appear to have been used for a com. on any one of the non-Āgamika works. Such is not however the case with the terms Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi; for, they are used for other works, too, though seldom. As the typical examples may be mentioned the following works for which Bhāsa is composed:—

(1) Kammatthaya, (2) Saḍasīi, (3) Sayaga, (4) Sāddhasayaga and (5) Sittari.

Out of these works, there is a Cuṇṇi for all except the first and the second. Further there are Cuṇṇis for Kammapayaḍi, Samaṇovāsagapaḍikkamaṇa[3] etc. Thus it will be seen that the non-Āgamika works of which the commentaries are styled as Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi are few and far between, and at least, so far as the Śvetāmbara literature is concerned, these terms seem to have been used for works of sufficient antiquity.

1 Before he became Sūri, he was known as Pārśvadeva Gaṇi.

2 See its printed edition (p. 59).

3 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, pp. 290–293).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

It may not be amiss to note that the three works viz. Ceïyavandaṇabhāsa, Guruvandaṇabhāsa and Paccakkhāṇabhāsa collectively known as Bhāṣyatraya and Ceïyavandaṇamahābhāsa[1] are not commentaries, though the ending word Bhāsa occurring there seems to suggest that. It is however true that each of them is a small work written in Prākṛta in gāthās.

As regards Ṭīkās i. e. the Saṁskṛta commentaries on the Āgamas, it may be said that there is at least one com. for almost every Āgama. Further, all the Saṁskṛta commentaries are not available now, and Haribhadra Sūri's commentaries are the first amongst the extant ones. That this Sūri had written two commentaries on Āvassaya and that the extinct com., was bigger than the available one, is an inference one can draw from its v. 2.[2] He refers to one of these in his com. on Dasaveyāliya (pp. 2[a]–4[b]) as Avaśyakaviśeṣavivaraṇa. He has commented upon Jīvajīvabhigama[3], Paṇṇavaṇā, Piṇḍanijjutti[4], Nandī and Aṇuogaddāra[5], too.

Next to him comes Śīlāṅka Sūri (Śīlācārya) alias Tattvāditya.[6] He had commented upon the 1st 9 Aṅgas as stated in Prabhāvakacaritra[7]; but, now-a-days his ṭīkās on only Āyāra and 1 This is a work by Śānti Sūri who has not been identified up till now.

2 "यद्यपि मया तथाऽन्यैः कृताऽस्य विवृतिस्तथापि; सङ्क्षेपात्। तद्रुचिसत्त्वानुग्रहहेतोः क्रियते प्रयासोऽयम्॥"

From this it follows that persons other than Haribhadra Sūri had commented upon Āvassaya. One of them is probably Jinabhaṭa.

3 See Catalogue of Mss. at Jesalmere (p. 18).

4 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. III, p. 484).

5 In the com. (p. 22) on this, Āvaśyakavivaraṇa and Nandīviśeṣavivaraṇa are mentioned. These seem to be his own works.

6 "निर्वृतिकुलीनश्रीशीलाचार्येण तत्त्वादित्यापरनाम्ना वाहरिसाधुसहायेन कृता टीका परिसमाप्तेति"

—Āyāra with ṭīkā (p. 317[a])

Some identify this Tattvāditya with Tattvācārya, the dīkṣāguru of Uddyotana Sūri who completed Kuvalayamālā when one day of Śaka 700 was to elapse. This view is criticized by Ānandasāgara Sūri in his Saṁskṛta intro. (pp. 3–4) to Part II of Viseśā° edited with Koṭyācārya's com.

7 See Abhayadevasūriprabandha (v. 104–105). This statement seems to be unreliable. For, Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 1) on Ṭhāṇa says: "विविधार्थरत्नसारस्य देवताधिष्ठितस्य विधाक्रियाबलवताऽपि पूर्वपुरुषेण कुतोऽपि कारणादनुन्मुद्रितस्य..... स्थानाङ्गस्य.....उन्मुद्रणमिवानुयोगः प्रारभ्यते।" Besides Jinavallabha Sūri, too, says in Aṣṭasaptatikā that there are no commentaries on Ṭhāṇa etc. composed by the Sūris of olden days.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sūyagaḍa are available. Different dates are given in different Mss. for Āyāraṭīkā. They are: Śaka 772, Śaka 784, Śaka 798 and Gupta 772.[1] Out of these, I believe the third date is reliable.[2] This Śīlāṅka Sūri appears to be the author of Caüpaṇṇamahāpurisacariya composed in Saṁvat 925.[3] Herefrom we learn that Vimalamati is his real name. As stated by him in his Āyāraṭīkā (v. 3) Gandhahastin had commented upon Śāstraparijñā i. e. Āyāra (I, 1); but this com. is now lost. Some identify this Gandhahastin with Siddhasena Gaṇi[4], pupil of Bhāsvāmin[5] and the well-known commentator of Tattvārtha. If this is correct, he flourished sometime between the 7th and 9th centuries of the Vikrama era.

In the Sūyagaḍaṭīkā (p. 215) Śīlāṅka Sūri has expounded the five ānantarya sins[6]—a subject treated by Siddhasena Gaṇi in his com. (pt. II, p. 67) on Tattvārtha.

Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri has written a com. on Uttarajjhayaṇa. He has given narratives therein in Prākṛta[7] as has been done by Haribhadra Sūri.[8] He is said to have died in Saṁvat 1096.

In the period between the 12th and 13th centuries of Vikrama era there flourished 8 commentators of Āgamas. They are: (1) Abhayadeva Sūri, (2) Droṇa Sūri, (3) Malayagiri Sūri, (4) Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri, (5) Nemicandra Sūri, (6) Śrīcandra Sūri, (7) Yaśodeva Sūri and (8) Śrītilaka Sūri. The former wrote commentaries on the Aṅgas 3, 4 and 6 in Saṁvat 1120, a com. on

1-2 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. II, p. 339).

3 Is he the very one who is referred to in the com. on Rayaṇāvalī (II, 20; VI, 96; and VII, 40)?

4 This Siddhasena Gaṇi is addressed as Gandhahastin in the com. (p. 521) on Tattvārtha by a pupil of Yaśobhadra Sūri.

5 He is a pupil of Siṁhasūra, pupil of Dinna Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa. Some are inclined to believe that this Siṁhasūra is Siṁha Sūri, a commentator of Mallavādin's Nayacakra.

6 This topic is dealt with by Nāgārjuna in Dharmasaṅgraha (p. 13).

7 This is why this com. is known as Pāiyaṭīkā.

8 Thus he has not followed Śīlāṅka Sūri who translated into Saṁskṛta narratives etc. occurring in Cuṇṇis.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

the 5th Aṅga in Saṁvat 1128 and commentaries on Aṅgas 7[1]–11 during this interval or at some other time. As stated by him in his com. on Aṅga V there was a ṭīkā for Aṅga V which enabled him to compose his com., and this ṭīkā may be the work of Śīlāṅka Sūri. But for Ṭhāṇa etc. he had no previous commentaries to consult. Abhayadeva Sūri has also commented upon Ovavāiya by taking the help of a previous com., which is now extinct. He has written Saṅgahaṇi on Paṇṇavaṇā (III).[2]

(2) Droṇa Sūri has commented upon Ohanijjutti. He assisted Abhayadeva Sūri by revising his commentaries on Aṅgas 3 etc.

(3) Malayagiri Sūri has commented upon Uvaṅgas II–VII. His com. on Paṇṇavaṇā is based upon that of Haribhadra Sūri. For the rest, the sources, if any, remain to be investigated. He has written a com. on Viāhapaṇṇatti (II), Avassaya, Kappa, Vavahāra, Joisakaraṇḍaga and Piṇḍaniijjutti.[3]

(4) Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri, a senior contemporary of Kalikālasarvajña Hemacandra Sūri, has written a ṭippaṇaka on Haribhadra Sūri's com. on Āvassaya, a ṭippaṇaka on Nandī and a com. on Aṇuogaddāra.

(5) Devendra Gaṇi, later on known as Nemicandra Sūri has written a com. on Uttarajjhayaṇa in Saṁvat 1129. Herein he has given narratives in Prākṛta and thus followed in the foot-steps of Haribhadra Sūri and Vādivetāla Śānti Sūri and not in those of Śīlāṅka Sūri[4].

---

1 The com. on the 7th was preceded by the com. on the 6th as the latter is there referred to, in the end. Same is the case with the com. on the 8th.

2 He is the author of Jayatihuyaṇathotta, a hymn in Apabhraṁśa and that of Mahāvīrastotra of 22 verses. He is said to have converted in A. D. 1054 Śaṅkaradāsa a Brāhmaṇa guru of the Paramāra kings of Dhārā.

3 In Jaina Granthāvalī (p. 20) it is said that in the Bṛhaṭṭippaṇikā is noted Malayagiri Sūri's com. on Visesā°, but no Ms. is traced up till now.

4 This shows that there is no hard and fast rule that since the time of Śīlāṅka, Prākṛta narrations got replaced by Saṁskṛta ones in commentaries, though such a rule is practically laid down by Prof. Leumann in Z. D. M. G. (vol. XLVI, p. 581 ff.).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(6) Śrīcandra Sūri, pupil of Śīlabhadra Sūri has written a com. on Nisīhaviseṣacuṇṇi (XX) in Saṁvat 1174. According to Mr. M. D. Desai, he is not a pupil but a grand-pupil. He takes him to be the author of (i) the com. on Samaṇovāsagapaḍikkamaṇa composed in Saṁvat 1222, (ii) Nandīdurgapadavyākhyā composed in Saṁvat 1226, (iii) the com. on Jīyakappacuṇṇi composed in Saṁvat 1227, and (iv–viii) the commentaries on Uvaṅgas VIII–XII composed in Saṁvat 1228.

(7) Yaśodeva Sūri, pupil of Śrīcandra Sūri, pupil of Vīra Gaṇi has commented upon Pakkhiyasutta in Saṁvat 1180.

(8) Śrītilaka Sūri, pupil of Śivaprabha Sūri has written a com. on Āvassaya in Saṁvat 1296.

Kṣemakīrti has completed Malayagiri Sūri's com. on Kappa in Saṁvat 1332.

So far as Paiṇṇagas are concerned, only a few are commented upon. For instance, Bhuvanatuṅga Sūri[1] has commented upon Caüsaraṇa, Āürapaccakkhāṇa and Santhāraga, Guṇaratna upon Bhattapariṇṇā and Santhāraga[2] and Vijayavimala upon Taṇḍulaveyāliya and Gacchācāra.[3]

There are several commentaries on Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti. Out of them one is composed by Hīravijaya Sūri in Saṁvat 1639 and another named as Prameyaratnamañjūṣā by Śānticandra Gaṇi in Saṁvat 1650.

Over and above these ṭīkās on the Agamas there are some more. For instance, in Saṁvat 15724 Jinahaṁsa has written a com. on Ayāra and in Saṁvat 1583, Harṣakula on Sūyagaḍa. Further there are Lakṣmīkallola Gaṇi's com. on Āyāra, Dānaśekhara Sūri's com. on Viāhapaṇṇatti, Vinayahaṁsa's com. on Uttarajjhayana etc. Besides these there are some anonymous avacūrṇis and avacūris, too[5]. Thus it will be seen that a very great no. of 1 He is a pupil of Mahendra Sūri who revised in Saṁvat 1294 his guru Dharmaghoṣa Sūri's Śatapadī.

2 A com. on this was composed before Saṁvat 1484.

3 The com. on it was composed in Saṁvat 1634.

4 According to Jaina Granthāvalī (p. 2) this should be 1582.

5 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pts. I–III).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

commentaries has been written on the Āgamas. But several have been lost by this time. Out of them the following may be here tentatively mentioned:—

(1–3) Nijjuttis on Sūriyapaṇṇatti[1], Isibhāsiya and Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha, (4–5) Bhāsa and Cuṇṇi on the last of these, (6-8) Cuṇṇis on Nisīha, Mahānisīha and Jīyakappa, (9) Pādalipta[2] Sūri's com. on Joïsakaraṇḍaga[3], (10) Gandhahastin Sūri's com. on Āyāra, (11) Jinabhaṭa's com. on Āvassaya, (12–13) Haribhadra Sūri's com. on Āvassaya, and one on Piṇḍanijjutti, (14) a com. on Sūyagaḍa[4], (15–23) Śīlāṅka Sūri's commentaries on Aṅgas III–XI, (24) Malayagiri Sūri's com. on Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti[5], (25) Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri's ṭippaṇaka[6] on Nandī and (26) a com. on Ovavāïya.[7]

As already noted, Saṁskṛta commentaries on the Āgamas are here spoken of as Ṭīkā. This name is applicable to the Saṁskṛta commentaries to the non-Āgamika literature, too. There are other names which are used in both the cases e. g. (1) vṛtti, (2) vivṛti, (3) vivaraṇa, (4) vivecana, (5) vyākhyā, (6) vārtika, (7) dīpikā, (8) phakkikā, (9) avacūri, (10) avacūrṇi, (11) arthalava, (12) akṣarārtha, (13) bālāvabodha, (14) pañjikā, (15) ṭippaṇaka, (16) paryāya and (17) chāyā. Out of them the avacūri and the following are not big commentaries; but they are more or less explanatory notes.

This finishes the discussion about the commentaries of Āgamas. So I shall now say a few words about those who have written super-commentaries. Koṭyācārya is perhaps the 1st amongst them in case we neglect Bhāsas and Cuṇṇis and the extinct Ṭīkās.

1 Quotations from its Nijjutti are given by Devabhadra Sūri in his com. on Saṅgrahaṇi, a work of his guru Śrīcandra Sūri. See Mr. M. D. Desai's work (p. 254) noted on p. 147.

2 He is the author of Kālajñāna, Praśnaprakāśa, Nirvāṇakalikā etc.

3 See (p. 26) of Malayagiri Sūri's com. on it.

4 Śīlāṅka Sūri in his com. (p. 1[a]) on Sūyagaḍa says: "व्याख्यातमङ्गमिह यद्यपि सूरिमुख्यैः" Believing that this com. is not a Cuṇṇi, I take it to be extinct.

5 In Catalogue of Mss. at Jeselmere (p. 19) it is said: "इयं मलयगिरीयाऽनुमीयते" If this inference is correct, this name should be dropped.

6 See D. C. J. M. No. 1099.

7 I have excluded from this list Jinabhadra Gaṇi's com. on Visesa[°] since there is a Ms. of this work in Jesalmere. Vide Catalogue of Mss. at Jesalmere (p. 19).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

He has written a Ṭīkā on Viseśā°, a com. on an Āgama (and there on p. 416 he has styled this Viseśā° as vārtika). Thus his work is a super-com. on an Āgama. In this work he has neither referred to Haribhadra Sūri nor to any work of his, even when he had a chance to do so on pp. 142, 237 and 876. So Ānandasāgara Sūri infers that either Koṭyācārya must be his predecessor or his contemporary. On pp. 978–980 there is an exposition of jñāna-naya and kriyā-naya, and it tallies with one occurring in Haribhadra Sūri's com. (pp. 488[b]–490[a]) on Āvassaya. This coincidence may be due to both of them borrowing from Jinabhaṭa's com. on Āvassaya. Koṭyācārya has referred to the Mūlaṭīkā of Āvassaya in several places e. g. pp. 609, 674, 675, 793, 846 and 855, and this Mūlaṭīkā appears to be none else than that of Jinabhaṭa whom he even mentions. Koṭyācārya has hardly mentioned the name of Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa but has mostly referred to him by honorifics. This may be owing to his being a grand-pupil or so. For, he cannot be his direct pupil as can be inferred from the following line occurring on p. 224:—

"भाष्याननुयायि पाठान्तरमिदं.....न चेदं सूयसीषु प्रतिषु दृश्यते."

So he may be Jinabhadra's grand-pupil or so[1]. He is referred to as an old commentator by Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri in

1 Prof. H. D. Velankar in his Descriptive Catalogue of Saṁskṛta and Prākṛta MSS. in the Library of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society (vols. III–IV, p. 396; No. 1520) says: "According to Hemacandra, Jinabhadra himself with Koṭyācārya had written a com. on his own Bhāṣya. But I take this to be a slip. It may be that his view is based upon the following line quoted by him in No. 1553 from the Catalogue of Mss. at Jesalmere (p. 19):—

"जिनभद्रगणिक्षमाश्रमणप्रारब्धा समर्थिता श्रीकोट्याचार्यवादि(हरि)गणिमहत्तरेण०".

The full quotation is given as under at the end of a Ms. of a com. on Viseśā°—the Ms. which is dated as Saṁvat 1491 and which is noted on p. 246 of A Descriptive Catalogue of Mss. in the Jain Bhandars at Pattan:—

"सत्रकारपरमपूज्यश्रीजिनभद्रगणिक्षमाश्रमणप्रारब्धा समर्थिता श्रीकोट्याचार्यवादिगणिमहत्तरेण श्रीविशेषावश्यकलघुवृत्तिः"

The word हरि in the 1st quotation seems to be added by the late Mr. C. D. Dalal, who probably thought वादि to be a misreading for वाहरि. If so, it is wrong. Prof. Velankar seems to have taken this quotation as coming from the pen of his com. on Visesā°. So he must be a senior to him at least by about 300 years or so. Ānandasāgara Sūri says that since in the time of Haribhadra Sūri Ambā, Kuṣmāṇḍī and others are mentioned as vidyās and Vidyārāja Harinaikamiṣin for mantra whereas Koṭyācārya mentions only Kuṣmāṇḍī vidyā and Harinaikamiṣi mantra, the latter must be a predecessor of the former. If this argument is correct, we must assign to Koṭyācārya, a date[1] prior to that of Haribhadra Sūri, and in that case there remains no possibility of identifying Koṭyācārya with Śīlāṅka Sūri, the commentator of Ayāra, though so done by Prof. H. D. Velankar in No. 1520.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

As regards others who have written super-commentaries in Saṁskṛta, Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri and Śrīcandra Sūri may be here mentioned.

Now we may take up the question about the date of Saṁskṛta commentaries of the Jaina canon. But, before doing so we may mention the fact that though it is difficult to exactly define the periods of the various strata underlying the four types of commentaries on the Āgamas two of which are often much intermingled, yet it should not be forgotten that they serve "as a depository of very many ancient, historical or semi-historical traditions on the one hand, and of a great mass of popular narrative themes on the other."[2]

About the date of the Saṁskṛta commentaries pertaining to Jaina canonical literature, it may be safely asserted that they had

---

Hemacandra. But, from p. 17 of A Des. Cat of MSS. in the Jain Bhandaras at Pattan it appears that it occurs in a MS. of Koṭyācārya's work. Whatever it may be, I am unable to accept his view unless I get a satisfactory reply to each of the following querries:—

(i) Does this quotation occur in other Mss? And, if so, what are those Mss?

(ii) Who is the father of this quotation?

(iii) Does the word samarthita convey the idea of collaboration?

(iv) If Koṭyācārya had helped Jinabhadra Gaṇi as suggested by Prof. Velankar, they would be contemporaries. And, in that case how can the inference drawn from the line भाष्याननुयायि.....be reconciled with this view?

1 Anandasāgara Sūri considers it to be the 10th century of Vira era.

2 See A His of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 484).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

been composed even before the time of Haribhadra Sūri. If we do not confine ourselves to this Āgamika literature, we can very well point out Vācakavarya Umāsvāti's Bhāṣya on his excellent work Tattvārtha as the oldest Jaina Saṁskṛta com., that has come to our hands. Besides, this Bhāṣya stands first amongst the Jaina Saṁskṛta svopajña commentaries available at present. Several Jaina authors[1] have written svopajña commentaries to their works written in Prākṛta and Saṁskṛta, and so far as the Āgamas are concerned only two names viz. those of Bhadrabāhusvāmin and Jinabhadra Gaṇi Kṣamāśramaṇa may be mentioned.

The exegetical literature of the Āgamas is not only in Saṁskṛta and Prākṛta; for, it is in Gujarātī, too. The Gujarātī commentaries are given different names such as (1) Ṭabo[2], (2) Bālāvabodha, (3) Akṣarārtha, (4) Vārtika, (5) Bhāṣā-ṭīkā etc. The words Ṭabbo, Ṭabā[3], Ṭabu[4], Ṭabaṅka[5] and Ṭabārtha[6] are also used for Ṭabo, and the last has Stabakārtha for its Saṁskṛta equivalent. It means a small com. Words such as Bālāvabodha need no explanation. There are Gujarātī commentaries for several Āgamas. For instance we have Ṭabos for Aṅgas III, X and XI, Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti, Nirayāvalisuyakkhandha, Mahānisīha, Vavahāra, Kappa, Uttarajjhayaṇa, Saḍāvassaya, Caüsaraṇa and Āurapaccakkhāṇa, Bālāvabodhas for Aṅgas I, III and VI, Uttarajjhayaṇa, Saḍāvassaya, Santhāraga and Nandī, Akṣarārtha for Āurapaccakkhāṇa and Vārtika for Ayāra and Aṇuogaddarā.[7]

1 (1) Candrarṣi Mahattara, (2) Haribhadra Sūri, (3) the celebrated polygrapher, Hemacandra Sūri, (4) Munisundara Sūri, the sahasrāvadhānin and (5) Nyāyaviśārada Nyāyācārya Yaśovijaya Gaṇi may be cited as the Śvetāmbara authors, and Akalaṅka and Vidyānandin as Digambara ones.

2 In the Catalogue of Mss. of the Limbdī Bhaṇḍāra, the word Stabbaka is used in this sense. See pp. 2, 5 etc.

3 This is the designation used by H. T. Colebrooke. See Prof. A. B. Keith's Descriptive Catalogue of the Mss. in the Library of the India Office (p. 1257).

4 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 186).

5 This word occurs in the Ms. (702 c of 1899-1915, B. O. R. I) of Śāntisāgara's Ṭabo of Bandhasāmitta.

6 See D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pt. I, p. 230).

7 For description of the corresponding Mss. see D. C. J. M. (vol. XVII, pts. I-III).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

I have not come across commentaries on Agamas which are written in Hindī[1], Kannaḍa and such other regional languages of India. So I shall end this topic by noting that the Gujarātī commentaries were composed at best in the 13th century[2] or so when Gujarat became a powerful centre of Jaina activities[3] and when Jaina saints commenced to preach and explain their holy canon in Gujarātī. Anyhow these commentaries cannot be dated earlier than the Gujarātī language itself. Perhaps there must have been some commentaries in Apabhraṁśa, too, from which the old Gujarātī language is derived. But none seems to be available now.

Up to the time of Vajrasvāmin, there were 4 anuyogas for each of the Agamas. But, since Āryarakṣita Sūri specified the anuyogas for different Agamas, 3 anuyogas out of 4 for the various Agamas became extinct. Jinaprabha Sūri furnishes us with a specimen[4] where we see the application of all the 4 anuyogas. Vide Anekārtharatnamañjuṣā (pp. 127–133). These anuyogas may be regarded as exegesis.

The English translations[5] (and the like) of the Agamas may 1 Vacanikā is a name for a Hindī com. usually belonging to a Digambara school which seems to designate sūtra as Kaphī.

2 Pārśvacandra, pupil of Sādhuratna has written a Bālāvabodha on Āyāra. One of its Mss. is dated as Saṁvat 1606.

3 It was from the 5th century of the Vikrama era that Jainas had begun to settle in Gujarat, and by the 12th or 13th century, Gujarat had become a chief centre of Jainism. This is what Muni Kalyāṇavijaya says in his intro. (pp. 11–12) to the Gujarātī translation of Prabhāvakacaritra.

4 It is v. 336 of Āvassayanijjutti, and it begins with पउमाम.

5 Out of them the following may be here noted:–

Āyāra and Pajjosaṇākappa are translated (in A. D. 1884) into English with introduction, notes and an index by Prof. Jacobi, and they form vol. XXII of S. B. E. He translated in A. D. 1895 Sūyagaḍa and Uttarajjhayaṇa on the same lines. This forms vol. XLV of S. B. E. Dr. Rudolf A. F. Hoernle translated the 7th Aṅga in A. D. 1888–1890, and Dr. L. D. Barnett the 8th and the 9th Aṅgas in A. D. 1907. Dr. Schubring translated and annotated Dasaveyāliya in A. D. 1932 and Prof. K. V. Abhyankara, too, in the same year. Mr. A. T. Upadhye has translated the 11th Aṅga

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

not be looked upon as forming a part and parcel of the exegetical literature of the Āgamas; but such is not the case with the critical notes thereon. Even then I cannot express any opinion about them as I have not gone through all of them. So I shall simply mention Dr. P. L. Vaidya's editions of the Aṅgas 7 to 9 and 11, the Uvaṅgas II (Part II) and VIII to XII wherein he has given glossary, notes and introduction.

Before I conclude this chapter I may note that Saṅgahaṇīs[1] are in a sense a type of exegetical literature, and it consists of verses in Prākṛta—the verses which are so to say mnemonic.[2] It seems some Saṅgahaṇīs have got mixed up with their corresponding Āgamas. Saṅgahaṇīgāhās occurring in Aṅga V (vide p. 127), Jogasaṅgaha and Paḍikkamaṇasaṅgahaṇi are probably some of them. There is Isibhāsiyasaṅgahaṇī. Besides these, as noted on p. 17 there were Saṅgahaṇīs for Uvaṅgas, and their authors were Daśapūrvadharas.

with notes etc. in A. D. 1935. Prof. H. B. Gandhi has translated and annotated Rāyapaseṇiya in A. D. 1938, and Prof. N. V. Vaidya has recently translated some chapters of the 6th Aṅga. The latter had translated Aṅgas VIII and IX in 1937.

1 This word is used in Pakkhiyasutta (p. 66[b]) and in Pupphiyā (the last sutta).

2 This is the inference I draw from saṅgahaṇigāhās occurring in Aṇuogadāra (s. 130, p. 145[b]), Paijosaṇākappa (s. 117) etc.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

CHAPTER VII

COMPARISON AND EVALUATION

The Jaina contributions are vast, varied and valuable. They have enriched in no small measure the treasures of the Indian literature. But, even then, till recently, their value was not probably realized.[1] The Jaina contributions have many new things to suggest; but this requires a deep and scientific study. This is borne out by Prof. Winternitz who sounded a clarion call and 1 Prof. A. Weber has said very little about the Jaina literature in his famous Lectures on the History of Indian Literature (2nd German edn., 1876). But that was not his fault; for, it may be ascribed to the state of knowledge at that time. He made up this deficiency by giving a splendid account of the Jaina literature in the "Indische Studien" vols. XVI and XVII (1883–85) and in his Reports on Jaina Mss. in the Royal Library at Berlin (1888–91). He was the very pioneer of the Jaina Studies in Europe.

"The brilliant and much-read book on the Literature and Culture of India by Leopold von Schrader, published in 1887, devotes half a page to the sect of the Jainas without even mentioning anything about Jaina literature."

This is what is said by Prof. Winternitz in The Jainas in the History of Indian Literature published in "Indian Culture" (vol. I, No. 2, p. 143).

History of Sanskrit Literature by the late Prof. A. A. Macdonell, published in 1900 has nothing to say about the Jaina literature.—Ibid., p. 143.

A. Baumgartner in his learned compilation Die Literaturen Indiens und Ostasiens (forming a part of a voluminous Geschichte der Weltliteratur, 3rd and 4th edn, 1902) devotes 4 pages to the Jainas and their literature, and winds up this topic by quoting the following line from E. Washburn Hopkin's Religions of India (Boston, 1895, p. 296 f.):—

"The Jainas have no literature worthy of that name."—Ibid., p. 143.

R. W. Frazer in his Literary History of India (1898) has well pointed out on p. 310 f., the great influence the Jainas have exercised on the Dravidian literature of the south India but he has nothing to say about Jaina literature and its place in the Saṁskṛta and Prākṛta literature of India. —Ibid., p. 144

H. Oldenburg in Die Literatur des alten Indien, published in 1903 disposes of the Jainas in three lines.—Ibid., pp. 143–144.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

awakened us from lethargy by contributing his scholarly quota-writing 172 pages on the religious literature of the Jainas in his marvellous work "AHistory of Indian Literature" vol. II. He says:-

"In the English translation of Vol. II of my 'History of Indian Literature' which has been just published, I had to devote 172 pages to Jaina literature. But I have treated in these pages only the religious literature, while reserving the non-religious poetical and scientific literature of the Jainas to the third volume of my book. I am, however, fully aware that I was not able to do full justice to the literary achievements of the Jainas. But I hope to have shown that the Jainas have contributed their full share to the religious, ethical, poetical, and scientific literature of ancient India." -Ibid., p. 144.

The subject that I have selected for this book debars me from entering the majestic domain of the non-canonical literature[1] of the Jainas on the one hand, and the magnificient archive of their religious literature (which for some reason or other could not be completely included in the canonical literature), on the other.

With these preliminary remaks I shall proceed to examine the relative value of the canonical literature of the Jainas - a subject which has been incidentally hinted at, in the foregoing chapters.

1. Languages—To begin with, we may take a survey of the linguistic field. Prākṛta as a language holds no insignificant a place therein. It has several varieties[2], Pāli, Addhamāgahī and Soraseṇī being some of them. Just as we owe the existence of the Pāli literature to the Bauddhas and that of Avesta and Pahlavi to the Zoroastrians, so for the varied and vivid specimens of the Addhamāgahī literature, we are grateful to the Jainas. As a crest-jewel of Addhamāgahī specimens I may mention Ayāra (I, 1). To my mind, its reading appears as if the very words of the first sermon delivered by Lord Mahāvīra or by his first apostle Indrabhūti are embodied herein; for, I notice here that there is

1 This topic has been discussed by me in A Comprehensive History of the non-canonical Literature of the Jainas, but this work can be published only after the war is over.

2 See Dr. S. M. Katre's article Names of Prakrit Languages published in "A Volume of Indian and Iranian Studies presented to Sir E. Denison Ross, Kt., C. I. E."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

sublimity in thought, serenity in expression and veracity in words. In short it is a panacea for the afflicted and aspirants after truth.

Had the Jainas not resorted to Addhamāgahī language and developed and preserved it as they have done, perhaps we would not have been in a position to explain some of the forms and words occurring in the Ṛg-Veda, Śuklayajuḥprātiśākhya, Atharvasaṁhitā, Taittirīyasaṁhitā, Vājasaneyisaṁhitā, Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, Gopatha Brāhamaṇa, Taittirīya āraṇyaka etc.[1]

Now a word about Apabhraṁśa language. It appears that the Apabhraṁsa literature consists mostly of the Jaina works, those composed by the non-Jainas being few and far between. Hemacandra Sūri is the Pāṇini of Apabhraṁśa grammar, and he has quoted several verses from the works of his predecessors. It remains to be ascertained if the following verse occurring in Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 107) on Sūyagaḍa is found in any of his works:-

"कोद्धायओ को समचित्तु
काहोऽवणार्हि काहो दिज्जउ वित्त ।
को उग्घाडउ परिहियउ परिणीयउ को व कुमारु
पडियउ जीव खडप्फडेहिं वंधइ पावह भारु ।"

Probably the following verse, too, occurs in this com.

"वरि विस खइयं न विसयसुहु इक्कसि विसिण मरंति। विसयाविस पुण घारिया णर णरएहिं वि पडंति ॥"

These verses help us to some extent in fixing the period of the origin of Apabhraṁśa literature, though it may be argued that the very fact that the Addhamāgahī language also known as Ārṣa and Ṛṣibhāṣita is defined as one consisting of 18 Deśī bhāṣās distinctly suggests that Apabhraṁśa is very very old and can be said to have its origin at least as early as the composition of the Jaina canon.

I may now turn to the Saṁskṛta language. We do not come across any Jaina canonical treatise which is written in Saṁskṛta; but, if we can believe that the Puvvas were composed in Saṁskṛta (vide p. 89), their bulk can speak volumes about the Jaina contributions in Saṁskṛta. But, as these Puvvas are now extinct,

1 For illustrations see Pāia-sadda-mahaṇṇava (vol. IV, intro., p. 11). Dr. P. D. Gune's An Introduction to Comparative Philology (p. 192) may be also consulted.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

I may refer to the Cuṇṇis and Saṁskṛta commentaries on the canonical treatises. Just as in the Vaidika mythology, we hear about the Nṛsiṁha avatāra (the 4th incarnation) of Viṣṇu and about Ardhanārīśvara rūpa (form) of Mahādeva, so in the Cuṇṇis almost in every sentence we come across a portion in Prākṛta[1], followed by a portion in Saṁskṛta. This hybrid as some might term it, is probably due to the transitional period when an attempt was slowly but surely being made to compose the Jaina exegetical canonical literature in Saṁskṛta and not in Prākṛta as before. Is there any parallel instance of this type anywhere else ?

Saṁskṛta language has been freely and fairly resorted to by Haribhadra Sūri and other saints who followed him, while they were engaged in composing Saṁskṛta commentaries on the Jaina canon. These commentaries and the Saṁskṛta quotations occurring in Cuṇṇis enrich the Saṁskṛta literature.

In the end I may say that the Gujarātī commentaries on the Āgamas are very helpful for the study of the old Gujarātī language.

2. Intonation—It seems that most of the people are under the impression that intonation is associated with the Vedas only, so far as the Indian literature is concerned. But it is not so; for, in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 151) we find the word ghosa used while defining this sutta and while indicating as to how it should be pronounced. This word ghosa meaning udāttādisvaraviśeṣa occurs in Vavahāra (X), too. In Tattvārtha which is a compendium of a portion of the preachings of Arhat as stated in its Bhāṣyakārikā (v. 22) we have in IX, 25, the word āmnāya. It is explained as under in its Bhāṣya (p. 258):—

"आम्नायो घोषविशुद्धं परिवर्तनं गुणनं, रूपादानमित्यर्थः।"

Siddhasena Gaṇi while commenting upon it observes on p. 258:

"आम्नायोऽपि परिवर्तनं उदात्तादिपरिशुद्धमनुश्रावणीयमभ्यासविशेषः."

From this it will be clear that udātta, anudātta and svarita are associated with the canonical literature of the Jainas, too; but, strange to say that neither do we come across any Jaina Mss.

1 At times this presents some features to be had in the Śaurasenī language.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

of these works indicating udātta etc., nor do we find any Jaina saint reciting their holy scriptures by paying attention to udātta etc.

3. Versified commentaries—A work may be either in prose or in verse. Usually the text is in prose, and at times it is in verse. But, probably a versified commentary is a novelty, and the fact that we have at least two versified commentaries[1] on one and the same text of the canonical literature of the Jainas, is still a greater novelty. For, I do not think that in the Indian literature there is any parallel to this feature of the Jaina literature.

4. Synonyms[2]—We have already noticed that egaṭṭha is one of the features of Nijjutti, and it should be so; for, otherwise a commentary is not worth the name. A thing or a point gets correctly understood, when synonyms are suggested.[3] This is one of the reasons[4] why even in the original texts we find at times words practically having the same meaning used in one and the same sentence. Some of the Bauddha texts may be cited as parallels. The egaṭṭhas of several words are referred to in Chapter VI. To this list may be added egaṭṭhas of nikkheva (v. 150), sutta (v. 174[5]), aṇuoga (v. 187) and vihi (v. 208) given in Kappanijjutti above referred to.

Some scholars go to the length of suggesting that the egaṭṭha we come across in the Nijjuttis is a progenitor of lexicography. If so, it immensely adds to the value of the canonical literature of the Jainas. I may add that at times the synonyms are purely Deśya words,[6] and hence they are very useful for the study of languages of olden India.

---

1 One of them is a Nijjutti and the other a Bhāsa or at times Bhāsas.

2 These occur in Śūdraka's Mṛcchakaṭika (Act I, v. 18, 21, 23 etc.).

3 Cf. "नानादेशजविनेयगणासम्मोहार्थमागमे द्रुमपर्यायशब्दान् प्रतिपादयन्नाह" —Haribhadra's com. (p. 17[b]) on Dasaveyāliya.

4 Cf. the following verse of Kappanijjutti:—
"वंथाणुलोमा खलु सुत्तम्मि य लाघवं असम्मोहो। सत्थगुणदीवणा वि य एगट्ठगुणा हवंतेए॥१७३॥"

5 "सुय सुत्त गंथ सिद्धंत सासणे आण वयण उवएसो। पण्णवणमागमे इय एगट्ठा पज्जवा सुत्ते॥१७४॥"
In v. 179 the etymology of siddhanta (scripture) is given, and in v. 181–183 4 types of a scripture are outlined.

6 See Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 17[b]) on Dasaveyāliya.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

5. Nikkheva[1]—Nikkheva is another constituent of Nijjutti, and it seems to be a special feature of the Jaina literature. I think it owes its origin to anekāntavāda popularly known as syādvāda. It leaves no room for confusion so far as metaphysical discussions are concerned. For, every object is denoted by a word, and every word is usually seen to be used in four senses viz. nāman, sthāpanā, dravya and bhāva. Out of them dravya has further varieties, and they are to be met with, in several Jaina works e. g. Aṇuogaddāra (s. 8–27). Here the word āvassaya is discussed, and all the varieties pertaining to it are noticed therein.

6. Nirutta—Nirukta is an etymological interpretation. It is a name of one of the six Vedāṅgas, and it contains glossarial explanation of obcure words occurring in the Vedas. It is also a name of Yāska's com. on the Nighaṇṭu; but it may be noted that this is not the name given by Yāska himself. This topic of nirukta (Pr. nirutta) is discussed in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 130; p. 150[a]) etc. Some of the words for which niruttas occur in Nijjuttis are noted by me in Chapter VI. So I shall here simply add that in v. 188 of Kappanijjutti with its Bhāsa, nirutta is defined, and its two varieties viz. sutta-nirutta and attha-nirutta are mentioned, and in v. 29–30 of Dasaveyāliyanijjutti[2] the word ajjhayaṇa is derived. All the extant Nijjuttis more or less indulge in the discussion of niruttas. So it will be a matter of great pleasure, if some one undertakes to collect and co-ordinate them; for, it will be then easy to compare these etymologies with ones discussed elsewhere. This is another instance how the Indian literature gets enriched by Jaina contributions.

7. Grammar—The canonical literature furnishes us with some

1. The nikkevas of several words have been already noted. So it will suffice if I add that those of maṅgala, inda, nandī, suya, sutta, gantha and vayana are treated in Kappanijjutti mixed up with its Bhāsa in its verses 5, 12–15, 24, 175–177, 178, 178 and 185 respectively.

2. Haribhadra Sūri in his com. on this work mentions etymologies of some words e. g. धर्म (p. 21[a]), विषय (p. 22[a]), चरित्र (p. 23[a]), श्रमण (p. 23[a]) etc.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

grammatical information, which has its own importance[1], though it does not by any means add to our stock of knowledge by way of an original contribution. To begin with, Āyāra (II, 4, 1; s. 355) mentions 3 numbers, 3 genders, 3 tenses and 3 persons. Ṭhāṇa (s. 609) deals with 8 cases and their functions. The pertinent portion occurs almost ad verbatim in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 128). This latter work notes in s. 130 bhāvappamāṇa and its 4 varieties viz. sāmāsiya, taddhiya, dhāuiya and niruttiya. Under the 1st variety, 7 kinds of compounds are noted along with their illustrations. The 2nd variety is eight-fold. Herein while explaining siloāṇāma Maladhārin Hemacandra Sūri says that since Śabdaprābhṛta is extinct, it is not possible to explain it in its entirety. Under the 3rd variety we have "भू सत्तायां परस्मैभाषा एध वृद्धौ" etc., whereas under the 4th we have etymologies attended to e. g. "मह्यां शेते महिषः" etc. This portion is to some extent in Saṁskṛta which is rather unusual. In s. 123 there is an exposition of genders and the corresponding endings (see pp. 111[b]–112[b]), and in s. 124 that of euphony. Verse 325 of Kappanijjutti mixed up with its Bhāsa mentions 5 types[2] of paya – a topic discussed in s. 125 of Aṇuogaddāra, and v. 326, 4 types of payattha such as sāmāsiya etc., already noted. In the com. (p. 3) to v. 2 of this work, it is noted that certain[3] letters and the dual number have no place in Prākṛta whereas in the com. (p. 99) on v. 326, are given the names of 7 kinds of compounds along with their examples, 8 varieties of taddhita etc. Koṭyācārya in his com. (p. 129) on Visesā° quotes a verse[4] whereby we learn that in Prākṛta, the dual number is represented by the plural, and the dative case is replaced by the genitive.[5]

1 For instance, it is in Prākṛta. Bharata's Nāṭyaśāstra (XVII, pp. 367–369) is another example of this type; for, it mentions in Prākṛta some characteristics of this language. Further the Āgamas give us an idea about concord in Prākṛta works–a topic discussed by Prof. A. M. Ghatage in his article entitled Concord in Prakrit Syntax and published in the "Annals of B. O. R. I" (vol. XXI, pts. I–II, pp. 73–96).

2 "नाम निवाउवसग्गं अवखाइय मिस्सयं च नायव्वं। पंचविहं होइ पयं लक्खणकारेहिं निद्दिट्ठं ॥३२५॥"

3 See Visesā° (v. 3455). It begins with "एत्थ भयंताईणं"

4 Its 2nd foot is quoted by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 1[b]) on Dasaveyāliya.

5 For details see my article Grammatical topics in Pāiya to be published hereafter.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

8. Poetics—As noted on p. 161 Aṇuogaddāra (s. 130) mentions 9 kāvyarasas along with their illustrations. Therein the mention of velaṇaä as one of the rasas seems to be unique[1]. Incidentally I may state that Ṭhāṇa supplies us with a lot of upamās, and various descriptions[2] occurring in the Agamas show the poetical ability of the authors concerned.

9. Sutta—Leaving aside the 1st suyakkhandha of Sūyagaḍa and the 6th ajjhayaṇa of its 2nd suyakkhandha, and several ajjhayaṇas of Uttarajjhayaṇa and some of the Païṇṇagas, we have the rest of the Jaina canon mostly written in prose. They consist of small sentences which are styled as sūtras[3] (Pr. suttas), and this is supposed to have led to every Āgama being designated as sūtra[4]. Even Prof. Winternitz uses this terminology; for, he has used the word Āyāraṃgasutta in his article (p. 147) referred to on p. 206, fn. 1.[5] It is true that these suttas appear at times

1 For details see my article "'वेलणु' २स" published in Mānasī (vol. VI, No. 1, pp. 19–24).

2 Some of these are noted in the foregoing pages. To these may be added the description of Kacchulla Nārada given in Nāyādhammakahā (I, XVI; s. 122) and that of a person to be executed in Vivāgasuya (II; § 37).

3 This word is used in the Indian literature of olden days in various senses:

(i) A short rule, a concise sentence or an aphorism used as an aid to memory. This is what is conveyed by the following verse:—
"अल्पाक्षरमसन्दिग्धं सारवद् विश्वतोमुखम्। अस्तोभमनवद्यं च सूत्रं सूत्रविदो विदुः॥"—Cf. p. 214, fn. 4.
The main idea is to achieve the utmost economy of language that can be had without marring the intended sense.

(ii) A work consisting of pithy sentences e. g. Aṣṭādhyāyī known as Pāṇinisūtra.

(iii) A work having short sentences where the utmost verbal economy is not strictly aimed at. The Prātiśākhyas, Śrautasūtras, Gṛhyasūtras and Dharmasūtras are the works which may be cited as instances.

(iv) A discourse or a sermon. This meaning is applicable to the sacred works of the Jainas and the Bauddhas.

4 I am inclined to believe that this word here means a scripture and not a pithy sentence, though both these meanings are conveyed by this word.

5 It remains to be ascertained as to who was the first to have added the word sutta as a suffix to the name of an Āgama. I do not think that the author of the work concerned, has done so.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

as disconnected members of a joint family.[1] Commentators have tried their level best to show how a subsequent sutta is connected with the preceding one; but, even then this has failed to satisfy some of the modern critics. The nature of some of the suttas is such that the free translation is desirable, and Mr. G. J. Patel in his nivedana (p. 5) to Āyāra has already said so, while justifying as to why he has preferred chāyānuwāda to the literal translation. In doing so he has said that the method he has adopted is one approved of by Prof. A. B. Dhruva.[2] In this very Āyāra we find that Prof. Schubring splits up sentences-suttas in a way that differs from one to be noticed in the Āgamodaya Samiti edition. So it seems that the suttas are so composed that there is ample space for such differences of opinion. Perhaps this is true not only in the case of the Jaina suttas but also in the case of some of the Bauddha suttas and Vaidika sūtras, too.

The word sutta is used in special senses in the Jaina canon, One of them is defined as under in Kappanijjutti mixed up with its Bhāsa:—

"अप्पगंथ महत्थं बत्तीसादोसविरहियं जं च। लक्खणजुत्तं सुत्तं अट्ठहि य गुणेहिँ उववेयं ॥२७७॥"

From this it will be seen that brevity of expression is only one of the characteristics of a sutta, the others being absence of 32 defects and presence of 8 attributes. These 32 defects are treated in v. 278–281, and the 8 attributes in v. 282. Verse 310[3] gives the various etymologies of the word sutta, and they, too, point out the special significance of this word. Verse 285[4] defines a sutta spoken of by an omniscient being, and v. 315 mentions 3 varieties of sutta from two different stand-points. From one angle of 1 They can be grouped as has been done by Mr. G. J. Patel in his translation of Anga V.

2 "આયારંગસૂત્રનો આ અનુવાદ સૂત્રકૃતાંગના અનુવાદની માફક છાયાનુવાદ જ છે. જૂનાં આગમોની બાબતમાં એ અનુવાદપદ્ધતિ જ વધુ ઉપયોગી છે, એમ આચાર્યશ્રી આનંદશંકરભાઈ જેવા શાસ્ત્રજ્ઞ પંડિતોએ પણ કબૂલ કર્યું છે.

3 सुत्त तु सुत्तमेव उ अहवा सुत्तं तु तं भवे लेसो। अत्थस्स सूयणा वा सुवुत्तमिइ वा भवे सुत्तं ॥३१०॥"

4 "अप्पक्खरमसंदिद्धं सारवं विस्सओमुहं। अत्थोभमणवज्जं च सुत्तं सव्वन्नुभासियं ॥२८५॥"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

vision, sutta is three-fold viz. sannā-sutta,[1] kāraṇa-sutta[2] and payaraṇa-sutta[3], and from another it is of two kinds viz. ussaggiya and avavāiya In the com. (p. 97) on v. 318, 3 varieties of a sūtra are differently noted. They are: utsargasūtra, apavādasūtra and utsargāpavādasūtra.[4] Further, this com. adds apavādotsargasūtra to these three and thus notes 4 varieties of a sutta.[5] It also furnishes us with corresponding examples. This exposition of the various varieties of a sutta has its own value, even when it has a parallel in the non-Jaina literature.

The word sutta has several Saṁskṛta equivalents such as supta, śruta, sūkta, sūtra, śrotra and srotas. Out of these the last two are here, out of question. And so is the 1st meaning of sūtra out of 3 viz. (i) a prologue of a drama (vide Mohaparājaya 48), (ii) a scripture (vide Ṭhāṇa iv, 4) and (iii) a thread. The meaning 'thread' is acceptable; for, it can be construed as a thread of tradition- the tradition preserved and perpetuated by a succession of Tīrthaṅkaras.

There are two allegations made by some of the scholars[6] regarding the word sutta used by the Jainas and the Bauddhas. They are:

(i) The word sutta is used in the loosest sense possible.

1-3 Āyāra (I, 2, 5, 88), Viāhapaṇṇatti (I, 9, 79) and Namipavajjā are the respective instances of these suttas.

4 By adding vihi-sutta, ujjama-sutta, vaṇṇaya-sutta and bhaya-sutta to these 3 varieties we get 7. See Arhaladarśanadīpikā (p. 816).

5 A sutta becomes six-fold when two more varieties of it viz. utsargotsargasūtra and apavādāpavādasūtra, are taken into account along with this. Ibid., pp. 818-819.

6 Prof. Jarl Charpentier is one of them. In his intro. (p. 32) to his edition of The Uttarādhyayanasūtra he says: "It may further be noted that the term sūtra is in reality very inappropriate to the sort of compositions included in the Siddhanta, inasmuch as we usually understand by sūtra's the very short and concise compendiums of ritual, grammar, philosophy and other sciences. But sūtra has apparently another sense amongst the Jains and Buddhists, and there is little doubt that it was their purpose in adopting this name rather to contest the claims of their Brahmanical opponents to be solely in possession of real canonical works than to imitate the style and modes of expression of the Brahmanical sūtra-literature."

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(ii) The name sūtra is adopted "for the canonical writings more as a sort of formal counterpoise or set-off against Brahmanism than with a view to imitating the style and modes of expression of the Brahmanical sūtra literature."[1]

May I request these scholars and those who hold similar views to go through my exposition of sutta and to pronounce their verdict in this connection after linking it with the Jaina tradition that every sutta was originally associated with 4 anuyogas and that a sutta has got a number of meanings ?[2] Incidentally I may add that some of the Brāhmaṇas and Upaniṣads are said to be loose in style, wanting in compactness and full of dreary repetitions.[3] If so, it is perhaps owing to the mode of the theological style of olden days in India.

19. Gata-pratyāgata-sūtras[4]—One of the striking features of Āyāra is that it consists of a number of gata-pratyāgata-sūtras. They may be roughly designated as samavyāptika-sūtras or double-baralled pithy sentences. These sūtras, though simple, are more than forcible in producing a desired effect on the listener. As specimens I may note the following:—

"जे लोयं अब्भाइक्खइ से अत्ताणं अब्भाइक्खइ; जे अत्ताणं अब्भाइक्खइ से लोयं अब्भाइक्खइ." (s. 23 & 32)
"जे दीहलोगसत्थस्स[5] खेयण्णे से असत्थस्स खेयण्णे; जे असत्थस्स खेयण्णे से दीहलोगसत्थस्स खेयण्णे." (s. 33)
"जे गुणे से आवट्टे; जे आवट्टे से गुणे." (s. 41)
"जे अज्झत्थं जाणइ से बहिया जाणइ;
जे बहिया जाणइ से अज्झत्थं जाणइ." (s. 57)
"जे गुणे से मूलट्ठाणे; जे मूलट्ठाणे से गुणे." (s. 63)
"जहा अंतो तहा बाहिं; जहा बाहिं तहा अंतो." (s. 94)

---

1 See The Daśavaikālikasūtra: A Study (p. 19).

2 Cf. "अनन्तगमपर्यायत्वात् सूत्रस्य" occurring in Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 4[a]) on Dasaveyāliya.

3 See Mr. M. C. Modi's intro, (p. xxxvii) to his edition of Aṅgas VIII and IX.

4 This is the designation we come across in Śīlāṅka Sūri's com. (p. 153[a]) on Āyāra.

5 दीहलोगसत्थ means fire; for, दीहलोग signifies vanaspati. Similarly एज (s. 56) means wind. Words like वसुय (s. 62), आमगंध (s. 88) etc. may be also noted in this connection.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

"जे अणन्नदंसी से अणण्णारामे; जे अणण्णारामे से अणन्नदंसी." (s. 102)
"जे पज्जवज्जायसत्थस्स खेयण्णे से असत्थस्स खेयण्णे; जे असत्थस्स खेयण्णे से पज्जवज्जायसत्थस्स खेयण्णे." (s. 110)
"जं जाणिज्जा उच्चालइयं तं जाणिज्जा दूरालइयं; जं जाणिज्जा दूरालइयं तं जाणिज्जा उच्चालइयं." (s. 119)
"जे एगं जाणइ से सव्वं जाणइ; जे सव्वं जाणइ से एगं जाणइ." (s. 123)
"जे आसवा ते परिस्सवा, जे परिस्सवा ते आसवा." (s. 131)
"जे अणासवा ते अपरिस्सवा, जे अपरिस्सवा ते अणासवा." (s. 131)

11. Praśnottara paddhati—We are even now in the dark about many things and phenomena. One of the ways to remove this darkness and to aquire the right sort of knowledge is to make an inquiry. This means putting questions either to oneself or to some one else who can enlighten us on the point concerned. Usually the latter course is easy to be followed.[1] This leads to a formation of praśnottara paddhati — a method adopted and approved of by even the present educational system. In this method, it is necessary to select pregnant questions. It is perhaps a peculiar feature of the Jaina canon that herein we come across entire works embodying such questions. They are Viāhapaṇṇatti, Paṇṇavaṇā, Nandī and Aṇuogaddāra. Out of them the first comprises thirty-six thousand (36,000) questions.

12. Ethics—The Jaina ethics[2] is not without its specialities. The doctrine of ahiṁsā forms the corner-stone of Jaina ethics, and its treatment and scope hold practically a unique place even when other systems of Indian thought which appreciate the virtue of ahiṁsā, are taken into account. The doctrine of ahiṁsā is not so

1 Indrabhūti and others did so.

2 It appears that this subject has not attracted as much attention of the scholars as it should, though there are materials whereby a comprehensive treatise can be written in this connection. I know of only three attempts made in this direction. One of them was made by Dr. Charlotte Krause as can be seen from her article An interpretation of Jaina Ethics. I think she has written another article in this connection, and it has been published in some standard journal of India. I remember to have read one article in German where the Jaina view about ethics was compared with the Zoroastrian one; but I am not in a position at present to specify the source.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

simple as it appears. It is a subtle science, and the Jaina pontiffs[1] have pointed out its various intricacies.[2] Paṇhāvāgaraṇa (s. 21) mentions 60 synonyms of ahiṁsā and 30 of hiṁsā in s. 2.

13. Maxims—It is but natural that in works dealing with religion and ethics, one can easily come across maxims — apopthegms (subhāṣitas). In the canonical literature we find a lot of them. Mr. G. J. Patel has singled out some of them in his following works:—

1 महावीरस्वामीनो आचारधर्म [जैन आगम 'आचारांग' नो छायानुवाद] pp. 193–203.
2 ,, संयमधर्म [,, ,, 'सूत्रकृतांग' नो ,,] pp. 241–250.
3 ,, अंतिम उपदेश (श्रीउत्तराध्ययनसूत्रनो छायानुवाद) pp. 271–281.
4 समीक्षांजनो उपदेश [श्रीदशवैकालिकसूत्र] pp. 138–146.

The following remark made by Prof. Winternitz in connection with the contents of Uttarajjhayaṇa may be here noted:—

"We find here many sayings which excel in aptitude of comparison or pithiness of language. As in the Sutta-Nipāta and the Dhammapada, some of these series of sayings are bound together by a common refrain.—A His. of Ind. Lit. (vol. II, p. 467)

14. Metaphysics—It is a well-known fact that the theory of karman plays an important part in the Jaina metaphysics and ethics as well. It has engaged the attention of several Jaina authors who have developed it into a science. This has been possible in view of the various particulars pertaining to this theory being dealt with in the Āgamas such as Ṭhāṇa (II, 4; s. 105; IV, s. 268; & VIII; s. 596), Samavāya (s. 51, 52, 58, 69 & 97), Viāhapaṇṇatti (I, 4, 1; VI, 3, 4–5; VI, 9, 1; & VIII, 10, 7), Kammapayaḍi-pāhuḍa, the 8th Puvva, Paṇṇavaṇā (XXIII–XXVII) and Uttarajjhayaṇa (XXXIII).

15. Logic—By logic I mean pure logic having only one category viz. pramāṇa, which, of course, touches upon other categories as far as they are necessary for its proper elaboration. Thus the doctrine of the nature and salvation of the soul has no direct place in this pure logic. So far as the Jainas are concerned, their logic deals with 3 topics viz. pramāṇa, naya and nikṣepa. The latter

1 See Arhatadarśanadīpikā (pp. 835–849).

2 See Viāhapaṇṇatti (I, 8; 68), Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 45) and Haribhadra Sūri's com. (pp. 24^b–25^a) on this last work.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

two topics are the special features of this logic. In Ṭhāṇa (VII; s. 552), Aṇuogaddāra (s. 152) and Visesā° (v. 2180–2278) there is a description of naya and its 7 kinds.

Pramāṇa or valid knowledge is classified in Ṭhāṇa (IV, 3; s. 338[1]), Viāhapaṇṇatti (V, 4; 192) and Aṇuogaddāra (s. 144; pp. 211[a]–219[a2]). The word heü (Sk. hetu[3]) is used in Ṭhāṇa in 2 senses viz., pramāṇa[4] and reason – inference based on reason[5]. The word heü occurs in Dasaveyāliyanijjutti[6], too. In its v. 86[7], it is said to be four-fold. Several terms of debate occur in Sūyagaḍa. They are: pakkha[8] (a party), chala[9] (a quibble), viyakkā[10] (speculation) and takka[11]. In Ṭhāṇa (s. 338) we come across the word nāü (Sk. jñāta) meaning an example. It is there divided into 4

---

1 "हेऊ चउव्विहे पण्णत्ते, तं जहा–पच्चक्खे अणुमाणे ओवम्मे आगमे।"

2 Herein pramāṇa is said to be four-fold: pratyakṣa, anumāna, aupamya and āgama. Out of these pratyakṣa has two varieties viz. indriya-pratyakṣa and no-indriya-pratyakṣa. The former has 5 sub-varieties and the latter 3. Anumāna is of 3 kinds: pūrvavat, śeṣavat and dṛṣṭisādharmyavat. Out of these, the 2nd is of 5 types and the 3rd, of two types. Aupamya has 2 varieties, each of which has 3 sub-varieties. Āgama is of 2 kinds and of 3 kinds as well.

In v. 25–27 of Kappanijjutti, there is a discussion about pratyakṣa and parokṣa pramāṇas. Visesā° (v. 95) says that inferential knowledge is absolutely parokṣa, avadhijñāna etc. absolutely pratyakṣa, and one based upon sense-organs and mind sāṃvyavahāri-pratyakṣa.

3 Hemacandra Sūri in his com. (p. 213[a]–p. 213[b]) on Aṇuogaddāra has discussed the characteristics of a hetu. While doing so he has quoted several verses one of which is ascribed to Nyāyavādin Puruṣacandra by him.

4 See fn. 1.

5 अत्थि तं अत्थि सो हेऊ १, अत्थि तं णत्थि सो हेऊ २, णत्थि तं अत्थि सो हेऊ ३, णत्थि तं णत्थि सो हेऊ।" (IV, 3; s. 338). Herein one can see the germs of a syllogism.

6 "जिणवयणं सिद्धं चेव भण्णए कत्थई उदाहरणं। आसज्ज उ सोयारं हेऊ वि कहिंचि भण्णेज्ज ॥४९॥"

7 "अहवा वि इमो हेऊ विन्नेओ तत्थिमो चउविअप्पो। जावग थावग वंसग लूसग हेऊ चउत्थो उ॥८६॥"

8–9 "इमं दुपक्खं इममेगपक्खं आहंसु छलायणं च कम्मं॥"—I, 12, 5.

10 "एवमेगे वियक्काहिं नो अन्नं पज्जुवासिया। अप्पणो य वियक्काहिं अयमंजू हि दुम्मई ॥२१॥"—I, 1, 2

11 "एवं तक्काइ साहेन्ता धम्माधम्मे अकोविया। दुक्खं ते नाइतुट्टेन्ति सउणी पंजरं जहा॥२२॥"–I, 1, 2

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

kinds[1], each having 4 varieties. Further this Aṅga enumerates 6 expedients employed in a hostile debate or debate a l'outrance[2], and it enumerates 10 defects of a debate.[3] In Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 137)[4] are mentioned 10 members[5] of a syllogism, and in v. 138–148 is given a demonstration of this syllogism as applied to ahiṁsā.

16. Syādvāda—Syādvāda having anekāntavāda etc., for its synonyms, is a key-note of Jainism. So it is no wonder, if we find several references pertaining to it in the canonical and non-canonical philosophical works of the Jainas.[6] The word aneganta occurs in Mahānisīha as can be seen from its quotation in Upadeśaratnākara of Munisundara Sūri (B. O. R. I., No. 1263 of 1884–87). The word siyā (Sk. syāt) is found in Jīvājīvābhigama (s. 125) and Aṇuogaddāra (s. 142), and the word syādvāda occurs in Hemacandra's com. (p. 266[b]) on Aṇuogaddāra. The origin and usage of syādvāda can be traced in Viāhapaṇṇatti (V, 7, 1) where it is said: "परमाणुपोग्गले णं भंते एयति वेयति जाव तं तं भावं परिणमति? गोयमा! सिय एयति, वेयति जाव परिणमति, सिय णो एयति जाव णो परिणयति". Another passage occurring in this Aṅga (s. 318) may be also noted: "जीवा नाणी वि अन्नाणी वि."[7]

17. Saptabhaṅgī—We notice the three fundamental bhaṅgas which lead to seven on further investigation, in the following lines of the 5th Aṅga:—

"गोयमा! अप्पणो आदिट्ठे आया, परस्स आदिट्ठे नो आया, तदुभयस्स आदिट्ठे अवत्तव्वं आताति य णो आताति य।"

---

1 "चउव्विहे णाए पण्णत्ते, तं जहा—आहरणे, आहरणतद्देसे, आहारणतद्दोसे, उवण्णासोवणए" (s. 338). Cf. Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 53).

2 "छव्विहे विवादे पण्णत्ते, तं जहा—ओसक्कतित्ता, उस्सक्कइत्ता, अणुलोमइत्ता, पडिलोमइत्ता, भइत्ता, भेलतित्ता।" —Ṭhāṇa (VI; s. 512)

3 "दसविहे दोसे पण्णत्ते, तं जहा—
तज्जायदोसे, मइभंगदोसे, पसत्थारदोसे, परिहरणदोसे।
सलक्खण-क्कारण-हेउदोसे, संकामणं, निग्गह वत्थुदोसे॥" (X; s. 743)

4 "ते उ पइन्न विभत्ती हेउ विभत्ती विवक्ख पडिसेहो। दिट्ठंतो आसंका तप्पडिसेहो निगमणं च॥१३७॥"

5 In v. 50, a syllogism having 5 members is referred to. These members appear to be the same as pratijñā, hetu, udāharaṇa, upanaya and nigamana mentioned in Gautama's Nyāyasūtra (I, i, 32).

6 For a tentative list of sources dealing with syādvāda see my intro. (pp. xi–xii) to Anekāntajayapatākā (vol. I) published with two commentaries. (G. O. S.)

7 Cf. "आया पुण सिय णाणे, सिय अन्नाणे"—Aṅga V (?)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

13. Parallels in non-Jaina Literature—Just as the word tripiṭaka and its Pāli equivalent occur in the Bauddha literature so do the word gaṇipiṭaka and its Prākṛta equivalent gaṇipiḍaga in the Jaina literature. This gaṇipiḍaga is twelve-fold inasmuch as it consists of 12 Aṅgas. Out of them Āyāra may be compared with the Vinayapiṭaka of the Bauddhas, and Ṭhāṇa and Samavāya, with their Aṅguttaranikāya. Further, the stories pertaining to the fructification of merit and demerit which are embodied in Vivāgasuya may be compared with Avadānaśataka and Karmaśataka of the Bauddhas. Similarly the Paësi-Kesi dialogue occurring in Rāyapaseṇiya has a parallel in the Pāyāsisutta of the Dighanikāya Nr. 23. In this connection Prof. Winternitz says in The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 147):—

"The original may in this case be the Jaina dialogue, but it is also possible that both have to be derived from an older Itihāsa-saṃvāda, forming part of the ancient ascetic literature."[1]

All the Cheyasuttas such as Nisīha etc., have almost the same contents as we meet with under the name of vinaya in the Bauddha literature. Just as Pajjosaṇākappa deals with the life of Lord Mahāvīra, so does Lalitavistara, a Bauddha work so far as the life of Lord Buddha is concerned. The famous saying of King Janaka of Mithilā (after he had adopted asceticism) viz. 'How boundless is my wealth as I possess nothing! When Mithilā is on fire, nothing that is mine will be burnt', occurring in the Mahābhārata[2] (XII,

1 Prof. Winternitz in The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 145, fn.) says:—
"If I am not mistaken, E. Leumann (Z. D. M. G. 48, 1894, p. 65 ff.) was the first to speak of a 'Parivrājaka Literature', though not quite in the same sense as I use the term 'Ascetic Literature'. See my lecture on 'Ascetic Literature of Ancient India' in Some problems of Indian Literature (Calcutta University Press, 1925), p. 21 ff."

2 "In many cases verses and Itihāsa-saṃvādas of the Mahābhārata have actually been traced in Pali Gāthās, and in Jaina books. A very remarkable example of the latter is the fine dialogue between a father and his son in the Mahābhārata, XII, 175 (repeated XII, 277), which occurs also—with variants in the Mārkaṇḍeya-Purāṇa, X ff., in the Buddhist Jātaka (Nr. 509 in Fausböll's edition), and again in the Uttarajjhayaṇasutta (Adhy, XIV) of the Jainas."—The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 146)

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

178, 2) is found in the Jātaka Nr. 539 g. 125 and has a parallel in the Uttarajjhayaṇa (IX), a work about which Prof. Winternitz remarks: "from a literary point of view perhaps the most interesting book". The legend of King Nami where the ascetic ideal is contrasted with that of the ruler and the warrior is noted by Jarl Charpentier in Studien zur indischen Erzählungsliteratur I, Paccekabuddhageschichten (Uppasala, 1908) and Z. D. M. G. (vol. LXVI, 38ff.). Ajjhayaṇa XII has a counterpart in the Mātaṅgajātaka Nr. 497 as shown by Charpentier in Z. D. M. G. (vol. LXIII, 171 ff.), whereas the legend of Citta and Sambhūta occurring in ajjhayaṇa XIII has been long ago compared with Jātaka Nr. 498 by Prof. Leumann.[1]

19. Ascetic Literature—This is the terminology coined by Prof. Winternitz, in view of his having noticed in Bauddha texts[2] Samaṇas and Brāhmaṇas, and in Aśoka inscriptions Samaṇa-bambhaṇa and on finding Megasthenes making a clear distinction between Brāhmaṇas and Śramaṇas. He notes the following characteristic features of this literature in The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 145):-

"It disregards the system of castes and āśramas; its heroes are, as a rule, not gods and Ṛṣis, but kings or merchants or even Śūdras. The subjects of poetry taken up by it are not Brāhmaṇic myths and legends, but popular tales, fairy stories, fables and parables. It likes to insist on the misery and sufferings of Saṃsāra, and it teaches a morality of compassion and Ahiṃsā, quite distinct from the ethics of Brahmanism with its ideals of the great sacrificer and generous supporter of the priests, and its strict adherence to the caste system."

The ballad of King Nami (Uttara° IX) and the legend of Citta and Sambhūta (XIII) are specimens of the ascetic literature[3].

1 See Wiener Zeitschrift für die Kunde des Morgenlandes (V, 111 ff.; VI, I ff.).

2 In Jaina works, too, we come across Samaṇa and Bambhaṇa (vide Sūyagaḍa I, 6, 1; II, 6, 4 & 12), and Lord Mahāvīra himself is at least four times addressed as Bambhaṇa. Vide the ending verse of each of the 4 uddesas of Āyāra (IX).

3 Many pieces of ascetic poetry are found in the Mahābhārata, specially in its XIIth parvan. Out of them may be singled out the beautiful itihāsa-saṃvāda of Jājali and Tulādhāra (261–264) where Tulādhāra, the shopkeepor of Benares, teaches the Brāhmaṇa Jājali, 'the eternal religion of love'. For other instances see The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (pp. 145–146).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Many verses of the Āyāra and Sūyagaḍa which in form and contents, can just as well be included in the Bauddha Suttanipāta or Dhammapada belong to the samaṇa literature of ancient India. I need not dilate upon this topic any more. So I may conclude it by reproducing the following words of Prof. Winternitz:—

"We see, then, that in the sacred texts of the Jainas a great part of the ascetic literature of ancient India is embodied (the italics are not mine), which has also left its traces in Buddhist literature as well as in the epics and Purāṇas. Jaina literature, therefore, is closely connected with the other branches of post-Vedic religious literature."—The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 147)

20. Narrative Literature and Folk-lore—Students of narrative literature need not be reminded of the fact that as shown by Prof. Johannes Hertel, the most popular recensions of the Pañcatantra are the work of the Jainas, and that it is in all probability a Jaina to whom we owe the so-called 'Textus Simplicitor' of the Pañcatantra, and the Jaina saint Pūraṇabhadra completed in 1199, the Pañcākhyānaka or the Pañcatantra in the 'Textus ornatior.'[1] Some of the Aṅgas and their exegetical literature provide us with all sorts of narratives[2], legends[3], stories, tales, parables, fables, anecdotes and ballads, to mention a few out of many. It is the careful investigation of this narrative litertaure of the Jainas that makes Prof. Hertel utter the following words in "On the literature of the Shvetambaras of Gujarat (p. 8):—

"Characteristic of Indian narrative art are the narratives of the Jains. They describe the life and the manners of the Indian population in all its different classes, and in full accordance with reality. Hence Jain narrative literature is, amongst the huge mass of Indian literature, the most precious source not only of folk-lore in the most comprehensive sense of the word, but also of the history of Indian civilization.

"The Jain's way of telling their tales differs from that of the Bauddhas in some very essential points. Their main story is not that of the past, but that of the present; they do not teach their doctrines directly, but indirectly; and there is no future Jina to be provided with a rôle in their stories,

"Jain stories are much more reliable sources of folk-lore than the stories handed down in the books of the Bauddhas."—p. 9

1 See The Jainas in the His. of Ind. Lit. (p. 149).

2 For 4 varieties of narrations see Ṭhāṇa (IV, 2; s. 282).

3 The legend of the sons of Sagara and the descent of the Ganges is found in Nemiçandra Sūri's com. (pp. 233-236) on Uttarajjhayaṇa (XVIII, 35).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

These remarks and one made by him on p. 11 goad me to say that the narrative literature embodied especially in the Cuṇṇis and Ṭīkās of the Āgamas deserves to be specially studied by one who wants to have a complete picture of world-sociology in general and Indian sociology in particular. I may add that Aṅgas VI and VII furnish us with materials whereby we can prepare articles like Occupations and Professions as seen in the Rāmāyaṇa.[1] They supply us with specimens of short stories.

21. Music—The seven svaras of the musical scale or gamut are mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (VII). These along with their sthānas, the birds and beasts that utter these notes, the musical instruments[2] which give rise to these notes, the advantages occurring from singing particular svaras, 3 grāmas, 21 mūrcchanas, and the art of singing are dealt with in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 127). Further Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 659[b]) on Viāhapaṇṇatti (XV; s. 539) notes gītamārga, the pertinent line being "मार्गौ गीतमार्ग-नृत्यमार्गलक्षणौ सम्माव्येते".

22. Staging of dramas—In Rāyapaseṇiya (s. 24) we come across the staging of a drama in 32 ways. Out of them, some of the poses produce an appearance of some of the letters—a feature hardly to be found elsewhere in the staging of any drama. In Nemicandra Sūri's com. (p. 196[b]) on Uttarajjhayaṇa (XIII), there is mention of a nāṭyavidhi named Mahuyarīgīya.

23. Erotic—It may sound strange that the Jaina canon which ought to discuss and define religion pure and simple, contains an exposition of erotic elements. But this can be explained on the ground that a novice is as much in need of being told what he ought to refrain from as he is in need of being told what he ought to indulge in. So erotic discussions do deserve to be treated. Even names of standard works of this science deserve mention in the canonical treatises, and this is exactly what we find in

1 This is an article by Mr. P. C. Dharma, M. A., L. T., and it is published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XIX, pt, II, pp. 127–146).

2 Names of some of the musical instruments are given in, Viāhapaṇṇatti (V, 4, 1), Rāyapaseṇiya (s. 23), Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 2[b]) on Nandī etc.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Aṇuogaddāra (s. 41) and Nandī (s. 42). Even the Dasaveyāliyanijjutti (v. 259–262) furnishes us with some materials in this direction. Four types of kāma are treated in Ṭhāṇa (IV, 4; s. 357), and a detailed exposition of sexual indulgence is given in Ṭhāṇa (s. 116, 122 & 123), Viāhapaṇṇatti (VII, 7; s. 289), Paṇṇavaṇā (XXXIV) etc.

Mathematics—In 1923 I was given a Research grant by the University of Bombay to carry on research on "Jaina Mathematics". The various results then arrived at have been dealt with at length by me in the intro. (pp. i–xlvii) to Gaṇitatilaka[1]. So I shall here mention only a few points:—

(i) Viāhapaṇṇatti (s. 90) and Uttarajjhayaṇa (XXV, v. 7, 8 & 38) inform us that knowledge of saṁkhyāna and jyotiṣa is one of the main accomplishments of a Jaina saint.

(ii) Geometry is spoken of in Sūyagaḍanijjutti (v. 154) as the lotus of Mathematics.

(iii) Bhaṅgas are likely to remind a student of Mathematics of 'Permutations and Combinations'. They are mentioned in Ṭhaṇa (X; s. 716), and their two varieties are noted and explained by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 478[b]) to this Aṅga. Śīlāṅka Sūri in his com.[2] (p. 9[b]) to Sūyagaḍanijjutti (v. 28) has given us 3 verses[3] which supply us with 3 rules. The first verse enables us to determine the total number of transpositions which can be made when a specific number of things is given, whereas the other two help us in finding the actual spread of representation. The problem known as Gāṅgeya-bhaṅga and treated in Viāhapaṇṇatti (IX; s. 372–374) may be specially mentioned as one of the typical problems connected with this branch of Mathematics.[4]

1 This is edited by me with the com. of Siṁhatilaka Sūri, and it is published in Gackwad's Oriental Series as No. LXXVIII.

2 In this com. (p. 317[b]) there is mention of Sīmandharasvāmin. He is a Tīrthaṅkara living in Mahāvideha kṣetra according to the Jaina belief.

3 See my intro. (p. xiii) to Gaṇitatilaka.

4 Visesā° (v. 942–943) gives us a method of working out anānupūrvī, leaving aside pūrvānupūrvī and paścānupūrvī, a subject pertaining to bhaṅgas.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

(iv) Ṭhāṇa (X; s. 747) mentions 10 kinds of calculation which are differently interpreted by different scholars.

(v) Ṭhāṇa (II, 4; s. 95), Sūriyapaṇṇatti (VIII, 29; p. 86[a]), Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti (s. 18) and Aṇuogaddāra (s. 137) give us names of notational places, the last being Sīsapahelliyā which stands for (84 lacs)[28] years, but which according to Joïsakaraṇḍaga (v. 64–71) stands for (84 lacs)[36] years.

(vi) Uttarajjhayaṇa (XXX, v. 10, 11) furnishes us with the names of powers 2, 3, 4, 6 and 12, whereas Aṇuogaddāra (s. 142) deals with successive squares and square-roots.

(vii) 21 kinds of numbers are treated in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 146). In this connection Dr. Bibhutibhusan Datta says:—

"It will be noticed that in the classification of numbers stated above, there is an attempt to define numbers beyond Alef–zero.....The fact that an attenpt was made in India to define such numbers as early as the first century before the Christian era, speaks highly of the speculative faculties of the ancient Jaina mathematicians."—The Jaina School of Mathematics (p. 142) published in "The Bulletin of the Calcutta Mathemetical Society" (Vol. XXI, No. 2, 1929).

(viii) Aṇuogaddāra (s. 131) supplies us with various tables of measurement which can be compared with those given in Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra and elsewhere. Further, these tables incidentally throw light on the history of Magadha.

(ix) Viāhapaṇṇatti (XXV, 3; s. 721–726), Aṇuogaddāra (s. 123 & 144) and Sūriyapaṇṇatti (s. 11, 25 & 100) supply us with names of several geometrical figures, plane and solid as well.

(x) Viāhapaṇṇatti (s. 91), Jīvājīvābhigama (s. 82 & 109) and Sūriyapaṇṇatti (s. 20) furnish us with values of $\overline{11}$.

(xi) Sūriyapaṇṇatti[1] and Joïsakaraṇḍaga[2] supply us with astronomical knowledge. Prof. Weber observes:

1–2 These two works along with Lokaprakāśa (pt. IV) were found very useful in understanding the knotty points of Vedāṅga–jyotiṣa. So says Mr. B. L. Kulkarni in his article entitled "ऐतिहासिक दृष्टिसे प्राचीन जैन वाङ्मयका महत्त्व और उसके संशोधनकी आवश्यकता". and published in Jainasatyaprakāśa (vol. VI, No. 11, pp. 418–420).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

"That not only do the astronomical works of Jainas furnish information about the conceptions of a religious sect but may, if rightly investigated, yield valuable material for the general history of Indian ideas."[1]

(xii) Visesā° (v. 351–372) provides us with a chapter on sound (accoustics) and Paṇṇavaṇā, with that of light (optics)–subjects coming under the class of Applied Mathematics.

(xiii) It may be that the 3 Prākṛta verses quoted by Bhāskara I in his com. on v. 10 of the Gaṇitapāda of the Āryabhaṭīya of Āyrabhaṭa I, may be belonging to some extinct Āgama[2].

(xiv) Rājāditya (1120 A. D.) has written Jaina-gaṇitasūtrodāharaṇa.[3] It may be that the examples given here may have something to do with the Agamas and their exegis.

25. Alchemy—The first verse of Dasaveyāliya mentions the process of preparing gold.[4] Verse 336 of Āvassayanijjtti does the same.

26. The science of medicine—Some topics dealing with this subject have been already dealt with (vide pp. 136–137). So it now remains to add that Ṭhāṇa (VIII; s. 611) gives us names of the 8 kinds of Āyurveda, and Viāhapaṇṇatti deals with the medicinal properties[5] of certain articles of food.

27. Modern branches of knowledge—Paṇṇavaṇā provides us with information pertaining to metaphysics and Physics, and Nandī regarding psychology and logic. Jīvājīvābhigama gives us some information about geology. Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti gives us an idea about cosmo-

1 See "Sacred Literature of the Jainas" (I, p. 372 and II, p. 574 ff.), and "Indian Antiquary" (XXI, p. 14 ff.).

2 See Dr. B. Datta's article entitled as A lost Jaina treatise on Arithmetic and published in "The Jaina Antiquary" (vol. II, No. 2, pp. 38–41, September 1936).

3 See my intro. (p. x) to Gaṇitatilaka.

4 See Appendix III of my translation of Caturviṁśatiprabandha. In Appendix I Gāhājuyalathui of Pādalipta Sūri is given along with its avacūri. The latter interprets this hymn whereby a base metal can be turned into gold.

5 See pp. 116, 136, 137.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

logy, in its own way. Elements of chemistry can be gleaned from Paṇṇavaṇā which deals with ontology, too. As regards biology, at least some information can be gathered from Paṇhāvāgaraṇa (s. 3), and Dasaveyāliya (II, 6[1]; IV; V, 1, 70, and 73; V, 2, 14, 16, 18 and 20-24; VI, 64; IX, 1, 4; IX, 2, 1; and IX, 1).[2] In Aṅga V (s. 324) names of certain trees are given, and in s. 274, food of trees is discussed. In Paṇṇavaṇā (I, s. 19-26) several items pertaining to vanaspati are mentioned. In Āyāra (s. 47) it is stated that the organism of vanaspati is akin to that of humanity. Its s. 54 mentions a number of motives which lead to the destruction of the trasa and its s. 49 the 8 varieties of trasa

28. Palæography—It was in 1936 that I was given a Research grant for Jaina Palæography. The results arrived at by me in this connection have been embodied in two papers[3]: (i) Outlines of Palæography with special reference to Jaina Palæographical data and their evaluation and (ii) The Jaina Manuscripts.[4] Some of them are:

(i) The word leha occurs in Samavāya (LXXII), Uvāsagadasā (s. 7), Pajjosaṇākappa (s. 210) and Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti (s. 30).

(ii) Samavāya (XVIII) supplies us with a list of 18 lipis. Paṇṇavaṇā (s. 37) gives us practically the same list ad verbatim. But Hemacandra's com. (p. 256) on Visesā°

1 This notes two types of serpents Gandhana and Agandhana. In the 5th Aṅga (XV; s. 547) there is a reference to a kind of serpent known as Dṛṣṭiviṣasarpa. He is alluded to in Kumāravālapaḍiboha, Abhayakumāracaritra and Seūbandha (IV, 50).

2 For details see my article "श्रीदशवैकालिकसूत्रनुं दिग्दर्शन याने एक आर्हत आगमनुं अवलोकन" published in Citramayajagat (p. 248, Dec. 1932).

3 Both of these papers are published in "The Journal of the University of Bombay", the corresponding numbers being vol. VI, pt. 6, May 1938 and vol. VII, pt. 2, September 1938.

4 My article A detailed Exposition of the Nāgarī Gujarātī and Moḍī Scripts partly published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XIX, pt. IV) and "ગુજરાત અને લિપિકલંબક, લેખનસાહિત્ય તથા અક્ષરશિક્ષણ" published in 6 instalments so far, in the "Forbes Gujarati Sabha Traimāsika", may be also consulted.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

gives altogether a different list of 18 lipis. A third type of the list is furnished by Kalpadrumakalikā (p. 203).

(iii) Samavāya (LXVI) notes 46 letters of the Bambhī (Brāhmī) script; but Abhayadeva Sūri is not in a position to say for certain as to which these 46 letters are.

(iv) Shapes of some of the letters in different scripts are recorded in the canonical literature. For instance shapes of ṭa and ṭha are noted in the com. (p. 256) on Visesā°, those of ḍha and ṇa by Malayagiri Sūri in his com. (p. 188[a]) on Nandī and those of ca and dha by him in his com. (p. 46[a]) on Āvassaya, that of ma in the Puṣkarasārī lipi in the Cuṇṇi on Kappanijjutti (v. 44) etc.

(v) Five types of Mss. are mentioned in Ṭhāṇa (IV, 2), Nisīhavisehacuṇṇi, Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 25) on Dasaveyāliya etc.

(vi) Rāyapaseṇiya (s. 43) furnishes us with a list of nine materials associated with writing.

29. Educational topics—These are discussed in the canonical literature, and they have been treated by me in J. S. E., prepared in connection with the Research Grant given to me in 1938. So I shall here note only a few points:—

(i) Five types of svādhyāya are referred to in Ṭhāṇa (s. 465).

(ii) When is artha to be taught and in what manner? This is discussed in Nandī (s. 59).

(iii) A curriculum for the study of the Jaina scriptures is furnished by Vavahāra (X).

(iv) A question of the relative importance of jñāna and kriyā is treated in Aṇuogaddāra (s. 152) etc.

(v) 29 types of pāpaśruta are mentioned in Samavāya (s. 29[1]).

(vi) The oral transmission of knowledge and prohibition of books for some time and the permission given later on are already referred to on p. 60.

1 "एगुणतीसइविहे पावसुयपसंगे णं पन्नत्ते, तं जहा–भोमे १ उप्पाए २ सुमिणे ३ अंतरिक्खे ४ अंगे ५ सरे ६ वंजणे ७ लक्खणे ८; भोमे तिविहे पन्नत्ते, तं जहा–सुत्ते वित्ती वत्तिए, एवं एकेक्के तिविहं २४; विकहाणुजोगे २५ विज्जाणुजोगे २६ मंताणुजोगे २७ जोगाणुजोगे २८ अण्णतित्थयपवत्ताणुजोगे २९।"

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

30. Ethnology—Several tribes[1] are noted in the Jaina canon. Vide pp. 129, 131 and 140. Characteristics of Ārya and Mleccha along with their varieties are noted in Paṇṇavaṇā (I, 37)[2], and 7 varṇas and 9 varṇāntaras in Āyāraniijjutti (v. 18–27). Incidentally it may be mentioned that in Aṅga VI (s. 18) there is a reference to 18 seṇippaseṇīs, and in Prameyaratnamañjūṣā (p. 193) [3]names of 18 śreṇis (guilds ?) are given.[4] Further, several types of hermits are mentioned in Ovavāiya (s. 39) and Pupphiyā (pp. 25[a]–26[a]) etc. Several heterodox schools are referred to by Śīlāṅka in his com. on Sūyagaḍa, and heretical works, in Aṇuogaddāra and Nandī.

31. Foot-wear & outfit—Five types of foot-wear to which a Jaina saint may resort to, under extra-ordinary circumstances are mentioned in Āyāra[5]. The out-fit of a Jaina monk and that of a Jaina nun, too, are dealt with in Ohanijjutti etc.

32. Nautical—In Siddhasena Sūri's Cunni (p. 11) on Jīyakappa four types of ships are mentioned.[6] In Aṅga VI we come across several terms connected with a ship, its movement etc. For instance, in VIII (s. 69) we have: संजत्तानावावाणियग, पोतवहण, समुद्दवाअ, नाव, कुच्छिधार, कन्नधार, गब्भिअ and बंधण. In IX (s. 80) there are लंबण, कट्ठकूवर, मेढि, परिमाहा, तोरण, झयदंड and वलय and in XVII (s. 132) निज्जामअ and गब्भिल्लग.

33. Water—In Ohanijjutti (v. 33) water is said to be of 4 types according as it flows over (i) a stone, (ii) mud which is heel-deep, (iii) sand and (iv) deep mud. In the subsequent verse which really belongs to its Bhāsa, water which is as deep as half the

---

1 In Sūyagaḍa (I, 3, 3, 18) a hill-tribe named Taṅkaṇa is mentioned.

2 For details see my article Ethico-religious classifications of mankind as embodied in the Jaina Canon. It is published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XV, pts. I–II, pp. 97–108).

3 These names differ from those given in two ways by Vīrasena in his Dhavalā (pt. I, p. 57), a com. on Khaṇḍasiddhanta.

4 For details see p. 593 of Padmānandamahākāvya (G. O. S.).

5 See also Haribhadra Sūri's com. (p. 25[b]) on Dasaveyāliya.

6 In Sirisirivālakahā (v. 381–383) names of some of the varieties of ships are given.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

thigh, is spoken of as saṅghaṭṭa and one having a depth equal to that of a navel, leva.

34. Stick—In Ohanijjutti (v. 730) measures of लट्ठि, विलट्ठि, दंड and विदंड are mentioned whereas in its v. 731–738, different kinds of the former are described.

35. Lullaby—Its specimen is given by Śīlāṅka Sūri in his com. (p. 119[b]) on Sūyagaḍa (I, 4, 2, 17). It runs as under:—

"सामिओ सि णगरस्य य णक्कउरस्य य हत्थकप्पगिरिपट्टणसीहपुरस्स य उण्णयस्य य निन्नस्य य कुच्छिपुरस्य य कण्णकुज्जआयामुहसोरियपुरस्स य."

In the end I may say that it is possible to multiply instances in support of what I have said here, and that comprehensive intellects can throw ample light even in other directions than those I have aimed at. So I end this topic and this work, too, by reproducing the words of Dr. Barnett:—

"Some day when the whole of the Jaina scriptures will have been critically edited and their contents lexically tabulated, together with their ancient glosses, they will throw many lights on the dark places of ancient and modern Indian languages and literature."[1]

1 See his intro. (p. ix) to Aṅgas VIII and IX.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

INDEX I

(Names of authors & other persons and sects and the like)

The numbers refer to pages.

Abhayadeva 6, 26, 31, 32, 34, 55, 59, 79, 85, 87, 92, 97, 100, 103–107, 124, 126, 127, 132, 133, 136, 144, 194, 197, 198, 224, 225, 229.
Abhiṇandaṇa 2.
Abhyankar K. V., 46, 204.
Acalabhrātṛ 5.
Adda 169, 182.
Ādiccajasa 10.
Aggibhūī 3.
Agnibhūti 127.
Aïmutta 134.
Ajita 11.
Ajitadeva 146.
Ājīvag(k)a 84, 85, 187, 193.
Ajiya 2, 10.
Ajja Maṅgu 160.
Ajja Nāgahatthi 160.
Ajja Nandila 160.
Ajja Rakkhiya 180.
Ajja Samudda 160.
Ajja Suhamma 65.
Ajja Vaira 12, 73, 181.
Akalaṅka 8, 24, 68, 203.
Akampit(y)a 3, 5, 6.
Akkhavāya 188.
Alsdolf L., 76.
Altekar A. S., 60.
Amaracandra 59.
Ambā 202.
Ammaḍa 138, 169.
Amūrtipūjaka 27.
Ānanda 132.
Ānandasāgara 22, 128, 188, 190–193, 196, 201, 202.
Ananta 2.
Anārya 131, 135.
Andhakavṛṣṇi 151.
Anegāvāti 125.
Aṅgarisi 169.
Annhilationist 125.
Aparājita 74, 179.
Ara 2.
Ārabi 129.
Aradhanārīśvara 209.
Ārdra 123, 182.
Ariṣṭanemi 144, 151.
Ariṭṭhanemi 169.
Āriya 140, 169.
Arṇikāputra 166.
Aruṇa 100, 169.
Ārya 140, 230.
Āryabhaṭa I 227.
Āryānandila 73.
Ārya Rakṣita 52, 73, 97, 161, 178, 194, 204.
Āryasamita 95.
Ārya-Śyāma 35.
Ārya-vairasvāmin 73.
Āryikā 142.
Āśādhara 170.
Asita 169.
Aśoka 62, 222.
Āsuri 164.
Ātmārāmji 47.
Ātreya 178.
Ayalabhāta(i) 3, 6.
Ayalabhāya 3.
Babbariya 129.
Bahula 160.
Bāhuyamahu 169.
Bala 150.
Baladeva 77, 126.
Balarāma 141, 151.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Bambhaddīvagasīha 160.
Bambhaṇa 222.
Bambhī 59.
Bāṇa 188.
Banārasidas Jain 16.
Barnett L. D., 204, 231.
Bauddha 27, 29, 35, 62, 98, 115, 118, 119, 123, 136, 148, 163, 207, 210, 213-215, 221-223.
Baumgartner A., 206.
Bengali 64.
Bhadda 16, 46, 142.
Bhaddabāhu(sāmi) 16, 72, 160, 172, 180.
Bhadrabāhu(svāmin) 3, 14-16, 35, 38, 40, 43, 44, 46, 47, 61, 71-75, 78, 82, 88, 92, 93, 109, 112, 144-146, 154, 157-159, 168, 169, 172, 174, 179, 181, 183, 184, 186.
Bhadragupta 17.
Bhadreśvara 62, 92.
Bhandarkar R. G., 57, 156.
Bharata (author) 212.
Bharata (king) 141.
Bhārgava 164.
Bhāsarāsi 145.
Bhasmarāśi 145.
Bhāsvāmin 197.
Bhaṭṭi 186.
Bhavanapati 135.
Bhāvaprabha 37, 45, 49.
Bhayāli 169.
Bhimbhasāraputta 137.
Bhojavṛṣṇi 151.
Bhūtadinna 74.
Bhuvanatuṅga 199.
Bhūyadinna 160.
Bindusāra 85.
Brahmadatta 150.
Brahma-Hemacandra 74.
Brāhmaṇa 150-152, 198, 216, 222.
Brahmanical 28.
Brāhmī 59.
Buddha 28, 62, 137, 147.
Buddhilla 75.
Buddhist 28, 122, 145.
Bühler G., 43, 45, 58, 144.
Cāṇakk(y)a 166, 192.
Caṇḍakauśika 101.
Cāṇḍāla 150.
Candarabāīā 143.
Candragupta 67, 95, 168, 191.
Candrarṣi 203.
Cārugaṇiya 129.
Cārvāka 163.
Caturavijaya 173.
Caturdaśapūrvadhara 87, 90.
Ceḍaga 141.
Cellaṇā 143.
Charpentier Jarl 42, 44, 45, 141, 222.
Cilāïya 129.
Cilātiputra 178.
Citta 222.
Colebrooke H. T., 203.
Cosmogonist 125.
Cunnigham Alexander 144.
Dadhapaïṇṇa 138.
Dalal C. D., 95, 201.
Damadanta 178.
Damasāra 100.
Damili 129.
Dānaśekhara 199.
Dānavijaya 146.
Darśanavijaya 74, 165.
Daśapūrvadhara 14, 17, 87, 205.
Datta B., 226, 227.
Datta (king) 193.
Datta R. C., 132.
Desai M. D., 147, 199, 200.
Devabhadra 200.
Devacandjī 37.
Devagutta 80.
Devaka 151.
Devakī 134, 151.
Devānanda 5.
Devānandā 129, 134.
Devarddhi 62, 63, 66, 69, 71, 74, 111, 145, 160.
Devasāgara 175.
Deva Vādin 33, 75, 160.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Devendra 5, 7, 20, 86, 89, 91, 92, 100, 198.
Dhalla M. N., 68.
Dhamma 2.
Dhanapāla 5, 186.
Dhanapatisingh 50.
Dhaneśvara 29, 195.
Dhanya 135.
Dharaṇa 100.
Dhāraṇī 132.
Dharasena 75, 94.
Dhāriṇī 134, 137.
Dharma 17.
Dharmaghoṣa 199.
Dharmaghoṣa 90.
Dharma P. C. 224.
Dharmaruci 178.
Dharmasāgara 4, 146.
Dharmasena 75.
Dhṛti 141.
Dhṛtisena 75.
Dhruva A. B., 161, 214.
Dhruva K. H., 118, 120, 123, 124.
Dhruvasena 75, 147.
Digambara 27, 28, 56, 57, 67, 68, 74–76, 83, 85, 91, 144, 145, 183, 203, 204.
Dinna 197.
Dīvāyaṇa 169.
Dovaī 130.
Draupadī 130.
Droṇa 14, 17, 74, 88, 91, 147, 152, 197, 198.
Duppasaha 110.
Dūsa 160.
Dūṣya 74, 160.
Duṣyanta 151.
Egāvāti 125.
Ekāvatārin 135.
Eternalist 125.
Extentionist 125.
Farquhar 58.
Frazer R. W., 206.
Gaddabha 169.
Gajasukumāla 166.
Gandhahastin 197, 200.
Gandhi H. B., 205.
Gaṅgadatta 54.
Gaṅgadeva 75.
Gardabhilla 194.
Garula 100.
Gauḍa 163.
Gautama 220.
Gautama(svāmin) 3, 123, 127, 151.
German 118, 123, 129, 158, 217.
Ghatage A. M., 157, 179, 181, 212.
Ghosh 52.
Ghoshal S. C., 58.
Ghoṭakamukha 162.
Goś(s)āla 84, 94, 123, 129, 133.
Govāliya 193.
Govardhana 74.
Govinda 74, 109.
Goyama (prince) 134.
Goyama(sāmi) 2, 4, 65, 220.
Guèrinot 42, 44, 57, 58.
Guṇaratna 199.
Guṇasundara 17.
Gune P. D., 208.
Gupta 17, 164, 197.
Haribhadd(r)a 3, 4, 32–34, 44, 45, 80, 82, 88, 96, 100, 116, 158, 162 172, 175, 178, 179, 182, 185, 186 188, 191, 196–198, 200–203, 209–212, 216, 218, 229, 230.
Harigiri 169.
Harinaikamiṣin 202.
Harṣakula 199.
Hastitāpasa 123.
Hedonist 125.
Hemacandra (Kalikālasarvajña) 3, 7, 10, 14, 33, 45, 62, 77, 116, 188, 203, 208.
Hemacandra (Maladhārin) 11, 12, 22, 26, 29, 50, 51, 73, 82, 86, 88, 89, 93, 95, 152, 162, 166, 185, 198, 200–202, 212, 219, 220, 228.
Heras H., 59.
Hertel Johannes 223.
Himavanta 74, 160.
Hindu 59, 122.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Hiralal Hansaraj 100.
Hīravijaya 31, 159, 199.
Hoernle Rudolf A. F., 129, 204.
Hopkins E. Washburn 206.
Hrī 141.
Ilāputra 178.
Indabhūi 3, 54.
Indaṇāga 169.
Indian 172.
Indra 137, 150.
Indrabhūti 3-5, 15, 47, 127, 138, 143, 207.
Indranandi 74.
Isigaṇiya 129.
Isigiri 169.
Iśvarakṛṣṇa 163.
Jacobi H., 69, 75, 111, 117-119, 121, 123, 140, 149, 204.
Jaina 1-3, 5, 7, 10, 12-14, 16-18, 21, 23, 27-29, 34, 35, 37, 38, 41, 42, 45, 46, 48, 51-53, 57, 59-64, 66-73, 75-77, 82, 87, 94, 98, 109-111, 114, 117-120, 122, 128, 129, 132, 139, 140, 142-145, 147, 149, 150, 152, 154, 155, 159, 160-162, 165, 167, 168, 170-172, 177-179, 181, 186, 193, 194, 202-204, 206-211, 213-218, 220, 221, 223-225, 227, 229-231.
Jaina Jagadīśacandra 163.
Jain Hirālāl 132.
Jaini J. L., 57.
Jājali 222.
Jakkhaseṇa 80.
Jakkhiṇī 46, 116.
Jamāli 129.
Jambu(ū) 64, 65, 96, 144, 160.
Jambūsvāmin 15, 168.
Janaka 221.
Jaṇṇa 169.
Jarāsandha 151.
Jasavaḍḍhaṇa 80.
Jassabhadda 52, 160.
Jaya 75.
Jayaghoṣa 151, 152.
Jayanti 127, 129.
Jayapāla 75.
Jayasāgara 146.
Jayavijaya 146.
Jerome 13.
Jew 13.
Jinabhadra 2, 40, 82, 178, 188, 189, 192, 194, 195, 201.
Jinabhaṭa 174, 196, 200-208.
Jinacandra 52.
Jiṇ(n)adāsa 79, 80, 82-84, 92, 96, 101, 191-193.
Jinahaṁsa 199.
Jinakalpin 104.
Jinalābha 100.
Jinamaṇḍana 95.
Jinaprabha 4, 30, 92, 143, 146, 147, 204.
Jinasena 74.
Jinavallabha 52, 195.
Jinavijaya 192.
Jīvayaśā 151.
Jīyadhara 160.
Jīyasattu 143.
Jñānasāgara 146, 175.
Jñanavijaya 146.
Joṇhiya 129.
Jupiter 165.
Jyeṣṭhā 45, 46, 116.
Kacchulla Nārada 213.
Kālaka 178, 193, 194.
Kālakas I-III 193.
Kalelkar D. B., 181.
Kāli 180.
Kālika 187.
Kalyāṇavijaya 37, 95, 189, 191, 193, 204.
Kāmadeva 133.
Kamalakīrti 146.
Kaṁsa 75, 151.
Kaṇha 134, 169.
Kapila 47, 163.
Kāsava 169.
Katre S. M., 132, 207.
Kauṭilya 162, 226.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kāvila 163.
Keith A. B., 203.
Kesi 221.
Keś(s)i(n) 47, 138, 151.
Keyali 169.
Khandila 61, 62, 160.
Khāravela 62, 71.
Khīmāvijaya 146.
Koḍillaya 14, 162.
Koḍiya 193.
Koṇiya 143.
Konow Sten 62.
Koṭyācārya 82, 86. 87, 101, 188, 189, 196, 200-202, 212.
Krause Charlotte 217.
Kṛṣṇa 134, 141, 151.
Kṣamāśramaṇa 2, 16, 38, 63, 66, 74, 111, 147, 160, 165, 178, 189, 191, 192, 197, 201, 203.
Kṣatriya 75, 150.
Kṣemakīrti 92, 199.
Kulakarni B. G., 226.
Kulamaṇḍana 38, 148.
Kumārapāla 32.
Kumma 169.
Kuṇḍakoliya 133.
Kundakunda 57, 91.
Kūṇiya 137, 138.
Kunthu 2.
Kuragaḍuka 45.
Kurt von Kamptz 166.
Kuśīla 142.
Kuṣmāṇḍī 202.
Lakṣmīkallola 199.
Lakṣmīvallabha 5, 146.
Laukāyata 163.
Laüsiya 129.
Law Bimal Churn 144-146.
Lecchai 129.
Leopold von Schrader 206.
Leumann E., 125, 140, 141, 158, 174, 179, 198, 222.
Lhāsiya 129.
Logāyata 163.
Lohārya 75.
Lohicca 160.
Lohitya 74.
Lokāyata 163.
Long J., 131.
Macdonell A. A., 206.
Māḍhara 14, 164.
Mahādeva 209.
Mahāgiri 17, 24, 25, 39, 160.
Mahāsayaya 133.
Mahattara 32, 82, 83, 192, 193, 203.
Mahāvīra 3, 5, 15, 18, 19, 29, 38, 41, 42, 47, 49, 52, 63, 64, 70, 82, 101, 115, 121, 123, 127-129, 131-133, 135, 137, 138, 143-145, 151, 153, 160, 167, 169, 171, 172, 176, 177, 207, 221, 222.
Mahendra 199.
Makāi 54.
Mākandiputra 127.
Malayagiri 6, 10, 18, 22-24, 27, 32, 34, 35, 40 62, 79. 82, 86, 88, 92, 97, 99, 103, 104, 112, 117, 129, 135, 139, 141, 152, 153, 162, 169, 173-177, 182, 188, 197-200, 229
Mallaï 129.
Mallavādin 197.
Malli 2, 130.
Manaka 153.
Maṇḍitaputra 127.
Maṇḍiya 3.
Māṇikyaśekhara 146, 175.
Maṅkhali 169.
Manu 188.
Marudevā 96.
Māṭhara 163, 164.
Maurya 62, 67.
Mayaṇga 169.
Megasthanes 222.
Merutuṅga 175.
Metārya 5, 178.
Meyajja 3, 6.
Milikkhu 140.
Mitāvādin 125.
Mithyādṛṣṭi 14.
Mleccha 140, 230.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Modi M. C., 216.
Monist 125.
Monotheist 125.
Moriyaputta 3.
Muggarapāṇi 134.
Municandra 33.
Muniratna 5.
Munisundara 208, 220.
Muṇisuvvaya 2.
Mūrtipūjaka 27, 58.
Muruṇḍa 188.
Muruṇḍi 129.
Nāga 163.
Nāgahastin 74, 75.
Nāgajjuṇa 62, 160.
Nāgakumāra 101, 135.
Nāgārjuna 61, 62, 74, 95, 197.
Nāgārjunīya 63, 64, 73.
Nāgasena 75.
Nāhar 52.
Nāïla 142.
Nakṣatra 75.
Nami 2, 150, 222.
N(N)ārada 16, 169, 213.
Na-santi-paraloga-vāti 125.
Nāstika 179, 180.
Nemi 2, 150.
Nemicandra 80, 197, 198, 223, 224.
Neminātha 16, 151, 169.
Nihnava 178, 180.
Nimittavādin 125.
Niṣ(s)aḍ(d)ha 141.
Nitāvādi 125.
Nṛsiṁha 209.
Oldenburg H., 206.
Pabhāsa 3, 6.
Pabhava 160.
Pādalipta 92, 93, 95, 188, 200, 227.
Padmamandira 90, 184.
Paësi 138, 221.
Pallaviya 129.
Pāṇḍu 75.
Paṇhapravaṇa 52, 94.
Pāṇini 117. 193, 208.
Paramādhārmika 178, 182.
Parameṣṭhin 168.
Pārasi 129.
Parivāyaga 188.
Pārśva 123, 138, 144, 151, 169.
Pārśvacandra 204.
Pārśvadeva 195.
Pārśvanātha 16, 129, 169.
Pāsa 2, 169.
Patañjali 117, 165.
Patel G. J., 127, 128, 149, 153, 154, 214, 218.
Patwardhan M. V., 28, 42, 156.
Pāyañjali 14, 161, 165.
Peterson 16.
Piṅga 169.
Pischel 152.
Pluarist 125.
Prabhācandra 89.
Prabhāsa 5.
Prabhavasvāmin 15.
Prābhṛtajña 92.
Pradyumna 30, 191.
Pralamba 194.
Praśnaśravaṇa 94.
Pratyekabuddha 14, 16, 17, 19, 47, 169.
Pravartinī 142.
Proṣṭhila 75.
Pṛthvīcandra 146.
Pukkhali 129.
Pulinda 129.
Puṇyavijaya 52, 173.
Pupphasāla 169.
Pūraṇa 65.
Pūraṇabhadra 228.
Purohita 150.
Puruṣacandra 219.
Puṣpadanta 132.
Puṣpamitra 52.
Pussadeva 165.
Puṣya 165.
Puṣyadaivata 165.
Rāhu 128.
Rājāditya 227.
Rājaśekhara 88.
Rājendralal Mitra 58.
Rājīmatī 151, 156.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Rakkhiyajja 12.
Rāma 169.
Rāmacandra 186.
Rathanemi 151, 156.
Ratnaśekhara 92, 180.
Ravigutta 80.
Rayaṇadīvadevayā 132.
Rayyā 142.
Revaī 183.
Revaïnakkhatta 160.
Revatī 128, 138.
Revatīmitra 17.
Rockhill 129.
Roha 127.
Rohagupta 164.
Rohiṇī 151.
Ross E. Denison 207.
Ṛṣabha 11, 18, 49, 59, 144, 176, 177.
Rudolf A. F., 205.
Rudradeva 93.
Sabari 129.
Saccasiri 80.
Saddālaputta 133.
Sādhuratna 204.
Sagaḍāla 73.
Sagara 10, 96, 193, 223.
Sahajakīrti 146.
Sahasrāvadhānin 203.
Sāi 160.
Śaka 96, 191, 196, 197.
Sakalacandra 88.
Śakra 100, 145, 193.
Śakuntalā 151.
Śalākāpuruṣa 77.
Śālihipiya 133.
Sāmajja 160.
Samaṇa 222, 228.
Samantabhadra 57.
Samayasundara 63, 146.
Sambhava 2.
Sambhūta 222.
Sambhūtivijaya 15.
Sambhūya 160.
Samucchedavāti 125.
Samudravijaya 151.
Samyagdṛṣṭi 14.
Saṁyamaviṣṇu 74.
Saṇḍilla 160.
Saṅgaya 169.
Saṅghadāsa 16, 38, 189.
Saṅghavijaya 146.
Saṅkaradāsa 198.
Sāṅkhya 163, 165.
Santi 2.
Śānticandra 11, 31, 199.
Śāntinātha 2.
Śāntisāgara 146, 203.
Śānti (Sūri) 196.
Śānti (Sūri, Vādivetāla) 47, 89, 149 153, 180, 184, 189, 197, 198.
Sarasvatī 194.
Sarvāstivādin 64.
Sasipupphadanta 2.
Sātiyaputta 169.
Śaurin 151.
Savvarisi 80.
Sayavāti 125.
Ś(s)ayyambhava 15, 45, 119, 153, 160.
Schrader F. O., 123, 206.
Schubring Walther 29, 42–45, 50, 51, 76, 120, 150, 155, 156, 190, 204, 214.
Sejjambhava 45.
Sejjaṁsa 2.
Sen Amulya Chandra 123.
Sen Dinesh Chandra 64.
Seṇiya 134, 135, 143.
Sensualist 125.
Shah Shantilal 168.
Siddha 134.
Siddhārtha 75.
Siddhasena 6, 33, 36, 38, 85, 91–98, 114, 120, 124, 125, 127, 131, 132, 134–137, 147, 155, 169, 189, 191, 192, 194, 197, 209, 230.
Siddhaseṇa (Divākara) 80, 120, 174, 194.
Sīha 128.
Sijjambhava 160.
Śīlabhadra 187, 195, 199.
Śīlācārya 77, 196.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Śīlāṅka 11, 33, 78, 94, 112, 113, 119, 122, 169, 181, 182, 184, 185, 188, 196–198, 200, 202, 208, 216, 225, 230, 231.
Sīmandhara(svāmin) 45, 46, 116, 225.
Siṁha 197.
Siṁhasūra 197.
Siṁhatilaka 77, 225.
Sindhali 129.
Sirigiri 169.
Śivanidhāna 146.
Śivaprabha 199.
Sīyala 2.
Skandila 17, 61, 62, 74.
Skāndilīya 63, 73.
Soma 169.
Somaprabha (Śatārthika) 181.
Somatilaka 2
Soriyāṇa 169.
Śramaṇa 222.
Śrāvaka 3, 143.
Śrāvikā 3, 127.
Śrī 141.
Śrīcandra 29, 30, 32, 187, 193, 195, 197, 199, 200, 202.
Śrītilaka 175, 197, 199.
Śrīyaka 45.
Śrutakevalin 14–17, 113.
Śrutasthavira 21, 47, 158.
Sthānakavāsin 27, 43, 44.
Sthavira 113, 115.
Sthavirakalpin 104.
Sthūlabhadra 15, 17, 45, 46, 62, 73, 98.
Subandhu 188.
Śubhacandra 74.
Subhadra 75.
Śubhavijaya 146.
Sudharma(śvāmin) 80, 159.
Śūdraka 210.
Suhamma(sāmi) 3, 51, 96, 160.
Suhastin 17, 61.
Suhatthi 160.
Sukośala 166.
Sumati 2, 142.
Supāsa 2.
Suppabha 2.
Suppaḍibaddha 160.
Sūra 151.
Sūriābha 138.
Susthitācārya 95.
Suṭṭhita 160.
Suvarṇabāhu 151.
Suvīra 151.
Suyyasivī 142.
Śvetāmbara 27, 28, 42, 56–58, 67, 68, 75–77, 79, 83, 85, 89–91, 144, 145, 147, 183, 195, 203.
Śyāma 14, 17, 35.
Śyāmārya 17.
Ṭaṅkaṇa 230.
Taruṇa 169.
Tattvācārya 196.
Tattvāditya 196.
Tāvasa 138.
Terāpanthi 27.
Terāsiya 84, 85, 161, 164.
Tetaliputra 178.
Tetalisuta 169.
Theist 125.
Thibaut G., 140.
Thūlabhadda 73, 160, 180.
Tiṣyagupta 87.
Tosali 181.
Trairāśika 164.
Tulādhāra 222.
Udaka 123.
Udayaṇa 180.
Udayaṇa (king) 129.
Udayasāgara 146.
Uddyotana 179, 196.
Ugrasena 151.
Ukkalavāda 169.
Umāsvāti 4, 57, 203.
Upadhye A. T., 204.
Usabha 2, 10, 170.
Usaha 170.
Usahasāmi 24.
Vācaspatimiśra 117.
Vaḍahiya 129.
Vaddhamāṇa(sāmi) 24, 89, 169.
Vādivetāla 184, 189.
Vāharī 196, 201.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Vaidika 27, 29, 35, 59, 60, 123, 129, 156, 188, 209, 214.
Vaidya L. R., 21.
Vaidya N. V., 132, 204.
Vaidya P. L., 65, 204.
Vaira 181.
Vairasvāmi 61.
Vaiśeṣika 163.
Vaisesiya 163.
Vaiśramaṇa 100.
Vajjitaputta 169.
Vajjī Videhaputta 129.
Vajra(svāmin) 17, 35, 61, 73, 78, 86, 93, 178, 204.
Vakkala 169.
Vāmaṇiya 129.
Vāṇija 193.
Vārattā 169.
Vardhamāna(svāmin) 16, 23, 89, 134.
Varisa 169.
Vārisena 106, 107.
Varṣagaṇa 163.
Vārṣagaṇya 163.
Varuṇa 100, 169.
Vāsavadattā 180, 188.
Vasudeva 134, 151.
Vāsudeva 77, 126, 151, 176.
Vasunandin 114, 179.
Vāsupujja 2.
Vātsyāyana 162.
Vaṭṭakera(svāmin) 14, 57, 114, 183.
Vāu 169.
Vāubhūi 3.
Vāuliya 180.
Vayara (śākhā) 193.
Vayarasāmi 80.
Vāyubhūti 127.
Vedāntin 123.
Vedic 48.
Velandhara 100.
Velankar H. D., 201, 202.
Vesamaṇa 169.
Vidu 169
Vidyācāraṇa 102.
Vidyānandin 203.
Vidyāvilāsa 146, 163.
Vijaya 75.
Vijayadāna 29.
Vijayaghoṣha 151, 152.
Vijayalāvaṇya 128.
Vijayānanda 47, 89.
Vijayavimala 199.
Vikrama 27, 29, 30, 111, 191, 195, 197, 204.
Vimala 2, 195.
Vimalamati 197.
Vimalavāhaṇa 10.
Vimpu 169.
Vinaspharṇi (?) 188.
Vinayacandra 146.
Vinayahaṁsa 199.
Vinayavijaya 5, 8, 87, 143, 146.
Vincent Smith 68.
Vindhyāvāsin 163.
Viṇhu 105.
Vīra 3, 14, 35, 40, 45, 49, 61, 63, 67, 68, 73–75, 80, 96, 110, 146, 147. 164, 169, 170, 172, 191, 193, 202.
Vīrabhadra 51, 52.
Vīrasena 230.
Viśākha 75.
Viṣṇu 209.
Viṣṇukumāra 74.
Vitta 197.
Viyatta 3.
Viyoha 81.
Vuḍḍhavāī 80.
Weber 41, 43, 45, 49, 57, 75, 129, 137, 141, 216, 226.
Winternitz M., 28, 39, 44, 45, 120, 130, 138–141, 144, 165, 206, 213, 218, 221–223.
Yadu 151.
Yākinī 32.
Yakṣa 46.
Yama 169.
Yāska 211.
Yaśobhadra 15, 75, 184, 197.
Yaśodeva 16, 25, 30, 34, 49, 101, 103, 169, 197, 199.
Yaśovijaya 39, 88, 203.
Yaṭṭāla 169.
Zoroastrian 68, 217.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

INDEX II

([1]Names of works, their sections, doctrines, metres etc.)
The numbers refer to pages.

Aïmutta 106.
Akāmamaraṇa 148.
Akkhobha 105, 106.
Akriyāvāda 123.
Aggāṇiya 85, 88, 95.
Aggiä 136.
Aggeṇīya 170.
Agrāyaṇiya 92.
Aṅga 6, 7, 9, 12, 15, 20, 21, 26–29, 31, 32, 34, 35, 47, 48, 53–55, 57, 58, 62, 63, 71, 74, 76, 77, 79, 95, 111–113, 119, 120, 122–126, 128–130, 138, 141, 147, 149, 155, 162, 164, 170, 181, 196–198, 200, 203–205, 214, 216, 220, 221, 223, 225, 228, 230, 231.
Aṅgacūlik(y)ā 24, 25, 50, 55, 56, 81, 103, 108.
Aṅgapaṇṇatti 74.
Aṅgapaviṭṭha 20–23.
Aṅgapraviṣṭa 20, 56.
Aṅgabāhira 20, 23, 48, 54, 55.
Aṅgabāhya 20, 56, 57.
Aṅgavijjā 50, 56, 167.
Aṅga-saptika 62.
Aṅguṭṭhapasiṇa 107.
Aṅguttaranikāya 27, 221.
Acchinnacchedanaya 85.
Acchinnacchedanayika 85.
Ajiyaseṇa 106.
Ajivakappa 50, 168.
Ajīvarāsi 126.
Ajjhayaṇa 16, 17, 19, 44, 45, 47, 55, 77, 78, 80, 88, 98–101, 103, 105–112, 114, 117, 119–122, 124, 126, 130, 132–135, 139, 141–143, 148–156, 169, 170, 175, 178, 179, 211, 213, 222.
Ajñānavāda 123.
Añjana 95.
Añju 105.
Aṭṭhapaya 88.
Aṭṭhāvaya 195.
Aṇagāramagga 148.
Aṇagārasuya 121.
Aṇanatara 84.
Aṇantaseṇa 106.
Aṇahitthi 106.
Aṇāḍhiya 108.
Aṇāhapavvajjā 148.
Aṇiyasa 106.
Aṇiruddha 106.
Aṇuoga 7–12, 76, 83, 96, 98, 99, 161, 210.
Aṇuogad(d)āra 10, 24, 26–29, 50, 52, 95, 110, 125, 128, 148, 161, 162, 164–166, 178, 185, 190, 193, 196, 198, 203, 205, 209, 211–213, 217, 219, 220, 224–226, 230.
Aṇuogaddāracuṇṇi 162, 191.
Aṇuogaddārasutta 166.
Aṇugghāya 149.
Aṇujogagata 54.
Aṇuṭṭhāṇavihi 29.
Aṇuttarovavāiyadasā 6, 28, 55, 106, 135, 145.
Aṇuppavāya 90.
Aṇuyoga 37, 76.
Aṇeganta 220.
Aṇḍa 105, 130.
Atinna 130.
Atimutta 106.

1 Names of works etc. written in English, German etc., are arranged according to their pronunciation.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Attha-nirutta 211.
Atthinatthippavāya 85.
Atharvaṇaveda 29, 162.
Atharvasaṁhitā 208.
Addaïjja 121.
Addāgapasiṇa 107.
Addhamāgahā 191.
Adhyayana 19, 46, 82.
Anaṅgapaviṭṭha 20–23.
Anaṅgapraviṣṭa 20.
Anānupūrvī 39, 225.
Anugama 9, 161.
Anuttara 11.
Anuttaropapātikadaśā 28, 54, 135.
Anuttaraupapātikadaśa(ā) 54.
Anuyoga 8–12, 52, 53, 57, 128, 161, 176, 177, 204, 216.
Anuyogadvāra 161, 182.
*Anuyogadhara 61.
Anuṣṭup(bh) 119, 123, 124.
Anekāntajayapatākā 220.
Anekāntavāda 211, 220.
Anekārtharatnamañjūṣā 204.
*Antakṛtkevalin 134.
Antakṛddaśa(ā) 28, 54, 103, 134.
Antakriyā 140.
Antagaḍa 134.
Antagaḍadasā 6, 28, 30, 54, 55, 105–107, 134, 145.
Antarmuhūrta 90.
Annamaṇṇakiriyā 113.
Anyajīva(khaṇḍa) 127.
Anyatīrthika(khaṇḍa) 127.
Apabhraṁśakāvyatrayī 52.
Aparyāpta 101.
Apavādasūtra 215.
Apavādāpavādasūtra 215.
Apavādotsargasūtra 215.
Apāpāpurīsaṅkṣiptakalpa 4.
Appamāä 148.
Apramāda 103.
Apraśna 135.
Abaddhadiṭṭhi 73.
Abhaä 107.
Abhagga 105.
Abhayakumāracaritra 228.
Abhicanda 106.
Abhijñānaśākuntala 137, 151.
Abhidhānacintāmaṇi 7, 10, 31, 33.
Abhidhānarājendra 36.
Abhutadhamma 28.
Amamacaritra 5.
Ambaḍaputta 105.
Ayala 105, 106.
Ara 59.
Aruṇovaväü 81.
Aruṇovavāganisīha 82.
Aruṇovavāt(y)a 24, 25, 55, 56, 100, 109.
Arthadīpikā 131.
Arthaśāstra 162, 226.
Ardhamāgadhī 120.
Ardhamāgadhī Reader 16.
Arhat 209.
Alakkha 106.
Alpabahutva 140.
Avagāhanāsthāna 140.
Avacūri 199, 200, 227.
Avacūrṇi 146, 199, 200.
Avaïjha 85.
Avadānaśataka 136, 221.
Avadhi 140.
Avadhijñāna 126, 132, 219.
Avantarasaä 127.
Avarakaṅkā 130.
Avavāiya 215.
Avasarpiṇī 2, 15, 17, 59, 70, 126, 160.
Avestan 68.
Aṣṭasaptatikā 196.
Aṣṭāṅga-nimitta 187, 193.
Aṣṭādhyāyī 193, 213.
Asaṅkhaya 148.
Asajjhāyanijjutti 174, 176.
Asamāhiṭṭhāṇa 107, 143.
Ahavvaṇaveda 164.
Ahāccaya 84.
Ahiṇayariu 106.
Outlines of Palæography with special reference to Jaina Palæographical data and their evalution 59, 60, 228.

* This sign indicates the name of a particular class of human beings.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Āūrapaccakkhāṇa(ā) 24–26, 48–51, 56, 165, 166, 168, 199, 203.
Ākāśagāminī vidyā 78.
Ākhyāyikā 79.
Ākhyāyikopākhyāyikā 79.
Āgama 52–56, 58, 62–64, 66, 71, 75, 82, 85, 89, 96, 109–111, 128, 146, 147, 153, 156, 157, 167, 169, 172, 184, 186, 187, 189, 190, 195–197, 199–205, 209, 213, 218, 219, 224, 227.
Āgamika 200, 203.
Āgāsapaya 83.
Ācāra 6, 11, 27, 28, 31, 46, 54, 103, 114, 153, 158, 159, 181.
Ācāradinakara 89, 104.
Ācāraprābhṛta 92.
Ācāravṛtti 114, 179.
Ācārāṅga(sūtra) 113, 118, 149, 157, 184.
Ājāiṭṭhaṇa 107.
Āṇanda 105, 106.
Āturapratyākhyāna 50.
Ātmaprabodha 100.
Ātmapravāda 87.
Ādānapada 148.
Ādidevastava 186.
Ādipurāṇa 74.
Ānantarya (sins) 197.
Āptamīmāṁsā 57.
Ābhiṇibohiā-nāṇa 20.
Āmalata 105.
Āmnāya 209.
Āyatiṭṭhāṇa 143.
Āyappavāya 85, 88.
Āyariyabhāsita 107.
Āyariyavippaḍivatti 107.
Āyavibhatti 26, 104.
Āyavisohi 24–26, 56, 103.
Āyāgapaṭa 71.
Āyāṇijja 120.
Āyāra 6, 7, 11, 15, 16, 21, 27–31, 33, 35, 40, 46, 64, 65, 75, 77–79, 89, 91, 107, 108, 111–115, 117–120, 123, 143, 144, 149, 150, 153, 155–157, 169, 173, 178, 180, 181, 185, 187, 188, 190, 195–97, 199, 200, 202–204, 207, 212, 214–216, 221–223, 228, 230.
Āyāragga 112, 149, 169.
Āyāraṅga(sutta) 39, 112, 113, 120, 156, 213.
Āyāracūliyā 21.
Āyāraṭīkā 197.
Āyāraṇ(n)ijjutti 6, 40, 54, 77, 78, 89, 112, 113, 115, 116, 157, 180, 181, 184, 230.
Āyāradasā 37, 54, 55, 107, 128.
Āyārapak(g)appa 54, 81, 89, 112, 113, 149.
Āyārapāhuḍa 92, 93.
Āyārappaṇihi 155.
Āyurveda 227.
Ārādhanāpatākā 50.
Ārāhaṇānijjutti 183.
Ārāhaṇāpaḍāyā 50–52.
Āravaṇā 149.
Archaelogical Survey of India 144.
Ārcika 123.
Ārdraka 121.
Āryabhaṭīya 227.
Āryā 118.
Ārhata āgamonuṁ avalokana yāne Tattvarasikacandrikā 22, 26, 63, 97.
Ārhatadarśanadīpikā 215, 218.
Ālāvaga 65, 86, 87.
Āvalikā 99.
Āvaśyaka 23, 43, 50, 158, 159, 165, 184.
Āvaśyakaniryukti 22, 159, 181.
Āvaśyakavivaraṇa 196.
Āvaśyakaviśeṣavivaraṇa 196.
Āvassag(y)a 3–6, 15–17, 22, 23, 38, 42–45, 47, 48, 57, 59, 61, 70, 72, 102, 110, 128, 146, 148, 149, 156, 158, 161, 169, 173–176, 178, 181, 183, 187, 188, 190, 192, 196, 198–201, 211.
Āvassag(y)anijjutti 3, 11, 15, 36–38, 41, 43, 44, 78, 88, 144, 145, 152, 158, 159, 172–177, 179, 181, 183–185, 204, 227.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Āvassayacuṇṇi 73, 78, 82, 96, 100, 130, 138, 182, 192, 193.
Āvassayabhāsa 11, 12, 161.
Āvassayamūlabhāsa 12.
Āvassaya-vāritta 23, 48.
Āsāyaṇā 107, 143.
Āsīvisabhāvaṇā 25, 56, 81, 101.
Āsrava 107, 135.
Āhattahiā 120.
Āhavvāya 84.
Āhāra 140.
Āhāraparinnā 121.
Itivuttaka 28.
Itihāsa 129.
Itihāsa-saṁvāda 222.
Interpretation of Jaina Ethics, An 217.
Introduction to Comparative Philology, An 208.
Indian ocean 67.
Indian Historical Quarterly, The 179, 181.
India 1, 2, 59, 123, 171.
Indische Studien 41, 78, 125.
Indravajrā 123.
Indriya 140.
Indriya-pratyakṣa 219.
Über ein Fragment der Bhagavatī 137.
Über die vom Sterbefasten handelden älteren Paiṇṇa der Jaina-Kanons 166.
Über den stand der Indischen Philosophie zur Zeit Mahāvīras und Buddhas 123.
Übersicht über die Āvaśyaka-Literatur 158, 179, 187, 188.
Iriyā 112, 113.
Iriyāvahiyasutta 70.
Ilādevī 108.
Evolution of Gujarati verse 118, 121, 123.
Isidāsa 106, 107.
Isibhāsi(y)a 12, 15, 16, 24, 25, 53, 55, 58, 107, 109, 125, 169, 182, 187, 200.
Isibhāsiyasaṅgahaṇ(ṇ)ī 169, 205.
Isimaṇḍalapayaraṇa 184.
Īryāpathikī kriyā 70,
Ukkāliya 23, 27, 41, 81, 104.
Ukkāliyasuya 12, 19, 24, 26, 27, 35, 104, 154.
Ukkhittaṇāā 130.
Uggahapaḍimā 112.
Ugghāya 149.
Uccārapāsavaṇa 113.
Ucchvāsa 140.
Ujjama-sutta 215.
Ujjusut(y)a 84.
Ujjhiyaā 105.
Uṭṭhāṇapariyāṇiya 104.
Uṭṭhāṇapariyāvaṇiya 56, 81, 101, 104.
Uṭṭhāṇasu(y)a 24, 25, 56, 100, 104, 109.
Utkālika 57.
*Uttama-puruṣa 77.
Uttara 153, 222.
Uttaracūliyā 192.
Uttarajjha 15, 181.
Uttarajjhayaṇa 16, 17, 24, 25, 38, 43-45, 47, 48, 53-56, 89, 120, 126, 148-150, 153, 156, 169, 187, 189, 190, 197-199, 203, 204, 213, 218, 222-226.
Uttarajjhayaṇacuṇṇi 193, 194.
Uttarajjhayaṇanijjutti 148, 153, 173, 179, 181, 182, 184, 193.
Uttarajjhayaṇasutta 221.
Uttarajjhā(y)ā 43, 54, 153.
Uttarapurāṇa 57, 74.
Uttarādhyayana(sūtra) 11, 42, 43, 57, 88, 169, 181, 182, 184, 215.
Utsargasūtra 215.
Utsargāpavādasūtra 215.
Utsargotsargasūtra 215.
Utsarpiṇī 2, 70, 126.
Udaga 130.
Udātta 209, 210.
Udāttādisvaraviśeṣa 209.
Udāna 28.
Udumbara 105.
Uddeśa(ka) 127, 176.
Uddesa(ga) 111, 117, 119, 124, 127, 141, 142, 147-149, 155, 168, 184, 222.
Uddesaṇakāla 99.
Upakrama 9, 98, 161.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Upajāti 123.
Upadeśaratnākara 220.
Upaniṣad 52, 216.
Upapāta 100.
Upapātika 30.
Upapātodvartanā 140.
Upamitibhavaprapañcākathā 179.
Upayoga 140.
Upaśamaśreṇi 176.
Upasarga 79.
Upākhyāyikā 79.
Upāṅga 17, 18, 29, 31, 33, 34, 129, 161, 180.
Upāsakadaśā 54, 103, 132.
Upāsakādhyayana(daśā) 28, 54.
Uppāya 85.
Umbara 105.
Uvaësapaya 96.
Uvagghāyanijjutti 174–177, 184, 185.
Uvaṅga 27, 29–35, 54, 55, 58, 63, 80, 103, 137–141, 198, 199, 205.
Uvajjātavippaḍivatti 107.
Uvamā 107.
Uvayāli 106, 107.
Uvavāï(y)a 24, 26, 31, 54.
Uvavāta 108.
Uvasagga 175, 177.
Uvasaggapariṇṇā 120.
Uvasaggaharathotta 88.
Uvasampajjaṇaseṇiāpari° 83.
Uvasampajjṇāvatta 84.
Uvahāṇasuya 77, 112, 118.
Uvāïya 29.
Uvāsaga 132.
Uvāsagadasā(o) 6, 28–30, 55, 65, 105, 114, 129, 132, 228.
Uvāsagapaḍimā 107, 143.
Usuārijja 148.
Ussaggiya 215.
Ṛkkhāyuveda 51.
Ṛgveda 29, 162, 208.
Ṛṣibhāṣita 16, 125, 169, 184.
Ṛṣimaṇḍalaprakaraṇa 90.
Ekasthānaka 124.
Egaguṇa 83.
Egaṭṭha 179, 185, 210.
Egaṭṭhiyapaya 83.
Education in Ancient India 60.
A detailed Exposition of the Nāgarī, Gujarātī and Moḍī Scripts 228.
Ethico-religious classifications of Mankind as embodied in the Jaina Canon 230.
Annals of B. O. R. I., The 51.
Epigraphica Indica 144.
Epitome of Jainism, An 52.
Apocrypha 13.
Arabian Sea 67.
Evambhūü 84.
Esaṇā 88.
Astronomie, Astrology und Mathematik 140.
Aitariya Brāhmaṇa 156.
Airāvata 2, 70, 126.
Occupations and Professions as seen in the Rāmāyaṇa 224.
Ogāḍhaseṇiā-pari° 83.
Ogāḍhāvatta 84.
Ogāhaṇaseṇiā-pari° 83.
Oghaniryukti 43, 159, 177.
On the literature of the Shvetambars of Gujarat 223.
Orabbha 148.
Orientalistische Literatur-Zeitung 36, 51.
Ovaï 30.
Ovavāiya 19, 30, 31, 34, 54, 65, 102, 128, 137, 145, 164, 198, 200, 230.
Ovāiya 24.
Ohanijjutti 14, 16, 17, 37, 39, 41, 43–45, 47, 48, 56, 74, 88, 91, 147, 148, 152, 159, 166, 173, 183, 187, 190, 193, 195, 198, 230, 231.
Ohanijjutticuṇṇi 192.
Ohanijjuttibhāsa 159, 190.
Aupacchandasika 128.
Aupapātika 31, 33, 137.
Kankali Tila 144.
Kaṇagasattari 14, 163.
Kaṇhā 106.
Kathānuyoga 12, 136.
Kanakasaptati 163.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kappa 15–17, 24, 25, 37–41, 52, 55, 60, 81, 89, 92, 93, 102, 107, 126, 142, 147, 149, 172, 173, 179, 183, 187, 189, 190, 194, 198, 199, 203.
Kappacuṇṇi 188.
Kappanijjutti 79, 82, 173, 182, 183, 210, 211, 212, 214, 219, 229.
Kappapāhuḍa 92, 93.
Kappabhāsa 160, 173, 182, 188.
Kappavaḍiṁsa(i)yā 24, 25, 29, 30, 33, 34, 141.
Kappasuya 24.
Kappāsiü 14, 163.
Kappiā 24, 30.
Kappiya(ā) 25, 30, 54, 141.
Kappiyākappiya 24, 26, 102.
Kampilla 105.
Kamma 107.
Kammatthaya 195.
Kammapayaḍi 88, 91, 92, 148, 160, 195.
Kammapayaḍipāhuḍa 92, 93, 218.
Kammapāhuḍa 92.
Kammappavāya 47, 85, 87–89.
Kammavivāga 5, 8, 20, 86, 89, 91.
Kammavivāgadasā 55, 105.
Karaṇa 180.
Karaṇasattarī 159.
Karaṇānuyoga 57.
Karman 86, 120, 121, 143, 218.
Karmaprakṛti 88, 89.
Karmaprakṛtiprābhṛta 88, 92.
Karmabandha 140.
Karmavedaka 140.
Karmaśataka 136, 221.
Karmāragrāma 177.
*Kalikālasarvajña 3, 188, 198.
Kalinga 170.
Kalpa 39, 40, 88, 177.
Kalpa (Vaidika) 27.
Kalpaka 184.
Kalpakiraṇāvali 4, 146.
Kalpakaumudī 146.
Kalpajñānadīpikā 146.
Kalpadīpikā 146.
Kalpadrumakalikā 5, 146, 229.
Kalpapradīpikā 146.
Kalpaprābhṛta 92, 93.
Kalpabālāvabodha 146.
Kalpamañjarī 146.
Kalpalatā 146, 158.
Kalpavyavahāra 57, 147.
Kalpasubodhikā 143, 146, 147.
Kalpasūtra 36, 39, 55.
Kalpasūtradīpikā 146.
Kalpasūtraniryuktyavacūri 146.
Kalpasūtravṛtti 146.
Kalpasūtrāvacūri 146.
Kalpāntaravācya 146.
Kalpāvataṁsikā 30.
Kalpāśika 163.
Kavayaddāra 50, 51.
Kaṣāya 140.
Kaṣāyaprābhṛta 89.
Kasiṇā 108.
Kahāvalī 62, 92, 94, 95.
Kāüssagga 23, 158, 174, 183.
Kāüssagganijjutti 179.
Kātita 106.
Kāpila 47.
Kāpiliya 169, 188.
Kāphī 204.
Kāma 225.
Kāmadeva 105.
Kāmaśāstra 162, 163.
Kāyasthiti 140.
Kāraga-sutta 215.
Kārpāsika 163.
Kāla 53.
Kālakasaṁhitā 193.
Kālacakra 2, 70.
Kālajñāna 200.
Kālavelā 24.
Kālānuyoga 96.
Kālik(y)a 12, 23, 27, 41, 57, 81, 154, 155.
Kāliyasuya 12, 19, 24–27, 35, 40, 60, 61, 99, 104, 154, 155.
Kālī 106.
Kāvilijja 148.
Kāvyarasa 161, 213.
Kāsava 106.
Kiṅkama 105, 106.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Kitti 108.
Kincidgaṇadharavāda 188.
Kiriāvisāla 85
Kiriyāṭhāṇa 121.
Kuṇālā 147.
Kuṇḍakolita 105.
Kutūhala(khaṇḍa) 127.
Kumārapālaprabandha 95.
Kumāravālapaḍiboha 181, 228.
Kumma 130.
Kummāputtacariya 131.
Kula 193.
*Kulakara 11, 126, 176.
Kuvalayamālā 179, 196.
*Kuśila 142.
Kusalānubandhi ajjhayaṇa 55, 56, 165.
Kusīlaparibhāsaā 120.
Kuheḍaga 195.
Kūvaā 106.
Keubhūā 83, 84.
Catalogue of Mss. at Jeselmere 195, 196, 200, 201.
Catalogue of Mss. of the Limbdī Bhaṇḍāra 203.
Kenopaniṣad 134.
Kelāsa 106.
Kevalajñāna 191.
Kevaladarśana 191.
*Kevalin 15, 74.
Keśi-Gautamīya 47.
Kesi-Goyamijja 148.
Koṭākoṭi 126.
Concord in Prakrit Syntax 212.
Concise Oxford Dictionary of Current English, The 13.
Komalapasiṇa 107.
Kosambī 147.
Kriyā 140.
Kriyā-naya 201.
Kriyāvāda 123.
Kriyā-sthāna 178.
Kṣaṇa 146.
Kṣapakaśreṇī 176.
Kṣullakanairgrantha 182.
Kṣullikācārakathā 182.
Ksetra 2, 70, 86, 101, 225.
Khaṇḍa 127
Khaṇḍasiddhanta 230.
*Khamāsamaṇa 192, 193. See p. 236.
Khaluṅkijja 148.
Khāmaṇāsutta 58.
Khuḍḍiyāyārakahā 155.
Khuḍḍi(y)āvimāṇapavibhatti 24, 25, 55, 56, 81, 99.
Khettasamāsa 40.
Khema 106.
Khoḍamuha 14, 162.
Khomagapasiṇa 107.
Gaā 106.
Gaccha 168.
Gacchāc(y)āra 50-52, 142, 168, 199.
Gajja 179.
Gaṇa 6, 80, 144, 193.
*Gaṇadhara 3-6, 11, 14, 15, 21, 22, 38, 40, 41, 70, 80, 82, 93, 120, 144, 151, 158, 160, 171, 172, 176, 177.
Gaṇadhara-nāmakarman 4.
Gaṇavijjā 49.
Gaṇahara 175, 177.
Gaṇaharavāya 175.
Gaṇita(khaṇḍa) 127.
Gaṇitatilaka 77, 225, 227.
Gaṇitapāda 227.
Gaṇitānuyoga 11, 53.
Gaṇipiṭ(ḍ)ak(g)a 21, 221.
Gaṇivijjā 24, 26, 48, 50, 56, 167.
Gaṇividyā 50, 51.
Gaṇisampad(y)ā 107, 143.
Gaṇḍikānuyoga 193.
Gaṇḍiyā 10.
Gaṇḍiyāṇu(y)oga 10.
Gata-pratyāgata-sūtra 216.
Gantha 120, 211.
Gandhadevī 108.
*Gandhahastin 33.
Gandhārī 106.
Gama 77, 117.
Gamika 83.
Gambhīra 105.
Garuḍovavāya 24.
Garulovaāā 81.
Garulovavāt(y)a 25, 55, 56, 100.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Gahiyapaya 179.
Gāthā 28, 41, 109, 120, 124, 166, 173, 183, 186, 187, 189, 196.
Gāthānuṣṭubhī saṁsṛṣṭi 118, 124.
Gāthāṣoḍaśaka 119.
Gāthāsahasrī 32.
Gathic 68.
Gāthika khaṇḍa 124.
Gāhā 119, 121, 149, 187, 190.
Gāhājuyalathui 227.
Gāhāsoḍasaya 119.
Gītamārga 224.
Gītārtha 66, 168.
Guṇana 90, 100.
Guṇasthāna 178.
Gutta 108.
Guruvandaṇabhāsa 196.
Gūḍhadanta 107.
Gṛhyasūtra 213.
Ganges 223.
Geya 179.
Geyya 27.
Geschichte der Welt-literatur 206.
Gotama-Kesīya 47.
Gottāsa 105.
Gopatha Brāhmaṇa 208.
Goyama-Kesijja 148.
Gorī 106.
Gole 115.
Govindanijjutti 109, 192.
Gautamāṣṭaka 5.
Grāma 124, 224.
Grammatical topics in Pāïya 212.
Ghoḍag(y)amuha 14, 162.
Ghosa 209.
Caüpannamahāpurisacariya 77, 197.
Caüraṅga 195.
Caüraṅgijja 148.
Caüvīsatthava 23, 158, 174, 183.
Caüvvīsatthavanijjutti 178.
Caüsaraṇa 49-51, 55, 165, 199, 203.
Caturviṁśatiprabandha 88, 227.
Caturviṁśatistava 57.
Caturviṁśatistavana 186.
Catuḥśaraṇa 50, 51.
Catuṣkanayika 85.
Canda 108.
Candagavejjha 166.
Candagavijjha 167.
Canda(ā)paṇ(ṇ)ṇ(ṇ)atti 24, 25, 29, 30, 32, 84, 56, 80, 140, 141.
Candāvijaya 49.
Candāvijjhaya 24, 26, 48, 50, 167.
Candimā 107, 130.
Candraprajñapti 30, 31, 57, 80.
Candra(ā)vedhyaka 50, 51.
Campā 65, 127, 138.
Caraṇa 148.
Caraṇakaraṇāṇuyoga 11, 27, 53, 114, 154.
Caraṇavihi 24-26, 56, 104.
Caraṇasattari 159.
Caraṇāṇuyoga 57.
Carama 140.
*Caramasayalasuyanāṇi 172.
Cāujjāma dhamma 151.
Cāraṇabhāvaṇā 25, 56, 81, 102.
Cāritra(khaṇḍa) 127.
Cittantaraganḍit(y)ā 10, 96.
Cittasamāhiṭṭhāṇa 107, 143.
Citta-Sambhūi 148.
Citramayajagat 228.
Cuācuäseṇiapari° 83.
Cuācuāvatta 84.
Cuṇṇa 179.
Cuṇṇi 4-7, 10, 21, 22, 24, 27, 35, 38, 41, 48, 53, 60, 61, 72, 80, 81, 83, 85, 86, 147, 154, 175, 186, 188-195, 197, 200, 209, 224, 229, 230.
Cullakappasuya 24, 26, 56, 102.
Cullavatthu 96.
Cullasatata 105.
Cūḍāmaṇi 95.
Cūrṇikāra 10, 74.
Cūlaṇīpitā 105.
Cūlā 46-48, 78, 79, 108, 112-116, 156, 157, 180.
Cūlikā 112.
Cūlikāsūtra 52.
Cūliyā 7, 8, 15, 17, 45, 55, 76, 83, 96, 99, 103, 142.
Cūliyāsutta 27, 52, 58, 161, 178.
Ceïyavandaṇabhāsa 196.
Ceïyavandaṇamahābhāsa 196.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Chajjīvaṇiyā 155.
Chanda 27.
Chāyā 200.
Chāyānuvāda 214.
Chinnacchedanaya 85.
Chinnacchedanayika 85.
Cheda 36.
Chedasu(ū)tt(r)a 16, 18, 35, 36, 39.
Cheyasutta 27, 34–37, 39–42, 58, 80, 102, 141–143, 147, 221.
Cheyasuya 36.
Jaïjīyakappa 58.
*Jaṅghācāraṇa 102.
Jajuvveda 164.
Jannaïjja 148.
Jamāli 105.
Jamiä 120.
Jambavaï 106.
Jambuddīva 2.
Jambuddīvapaṇṇatti 11, 24, 25, 29, 30, 32, 34, 53, 56, 128, 140, 190, 199, 200, 203, 226–228.
Jambūdvīpa 101.
Jambū(dvīpa)prajñapti 22, 30, 57.
Jambūsāmiäjjhayaṇa 51, 56, 168.
Jayatihuyaṇathotta 198.
Jayapāhuḍa 92.
Jayaprābhṛta 95.
Journal of the German Oriental Society 122.
Javiya 73.
Jāgatānuṣṭubhī saṁsṛṣṭi 124.
Jātaka 28, 221, 222.
Jāti 129.
Jāli 106, 107.
Jāva 65, 137.
*Jina 47.
Jinacaritra 143.
Jinacariya 143, 144.
Jītakalpa(sūtra) 37, 148, 189.
Jīyakappa 16, 36–38, 40, 41, 58, 147, 187, 190, 194, 195, 200, 230.
Jīyakappacuṇṇi 36, 189, 194, 199.
Jīyakappabhāsa 189, 190.
Jīvarāsī 126.
Jīvasaṁsattanijjutti 170.
Jīvasamāsa 89, 168.
Jīvājīvavibhatti 148.
Jīvājīvābhigama 32, 54, 128, 139, 195, 196, 220, 226–228.
Jīvābhigama(ādhyayana) 23, 24, 26, 29, 30, 32, 34, 35, 51, 54, 190.
Jaina Antiquary 144–146.
Jaina Commentaries, The 191.
Jaina-ganiṭasūtrodāharaṇa 227.
Jaina granthāvalī 37, 49, 51, 80, 81, 167, 189, 192, 194, 195, 198, 199.
Jainatattvaprakāśa 43.
Jaina treatise on Arithmetic, A lost 227.
Jainadharmavarastotra 37, 43, 49.
Jaina Prākṛta 122.
Jaina Māhāraṣṭrī 120.
Jaina Manuscripts, The 228.
Jaina yuga 37, 93, 95.
Jainasatyaprakāśa 74, 128, 165, 174, 226.
Jainasāhityano saṅkṣipta itihāsa 147, 172.
Jaina sāhitya saṁśodhaka 188.
Jains in the History of Indian Literature, The 206, 221–223.
Jaina System of Education, The 59, 65, 80, 82, 97, 229.
Jaina School of Mathematics, The 226.
Jaina Stūpa and other Antiquities of Mathurā 68.
Jainahitaiṣī 52.
Joisakaraṇḍag(y)a 51, 62, 64, 91, 168, 198, 200, 226.
Jogasaṅgaha 174, 176, 178, 205.
Jogasaṅgahanijjutti 176.
Joṇipāhuḍa 37, 51, 52, 55, 92–94, 191, 194.
Joṇivihāṇa 51, 55.
Jñāta 219.
Jñāta(ā)dharmakahā 28, 54, 131.
Jñātṛdharmakathā 54.
Jñāna-naya 201.
Jñānapariṇāma 140.
Jyoti 95.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Jyotiṣa 225.
Jyotiṣāṅga 152.
Jyotis 27, 94.
Jhāṇavibhatti 24–26, 56, 103.
Jhāṇasaya 40, 174, 176, 178.
Zoroastrianism 68.
Ṭabaṅka 203.
Ṭabā 203.
Ṭabārtha 203.
Ṭabu 203.
Ṭabo 203,
Ṭabbo 203.
Times of India 68.
Testament 13.
Ṭṭhimiṇabhāvaṇā 81.
Ṭhāṇa(ṅga) 6, 21, 28–30, 54, 55, 81, 82, 92, 100, 103–108, 124, 127, 135, 141, 145, 170, 196, 198, 212, 213, 215, 218, 221, 223–227, 229.
Ṭhāṇā 113.
Ṭhimiṇabhāvaṇā 56, 81, 104.
Descriptive Catalogue of Jaina Manuscripts 16, 32, 38, 40, 41, 45, 50–52, 54, 56, 80, 89, 92, 94, 145–148, 158, 162, 163, 168, 169, 172, 173, 175, 177, 189, 190, 191, 194–197, 199, 200, 203.
Descriptive Catalogue of the Mss. in the Library of the India Office 203.
Descriptive Catalogue of Mss. in the Jaina Bhandars at Pattan, A 201, 202.
Descriptive Catalogue of Saṅskṛta and Prākṛta Mss. in the Library of the B. B. R. A. Society 201.
Nandiṇipiyā 105.
Nami 105.
Namipavvajjā 148.
Nāyādhammakahā 131.
Ṇālandajja 121.
Ṇisīha 37, 40, 93.
Taccāvāta 54.
Taṇḍulavicāraṇā 50, 55, 166.
Taṇḍulavaitālika 51, 55.
Tattvanirṇayaprāsāda 89.
Tattvarasikacandrikā 26, 63, 97.
Tattvasaṅgraha 163, 164.
Tattvārtha(ādhigamaśāstra) 4, 7, 20, 28, 33, 34, 39, 57, 91, 92, 114, 120, 123–125, 127, 131, 132, 134–137, 144, 147, 152, 169, 197, 203, 209.
Tattvārtharājavārtika 8, 24, 54, 57, 85.
Tattvārthasāradīpikā 57.
Taddhit(y)a 212.
Tantra 82.
Tandulaviyāliya 49.
Tandulaveālia 24.
Tandulaveyāliya(ya) 26, 48, 50, 56, 166, 192, 199.
Tandulavaicārika 50, 55.
Taraṅgavaī 188, 191, 193.
Tava 148.
Tiguṇa 83.
Titthogāli(ya) 50, 51, 72, 73, 110, 168.
Tiryac 101.
Tilakamañjarī 5.
Tivaī 5.
Tīrtha 13, 22, 48, 49, 110, 169.
Tīrthaṅkara 2, 3, 11, 13, 22, 49, 70, 77, 110, 126, 130, 144, 158, 160, 165, 176, 177, 215, 225.
Tīrthodgālika 50.
Tumba 130.
Tuvaṭṭakasutta 118.
Tejoleṣyā 102.
Tetali 106.
Teyaganisagga 25, 81, 102.
Teyali 130.
Taittirīya āraṇayaka 208.
Taittirīyasaṁhitā 208.
Trasa 228.
Trikanayika 85.
Tripadī 5, 6, 22, 23.
Tripiṭaka 221.
Trivarṇācāra 57.
Trividhā 139.
Triṣaṣṭiśalākāpuruṣacaritra 3, 5, 7, 11, 19, 48, 59, 102.
Triṣṭubh 128, 157.
Triṣṭubhī 123.
Tristhānaka 124.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Z. D. M. G. (Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gezellschaft) 119, 141, 198, 221, 222.
Thimiä 105.
Thīpariṇṇā 118, 120, 124.
Therāgāthā 115.
Therāvalī 71, 73, 143-145, 160, 174, 175, 193.
Daḍhanemi 106.
Datta 108.
Darśanatā 140
Daviyānuyoga 53.
Davvānuöga 53.
Daśavidhasāmācārī 152.
Daśavidhā 139, 184.
Daśavaikālika 43, 46, 57, 153, 154, 157, 194.
Daśavaikālikaniryukti 180.
Daśavaikālikasūtra: A study, The 216.
Daśasthānaka 124.
Daśā(śrutaskandha) 37, 38, 40, 184.
Dasakālik(y)a 15, 38, 55, 148, 154, 181.
Dasannabhadda 106.
Dasaveyāliya 4, 15-17, 24, 26, 27, 43-48, 53, 54, 56, 60, 88, 110, 115, 116, 153-157, 179, 185, 187-190, 196, 204, 210, 212, 216, 227-230.
Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi 53, 88, 154, 167, 193, 194.
Dasaveyāliyanijjutti 44, 46, 56, 88, 109, 116, 155, 156, 166, 172, 173, 179-182, 184, 185, 211, 218-220, 225.
Dasaveyāliyasutta 36, 42, 43, 178, 182.
Dasaveyāliya sutta, The 155.
Dasā 15, 16, 24, 25, 37-40, 54, 55, 81, 82, 105, 108, 134, 143, 147, 149, 172.
Dasāramaṇḍalevitā 107.
Dasāsut(y)a 40, 54, 160.
Dasāsuyakkhandha 15-17, 54, 89, 143, 182, 187, 190.
Dasāsuyakkhandhacuṇṇi 194.
Dasāsuyakkhandhanijjutti 172, 173, 182.
Dāṇadīpikā 146.
Dāruä 106.
Dāvaddava 130.
Diṭṭhivāä 28, 77.
Diṭṭhivāt(d)a 54, 72, 82, 83, 99.
Diṭṭhivāya 6-9, 11, 12, 21, 53, 54, 61, 62, 71, 72, 74, 75, 77, 81-83, 89, 96, 97, 99, 156.
Diṭṭhi(ī)visabhāvaṇā 25, 56, 81, 101,
Die alten Berichte von den Schismen der Jaina 125.
Dīkṣāparyāya 36, 99.
Dīghanikāya 221.
Dīpikā 200.
Die Literaturen Indiens und Ostasiens 206.
Die Literatur der alten Indien 206.
Dīvasamuddovavatti 108.
Dīvasāgarapaṇṇatti 24, 25, 34, 56, 192.
Dīvasāgarapaṇṇattisaṅgahaṇi 51.
Dīvasāgarapannatti 30.
Dīhadanta 107.
Dīhadasā 55, 108.
Dīhaseṇa 107.
Dukkhamapāhuḍa 92, 94.
Duguṇa 83.
Duppaḍiggaha 84.
Duma 107.
Dumapattaya 148.
Dumapupphiyā 155.
Dumaseṇa 107.
Dummuha 106.
Duyāvatta 84.
Durgapadanirukta 146.
Duvālasaṅga 21, 29, 149.
Duhavivāga 136.
Dṛṣṭip(v)āt(d)a 4, 7, 28, 31, 47, 54, 57, 75-77, 83, 97.
Dṛṣṭiviṣasarpa 101, 228.
Dṛṣṭisādharmyavat 219.
Deva(khaṇḍa) 127.
Devajasa 106.
Devadattā 105.
Devaddhi 107.
Devindattha(y)ā 24, 26, 50, 56, 167.
Devindapariyāvaṇa 104.
Devindovavā(y)a 24, 25, 56, 81, 100, 104.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Devendranarakendraprakaraṇa 33.
Devendrasūtra 49.
Devendrastava 50, 51.
Deśīnāmamālā 188.
Deśībhāṣā 208.
Deśya 210.
Dogiddhidasā 55, 82, 108.
Dravida 170.
Dravya 4, 84-86, 104, 211.
Dravyasaṁlekhanā 104.
Dravyānuyoga 11, 12, 53, 57, 125.
Drumapuṣpikā 47.
Dvādaśāṅga 21.
Dvādaśāṅgī 3-7, 12, 13, 21, 47, 70, 80, 110, 171.
Dvāra 85, 86.
Dvārāvatī 134.
Dvāsaptatiprabandha 191.
Dvividhā 189.
Dvisahasrayugapradhānasvarūpa 92.
Dvisthānaka 124.
Dvīpābdhiprajñapti 51.
Dhaṇṇa 106, 107.
Dhamma 120.
Dhammakahā 130.
Dhammakahāṇuoga 53.
Dhammaṭṭhakāma 155.
Dhammapada(m) 118, 119, 218, 223.
Dhammapannatti 88, 155.
Dhammāṇuyoga 53.
Dhammāvāta 54.
Dharaṇa 106.
Dharaṇovavā(y)a 24, 25, 56, 81, 100.
Dharma 17
Dharma 143, 155, 156, 166, 178.
Dharmakathānuyoga 11, 12, 53, 169.
Dharmaśāstra 29.
Dharmasaṁhitā 192.
Dharmasaṅgraha 197.
Dharmasūtra 213.
Dharmasūnu 32.
Dharmāmṛta 179.
Dharmāstikāya 192.
Dhavalā 230.
Dhāuya 212.
Dhiīdhara 106.
Dhiti 108.
Dhuya 77, 112, 113, 116.
Dhyāna 72, 90, 103.
Nandamaï 106.
Nandasaṁhitā 188.
Nandaseṇiyā 106.
Nandā 106.
Nandāvatta 83, 84.
Nandiüjjhayaṇa 56.
Nandiseṇa 105.
Nandī 6, 7, 9, 10, 14, 18, 20-29, 33, 35, 37, 38, 48, 49, 52, 61, 70, 76-79, 81, 83-86, 90, 96, 97, 105, 110-112, 117, 126-129, 135, 141, 145, 153, 154, 159-165, 175, 176, 178, 190, 192, 196, 198, 200, 203, 211, 217. 224, 225, 227, 229, 230.
Nandīcuṇṇi 77, 83, 84, 96, 99-101, 160, 162, 191, 192.
Nandīdurgapadavyākhyā 199.
Nandīphala 130.
Nandīviśeṣavivaraṇa 196.
Nanduttara 106.
Namipav(v)ajjā 148, 215.
Namokkāranijjutti 175, 178.
Namo'rhat 90.
Namo'stu Vardhamānāya 90.
Naya 9, 84, 85, 124, 161, 177, 219.
Nayacakra 89, 197.
Naraka 127.
Narakāvalikāśrutaskandha 55.
Narayavibhatti 120.
Naravāhaṇadattakahā 191.
Navāṅgīvṛttikāra 31.
Nāä 219.
Nāga 104.
Nāgapariyāvaṇiā(ya) 24, 25, 56, 81, 101.
Nāgasuhuma 14, 163.
Nāgasūkṣma 163.
Nāgārjunī 61.
*Nāgārjunīya 64.
Nāṭyavidhi 224.
Nāṭyavidhiprābhṛta 92.
Nāṭyaśāstra 212.
Nāḍayavihipāhuḍa 92.
Nāṇappavāya 85, 89.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Nāman 161, 211.
Nāyaā 153.
Nāyakumāracariya 132.
Nāyasuya 129.
Nāyā 29, 130, 149.
Nāyādhammakahā(o) 6, 28, 80, 79, 115, 129, 149, 164, 178, 213.
Nāraka(khaṇḍa) 127.
Nālandā 121.
Nikkheva 179, 180, 182, 185, 210, 211.
Nikkheva-nijjutti 185.
Nikṣepa 9, 79, 161, 176, 182, 218.
Nigama 52.
Nigoda 193.
Nighaṇṭu 128, 129, 211.
Nijjutti 3, 4, 15, 16, 38, 39, 41, 44, 46, 47, 53, 55, 58, 60, 78–80, 109, 112, 115, 154, 169, 172, 173, 175, 176, 178–187, 195, 200, 210, 211.
Nijjuhaṇā 87, 88.
Niṇhavavattavva 175.
Nimitta 94, 193.
Nimittajñāna 94.
Nimittapāhuḍa 92, 94, 95.
Nimittaprayoga 94.
Nimittaprābhṛta 92.
Nimittaśāstra 95, 167.
Niyaṇṭhi 148.
Niyaṇṭhijja 148.
Nirayavibhatti 47.
Nirayavisohi 26, 56, 104.
Nirayāvali(k)ā 30, 32, 103, 141.
Nirayāvaliyā 24, 25, 29, 30, 33, 34, 54.
Nirayāvali(yā)suyakkhandha 29, 30, 33–35, 55, 141, 203.
Niruk(t)ta 27, 179, 185, 211.
Niruttiya 212.
Nirgrantha 121.
Niryukti 121, 122, 172, 181.
Niryūhaṇā 87.
Nirvartanādhikāra 93.
Nirvāṇa 19, 38, 41, 47, 62, 63, 76, 82.
Nirvāṇakalikā 92, 94, 108, 109, 200.
Nivedana 214.
Niśītha 37–39, 78, 189.
Niśīthādhyayana 78.
Niṣadyā 4, 5, 22.
Niṣadyātraya 4.
Nisīha 16, 24, 25, 38–41, 54, 56, 60, 61, 78, 89, 94, 109, 115, 117, 141, 142, 148, 149, 157, 178, 181, 183, 187, 189, 190, 200, 221.
Nisīhacuṇṇi 147, 194.
Nisīhajjhayaṇa 54, 56.
Nisīhanijjutti 188, 184.
Nisīhabhāsa 54, 173, 188, 188, 189.
Nisīhavisehacuṇṇi 191, 199, 229.
Nisīhiyā 113.
Nisejjā 4, 25.
Niseha 141.
Names of Prakrit Languages 207.
Neüṇiya 91.
Nepal 72, 73, 170.
No-indriya-pratyakṣa 219.
Notices of Sanskrit Mss. 58.
Nyāya 29.
Nyāyasaṅgraha 88.
Nyāyasūtra 117, 220.
New Indian Antiquary 76, 157.
New version of the Agaḍadatta Story, A 76.
Paiṭṭhāpāhuḍa 92.
Paiṇṇa(ga) 26, 27, 48–51, 58, 70, 71, 80, 81, 165–167, 168, 199, 213.
Paiṇṇagajjhayaṇa 48.
Paiṇṇajjhayaṇa 48.
Paümacariya 11.
Paümāvaī 106.
Pakkhiyasutta 16, 24–26, 28, 31, 43, 49, 58, 81, 101, 103, 109, 165, 190, 195, 199, 205.
Pag(g)appa 54, 149.
Paccakkhāṇa 23, 55, 89, 113, 130, 158, 174, 183.
Paccakkhāṇa kiriyā 121.
Paccakkhāṇanijjutti 179.
Paccakkhāṇappavāya 85, 88, 89.
Paccakkhāṇabhāsa 196.
Pajjantārāhaṇā 51, 52.
Pajjuṇṇa 106.
Pajjusaṇa 145.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Pajjosaṇākappa 15, 19, 55, 58, 64, 88, 102, 115, 143–147, 164, 182, 193, 204, 205, 221, 228.
Pajjosaṇākappaniijjutti 146.
Pajjosavaṇā 107.
Pañcakappa 16, 37, 38, 40, 41, 80, 81, 89, 173, 182, 183, 187, 189, 190, 192, 195.
Pañcakappacuṇṇi 182, 193.
Pañcakappanijjutti 182, 183.
Pañcakappabhāsa 16, 36, 37, 173, 182, 183, 189.
Pañcakalpa 38, 182.
Pañcatantra 223.
Pañcanamokkāra 174.
Pañcapratikramaṇa 88.
Pañcamaṅgala 80.
Pañcamaṅgalasuyakkhandha 80, 109, 187, 190, 200.
Pañcavatthuga 100, 104.
Pañcasaṅg(r)aha 89.
Pañcākhyānaka 223.
Pañcāsaga 87.
Pañjikā 143, 200.
Paḍikkamaṇa 23, 158, 165, 174, 183.
Paḍikkamaṇanijjutti 178.
Paḍikkamaṇasaṅgahaṇi(ī) 178, 205.
Paḍikkamāsaṅgahaṇi 176.
Paḍiggaha 83.
Paḍilehaṇā 159.
Paḍhamānuöga 8, 96.
Paḍhamāvaravariyā 175.
Paṇāma 84.
Paṇṇatti 54, 55, 65, 103, 168.
Paṇṇavaṇā 17, 24, 26, 30, 32, 34, 56, 103, 127, 128, 139, 188, 192, 196, 198, 217, 218, 225, 227, 228, 230.
Paṇhāvāgaraṇa(dasā) 6, 28, 54, 55, 79, 107, 135, 170, 218, 228.
Paṇhāvāgaraṇāim 6.
Pada 4, 79, 86, 112, 127, 157.
Padatraya(ī) 5, 23.
Padavī 142.
Padānusāriṇilabdhi 80.
Padoṭṭhapaya 83.
Padmapurāṇa 57.
Padmānandamahākāvya 59, 230.
Pannatti 29.
Pannavaṇā 29, 30.
Pabhāvatī 108.
Pamāyaṭhāṇa 148.
Pamāyappamāya 24, 26, 103.
Pamha 108.
Paya 112, 139, 140, 188, 212.
Payattha 212.
Payaṇṇaya 166.
Payaraṇa-sutta 215.
Parakiriyā 113.
Parampara 84.
Pariāvaṇiā 24.
Parikam(r)ma 7, 8, 57, 76, 83, 84, 97, 98.
Pariṇayāpariṇaya 84.
Pariṇāma 140.
Paribhāṣā 95.
Paribhāsa 190. See Cuṇṇi.
Pariśiṣṭa 48.
Pariśiṣṭaparvan 14, 45, 72, 90, 116.
Pariṣahādhyayana 47.
Parīsaha 79, 148.
Parīsahajjhayaṇa 88.
Paryāya 84, 85.
Paryāya 140.
Paryāya 200.
Paryuṣaṇaparvan 193, 194.
Paryuṣaṇākalpaṭippaṇaka 146.
Parvan 222.
Pallata 105.
Pavayaṇasāra 57.
Pavayaṇasāruddhāra 2, 7, 85, 86, 102.
Paścānupūrvī 40, 225.
Paseṇaï 105.
Passāsa 84.
Pahāna 19.
Paheliyā 195.
Pāïyaṭīkā 197.
Pāïyasaddamahaṇṇava 89, 208.
Pāuggaha 113.
Pāesā 112.
Pākṣika(sūtra) 31, 159.
Pāgata 125.
Pāṭ(ḍ)aliputr(t)a 62, 67, 72.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Pāḍhoāmāsapaya 83.
Pāṇāü 85.
Pāṇinisūtra 213.
Pāpa-śruta 178, 229.
Pāyāsisutta 221.
Pāriṭṭhāvaṇiyāṇijjutti 174, 176, 178.
Pāli 118.
Pāvasamanijja 148.
Pāhuḍa 91–95. 140, 168.
Pāhuḍapāhuḍa 91.
Piüseṇakaṇhā 106.
Piṇḍa 88, 113, 159.
Piṇḍaṇijjutti 16, 17, 37, 39, 41, 43–45, 47, 48, 56, 58, 148, 159, 173, 183, 187, 190, 193, 194, 196, 198, 200.
Piṇḍanijjuttibhāsa 190.
Piṇḍaniryukti 43, 44, 49, 159.
Piṇḍavisuddhi 49, 51.
Piṇḍavisohi 52.
Piṇḍesaṇa 112.
Piṇḍesaṇaṇijjutti 56.
Piṇḍesaṇā 44, 88, 155, 181.
Piṇḍesaṇā 78.
Piṇḍesaṇā-ajjhayaṇa 159.
Piṇḍaiṣaṇā 159.
Puṭṭhaseṇiāpari° 83, 84.
Puṭṭhāpuṭṭha 84.
Puṭṭhāvatta 84.
Puṭṭhimā 107.
Puṇḍarīa 121.
Puṇḍarīya 130.
Puṇṇabhadda(ceiya) 65, 137.
Puṇṇabhadda 106.
Punnamāṇibhadda 108.
Puṇṇaseṇa 107.
Pupphacūlā(i)(y)ā 24, 25, 29, 30, 33, 34, 108, 141.
Pupphiā 30.
Pupphiya(ā) 24, 25, 29, 30, 33, 34. 108, 141, 205, 230.
Purāṇa 14, 29, 57, 65, 122, 164, 165
Purātattva 129.
Purisavijjā 148.
Purisaseṇa 106, 107.
Purohita 150.
Puvva 6–8, 14, 15, 17, 70, 73–76, 85–91, 93, 96–99, 140, 154, 156, 157, 168, 170, 174, 208, 218.
Puvvagat(y)a 6–9, 12, 53, 54, 74–77, 83, 85–87, 89, 90, 96, 98, 99.
Puvvaṅga 192.
Puvvānuöga 8.
Puṣkarasārī 229.
Puṣpacūlikā 30.
Puṣpikā 30.
Puṣyadaivata 165.
Pustakārohaṇa 63.
Pussadevaya 161.
Pūyācaüvvisī 174.
Pūraṇa 106.
Pūrva 75, 76.
Pūrvapakṣa 76.
Pūrvavat 219.
Pūrvānupūrvī 40, 225.
Pūrvānuyoga 8, 96.
Peḍhabandha 188.
Peḍhālaputta 107.
Peḍhiyā 174–176.
Peyyalam 65.
Parallel Passages in the Daśavaikālika and the Ācāraṅga 157.
Pellaä 107.
Pahalvi 68.
Poṭṭila 107.
Porisī 103.
Porisīmaṇḍala 24, 26, 103.
Pauruṣī 24, 154.
Prakaraṇa 193.
Prakalpa 149.
Prakīrṇa(ka) 17–19, 31, 48, 57.
Prakīrṇakādhyayana 48.
Prajñapti 103.
Prajñāpanā 30–32, 139.
Pratikramaṇa 57.
Pratipatti 139.
Pratimā 143, 178.
*Prativāsudeva 77.
Pratiṣṭhākalpa 88.
Pratiṣṭhāpaddhati 95.
Pratiṣṭhāprābhṛta 95.
Pratyākhyāna 51, 86.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Prathamānuyoga 8, 57, 77, 96, 198.
Pradhāna 19.
Prabhāvakacaritra 78, 89, 93, 189, 191, 193, 196, 204.
Prameyaratnamañjūṣā 11, 31, 32, 199, 280.
Prayoga 140.
Pravacanasiddhi 175.
Pravicāraṇā 140.
Praśnaprakāśa 200.
Praśnapraśna 135.
Praśnavyākaraṇa 28, 54, 95, 135, 160.
Praśnottara paddhati 217.
Praśnottarasamuccaya 90, 159.
Prasthāna 128.
Prākṛta 16, 27, 30, 125, 166, 191, 203.
Prākrit 122.
Prācīna 29.
Prātiśākhya 213.
Prābhṛta 88, 91.
*Prābhṛtajña 92.
Prāyaścitta 142, 147, 148.
Prohibition of Flesh-eating in Jainism 117.
Phakkikā 200.
Phāla 105.
Forbes Gujarati Sabha Traimāsika 228.
Bandha 107.
Bandhadasā 55, 107.
Bandhasāmitta 203.
Bambhadattacariya 96.
Bambhī 59.
Bala 108.
Bahassaī 105.
Bahubhaṅgiā 84.
Bahula 84.
Bahuvaktavya 140.
Bahusuyapujja 148.
Bahūputtī 108.
Bahūputtīya 108.
Bible 13.
Bāratta 106.
Bārasāsūtra 146.
Bārāvaī 134.
Bāhira 149.
Bāhupasiṇa 107.
Bīiyavaravariyā 175.
Buddhavayaṇa 14, 163.
Buddhasāsaṇa 163.
Buddhi 108.
Bṛhaṭṭipaṇikā 183, 198.
Bṛhatkathā 77.
Bṛhatkalpa(sūtra) 37, 39, 55, 102, 147.
Bṛhatprajñāpanā 31.
Bṛhatsaṅgrahaṇī 40.
Bṛhatsādhukalpasūtra 147.
Bṛhadāturapratyākhyāna 165.
Bṛhadbhāṣya 181.
Bṛhadvācanā 80, 81.
Bezeihungen der Jaina-Literatur zu Andern Literature-Kreisen Indiens 140.
Brahmagupti 178.
Brahmodya 151.
Brāhmī 126.
Bhaktaparijñā 49–51.
Bhagava(t)ī 29, 30, 53, 134.
Bhagavatī-Viāhapaṇṇatti 53.
Bhagāli 105.
Bhaggava 164.
Bhaṅga 77, 83, 220, 225.
Bhaṅgika 160.
Bhaṭṭikāvya 186.
Bhattapariṇṇamaraṇa 166.
Bhattapariṇṇā 50–52, 166.
Bhaddā 106.
Bhadrabāhunimitta 188.
Bhaya-sutta 215.
Bharata 2, 70, 101.
Bhasmaka 136.
Bhāgava 14, 161, 164.
Bhāgavata-purāṇa 141, 165.
Bhādra 145.
Bhārata 162.
Bhāraha 14, 162.
Bhāva 86, 211.
Bhāvakalpa 183.
Bhāvaṇa 112, 113.
Bhāvaṇā 46, 55, 78, 107, 108, 112, 115, 116.
Bhāvappamāṇa 212.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Bhāvasaṁlekhanā 104.
Bhāṣā 140.
Bhāṣā-ṭikā 203.
Bhāṣāśleṣa 186.
Bhāṣya 20, 28, 33, 34, 39, 181, 168, 203, 209.
Bhāṣyakārikā 209.
Bhāṣyatraya 196.
Bhāsa 37, 38, 40, 41, 47, 59, 60, 80, 100, 102–104, 159, 172, 173, 177, 179, 182, 186, 187, 189, 190, 195, 196, 200, 210, 211, 212, 214, 230.
Bhāsajjāyā 112, 113.
Bhāsavijata 54.
Bhikkhupaḍimā 143.
Bhīmāsura 162.
Bhīmāsurākhyāna 162.
Bhīmāsurukk(h)a 14, 162.
Bhūyadinnā 106.
Bhūyavā(t)a 54, 82.
Bhūyāvā(y)a 12, 54, 82.
Bhūrjapatra 192.
Maï-nāṇa 20.
Makāï 54.
Magadha 71, 170.
Magahaseṇā 191.
Magahāä 147.
Magga 120.
Maṅkāti 106.
Majjhimanikāya 27.
Maṇussaseṇiāpari° 83.
Maṇussāvatta 83.
Maṇḍala 103.
Maṇḍalapavesa 24, 26, 103.
Maṇḍukka 130.
Mati 49, 70.
Mati-jñāna 18.
Mathura 63, 64, 144.
Mathura sculpture 144.
Madhyamapada 79.
Manuṣyaloka 101.
Manuṣyaśreṇi 97.
Manussaseṇiāpari° 83.
Mantra 82, 135, 202.
Mandara 108.
Mayāli 106, 107.
Maraṇavibhak(t)tī 24–26, 50, 56.
Maraṇavisohi 26, 56, 104.
Maraṇavihi 51, 55, 56.
Maraṇasamā(d)hi 49–51, 55, 166.
Marudevī 106.
Marudevyadhyayana 19.
Maruyā 106.
Malli 130.
Mahatpañcakalpabhāṣya 38.
Mahapāṇa 90.
Mahamaruya 106.
Mahalliä-Vimāṇapavibhatti 24, 25.
Mahalliyā 56.
Mahalliyā-Vimāṇapavibhatti 55, 56, 81, 99.
Mahākaṇhā 106.
Mahākappa 89.
Mahākappasu(y)a 24, 26, 36, 41, 56, 102, 103.
Mahākarmaprakṛtiprābhṛta 89.
Mahākalpaśruta 103.
Mahākālī 106.
Mahājummasaä 127.
Mahādumaseṇa 107.
Mahānimitta 125.
Mahāniśītha 37.
Mahānisīha(sutta) 16, 24, 25, 38–41, 56, 80, 81, 142, 168, 190, 195, 200, 203, 220.
Mahāpaccakkhāṇa 24–26, 39, 49, 50, 56, 166, 167.
Mahāpaṇṇavaṇā 24, 26, 56, 103.
Mahāparijñā 78.
Mahāpariṇ(u)ṇ(n)ā 77–79, 109, 112, 118, 149.
Mahāpurāṇa 57.
Mahāprajñāpanā 31.
Mahāpratyākhyāna 50.
Mahāprāṇa 72, 90.
Mahābhārata 130, 162, 221, 222.
Mahābhāṣya 117, 165.
Mahāyārakahā 155.
Mahāvideha 225.
Mahāvīrathuï 120,
Mahāvīrabhāsiä 107.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Mahāvīrasvāmino Antima Upadeśa 218.
Mahāvīrasvāmino Ācāradharma 218.
„ Saṃyamadharma 218.
Mahāvyutpatti 148.
Mahāvrata 60, 115, 151, 156, 165.
Mahāsatata 105.
Mahāsīhaseṇa 107.
Mahāsumiṇa 108.
Mahāsumiṇabhāvaṇā 25, 56, 81, 102, 108.
Mahāseṇa 107.
Mahāseṇakaṇhā 106.
Mahuyarīgīya 224.
Mahurā 62.
Māug(y)āpaya 83, 97.
Mātaṅga 105.
Mātaṅgajātaka 222.
Mātikā 98.
Mātuāpada 84.
Mātṛkāpada 4.
Mātṛkāpadatraya 23.
Mātraka 194.
Māthurī 61.
Mānasī 213.
Māyandi 130.
Mārkaṇḍeya-purāṇa 221.
Māsāṇa 84.
Māhaṇa 105.
Micchāsuya 13, 14.
Mithilā 221.
Mithyāśruta 13.
Miyacāriyā 148.
Miyāputta 105.
Mīmāṃsā 29.
Mukkhagaï 148.
Mūrcchana 124, 224.
Mūla 36.
Mūlag(r)antha 148.
Mūlaṭīkā 201.
Mūladattā 106.
Mūlapaḍhamāṇuoga 10.
Mūlabhāṣya 181.
Mūlabhāsa 187.
Mūlasirī 106.
Mūlasutta 27, 41–45, 47, 48, 58, 80, 148, 149, 153, 156, 158, 159, 165.
Mūlasuttagāhā 41.
Mūlasuya 41.
Mūlasūtra 18, 36, 41–43.
Mūlāc(y)āra 14, 57, 114, 165, 179, 183, 185.
Mṛcchakaṭika 210.
Mettasutta 118.
Meru 159.
Meha 106.
Mokkha 107.
Moggarapāṇi 106.
Mohaṇijjaṭhāṇa 107, 143.
Mohanaghara 130.
Mohanīya 143.
Mohaparājaya 215.
Yajurveda 29, 162.
Yantra 92.
Yamaka 119, 121.
Yogacūrṇa 94, 95.
Yogaśāstra 62, 102.
Yogasūtra 165.
Yoni 140.
Yoniprābhṛta 92, 93.
Yonividhāna 93.
Raïvakkā 45.
Ratikalpa 46.
Ratnakaraṇḍaśrāvakācāra 57.
Rayaṇāvalī 188, 197.
Rasadevī 108.
Rahanemiya 148.
Rājagaha 62.
Rajagir 62.
Rājagṛha 128.
Rājapraśnīya 30, 32, 33, 55.
Rājaprasenakīya 33, 55.
Rājaprasenajit 33, 55.
Rādhāvedha 167.
Rāma 108.
Rāmakaṇhā 106.
Rāmagutta 105.
Rāmaputta 107.
Rāmāyaṇa 14, 162, 224.
Rāyapaseṇaïjja 128, 138.
Rāyapaseṇaïya 29, 30, 33–35.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Rāyapaseṇi(y)a 24, 26, 32, 92, 131, 138, 205, 221, 224, 229.
Rāyapaseṇīya 30.
Rāsibaddha 83.
Rāsī 126.
Riüvveda 164.
Reduplicatives in Indo-Aryan 132.
Religions of India 206.
Review of Philosophy and Religion, The 117.
Risibhāsita 192.
Ruppiṇī 106.
Rūva 113.
Rohiṇī 130.
Lakkhaṇā 106.
Laghubhāsa 38.
Laghuvṛtti 188.
Lacchī 108.
Laṭṭhadanta 107.
Labdhi 102, 176.
Lalitavistara 221.
Lalita Vistāra 118.
Lahuvaravariyā 175, 176.
Life of the Buddha and the early history of his Order, The 129.
Literary History of India 206.
Lectures on the History of Indian Literature 129, 206.
Lecchatī 105.
Latin 13.
Leva 230.
Leśyā 140.
Lesā 148.
Lehre der Jainas (nach der alten Quellen dargestellt, Die) 76.
Lokaprakāśa 8, 87, 90, 226.
Lokabindusāra 85.
Lokānuyoga 198.
Logavija(y)a 77, 112.
Logasāra 77, 112.
Logāyat(y)a 14, 163.
Laukāgata 163.
Vaïsesiya 163.
Vakkasuddhi 88, 155, 181.
Vakkhakkāra 140.
Vagga 33, 99, 105-107, 127, 130, 134, 135.
Vaggacūli(y)ā 24, 25, 52, 55, 56, 81, 103, 108.
Vaggacūlī 103.
Vaṅgacūliyā 25, 51, 52.
Vacanikā 204.
Vaṇṇa 137.
Vaṇṇaü 64, 65.
Vaṇṇaya-sutta 215.
Vaṇhi 105.
Vaṇhiā(ā) 25.
Vaṇhidasa(ā) 24, 25, 29, 30, 33, 34, 55, 141.
Vaṇhiya 25.
Vattamāṇappaya 84.
Vattha 112, 113.
Vatthu 90, 91.
Vandaṇa 174.
Vandaṇanijjutti 178.
Vandaṇaya 23, 158, 183.
Vandana 57.
Vandāruvṛtti 159.
Vandittusutta 58.
Varavariyā 176.
Varuṇovavāya 24, 25, 55, 56, 100.
Vargacūlikā 103.
Varṇaka 64.
Valabhī 63, 137, 144, 145.
Valahassajātaka 130.
Vavahāra 15, 17, 24, 25, 38-41, 52, 81, 89, 100, 102-104, 142, 147, 149, 168, 172, 187, 189, 190, 198, 203, 209, 229.
Vavahāracuṇṇi 194.
Vavahāranijjutti 183.
Vavahārabhāsa 173, 188.
Vasudevacariya 96.
Vasudevahiṇḍī 77, 96, 192.
Vasule 115.
Vastu 91.
Vassa 145.
Vāgaraṇa 164.
Vācaka 4, 74, 109, 160.
Vācanā 61, 72, 80, 81, 106, 107, 146.
Vācya 143, 145, 146.
Vājasaneyisaṁhitā 208.
Vāṇiyagāma 65.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Vāta 108.
Vādivetāla 47.
Vāyaṇā 146.
Vāriseṇa 106, 107.
Vārtika 117, 200, 201, 203.
Vālabhī 61, 71, 73, 168.
Viāvatta 84.
Viāhapaṇṇatti 2, 6, 26, 53, 59, 94, 102, 104, 126, 140, 144, 160, 163, 190, 194, 198, 199, 215, 217–220, 224–227.
Vicārāmṛtasaṅgraha 38, 159.
Vicitracaryā 46.
Vijayacariya 84.
Vijjappavāya 88.
Vijjācaraṇaviṇiccha(y)a 24–26, 103.
Vijjāṇuppavāya 85, 90.
Vijjāpāhuḍa 92.
Vijñāna(khaṇḍa) 127.
Viṇayasamāhi 155.
Viṇayasuya 148.
Viṇṇāṇapāhuḍa 92.
Viṇhu 105.
Vittharavāyaṇā 146.
Vidyā 86, 94, 135, 202.
Vidyātiśaya 135.
Vidyāprābhṛta 92, 95.
Vidhiprapā 30, 78.
Vinayapiṭaka 221.
Vinayavāda 123.
Vinayaśruta 182.
Vipākasūtra 28, 54, 136.
Vippaccaïya 84.
Vippajaṇaseṇiā–pari° 83.
Vippajahaṇāvatta 84.
Vimāṇapavibhatti 55.
Vimāna 11, 99, 138, 167.
Vimuk(t)ti 46, 78, 112, 113, 116.
Vimutti 107, 108.
Vimokkha 77, 112.
Vimokṣa 181.
Viyatta 3.
Viyāralesa 29, 30.
Viyārasāra 30, 34, 41, 58.
Viyāha 81.
Viyāhacūliyā 81.
Viyāhapaṇṇatti 59.
Vivāgasuya 6, 7, 19, 28, 29, 54, 55, 105, 116, 136, 213, 221.
Vivāta 108.
Vivāhacūliyā 24, 25, 55, 56, 103, 108.
Vivāhapaṇ(n)ṇ(n)atti 28, 53, 94, 126, 156.
Vivittacari(y)a 45, 116.
Vividhatīrthakalpa 92, 93.
Vividhapraśnottara 29, 110.
Vivṛti 51, 86, 200.
Viśālalocana 90.
Viśeṣa 140.
Viśeṣāvaśyakalaghuvṛtti 201.
Viṣṇupurāṇa 141.
Visesaṇavaï 2, 40.
Visesāvassayabhāsa 11, 12, 22, 26, 36, 40, 51, 58, 73, 82, 86–89, 91, 93, 94, 101, 102, 152, 160, 175, 184, 187–190, 196, 198, 200–202, 212, 219, 225, 227–229.
Visehacuṇṇi 37, 61, 92, 93, 109, 183, 187, 189, 190.
Vihārakappa 24–26, 104.
Vihi–sutta 215.
Wiener Zeitschrift für die Kunde des Morgenlandes 222.
Viyarāgasu(y)a 24–26, 103.
Vīrakaṇhā 106.
Vīratthay(v)a 50, 56, 167.
Vīrastava 50, 51.
Vīrastuti 186.
Vīriā 85, 120.
Vuḍḍhabhāsa 38, 190.
Vuḍḍhavaravariyā 175–177.
Vṛddha khaṇḍa 124.
Vṛddhataragāthikakhaṇḍa 124.
Vṛddhavaitāliya 123.
Vṛṣṇidasā 30.
Veï 78.
Vetālia 120.
Veda 14, 27–29, 57, 60, 78, 112, 126, 129, 131, 152, 162, 164, 177, 209, 211.
Vedaṇā 140.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Vedabandhaka 140.
Vedalla 28.
Vedavedaka 140.
Vedāṅga 29, 211.
Vedāṅga-jyotiṣa 226.
Veya 152, 164.
Veyāliya 55, 121, 154.
Velaṇa 213.
Velandharovavāä 24, 81.
Velandharovavāt(y)a 25, 55, 56, 100.
Vesamaṇovavāä 24, 81.
Vesamaṇovavāt(y)a 25, 55, 56, 100.
Vesāli 62, 141.
Vesiya 163.
Vehalla 107.
Vehāsa 107.
Vaitāliya 119–121, 123, 157.
Vaiśika 163.
Worte Mahāvīras 29, 120.
Vyavahāra 37, 39, 40, 88, 177, 184, 194.
Vyākhyā 103.
Vyākhyācūlikā 103.
Vyākhyāna 146.
Vyākhyāprajñapti 28, 54, 103, 126, 127.
Vyākhyābhagavatī 103.
Vyutkrānti 140.
Śakaṭabhadrikā 162.
Śakrastava 145.
Śataka 89.
Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 208.
Śatapadī 199.
Śatruñjayakalpa 93.
Śabdaprābhṛta 92, 95, 212.
Śarīra 140.
Śalākāpuruṣa 77.
Śākhā 144, 193.
Śāstraparijñā 197.
Śikṣā 27.
Śītaleṣyā 102.
Śuklayajuḥprātiśākhya 208.
Śuddhavākyānuyoga 125.
Śeṣavat 219.
Śrāddhavidhi 92, 95.
Śrībhagavatīsāra 127, 128.
Śruta 20–22, 24, 27, 83, 215.
Śrutajñāna 15, 20.
Śrutapuruṣa 21, 28.
Śrutaskandha 40.
Śrutāvatāra 74, 75.
Śreṇi 230.
Śrautasūtra 213.
Ṣaḍāvaśyaka 159.
Ṣaṣṭhitantra 129, 131, 163.
Saä 126, 127, 129.
Saṁyama 140.
Saṁlekhanā 104.
Saṁlehaṇāsuya 24–26, 56, 104.
Saṁvat 14, 27, 29, 31, 32, 35, 37, 40, 45, 49, 52, 61, 63, 67, 68, 73–75, 77, 94, 96, 146, 147, 164, 172, 175, 188, 191, 193, 195, 197–199, 201, 204.
Saṁvara 107, 135.
Saṁvegaraṅgaśālā 52.
Saṁsattanijjutti 56, 58, 170, 183.
Saṁsāradāvānala 186.
Saṁsārapaḍiggaha 83.
Saṁskṛta 27, 125, 203.
Saṁstāra 51.
Saṁstāraka 49, 50, 166.
Saṁsthāna 126.
Saṁhanana 126.
Sakkata 125.
Sagaḍa 105.
Sagaḍabhaddiyā 162.
Saṅkhā 107.
Saṅkhitta 146.
Saṅkheya 79.
Saṅkhevitadasā 55, 99, 100, 108.
Saṅkhyāta 49.
Saṅkhyāna 225.
Saṅgahaṇī 40, 174, 198, 205.
Saṅgahaṇīgāhā 205.
Saṅgrahaṇī 17, 200.
Saṅgrahaṇīgāthā 127.
Saṅgha 3, 72, 160.
Saṅghaṭṭa 231.
Saṅghāṭaka 72, 75.
Saṅghāḍa 130.
Saccanemi 106.
Saccappavāya 85, 88.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Saccabhāmā 106.
Saccasirī 80.
Sañjaïjja 148.
Sañjūha 84.
Sañjñā 140.
Saṭṭhāṇa 106.
Saṭṭhit(y)anta 14, 163, 164.
Saḍasīī 195.
Saḍāvassaya 203.
Saḍḍhajīyakappa 58.
Saḍḍhasayaga 195.
Sattariyā 89.
Sattarisayaṭṭhāṇa 2.
Sattasattikaga 78.
Sattasattikayā 112.
Sattikag(y)ā 112, 113.
Sattuseṇa 106.
Satthapariṇ(n)ṇ(n)ā 77, 112, 113, 115, 116.
Sadda 118.
Saddapāhuḍa 92, 95, 192.
Saddālaputta 105.
Santhāraga 50, 166, 199, 203.
Sandehaviṣauṣadhī 143, 146.
Sannā-sutta 215.
Saptatikā 89.
Saptabhaṅgī 220.
Sabaladosa 143.
Sabalā 107.
Sabhikkhu 148, 155.
Samaā 120.
Samaṇasutta 156.
Samaṇovāsagapaḍikkamaṇa 195, 199.
Samabhirūḍha 84.
Samaya 2, 90.
Samayakṣetra 101.
Samayappavāya 85.
Samarāïccacariya 21, 179.
Samavā(y)a 6, 7, 11, 21, 28-32, 54, 59, 77, 78, 81, 83-85, 97, 99, 103, 112, 120, 121, 125-127, 148, 170, 178, 218, 221, 228, 229.
Samavyāptika-sūtra 216.
Samāṇa 84.
Samāhi 120.
Samāhiṭṭhāṇa 148.
Samiïī 148.
Samīsāñjano Upadeśa 218.
Samuṭṭhāṇa 101, 104.
Samuṭṭhāṇasu(y)a 24, 25, 56, 81, 100, 101, 109.
Samudghāt(y)a 125, 138, 140.
Samudda 105, 106.
Samuddapālijja 148.
Samuvaṭṭhāṇasuya 101.
Samosaraṇa 120, 138, 175, 177.
Sampadā 143.
Samba 106.
Sambhiṇṇa 84.
Sambhūtavijata 108.
Sammaï(payaraṇa) 188, 191.
Sammati 11.
Sammatta 77, 112.
Sammasuya 13, 14.
Sammāvāta 54.
Sammūrcchima 170.
Samyaktva 140.
Samyakśruta 13.
Sayaga 89, 195.
Sarapāhuḍa 92.
Sarīrapada 192.
Savvaöbhadda 84.
Savvapāṇabhūtajīvasattasuhāvaha 54.
Savvarisi 80.
Savvasumiṇa 108.
Sahasuddāha 105.
Sahasrāra 101.
Sāṁvyavahāri-pratyakṣa 219.
Sāgara 105, 106.
Sāgaropama 126.
Sāṅkhyakārikā 163, 164.
Sāṅkhyasaptati 163.
Sāta 107.
Sādhana(khaṇḍa) 127.
Sāmaṇṇapuvvaga 155.
Sāmaveda 29, 162, 164.
Sāmāïya 23, 158, 174, 175, 183, 187.
Sāmāïyanijjutti 176, 178.
Sāmāïyabhāsa 187.
Sāmāïyasutta 70.
Sāmācārī 29, 88, 143.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sāmācārīśataka 63.
Samāyārī 91, 143, 145, 148, 175, 177
Sāmāyika 57, 178.
Sāraṇa 106.
Sārāvalī 51, 67.
Sālatiyāpitu 105.
Sālibhadda 106.
Sijjā 113.
Sittari 195.
Siddhacakra 22, 190.
Siddhanta 210.
Siddhapāhuḍa 51, 92, 95.
Siddhaprābhṛta 88, 92.
Siddhabaddha 83.
Siddhaśreṇi 97.
Siddhaseṇiā 83, 84,
Siddhaseṇi(t)a-parikkama 83, 84.
Sīddhāṇaṁ buddhāṇaṁ 159.
Siddhānta 58, 69, 113.
Siddhānta(khaṇḍa) 127.
Siddhāntastava 148.
Siddhāntāgamastava 30, 51, 80, 96, 141, 148.
Siddhāvatta 83,
Siddhiviṇicchaya 191.
Siridevī 108.
Sirisirivālakahā 90, 230.
Sirī 108.
Siloāṇāma 212.
Siva 108.
Sīosaṇijja 77, 112.
Sīsapaheliyā 192, 226.
Sīha 107, 128.
Sīhaseṇa 107.
Suṁsamā 130.
Sukaṇhā 106,
Sukālī 106.
Sukka 108.
Sukkhitta 108.
Sukhāvabodhavivaraṇa 146.
Sujāyā 106.
Suṇakkhatta 106.
Sutta 7, 8, 41, 58, 83–85, 97, 98, 111, 115, 119, 122, 124–127, 133, 135, 137–139, 145–147, 158, 159, 161, 164, 172, 178, 184, 186, 205, 209–211, 213–216.
Suttak(g)aḍa 53, 181.
Sutta-nirutta 211.
Suttanipāta 118, 119, 152, 218, 223.
Suttapphāsiyanijjutti 178, 185.
Suttāiṁ 76.
Sudaṁsaṇa 105, 106.
Suddhadanta 107.
Sunakkhatta 107.
Supaïṭṭha 106.
Suppaḍibaddhā 160.
Subodhikā 5, 17, 19, 59, 86, 88.
Subhaddā 106.
Sumaṇabhadda 106.
Sumaṇā 106.
Sumaruya 106.
Sumiṇa 108.
Sumuha 106.
Suya 26, 55, 211.
Suyakkhandha 55, 74, 77, 78, 105, 111, 113, 114, 117, 119, 120, 123, 130, 134, 136, 147, 213.
Suyanāṇa 20, 21, 23, 91, 176.
Surādeva 105.
Surādevī 108.
Suvaṇ(r)ṇabhūmi 180, 193.
Suśrutasaṁhitā 128.
Susīmā 106.
Suhabohasāmāyārī 29, 31, 34.
Suhavivāga 186.
Sūtagaḍa 53.
Sūtra 81, 193, 204, 213–216.
Sūtrakṛta 24, 32, 54, 120.
Sūtrakṛtāṅga 113, 118, 184.
Sūyagaḍa 6, 7, 15, 16, 21, 28–30, 38, 76, 81, 94, 118–120, 123, 124, 149, 173, 178, 181, 187, 190, 195, 197, 199, 200, 204, 208, 213, 218, 222, 223, 225, 230, 231.
Sūyagaḍaṅgasutta 120.
Sūyagaḍaṭikā 197.
Sūyagaḍanijjutti 53, 119, 120, 181, 184, 225.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Sūra 108.
Sūrata 108.
Sūrapaṇ(n)ṇ(ṇ)atti 12, 24-26, 29, 30, 32, 34, 53, 56, 140.
Sūriyapaṇṇatti 15-17, 53, 80, 91, 109, 140, 141, 168, 187, 200, 226.
Sūryaprajñapti 11, 30, 57, 80, 184.
Seübandha 228.
Second Book of Sanskrit 156.
Sacred Books of the East, The 75, 78, 111-113, 115, 118, 121, 140.
Sejjā 112.
Seṇiya 106.
Seṇippaseṇī 230.
Senapraśna 148, 158, 159.
Septuagint 13.
Selaga 130.
Sesaüvagghāyanijjutti 175.
Somila 105.
Soriya 105.
Soriyadatta 105.
Sovatthiävatta 84.
Sautta anuṣṭubh 123.
Saurasena 61.
Saurasenī 61.
Saurāṣṭra 170.
Skāndilī 61.
Schools and Sects in Jaina Literature 123.
Scripture truth in Oriental Dress 131.
Stabākārtha 203.
Stabbaka 203.
Standard Sanskrit English Dictionary, The 21.
Studien zur indischen Erzälungsliteratur 222.
*Sthavira 113, 115.
*Sthavira-kalpin 104.
Sthavirāvalī 143.
Sthāna 28, 31, 54, 121, 124, 139, 196, 224.
Sthāpanā 8, 211.
Sthāpanākalpa 88.
Sthāpanākulakasvādhyāya 88.
Sthiti 140.
Syādvāda 211, 220.
Syādvādamañjarī 161, 163, 164.
Svara 124, 224.
Svaraprābhṛta 92.
Svaramaṇḍala 125.
Svarita 209.
Svopajña 102, 203.
Hariësa 148.
Haricandaṇa 106.
Harivaṁśa-purāṇa 57, 74.
Halla 107.
Hāthīgumpha 62.
Hāra 108.
Hebrew 13.
Himavanta 106.
Himvanta therāvalī 71.
Hirī 108.
History of Indian Literature, A 28, 29, 36, 39, 42, 43, 48, 50, 57, 62, 64, 69, 113, 114, 120, 122, 128, 130, 131, 138-141, 144, 152, 161, 166, 202, 207, 218.
History of Zoroastrianism 68.
History of the non-canonical Literature of the Jainas, A 207.
History of Bengali language and Literature 64.
History of Sanskrit Literature 206.
History of Civilization in Ancient India, A 132.
Hīraprašna 90.
Hundā 2.
Heüvāta 54.
Horā 167.
Hole 115.[1]

1 Names occurring both in Saṁskṛta and Pāïya are given together where possible; in other cases they are given separately.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

ADDITIONS & CORRECTIONS[1]

Page	Line
2	11	Read out for off.
3	29	,, इंदभूई ,, इंदभूइं.
4	19	Add or ādeśa after mātṛkāpada.
5	23	,, at the end of fn. 1: See Svayambhūstotra (v. 114), too.
8	2	Read Upādhyāya's for Upādhāya's.
9	5	,, the for our.
10	21	,, कंडिकावत् for कडिकावत्.
,,	22	,, सव्वं for सव्वं.
12	22	,, कालियसुयं for कालियसुय.
,,	23	,, पुहुत्ताणु० for पुहुताणु०.
14	18	,, कावलिअं for कावालिअं.
16	30	Add Pt. II after see.
,,	last	Read ध्ययनानि for ध्ययनानि.
18	2	,, 11 for 12.
,,	19	,, jñāna for jñānā.
19	last	,, प्रधानं for प्रधान.
20	3	,, nāṇa for nāṇā.
21	last	,, समवायधरे णं for समवायधरेणं.
24	last	Add पमायप्पमायं after चन्दाविज्झयं.
26	22	Read ukkāliya for kāliya.
27	20	Add: with the exception that in Dhavalā there is mention of Chedasutta.
,,	25	Read Vyākaraṇa for Veyyākaraṇa.
28	14	,, 12 such for such 12.
29	34	,, prācīna for prāāna.
31	35	Add as suggested in Prabhāvakacaritra after time.
33	17	,, Vide p. 137, fn. 2 after at present.
,,	23	Read available at for lost by.
36	5	,, Mūlasūtras for Mūlasūtra.
37	28	Add of Nisīha before we.
38	19	,, a fn. on some: See Jaina sāhityano saṅkṣipta itihāsa (p. 75).
41	29	,, except Mahānisīha (vide p. 80, fn. 4) after antiquity.

1 In the transliteration of Pāïya and Saṁskṛta words, a diacritical mark has in some places dropped out or suffered displacement or wrongly given. This has given rise to errors. Of them, some have been rectified in Indexes, and hence they are not included here.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
43	9	Add in the beginning: On seeing that सामाइयाइं एक्कारस अंगाइं अहिज्जइ occurs in Aṇtagaḍadasā (12, 89), Vivāgasuya (212), Nirayāvaliyā (71, 72, 186) etc., and on taking into account Āvassayanijjutti, Jiyakappa and its Cuṇṇi (p. 5) and Dasaveyāliyanijjutti, Dr. A. M. Ghatage, in his article The Title Mūla-sūtra published in "The Jaina Vidya" (vol. I, No. 1, July 1941) remarks on p. 11: "The expression mūlasūtra, therefore would mean 'the texts which are to be studied at the beginning of the 'svādhyāya'." For further details see addition for p. 153, l. 21.
,,	26	Read इंति for ईति.
45	2	,, Uttarajjhāyā, Āvassayanijjutti, Dasaveyāliya for Uttarajjhayaṇa, Dasaveyāliya, Āvassaya.
,,	14	Read inter-arrangement for inter-arragement.
48	24	,, पूर्वैरङ्गोपाङ्गैः for पूर्वैरङ्गौपाङ्गैः.
52	19	Add An before Epitome, and p. 692 and before Appendix.
,,	20	,, A. D. 1917 after Ghosh.
53	28	,: There are ten types of daviyāṇuōga. See Ṭhāṇa (s. 727).
55	13	,, and some noted on p. 25 after Isibhāsiya.
58	6	,, after p. XI": Ādipurāṇa (XXXIV, 135 ff.) and Harivaṁśapurāṇa (II, 92 ff.) give some information about the 12 Aṅgas.
61	22	Read survivors for servivors.
63	6	Add a fn. on ālāvaga. This word is used in Ṭhāṇa (s.83,127, 160).
64	22	Read सोऊण for सो ऊण.
65	9	,, thenceforth for thence forth.
66	27	Add to fn. 2: It may be that originally, there was an episode with different characters but the names of these characters were modified, the episode however, remaining the same as is possible since the history repeats itself many a time.
70	11	Read with for wilh.
71	7	,, at for as.
74	25	,, reconciliations for reconcilations.
76	38	,, they ,, thev.
77	25	,, 925 for 933.
79	32	Add except Senapraśna (p. 55[a]) after source.
,,	32	,, Here pada is said to equal 510, 886, 840 ślokas plus 28 akṣaras.
80	35	Read गणहरेहिं अत्थत्ताए for गणहरेहिंअत्थत्ताए.
84	16	Add a fn. on Ājīvagas: See "Ājīvaka sect—A New Interpretation" by Prof. A. S. Gopani published in "Bhāratīya Vidyā" (vol. II, pt. II, pp. 201–210 and vol. III. pt. I, pp. 47–59).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
84	22	Read dravyas for drayas.
86	8	Add a fn. on lores: According to Sirisirivālakahā, the description of Siddhacakra given in its verses 196–206 is based upon the 10th Puvva.
88	18	Add at the end of the line: निज्जूहंति occurs in Viāhapaṇṇatti (XV, s. 1). Abhayadeva Sūri explains it as "निर्यूथयन्ति-पूर्वलक्षण-श्रुतपर्याययूथान् निर्धारयन्ति, उद्धरन्तीत्यर्थः"
89	8	Add after Puvva (?): XXVI Saṁsattaṇijjutti, the 2nd Puvva and XXVII Pūyācaṇṇīsi, some Puvva.
90	8	Read Praśnottara° for Praśnottra°.
91	9	Add to after added.
,,	20	Read as for a.
,,	35	,, fn. 1 for fn. 2.
,,	36	,, fn. 2 ,, fn. 1.
93	10, 16	Add of Nisiha after Visehacuṇṇi.
96	37	Read अट्ठ for अट्ठ.
101	6	Add on p. 299 after thing.
103	9	,, : From Abhidhānarājendra it appears that Mahāpaṇṇavaṇā is referred to in Paṇhāvāgaraṇa and Āvassaya.
107	17	Read intact for in tact.
112	20	,, righteousness for righeousness.
114	33	,, corresponding for correspesponding.
117	36	,, त्सजति for सजति.
124	11	,, mātrās for matrās.
,,	12	Add after saṁsṛṣṭi: The late Prof. Madhav T. Patvardhan has discussed the Vaitālīya metre of several verses of Sūyagaḍa in his Chandoracanā (pp. 107–108).
128	10	Read XXVII for XXVI.
,,	33	Add after noted: Mr. G. J. Patel must have seen at least some of these articles and must have come to a certain decision. I do not know what it is. It may be however inferred from the following lines occurring in his work Śrī-Mahāvīrakathā (p. 388) published very recently: "હું હમણાં કાંઇ મરણ પામવાનો નથી. હજુ તો હું બીજાં ૧૬ વર્ષ જીવવાનો છું. માટે તું મેંઢિક નગરમાં રેવતી નામે ગૃહપત્ની છે તેને ત્યાં જા. તેણે મારે માટે રાંધીને ભોજન તૈયાર કરેલું છે. તેને કહેજે કે, મારે તે ભોજનનું કામ નથી. પરંતુ તેણે પોતાને માટે જે ભોજન તૈયાર કરેલું છે, તે મારે માટે લઇ આવ." Here he has changed his original translation as can be seen from the omission of certain words which according to him conveyed flesh-eating.
129	3	Read across for a cross.
131	23	,, धर्मो for धर्मो.
,,	4	,, arrest for attest.
133	25	,, unflinching for unflincting.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
135	30	Add after mantras: Dr. Amulya Chandra Sen has composed A Critical Indroduction to the Paṇhāvāgaraṇāim the Tenth Aṅga of the Jaina Canon.; but as I have not come across it, I cannot give any details.
137	14	Read upon for to.
138	25	,, Gaṇadhara for Gaṇadahara.
140	10	,, encyclopædia for encyclopedia.
144	10	,, an for as.
,,	37	,, Epigraphica for Epigraphic.
,,	35, 36	,, across for accross.
147	16	,, forms for form.
152	12	,, dogma for dogmatics.
153	21	Add a fn. after Āyāra: Keeping in mind the meanings of mūlaguṇa and uttaraguṇa and mūlaprakṛti and uttaraprakṛti, Dr. A. M. Ghatage contrasts uttarāddhyayanāni with mūlāddhyayanāni and says: "The first expression should mean the latter group of chapters as contrasted with an earlier group of chapters. That they may refer to the two books Daśavaikālika and Uttarāddhyayana is probable from the fact that both of them are divided into ajjhayaṇas or addhyayanas. Not so the first book of this list. The six Āvaśyaka tracts are only known by the name sūtra and they can be only referred to by an expression like mūlasūtra. To conclude, it may be suggested that the expression mūlasūtra 'sūtra texts to be studied at the beginning of the svādhyāya' referred to the Āvaśyaka formulae, the expression mūlāddhyayana referred to the first group of addhyayanas now forming the Daśavaikālika and the next thirty-six chapters got the name Uttarāddhyayana. Later on, however, the first name was extended to cover the three books together and still later a fourth book was added, which was either the Piṇḍaniryukti or the Oghaniryukti."—"The Title Mūlasūtra" (p. 11)
157	22	Read intact for in tact.
,,	30	Add after work: As regards the metres of Dasaveyāliya, the reader may refer to p. 119, fn. 1, p. 157 fn. 1, Prof. K. V. Abhyankar's article" "Dissertation on an old metre etc." published in "Gujarat College Magazine" (No. 31 of February 1931), The Daśavaikālikasūtra: A study (chs. I–VI, pp. 20-27 & chs. VII–XII, pp. 101-106) and Chandoracanā (p. 69). In this last work v. 2 of Dasaveyāliya (IV) is quoted as an illustration of the use of आ, ए and ओ as short vowels.
159	29	Read पाक्षिकसत्रे for पांक्षिकसत्रै.
160	36	,, pp. 16–17 for p. 16.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
161	6	Add a fn. on Aṇuogaddāra: This work is styled as prakaraṇa by Siddhasena Gaṇi in his com. (pt. I, p. 186) on Tattvārtha.
,,	15	Add a fn. on non-Jaina works: Caraka and Suśruta are mentioned in the com. (p. 42[a]) of Ohanijjutti.
162	8	Add a fn. on Rāmāyaṇa: This is also the name of a work on dramaturgy. Vide Bhāsa's Avimāraka (TSS No. 20, p. 16).
163	2	Add a fn. on Kappāsia: Kappāsa (Sk. Kārpāsa) is mentioned in v. 12 of Ohanijjuttibhāsa.
165	4	Add after this: and especially when the word vāgaraṇaṁ intervenes puraṇaṁ and Bhāgavaṁ.
169	9	Add after But: Haribhadra Sūri (vide p. 4[a] of his com. on Dasaveyāliya).
172	22	Read probability for probality.
177	10	,, cursory for cursorary.
,,	26	,, removal for removals.
179	28	,, erotic for erotics.
,,	29	Add the after on.
,,	32	,, after cf.: Ṭhāṇa (IV, 2; s. 282).
184	12	,, Śānti after Vādivetāla.
186	31	,, after Prākṛta: as is the case with Śīlavatīkathā occurring in Arthadīpikā (pp. 85[b]–99[a]) and Bhīmakumārakathā, a Ms. of which exists in a Jaina Bhaṇḍāra in the Punjab.
187	13	Add a fn. on Ohanijjutti: A Ms. of its Bhāsa is in Jesalmere.
,,	24	,, a fn. on Bhāsa: It appears that Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 21[b]) on Dasaveyāliya uses the word Sāmāyikabṛhadbhāṣya to denote Visesā°.
,,	30	Read extinct for extant.
190	14	Add a fn. on Cuṇṇi: A com. composed by Yativṛṣabha Ācārya on Kaṣāyaprābhṛta is known as Cūrṇisūtra.
191	6	Add a fn. on Addhamāgahā: This is defined by Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. (p. 78) on Ovavāiya.
,,	7	Add a fn. on Siddhivinicchaya. See my article "A Note on Siddhiviniścaya and Sṛṣṭiparīkṣā" published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XIII, pts. III–IV, pp. 335–336).
,,	11	Add after has: used the word Hindu in this Cuṇṇi. That this is the first reference of its kind in the Jaina literature is a statement occurring in "ગુજરાતી દીપોત્સવી અંક" (p. 63) dated 19-10-41.
192	15	Add after attributed: An avacūri on Siddhāntāgamastava published in the Kāvyamālā is silent about the name of the author of this Cuṇṇi.
195	3	Add a fn. on paheliyā: It means a poetical riddle. Daṇḍin has mentioned 16 kinds of prahelikā in his Kāvyādarśa (III, 96–124).

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
196	15	Read 2^b, 4^b, 9^b, 15^b, 19^b, 20^a etc. for 2^a, 4^b.
,,	19	,, 11 for 9.
,,	20	Add a fn. on Āyāra: In its com. (pp. 50, 87, 112, 118 and 131) grammatical forms are explained on the basis of prosody.
197	8	Add a fn. on Gandhahastin: Is he the same as one mentioned by Guṇaratna Sūri in his Tattvarahasyadīpikā (p. 81^b), a com. on Ṣaḍdarśanasamuccaya? The pertinent line is as under: "यथोक्तं श्रीगन्धहस्तिना महातर्के-द्वादशाङ्गमपि श्रुतं विदर्शनस्य मिथ्या।" I find this quotation in Devagupta Sūri's com. (p. 2) on the bhāṣyakārikās of Tattvārtha. I do not think it occurs in Siddhasena Gaṇi's com. on it. So has there been any confusion regarding the names and can Mahātarka be identified with this com.?
,,	9	Add after lost: to us. It was utilized by Śīlāṅka.
198	15	,, Nandī after Vavahāra and add a fn. on this Nandī: The late Dr. Tessitori has discussed in Indian Antiquary (vol. 42, pp. 148 ff.) 4 versions from the Jaina literature regarding an example of Solomon's judgement motif. One of them is taken from Malayagiri Sūri's com. on Nandī. See the English translation (vol. II, intro.) of Triṣaṣṭi. There it is said: "Hemacandra follows Malayagiri in his com. to the Nandīsūtra."
200	11	Add a fn. on Aṅgas III-XI: Abhayadeva Sūri in his com. ($p. 659^b$) on Aṅga V says: "पार्श्वस्थीभूता इति टीकाकारः पासावच्चिज्ज त्ति चूर्णिकारः". Does he here allude to Śīlāṅka Sūri by the word ṭīkākāra? If not, the com. here referred to should be included in the list of the extinct ones.
,,	14	Add after Ovavāiya: (27) a com. on Aṅga V noted by Abhayadeva Sūri and (28) a com. on Jīvājīvābhigama (vide p.32, fn.3).
,,	36	Add to fn. 5: Malayagiri in his com. (p. 382) on Jīvājīvābhigama mentions Jambūdvīpaprajñaptiṭīkā.
202	5	Add a fn. on Harinaikameṣin: He is referred to as Hariṇegameśī in Ṭhāṇa (V, 1; s. 302 ( ), Viāhapaṇṇatti (V, 3; s. 186), Aṇtagaḍadasā (VII, 8; s. 38, 42) and Pajjusaṇākappa (s. 20), as Hariṇagamesi in Paümacariya (III, 104), and as Hariṇaigameṣin by Hemacandra in Triṣaṣṭi (I, 2, 338).
204	34	Add after 1890: wherein he has given an Appendix entitled as "The History of Gosāla Mankhaliputta briefly translated from Bhagvatī, saya XV, uddesa I".
205	20	Add to fn. 1: It also occurs in v. 1 & 364 of Bṛhatsaṅgrahaṇī, and its meaning is explained in its com. by Malayagiri Sūri.
,,	21	Add after 1937: As regards translation of the exegetical literature, Dunmuhacariya, Bambhadattacariya, Agaḍadattacariya and

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
		Maṇḍiyacariya given by Nemicandra Sūri in his com. on chapters IX, XIII, IV and IV of Uttarajjhayaṇa on pp. 135^{b}–136^{b}, 185^{b}–197^{b}, 84^{a}–94^{a} and 95^{a}–95^{b} respectively are translated into English. Of them the 1st and the last are translated by Prin. A. Woolner in his Introduction to Prakrit on pp. 148–145 and 137–139 respectively.
207	34	Read non-canonical for non-canonical.
208	21	The word 'probably' may be dropped; for, this verse occurs in the com. (p. 107) on Sūyagaḍa according to Apabhraṃśapaḷhāvalī, though I do not find it in this com.
,,	23	Add in the beginning: The following verse quoted in Apabhraṁśapāṭhāvalī (p. 155) is quoted by Haribhadra Sūri in his com. (p. 694) on Dasaveyāliya and it occurs in Āvassayacuṇṇi, too.
,,	26	Add a fn. on 18 Deśibhāṣās. See Nāyādhammakahā (p. 38), Vivāgasuya (I, II; § 34) and Ovavāiya (p. 98) where the phrase अट्ठारसदेसीभासाविसारय occurs. See also a Ms. (fol. 76) of Dākṣiṇyacihna Sūri's Kuvalayamālā at B. O. R. I.
,,	27	Read Apabhraṁśa for Apabhraṁśa.
209	2	Add a fn. on Cuṇṇis: These are useful even for etymological information. For instance Dasaveyāliyacuṇṇi (p. 11) supplies us with the etymologies of रुक्ख, दुम, तरु and वच्छ, in a way which may remind one of Nirukta by Yāska.
210	10	Add after literature: It may be added that just as Nijjutti is looked upon as an Āgama, so is the case with the Niddesa, a section of Khuddakanikāya of the Bauddhas. This Niddesa has two divisions: Mahāniddesa and Cullaniddesa. The former is a com. on Aṭṭhakavagga, whereas the latter on Khaggavisāṇa and on Pārāyaṇavagga, Vatthugāthā excluded.
212	last	Replace to be published hereafter by recently published in The Sarvajanikan (No. 43, October 1941, pp. 22–32).
213	5	Add a fn. on upamās. For the appreciation of similes see pp. 88–89 of Dr. Amulyacandra Sen's article "Mahāvīra as the ideal teacher of the Jainas" published in Bhāratīya Vidyā (vol. III, pt. I).
,,	21	Add occurring after executed.
214	17	,, after canon; as is the case with the words astikāya, darśana, hetu, karman, gama, gaccha, dharma, tiryac etc.
,,	18	Add a fn. on 'defined': Sutta is also defined on p. 178. See fn. 3.
215	4	,, a fn. on varieties: There are 3 varieties of an authoritative sūtra. See p. 14.
220	last	Drop (?) and read: This is what is said in "Jaina Sāhitya Saṁśodhaka" (I, IV, p. 146). Here it is further stated that

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Page	Line
		Mallavādin while quoting some lines from Aṅga V for explaining the nature of naya has quoted this line in his Nayacakra.
221	2	Add a fn. on Literature: See Prof. A. M. Ghatage's article "A few parallels in Jaina and Buddhist works" published in the Annals of B. O. R. I. (vol. XVII, pt. IV, pp. 340–350).
,,	3	Add tipiṭaka after equivalent.
222	13	,, after Leumann: Verses 19–27 of ajjhayaṇa XXV have a parallel in 63 verses of Vaseṭṭhasutta, having the refrain "Him I call a Brāhmaṇa."
,,	13	Add after Leumann: Prof. P. V. Bapat's article A Comparative Study of उत्तराध्ययनसूत्र with Pali Canonical Books published in "Jaina Sāhitya Saṁśodhaka" (vol. I, No. 1, 1920) and Upādhyāya Ātmārāma's article "जैन और बौद्ध धर्मोंनी समानता" published in "The Jaina Vidyā" (vol. I, No. 1, pp. 13–18) may be here noted.
224	15	Add a fn.: Cf. the inscription pertaining to music and got prepared by King Mahendravarman. Vide Epigraphica Indica (vol. XII) as suggested in Jainasatyaprakāśa (vol. VII, Nos. 1–3, p. 282).
226	15	Read attempt for attent.
,,	19	,, Mathematical for Mathemetical.
230	11	Add after Nandī: Ohanijjutti mentions Caraka and Suśruta, and Malayagiri Sūri's com. (p. 17[a]) on Nandī, Kumārasambhava.
,,	31	It may be mentioned en passant that this com. contains quotations from Āyāra, Ṭhāṇa, Kappa, Dasaveyāliya, Aṇuogaddāra and Āvassayanijjutti and the text the first 5 padas of Navakāra of which two occur in Kharvela's inscription.
231	10	Add: Amusements etc.—Veḷa, a kind of gambling is referred to in Sūyagaḍa (I, 9, 17) and goṭṭhī (a club) in Nāyādhammakahā (XVI; s. 114). Several festivites are noted in Rāyapaseṇiyasutta (s. 54).
,,	10	Read निन्नस्स for निन्नस्य.
232	7	,, annahilationist for annhilationist.
233	22	Read Cunningham for Cunnigham.
235	22	Add after line 22: Jitaśatru 11.
236	34	Read Maṇu for Manu.
237	14	Add after line 14: Nāga 100.
239	2	For a connected account about Śīlāṅka see my article "श्रीशीलाङ्कसूरि ते कोण ?" published in Jainasatyaprakaśa (vol. VII, Nos. 1–3, pp. 117–119).
247	40	Add: See p. 234.
251	6	Read Diṭṭhi(ī)vāya for Diṭṭhivāya.

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

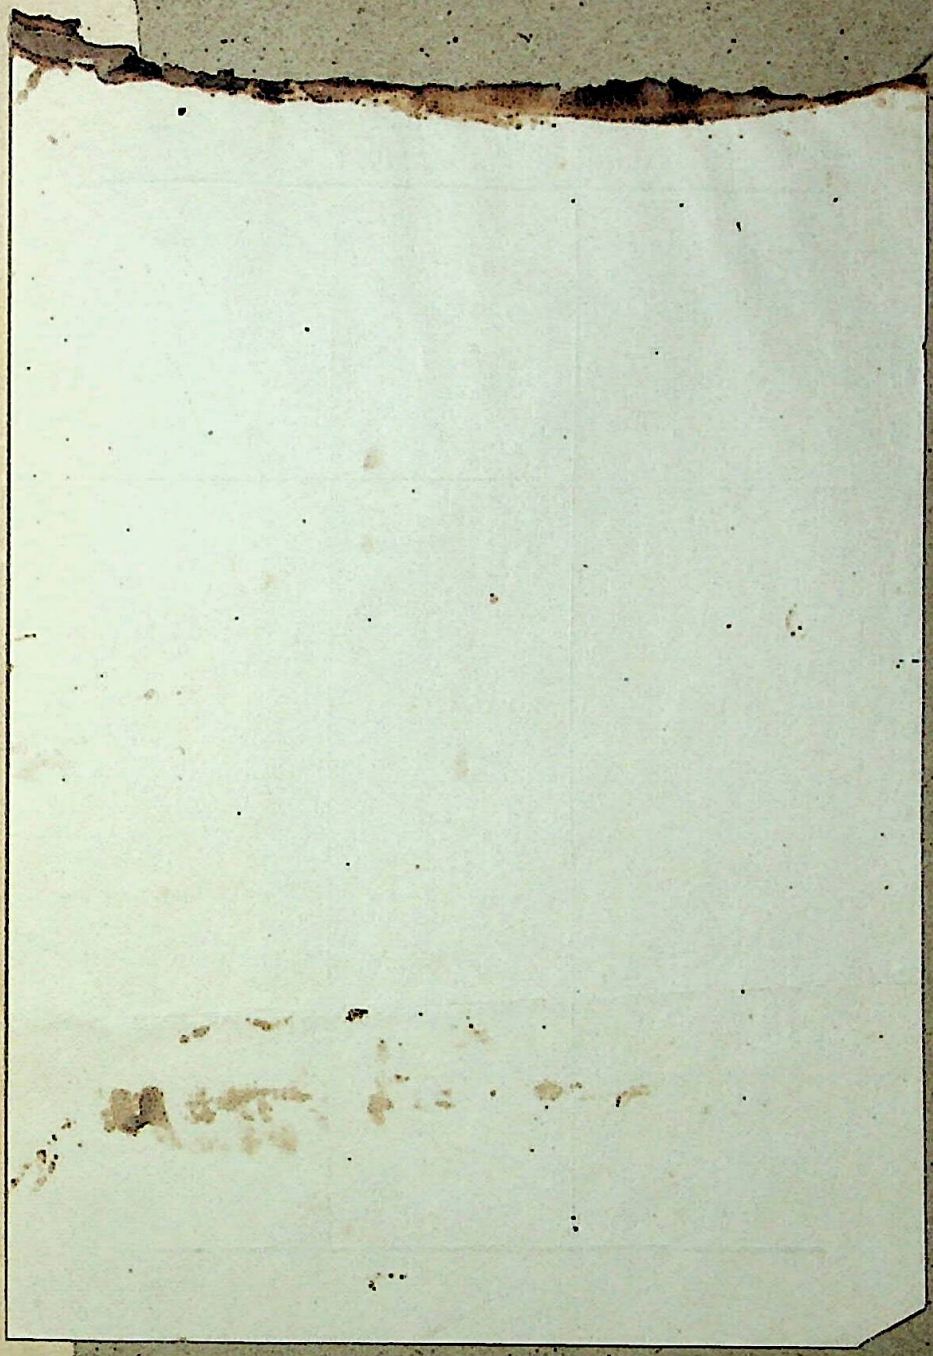
CC0 In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0 In Public Domain. Digitized by [redacted] gotri

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri



Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi

CC0.In Public Domain. Digitized by Sarayu Trust/eGangotri

Ganesh Varni Digambar Jain Institute, Naria, Varanasi